PORTGAND, Or., Sept. 25.—The ballot for Senator today resulted as follows: Mitchell 41, Prim 3), W. Clay Johnson 16, Failing 1, Hare 1, Shattnek I. Mitchell got the same as on Saturday's last ballot, with the addition of Dumbar, Independent, of Washington county. A proposition to adjourn was voted down by 47 to 43, six democrats voting with the Mitchell men. A second ballot was the same as the first. Adjourned till tomorrow.

the same as the first. Adjourned till tomorrow.

The situation tonight is unchanged, and it is altogether likely no election will occur tomorrow. In the morning Mitchell claimed that he would receive forty-four votes on the second ballot, and his opponents were inclined to concede this, but when the ballot came, and there was no increases of the vote, Mitchell's friends lost confidence. A member of the opposition said to an Associated Press correspondent tonight that he had been reliably informed that Mitchell's original thirty-six will not remain together after tomorrow's ballot,
and that Wednesday will see his defeat.
However, Mitchell's ardent supporters tonight offered bets of two to one, in any amount from $1000 down, that he will be elected.

A Democratic mass meeting at Eagene this afternoon passed resolutions demouncing Representative Long, of Lane, for voting for Mitchell, and asking him

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Sept. 25.—Rain is falling heavily again today, causing additional damage. A half million dollars will not repair the damage done in the counties of Union. Somerset and Middlesex, to say nothing of losses to railroad and canal companies, which is enormous.

Colock this morning, as the first of three special trains, conveying the Sells Brothers' show from Richmond, was coming around the carve, 300 yards from Foint Lick, the fourth car from the engine jumped the track and rolled down the embankment, followed by the balance of the train in its rear, consisting of 15 cars, loaded principally with the bagging of the company, tableau wagons, the electric light machine and a cage containing a tiger, and several attaches of the circus scattered along on the train. The destruction to both lives and property was fearful. Three men were instantly killed, three probably fatally wounded, and seven or eight slightly wounded. Two of the killed were attaches of the circus, and the third, Wm. Underwood, a boy from Mt. Vernon, Ky., was stealing a ride on the train.

The cage containing the tiger borst open, and the fierce animal turned out, creating much consternation, every one being afraid to go near autil daylight, when the door was opened, and the tiger erept back into his prison and was occurred. The electric light and tablean wagons were completly destroyed. The track was torn up over 100 yards, and the cars were piled into a confused mass upon each other. The engine, with the front cars, escaped uninjured, and were immediately dispatched to Lancaster for surgeons and coffins. A force of men were at once put to work, and by 5 o'clock in the evening the track was cleared, but Sells declined to go on to London to fill the engagement tomorry, and will rest at Silver Creek, and go to Lebanon tomorry we to fill an entreasement there are Tracker. Washington Irving once, when picking up an apple under a tree in his own orchard, was accosted by a small boy of the neighborhood, who, not recognizing him as the proprietor, offered to show him a tree where he could get better apples than those. "But," said the boy, "we must take care the old man doesn't catch us." I went with him,." said Irving, "and stole a dozen of my own apples."

One-Man Power.

One-Man Power.

The Lendon World is of the opinion that Mr. Gladstone is not merely the first man in the country—he is the only man. It is now quite clear that so by ag as he lives and takes an active part in political life no other government except one of which he is the head is possible. During Lord Ecaconfield's lifetime there were two men in England; Lord Ecaconsfield has passed away and now there is only one. The vehemence with which Mr. Gladstone is denouncid in London is only a tribute to his surpassing power. He is hated because he is feared; he is feared because it is dimly known that the democracy a.d. indeed, all the forces of English public opinion are on his side. Mr. Gladstone's authority has been put this session to a test which it is yery doubtful whether that of any other Englishman of this generation could have endured. There was never a time when the working classes of this country were so strongly in favor of a policy of non-intervention in foreign affairs as now. Every step which the government have taken in Egypt has been regarded with dishike and distrust. Even now the democracy has only acquiesced in the Egyptian policy of the government; it has not approved it. The working man who has been asked what he thought about the bombardment of Alexandria forts and the disputch of Sir Garnet Wolseley has shaken his head and has signified a lugnbrious belief that he supposed it was inevitable, since Mr. Gladstone had set this policy on foot. Neither the country nor the House of Commons has as yet seen the last of the results of the personal ascendancy of the prime minister. Unless any unforseen circumstances occur he will induce the House of Commons to accept the cloture in November or December next. It is probable that we shall witness before then a popular agitation in its favor. The country is sick of Ireland and is determined to have no more sessions wasted by Irish members. If obstruction is to be put down procedure, must be reformed. The government have plainly told the country so and the

The White Mountains.

