GENERAL NEWS.

On a passenger train on the Monon route in Indiana, two cars were derailed, seven persons killed and a large number injured.

The employees of the Birmingham [Ala.] Rolling Mill, one thousand in number, went out on a strike Jan. 27, and the fight between the men and the company promises to be a long and bitter one. An effort to force the mill into the amalgamated association caused the strike.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean publishes a letter from Horatio N. Rust, of South Pasadena, Cal., alleging the impoverished condition of the family of Captain John Brown of Ossawatimie, and requesting contributions to lift a mortgage on their house and lot at Pasadena. Contributions are to be sent to William Penn Nixon, of the Inter-Ocean, or Horatio N. Rust, Pasadena, Cal.

In the New York hospital, a few days ago, an interesting and successful experiment was made in the transfusion of blood. Miss Lizzie Cunningham had been asphyxiated by gas a few days before, and was lying in a comatose state, beyond the reach of help unless her clogged veins could be revived. To meet the emergency, about two pounds of blood was drawn from Amos A. Lincoln, a robust telegraph lineman, and injected into those of Miss Cunningham, who showed immediate signs of improvement, and will doubtless recover her health.—P.-I.

The socialists and anarchists of Chicago are greatly excited over what they believe to be a huge conspiracy of the police against them. A short time ago Detective Charles Nordrum was arrested and fined for alleged unwarranted assault on a man at a socialist meeting. Several socialists took the matter up and demanded Nordrum's dismissal. It is claimed now that the detective went to one of those interested in the prosecution to purchase leniency. He proposed to give up information concerning the operations of the police. It is now ascertained that a supposed champion of the anarchists' cause was really in the pay of the police for the purpose of creating by his wild utterances a popular prejudice. It is claimed now that Nordrum furnished fourteen reports from this spy who is Henry Dammeyer, a man who since 1886, has been one of the most aggressive anarchists in the city. At meetings none were more rabid in utterances than he, and it is now alleged that he would thus induce others to echo his sentiments and then report to the police. All this evidence was laid before the mayor, and the result was an order issued suspending Nordrum pending investigation of his alleged treachery. The mayor and police officials refuse to talk on the subject.

A favorable report has been ordered by the house military committee on the bill to retire General Fremont with the rank of major general.

Robert Gibbons, one of the witnesses for the defense in the Cronin case, was shot and badly wounded recently by Captain Schuttler, as the result of an altercation in a saloon. Gibbons was accompanied by a number of friends, including Alderman McCormick. According to Schuttler's friends, McCormick made some uncomplimentary remarks and threw a lighted cigar into Schuttler's face. The latter was about to resent the action when Gibbons, a powerful man, gave the captain a terrific bump on the jaw. He was about to repeat it when Schuttler pulled his revolver and fired. McCormick denies his reputed connection with the case, saying he had gone out when the shooting occurred. Schuttler was not in uniform at the time of the affair.

A novel invention is announced, which, if it realizes the expectations of its inventors, will valuably utilize a material which has hitherto gone to waste, besides supplying a beautiful fabric. It is a machine and process of making from waste glass a nice textile fabric. It has recently been put to a practical test, which is said to have more than realized expectations. It is claimed that the fabric thus produced combines these advantages: It is incombustible; can be manufactured in all colors and shades, which of course will not wash out or fade, and can be made of any desired thickness—as light as gauze or as heavy as a blanket. It can be made as soft and more elastic than silk; is more glossy and lustrous and has the great advantage over silk that it can be washed. If all this be true the effect on the silk trade must be serious.—P.-I.

