

BE CAREFUL DOWN THERE.

It is a matter not generally known throughout this Territory, that every first-class Indian sears in Eastern Washington is a right of bonanza for certain towns and business men favorably located for such events. For some persons, a good Indian sear is "stock in trade," and is turned to good account in a business way. From our most recent advices, we learn that vigorous efforts are being made at Walla Walla to create another excitement, with Poor Lo as the basis for raising a tumult. The objects to be attained by this means are two-fold. In order to prevent emigrants from traveling further north, and settling in locations which will hereafter contribute but little or nothing to the prosperity of Walla Walla, they are informed that it is desirable for them to take their families into the Patrons of Spokan countries. In furthering these schemes, it is also a vigorous practice with them to get the world the startling intelligence that all people in Northeastern Washington are in imminent danger, caused by proximity to powerful Indian tribes. It is simply necessary for them to make the scare general, and the result will be a temporary depopulation of the greater portion of Northeastern Washington. The most timid among our people will flee for their lives. Others will also become alarmed, and follow the example, until the highways are lined with fugitives from supposed danger. The aim of course, would be to reach a large town, and Walla Walla would be their objective point. This citation is simply a history of times passed, when the population of this whole country has been convulsed by needless fears. Last summer's events will be remembered as very disastrous to settlers all over Eastern Washington, who left their homes, fields, and stock, at a time when their presence could not be spared without serious loss to their interests. With what money they could gather, they hurried away to Walla Walla and there remained until most of them had expended their funds and allowed their crops to go to ruin. Of course, the business interests of many capitalists were greatly benefited, while the unfortunate settlers were, in many instances, impoverished thereby.

What we now ask of Walla Walla people is, that they do not misrepresent this upper country, that they do not manufacture Indian scares for pecuniary purposes, that they do not observe the glorious American duty of aiding their own business. We wish them great success in their legitimate business interests, and our people will do them an injustice if they do not. When danger threatens our people, in future, we shall give them the alarm. Until such an improbable event arrives, let us push forward the summer's work, and reap an abundant harvest.

The great increase of wages and cost of living going back six hundred years, have recently been published. It is shown that in the thirteenth century wages were about 30 cents a week. In the next century they advanced 15 cents, and continued to advance slowly until in the last century they had reached $1.87. The average farm labor in the same countries is now about $3.87 per week. In the thirteenth century wheat averaged 77 cents a bushel. To buy a bushel of wheat at that time, required eight and a half days' labor. At the present time, wheat is worth in Europe, wholesale, about $1.45 a bushel, or less than two and a half days' labor. In the space of six centuries, food prices have nearly doubled, but wages have increased seven-fold.

AN ALASKA MINISTER—Sika boasts a minister such as can no other country on this mundane sphere. The reverend gentleman is an actual phenomenon. He is living and laboring under American flag, receives his salary from Russia and has spent the last year in Alaska.

OUR COLFAX ADVERTISERS.

Among the leading business and professional men in Colfax will be found those represented in the advertising columns of THE TIMES. It is a known fact that a large trade is tributary to Colfax from this upper country. We have no hesitancy in recommending our people who happen to be in Colfax to patronize those who advertise for custom in the PEOPLE'S PAPER. With a large and increasing circulation in Stevens and Whitman counties, an advertisement in THE TIMES shows the good will and thorough business qualifications of the advertiser. He will undoubtedly do more business than those who do not advertise; therefore, he is able to do that business on the most reasonable terms. Do not forget those who advertise liberally.

Don'ts for Husbands.

Don't think that when you have a wife you have a slave. Don't think that your wife has been put in the kitchen to do your bidding. Don't think you can discipline her with all the civilities toward her. She appreciates those things quite as much as other women. Don't be gruff and rude at home. Had you been that sort of a fellow before marriage, the probabilities are you would be sewing on your buttons still. Don't make your wife feel that she is an incubation on you by giving grudgingly. What she needs give cheerfully, as if it were a pleasure to do so. She will feel better, and so will you. Don't meddle in the affairs of the house under her charge. You have no more business poking your nose into the kitchen than she has to walk into your place of business and give directions to your employees. Don't find fault with her extravagance in ribbon, etc., until you have shut down on cigars, tobacco, etc. Don't leave your wife at home alone, especially on the score of economy, while you bolt down town to see the show or spend a dollar on billiards. Don't bolt your supper and hurry up to spend the evenings lounging around away from your wife. Before marriage you could not spend evenings enough with her. Don't prowl in lazing resorts until midnight, wasting your time in culpable idleness, leaving your wife at home to brood over your neglect and her disappointment. Don't think the woman you promised to "love, cherish, and protect" becomes your slave as a part of the contract. Don't think that board and clothes are sufficient return for all a wife to honor you and love you if you prove a brute unworthy of love and honor. Don't cross your wife in public and snarl and growl at her in private. This proves that you are a hypocrite and a dog. Don't wonder that your wife is not as cheerful as she used to be, when she labors from early morn till late at night to cater to the whims of a selfish man who has not a word to say for her. Don't think your wife has faults, be constantly reminding her of them, while you have never a word of commendation for her virtues. If she did that with you, you would be as mad as a hatter. Don't think your wife is to blame for a woman when you married her. She thought she carried a man, and don't deceive her.

BEWARE OF AMERICA.