The Indians, it is known, inhabited these mountains long before the sett'ement of any portion of New England by whites. But their villages were child situated upon the skirts, where continuously and fishing were good, and it of cultivating it. His infallible eye is the best sites is sufficiently evident, since we find the Indian's uncouth wigwam invariably succeeded by the most important settlements of the English.

Otherwise, the mountains were for the American Indian, as for the natural man in all ages, a sealed book. He regarded them not only as an image, but as the actual dwelling-place of Omnipotence. His dreaded Manitou, whose voice was the thunder, whose anger the lightbing, and on whose face no mortal could look and live, was the counterpart of the terrible Thor, the Icelandic god, through in a palace of ice, among frozen and inaccessible peaks. So far, then, as he was concerned, the mountain remained involate, inviolable, as a kind of hell filled with the despairing shricks of those who, in an evil har, transgressed the limits secred to immortals. The first mention I have met with of the Indian name for these mountains is in the narrative of Capt, John Gyles, printed in Boston in 1736, saying that "the White Hils, called the Teddon [Kstabdin], at the head of Pemobace viver, are, by the Indians, sail to be men higher than those called Agiockochook, shows Saco." The probable signification of this Indian word is, according to the best living authority, "the mountains on that side," or "over younder," to distinguish them from the mountains on that side," or "over younder," to distinguish them from the mountains of the Penolsect.

It is not precisely known when or how he se grante peaks first took the name of White mennatains. We find them so designated in 1672 by Josselyn, who himself performed the feat of ascending the highest summit, of which a brief record is found in his "New England's Raities." One cannot help saying of this book that either the suthor was a live of the first magnitude, or else we in

THE GOLDEN WEDDING.

BY WILL M. CARLETON,

Waks up, wife !- the black cloak of Night begins to And far in the east the Morning his kitchen fire has made;
And he is heating red-hot his store of iron-gray,
And stars are winking and blinking before the light of day.

Mind you what I was doin', just fifty years agone? Brushin' my Sunday raiment, an' puttin' my best looks on; Clethin' myself in courage, so none my fright would An' my coward heart within, the while, was pound-

Ten mile wood an' bramble, an' three mile field an' dew, In the cold emile of morning I walked to marry you; No horse had I but my wishes—no pilot but a star; list my boyish heart it fancied it heard you from a far.

So through the woods I hurried, an' through the wrees an' dow.

An' little I thengate' tiring, the whole of my journey through;
Thims ne've before nor after do so a man rejudee
As on the day he marries the woman of his choice.

And then one country wedding—brimful o' grief an' give, With every one a-pettin' an' jokin' you an' me; The goved cheer went and came, wife, as it some-times has done When c'ouds have chased each other across the summer sun.

There was your old father, dressed up in weddin shape, With all the homospun finery that he could rake an' and some saile.

And your dear-hearted mother, the sunlight of whose saile.

Shone through the showers of tear-drops that stomed her face the while;

Also your sisters an' brothers, who hardly seemed to know How they could scare up courage to let their sister go;
An' cousins an' sebool-house comrades, dressed up in meetin' trin.
With one of them a-sulkin' because it wasn't him;

An' there was the good old parson, his neck all drossed in white,
A bunch o'texts in his left eye, a hymn-book in his right;
An the parson's virgin daughter, plain an' severe'y pure.
Who hoped we should be happy, but wasn't exactly sure:

And there was the victuals, seasoned with kind re-gards an' love, And helly wreaths, with breastpins of rubies, up above; An' there was my heart a-wonderin' as how such things could be, An' there was the world before us, and there was you and me.