Senator Teller, of Colorado, made an argument last week before the House committee on coinage. He expressed his disapprobation of the Windom silver bill, regarding it as hostile to the silver producing interests of the country. He looked upon the silver question as one of the most important before congress. It was not a local question, but general in its nature, and the depression in business all over the world was largely due to the treatment of silver by the United States government since 1882. The Windom bill, he declared, was illogical and a Well street measure. It had been prepared by men who had not studied the silver question, by bankers of New York, and bankers were not thorough students of financial questions from a broad standpoint. It was very likely he said, that the price of silver would be increased if the bill should be enacted into law, but he would not support it on that account. He said the proposition to issue treasury notes in return for the deposit of silver bullion made it appear as though silver were merely a commodity which would go into various sub-treasuries and other places that were to receive it. If the government recognized this principle concerning silver, there was no reason why it should not be applied to pig iron or corn. It thus took away from silver its money use, which, after all, was its chief function. The feature of the bill authorizing the secretary of the treasury to suspend the receipts of silver bullion was also objectionable in his opinion. Exercise of this discretionary power might render the secretary liable to suspicion and to imputation of being dishonest, which, though they might not be true, would make an unfortunate condition of affairs. Public officers might be always honest in using this option, he said, but not discreet, which would be just as bad, so far as the general effect was concerned. The very moment an order was given suspending the receipt of bullion, the price of silver would go down and a general bad effect on the business of the country would be the result. Teller thought the United States was capable of controlling the silver question by the adoption of a policy of free coinage, and this, he said, was the only legitimate method of treating the question, although he was in doubt whether a bill of that sort could escape veto by the president. If silver is denied access to the mints the price of gold will increase in the same relation as corn increased in price if no wheat is milled.

Assistant Postmaster General Clarkson, Wednesday, furnished a statement of the increase in business at the Seattle post office during the quarter ending December 31, 1889, from which it appears that the increase in gross receipts was $10,000 over the previous quarter. This is said to be a larger proportionate increase than at any other office in the United States.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 29.—The Sharp rifles of this city have received orders to march to Harlan county. The occasion is the apprehension of trouble there when the circuit court opens. The legislature has ordered an investigation into the troubles in that county. It will probably be made while the troops are there.

It is estimated that at least 10,000 negroes have settled in Arkansas during the last three years. Politicians view immigration with alarm, while the planters are busily engaged in gathering them from all parts of the South.

News has been received of the poisoning of a family of eight persons named Hargrave living south of Point Pleasant, W.V., by a negro woman. Four of the family are reported dead.

A company has asked the city council of Astoria for a franchise to build thirteen miles of cable car line in that city.

William H. McHenry and Alex Conners were blown to atoms by an explosion of nitro-glycerine at Alton, Pa., last week.

Louisa M. Alcott, received $5 for her first story, which was written when she was 16. She lived to receive $3000 for a story. She worked long and hard before she made much money. In 1864, after twelve years of literary labor, she made only $476. Miss Alcott was a devoted sister and daughter, but never knew the joy or sorrow of love.

Gladstone's usual circular to his supporters in the house of commons just before the opening of the session of parliament has been published. He says the condition of public affairs is not without some peculiar features and that questions to be considered at the open of the session may be of pressing interest. The wording of the circular is unusual, and is taken to indicate an early discussion of the Pigott letters and other matters of vital importance to Liberal and home rule members.

The supreme court of Montana has decided the Thompson mandamus case by granting a peremptory writ ordering the state auditor to allow Thompson's bill for mileage and per diem. Thompson is the Republican member of the legislature from Silver Bow county, being one of the five elected by throwing out the Tunnel precinct. The court goes into the question of certificates and sustains the position of the Republicans. That certificates from the state canvassing board are only prima facie evidence of membership of the legislature. This decision makes the Republican body the legal legislature.

Sir John Thompson, minister of justice, was seen in reference to the new extradition treaty between Great Britain and the United States. Members of the Canadian government including himself, thought it a satisfactory solution of the long-veiled problem, and one that would probably be accepted and endorsed by the senate, in sympathy, as it was, with the republican administration. The treaty as drawn up by Secretary Blaine and Sir Julian Pauncefofe, did not differ materially from that negotiated by Secretary Bayard, except that the clauses relating to what were called political offenses were eliminated. The treaty has, however, added a large number of crimes to those included in the treaty of 1862. So far as the dominion government was concerned, no difficulty was anticipated in accepting the treaty. They were satisfied with it, although it did not go as far as they would have liked it to go on one or two points, but they would be willing to acquiesce in its adoption.
