A full review covers all aspects of election administration in a county and is performed during the administration of an election to allow observation of election procedures.

Since 2009, legislation required each county be reviewed once every five years with a follow-up within a year after the review report is issued to verify the county has taken steps to correct the issues noted in the review report.

The Secretary of State's Certification and Training program bases the review schedule on the date of the last review and review staff availability.