Wake up, wife! that gold-bird, the sun, has come in sight,
And on a tree-top perches to take his daily flight.
He is not old and feeble, an' he will sail away.
As he has done so often since fifty years to-day.

You know there's company coming—our daughter an' our sons: There's John, and James, and Lucy, an' all their lit nie, she will be here, who in her grave doth lie (Provided company ever can come from out the

MISTAKEN FOR A HIGHWAY-MAN.

A stalwart, but tired-looking, horse-man was riding toward the village of Mossy Brook, at the close of a sultry afternoon last summer, as fast as the jade d bay mare he bestrode could lessen the distance. His face was handsome, but he wore an anxious expression, and he stared about the country, as he rode on, with the air of a stranger in those parts. His dusty feet, his pule visage and the toreign out of his apparel, with the watchfulness of his mauner, would have led any observer to consider him one who had traveled far that day, and who was not only from a foreign com-A stalwart, but tired-looking, horsewho was not only from a foreign conn-try, but laboring under some deep dis-tress of mind, sorrow or fear—perhaps

"Care for her well," said the stranger to the hostler, as he alighted. "I am to sup and sleep a few hours, and at 10 to night have her ready saddled at the door; for I am in great haste to con-tinue my journey, and must then de-part."

The hostler promised, and the stranger, after eating a hearty supper, retired

A heavy crash of thunder, just then, startled both horse and horseman—the opening cannonade of the elemental bat-tle which was soon to sweep furiously around them.

"She has been over-fed, or she is very skittish," thought the horseman, as he felt the tremor of the frightened animal's limbs and her gait for a short distance becare irregular. "Our road lies through a wood for a few miles, as I am told; and, when the shower is on us in fall force, what with the lightning, the thunder, the rain and the darkness, she may become unmanageable. Per-haps I had better stayed after all. The mare haste the worst speed some-

Flash after flash, peal after peal now followed rapidly, with blinding and deaf-ening effect upon man and beast, and soon the wind and rain combined with fearful power and volume, as if to dis-tract and discomfort the benighted horse and rider. Here and there, over their rough road, the torn branches of trees in umbered it, as if to dispute their massage. Twice, as the scarced beast galo ed frantically on, she stumbled an nearly threw the cavalier, requiring a l his efforts to recover her and keep the saddle; and once a dazzling bolt and a fearful simultaneous clap of thunder carril simultaneous clap of thunder caused the poor beast to swerre madly saide, rear, and then turn back in her track for a short distance—while a ball tree, cleft by the lightning, scat-tered half its mighty bulk over the spot from which the mare had shrunk

Thus, through the night, they proceeded, the storm gradually abating as he dim dawn of day approached; and, when the cheering sun at last broke with merry face over the glittering hills, the brenched stranger was far beyond the per clexing forest through which he had ridden.

"Thank you for no hing," he ex-laimed, mockingly saluting the sun.
"The world is full of such friends, who give their aid only when the trouble is over. The sun should share in the night such times."

The mare made the best of her way to the neighboring village, where the rider now determined to stop, recruit and pass

Suspicion now increased against the stranger. Why didn't he tell a straight story? Where did he get the wound on his head? Why did he falsity about the mare? Why was he so close-minded? Amos Dunbar was widely known as a wealthy man, and his favorite mare, Jule, was equally well known to the village. He had ridden away with her the day before, with a large sum of money. Now, a stranger had come back with her, pretending not to have seen him. What did all this mean?

The ire of the people at the tavern was aroused, and they again confronted the stranger, having procured a constable, and, to his dire alarm, the mare having been brought from the stable, he was told to consider himself under arrest unless he cand, gives not account. he could give a satis actory explanation of the mystery. Seattle Post. The Intelligencer says the action of The Intelligeneer says the action of at the Vancouver convention voted for Bradshaw was "steeped in perfid; to the people of this county." Our contemporary is mad—which is greatly to be deplored. It does not speak the truth. The delegation was not instructed for Judge Jacobs or any one else. There has been no public expression demanding the newination of that gentleman. has been no public expression demarding the nomination of that gentleman. No one who knows the Judge will doubt his fitness for the office, nor will there be a question raised when it is said he would have received a splendid vote; but all this does not make the action of those gentlemen who opposed him perfidious to the people of King county. That could be truthfully charged under but one condition: had those gentlemen pledged themselves to vote for Judge Jacobs, to their constituency, and then violated their acknowledged statement, they could be charged with perfidy.

Again: The Intelligencer says that they were "perfidious to the party." Here, too, it states what it must know to be absolutely false. To be liable to the charge of our contemporary, those gentlemen would have given their votes to a man who was not a republican—who was known to be a democrat—and a man in whom the community could have no confidence. Is this true? Not in a single syllable. No man in the Territory has been a more consistent, active republican than C. M. Bradshaw. He has a reing the nomination of that gentleman

But this cannot be maintained, for his record as a lawyer is an complaint. But this cannot be main-tained, for his record as a lawyer is an excellent one. He is in every way quali-fied for the important position of public prosecutor of the district. There can be no excuse for the charge made by the In-telligencer. It is utterly reckless and without foundation. Its course could not be characterized as anything short of outrageous, did it emanate from a source of standing, or recognized posi-tion in the community.

About Telephones.

Over 200,000 telephones are in use in the United States, and 5000 are added to the number every month. The funda-mental features are the same as establishmental features are the same as established by Gray, Bell and Edison. Lines are constantly lengthening. Most New England towns are now connected with one another, and the time is thought to be not very distant when New York will be able to talk directly to Chicago. The capital stock of the various telephone sompanies aggregate $30,000,000. Every telephone it is thought of gives environments. telephone, it is thought, gives emyloy-ment to one person. The first telephone telephone, it is thought, gives emyloy-ment to one person. The first telephone company, known as the Gray and Barton Company, began operations in 1869. It had a capital of $2000. From this sprang the Western Electric Company, with a capital of $105,000, which has since been increased to $1,000,000. It has manu-factories of Boston, New York, Chicago, Indiananylis, Detruit and Antwern. Indianapolis, Detroit and Antwerp in

The American Speaking Company, which was organized under Gray's patents, was consolidated with the Bell Company after long litigation, the latter buying all the lines, instruments and agreeing to pay a royalty on each instrument then in use or to be afterwards manufactured without regard to the patents. The Gray Company at present has an income of 20 per cent as the result of this arrangement, which amounts to $300,000. The entire income of the company, therefore, is $1,500,000. From Gray's patents $5,500,000 has already been realized. Nearly all of these great results have been accomplished within tray's patents $5,500,000 has already been realized. Nearly all of these great results have been accomplished within the last six years. No longer ago than 1876 persons were selling in the streets the toy called the 'lover's telegraph,' which consisted of two tin curs connected by a string, by means of which conversation might be heard two or three hundred feet. Now the human voice can be heard a hundred miles, and conversation will doubtless soon be carried on over lines five or six hundred miles in length. The Americans have generally adopted to be abones, There are few of the larger vill uses that have not one or two. Connection with towns off telegraph lines is generally maintained by telephone. England, however, has been slow to adopt the instrument. It is little used outside the large cities, and there are said to be more telephones in some of the minor American towns than in all of England.

Gigantle schemes in the interest of capital are put in motion by designing ones who affiliate with the republican party simply because it promises easier victory for them. As a rule capitalists care more for their own capitalists care more for their own gain than for the principles of any party, hence their devotion to repub licanism has an improper motive behind it. Such members are dangerous ones for any political party to have—dangerous for the party—because they are sure to prostitute party influence for private gain whenever opportunity offers. The Any political party that ceases to exist for the protection and benefit of the masses has outlived its usefulness, and the sooner it is buried the better. We do not believe the republican party of this nation has yet completed its mission, by any means. There are achievements ahead as brilliant as any it has won in the past, and we hope to live to see it espouse every question effecting human weal or woe, in a manner that will add fresh lustre to its already profuse laurels.

During the past ten or twelve years he has probably spent more money for, and devoted more time to, the success of republicanism in Washington Territory than has any other one man within our boundaries-and yet he has never been honored with a nomination of any kind. Twice he has been the only prominent candidate of Puget Sound republicans before the territorial convention, for the nomination of Delegate; twice he has found the choice of the party falling upon another and he has graciously acquiesced instend of going home to sulk, as many, even professional politicians, would do. We predict that he will be in the front of the battle, as usual, and that Puget Sound will roll up her usual majority for Mr. Brents. Eastern Washington can hardly claim the Delegateship always, and when the tide does turn, as it must, Dr. Minor will be the coming man. We had hoped he would be nominated this year-yet neither he nor his friends have cause to be discouraged. The future is bright with promise.

Our friend, Prof. Kerr has been nominated by the republicans of Jef ferson, San Juan, Clalam and Mason counties as their candidate for councilnan. Mr. Kerr is a man far above the average in ability, and we congratulate him on his nomination. It was, perhaps, a surprise to him, as wy do not think he sought political proferment of any kind. LOCAL ITEMS.

From Wednesday's Bady.

OUR P. M. returne l * om Seattle today, having had a short "run."

THE steamship Walla Walla is loaded at Seattle, and ready for sea.

CAPTAIN Me Almond and Mrs C. F. King came up from Dungeness today.

THE Hope arrived today from San Juan. She brought several head of cattle for Smith&Cay's batchers here.

WM. RENTON, at Port Blakeley, has decided to have a new tug-boat built next season that is to be a "stunner."

CAPT. H. E. MORGAN, Inspector of this week and went up the Sound yes- in Oakland, Cal.

New Tacoma wants a saddle and harness shop, the only one there having been closed on account of the drinking habits of its owner.

Work has been done by a surveying partyback of Sequim Bay in Clalam county, looking to the establishing of a logging railway.

Hasrings takes the finest photos. There's no question about it. Those who want good pictures need not go abroad for them.

Mai. Hayden and family returned as far as Port Townsend today, on their way home from Whidby Island, where they have been "summering."

A coars of railroad engineers are said to be quietly at work along the west side of Hood's Canal, across the peninsula and in the direction of Port Discovery.

THE Seattle Herald needs attentionin fact, must have it. It complains that the little Angus don't notice it. You need your mother's attention, sonny. We decline the job.

Among the passengers on board the Starr today, arriving at this place, were: Col. and Mrs. Owings, and Register Gowey, of Olympia, also Mr. Wilson, the new Receiver at Colfax.

Mr. EISENBRIS is very sensibly preparing his new and old stone building so that he can put on another story in the future, and make it all one building of suitable and profitable size.

ATTENTION is directed to the advertisement of the Sunday School Concert to be given in the M. E. church on Sunday evening next. It is expected that an enjoyable time will be had, and a liberal attendance is requested.

MR. LLEWELLYN, telegraph operator here, went to Irondale this morning and opened a telegraph office at that point for the Puget Sound Telegraph Company. Mr. Bredford, bookkeeper for the Iron company, is the new operator.

WE have noticed that Mr Kenney's a liver seement for the treatment of corns and warts was inadvertently omitted from last week's Angus. It will be found elsewhere. Those who wish to avail themselves of the opportunity offered may leave orders at Latimer's.

WE have received a pleasent call from Hon. Eugene Canfield, of Anrora. Ill., who is making a tour of the Sound, looking up the titles to lands purchased by him hereabouts. Mr. Canfield expresses himself agreeably impressed with the country here and its prospects. He found his lands more valuable than he expected.

THE Governor-General of Canada is reported as being greatly pleased thus far with his visit to British Columbia. His reply to the address of the Mayor in Victoria indicates a desire to become acquainted with the wants of the people. and assist them in public enterprises if LATE telegraphic advices from New York. New Jersey and other easters states tell of terrific storms; floods doing damage to the extent of millions of dollars. Nothing can lio more to illustrate the desirability of Washington Territory climate. Puget Sound has been called a rainy country, pet in New York state this week there was a rainfall of about five inches in one night, or nearly one-fifth of the annual radiall at Port Townsend. In the eastern and middle states drouths, cyclones, rainstorms and other serious calamities are common, while such things are entirely unknown here, seve in the gloomy reports brought across the country by the telegraph. Our people are peculiarly fortunate.

The Seattle Chronicle recently published a description of a curious fish caught in Elliot Bay, the most startling feature of the animal being two legs situated on the lower part of it. An Eastern Washington exchange comments on the curiosity in a way that indicates conversion to the theory that the fish was version to the theory that the fish was built with an especial object of adaptability to the exigencies of the Northern Pacific coast. For instance, fish are known to have a strong desire to visit Portland. Who will say that this is not the provision of an indulgent Creator, to enable at least an occasional representa-tive of the finny tribe to safely cross the Columbia river bar? Legs! To be sure; just what the poor fish need on a journey over the shoals of the Williamette and Columbia rivers.

From Thursday & Dudy.

OUR Olympia friends returned home today.

THE Starr will go to San Juan tomorrow after more lime.

THESE frosty nights portend wintry weather soon. The Indian summer is just closing.

We may say also that the necessity of mainaining Mr. Clinger's auction store is also considerably apparent, in the interest of the general public to have cheap goods.

OUR VISITORS.

SOME INTERESTING FACTS CONCERNING HE GONERNOR-GENERAL AND HER ROYAL HIGHNESS PRINCESS LOUISE.

Victoria Post.]

The following particulars respecting the royal family and our illustrions guests will be found especially interesting to our readers at the present time:

sons have Albert in their long has names, and the daughters, except one, received at their christening the name of Victoria in addition to numerical appellations. The merous feminine appellations. The Queen's children were born in the following order: Victoria Adelaide Mary Louisa, in 1840; Albert Edward Prince of Wales, in 1841; Alice Maud Mary, in 1843; Alfred Earnest Albert Duke of Edinburgh, in 1844; Helsen Avents Victoria in 1846; Helsen Avents Victoria in 1846. Helena Augusta Victoria, in 1846; Louise Carolina Alberta, Marquise of Lorne, in 1848; Arthur William Pat-rick Albert, Duke of Connaught, in 1850; Leopold George Duncan bert, lately married, in 1853; and Mary Victoria Feodore, the Princess Beatrice, her mediore the Frincess Beatrice, her mother's constant com-panion, in 1857. The Princess Alice died in 1878, having caught the dip theria from one of her children whom theria from one of her children whom she was tenderly nursing. Princess Victoria was married in 1858 to the Crown Prince of Prussia. In 1862 the Princess Alice married the Grand Duke of Hesse-Darmstadt, and in 1863 the Princess Helena espoused Prince Frederick Christian of Schles-wig-Holstein. The Prince of Wales married a daughter of the King of Denmark, the Duke of Edinburgh a daughter of the late Alexander of daughter of the late Alexander of Russia, and the Prince of Connaught a daughter of Prince Frederick Charles of Prussia. The wife of Prince Leopold is the daughter of a German Princeling. It will there-fore be seen that all the children of the Queen have married Germans, except three, and not one has made an English alliance, the marriage of the Princess Louise to a Scottish Marquis being the nearest approach to it.

Of the Princess Louise only kind words have been spoken. Her marriage is said to have been somewhat different from the average of royal unions in that love has entered large-ly into it. In fact it has been intimated that her august mother and some of her princely brothers disap-proved of it because the alliance was proved of it because the annance was not German, and there was a conde-scension shown unworthy of her rank. Were this true, it would raise rather than lower her in the esteem of the world. She is said to be pos-sessed of admirable virtues, to have artistic tastes and habits, and to have womanly qualities which place her high in the public esteem.

Engineer Melville on his return.

Chicago, Sept. 17.—Gen. W. S. Rosc-crans, of California, was in the city yesterday and expressed the opinion that his party would carry that state and gain two Congressmen at large this Fall. He thought Pacheco, who had a majority of only 150 in the Fourth District two years ago, would be defeated by Tully, democratic candidate, who is identified with the labor movement. The Third is a reliable democratic district. In the Second, Cengressman Page will be relected by the republicans. Gen. Rosecrans has no doubt about his own election in the San Francisco district. He quoted Gen. Ben. Lefevre, of Ohio, as authority for the statement that the Buckeye democrats would elect twelve members, and that the outlook for a democratic majority in Congress is very discouraging. discouraging.

OMAHA, Sept. 18.—Two companies of the Ninth Infantry from Fort Omaha and four from Fort Sidney have been suddenly ordered to Fort Douglass, near Salt Lake. They left Omaha today. It is intimated that the strengthening of Fort Douglass is from anticipated troubles with the Mormons during the approaching election, which is to be held under the supervision of the Utah Commissioners. Several companies of the Sixth Infantry are at Fort Douglass, and the chances for war, with the above rethe chances for war, with the above re-inforcements to the garrison, will be small.

She is the fourth daughter and sixth child of Queen Victoria and Prince Albert. Her marriage to the Marquis made her very popular, especially in this country. She is a lady of high culture and of womanly and amiable disposition. In Canada she has done much to alleviate suffering and want, and has made herself a great favorite there.

The Title of Marquis.

In Burke's Peerage for 1882, under the word "Marquis" is the following:

He will be strongly sustained by the administration, and all the power and discipline of the republican machine will be brought out in his behalf."

an Duke. His office, says Sir William Blackstone, formerly was (for dignity and duty were never separated by our ancestors) to guard the frontiers and limits of the kingdom which were called the marches, from the Teutonic word mawche, meaning a limit; as in particular were marches on the frontier limits of Wales and Scotland, while each of these continued to be an enemy's country. The persons commanding such lines of frontier were called lords or marches or marquises, whose authority was abolished by statute 27. Henry VIII, though the title had long before been made a mere ensign of honor." Since the reign of Edward VI, it has become a regular and common grade of nobility, but simply a title conferring upon the possessor no territorial right or military command. In the British peerage the number or marquises is thirty-seven, of whom four bear Scottish and twelve Irish titles. A marquisate is invariable created by letters-patent, and the descent related accordingly. The style of marquis is "Most Honorable," and he is officially addressed by the Crown as "Our right, trusty and entirely be loved cousin."

Adjoining Form Entry Five Years' Residence Act of Janu 15, 1880. In view of the facts of this case the homestead entry will be treated as an adjoining farm entry, and after five years' residence final proof de novemay be made, or the land may be parchased under the Act of June 15, 1880.

Commissioner McFarland to Reg. and Rec., Huntsville, Alabama, July 19, 1882. (C. T. Y.)

I am in receipt of yours of March 15th, last, transmitting for instructions the final proof on homestead entry No. 6441, made January 19, 1876, for the W. ½ S. W. ¼ of Sec. 20, 7, 4 W. by Isaac S. Riggs.

The records show said entry to have been made for settlement and cultivation. It seems that after making entry, Mr. Riggs improved said tact and built a house thereon; subsequently he found out that, owing to sequently he found out that, owing to the back water from Flint Creek, which flows in a serpentine form through said land, the whole of said tract is covered by water a portion of each year, in consequence of which it is impossible for him to reside thereon: therefore, he at once purchased six acres immediately adjoining, which is not subject to such yearly overflows, on which he erected a dwelling house and has lived therein ever since, cultivating and improving the entered tract as an adjoining

After the lapse of five years he of-ers final proof of his entry, showing full compliance with the homestead

I ill compliance with the homestead laws, except as to residence. Where claimant purchased the ad-joining six acres, as a site for a resi-dence, he should have applied at once, through the local office, for a change of entry, as at the date of enonce, through the local office, for a change of entry, as at the date of entry he was not competent to make entry of an adjoining farm homestead, he not then being owner of adjoining land as required by law in such cases; and by reason of his failure to reside on the tract entered. he cannot under section 2291 R. S. perfect his claim thereto.

As, however, he appears to have acted in good faith, and as present owner of adjoining land would be authorized to make an entry of an adjoining farm homestead (unless his adjoining farm homestead (unless his right was exhausted by his original entry), and there being no adverse claimant, I have decided to consider his final proof as equivalent to an ap-plication for change of entry; there-fore his entry will be allowed to stand, and will be treated as an ad-joining farm homestead until five years shall have elapsed from date of said constructive application, to wit: said constructive application, to wit: November 5, 1881, when he can make final proof de novo, or if he desires patent before that time he may avail himself of the provisions of the Act of June 15, 1880, and obtain title thereto by purchase,