The natural and inevitable power of production in the United States of America, combined with the keenness of energy in business matters of our transatlantic neighbors, threatens to expose our people to a severe if not injurious competition. The free trade policy and the principle in all that relates to commerce, to think of reverting to protection! So long as the United States sent us only the surplus of their corn produce, there was no ground for alarm. On the contrary, we had reason to be grateful to a source from which we could always draw a certain and sufficient supply of the first necessity of life, to meet a want that was every year increasing. In process of time we also received a satisfaction consisting of other kinds of food. The price of butcher's meat in the metropolis, exorbitant as it is, has no doubt been kept down by American exports, and we have largely drawn upon the fertile farms of the new world for pork, cheese, and other items of agricultural produce. We are also indebted to the United States for some of the best brands of preserved meats, as likewise for a variety of "Yankee notions," including clocks, watches, churns, lemon squeezers, etc., to say nothing of cocktails and gin stings. It seems, however, that American now proposes to compete with us in other branches of domestic industry. Among her recent exports are boots and shoes, perfumery, jewelry, and piece goods. We know, but it certainly seems to us to be impossible, better manufactured articles of equal modern prices. The question for our operative, and ought to be taken into account before they strengthen the hands of the foreigner by purchasing the disastrous struggles between labor and capital, which have done so much of late years to paralyze our own industry.

THINGS BEAUTIFUL.

Beautiful faces are those that wear little fatters like dark or fair—Whole-voiced honesty pruned there. Beautiful noses are those that show—Like crystal pines where heart-freightful Beautiful thoughts that burn below. Beautiful lips are those whose words Leap from the heart like songs of birds, Yet whose utterance prudence guards. Beautiful hands are those that do Work that is honest and brave and true, Ment by moment to our long day through. Beautiful feet are those that go On kindly missions, to and fro— Down lowliest ways, if God will so. Beautiful shoulders are those that bear Ceaseless burdens of homely care, With patient grace and daily prayer. Beautiful lives are those that bless Silent rivers of happiness, Whose hidden fountain, but few may guess. Beautiful twilight, at set of sun, Beautiful glow, with race well done, Beautiful rest, with work well done.

Living by Literature.

Then there is another trouble literary work is a very poorly paid. It is not men that the literary is not paid in proportion to the amount of work they do. It is a long waiting for that which you have earned, and the uncertainty of a payment depends upon the whims of the many. There are no regular incomes in this life, and the writer must wait an uncertain length of time for an uncertain return. I have myself been put off two years and a half in one instance; frequently a year. This makes writing a precarious mode of getting a living indeed; it involves authors in necessary debt, and affords a steady "grind" when we need to meet our obligations. I have a sinking heart, for I have seen the house because we owe them for the very necessities of life, and cannot pay our bills till it pleases the managers, or that paper to print the article which means loss, shoes, or potatoes, or flour. To be at liberty to do the best work and not to have some regular income beside that which he earns, but how few have!

JOAQUIN'S FISH STORY.

Joaquin Miller, that gifted poet of the Sierras, recently had the pleasure and comfort of a square meal, but not in the usual manner of it. Where ever you find a table set, then so willing I had down. But at the great dinner of the American Fish Cultural Association, recently given at the Metropolitan Hotel, New York. We imagine the gaunt figure of the poet striding into the spacious dining room with expressions of joy depleted in his countenance, and flopping himself down in the chair that happened to be near the head of the table, and regarding his eye over the sands thereon. Here gathered around the festive board, which almost equalled the feast of Belshazzar, we are informed, poets, journalists, fish makers and fish sellers, and for several hours they gormolized on the rich spread before them, washing it down with the juice of the grape and other stimulants. When their appetites had been appeased, they, in turn, began telling stories, and when it came round to Joaquin that poet began to get up by sections, and from what an eastern exchange says, we judge him to belong to the "Calli. Lying Club." He spoke of the fish of Oregon in the following style: "On my last visit to Oregon my father took me out fishing in a lake at the head waters of the Willamette river. Beneath the boat I saw a petrified tree, every limb minutely portrayed in the limbed water. We took about fifteen to twenty inches in length and as yellow as gold. Nowhere else did I ever see similar fish. In less than an hour we caught a gummy log but I perished of 'oh, oh!' I am telling you the cold truth, I said the speaker. 'My father was engaged while I was there, in putting up a fence to keep the fish from straggling down the grass. 'Oh oh!' This happens to be a matter of history, gentlemen. The fish out there were able to jump twenty-one and a half feet by actual measurement, and when going up the larger streams to spawn the fish sometimes become confused, and landing in the meadows adjacent, founder and until often one fish will run half a mile or more. (Sneaks of despair.) He said his chief in an exhausted state, he had next day a chance to witness the same, but he did not witness it. We do not witness it."

Household Economy.

It has happened lately that a number of people with families to educate, have gone to live in France for a few years that they may reduce expenses. That is quite a compliment to France; but they might have lived here just as cheaply. It is not the prices there that are so much the loss, but the good management of the heads of families that makes everything go farther than it does here or anywhere else. There is not there so great profusion of everything as here, and so people are careful and conscientious for fear they should want the very things that are almost thrown away in this country. And say strangers keep home in France, they did it no great saving, for they take with them the same prodigal wasteful ways that they have at home. If the prices of the same articles are small, others, again, are very much higher than in this country, and many compare very equally. In France the leading thought in every good housekeeper's mind is economy, not parsimony. If servants there should throw away the water in which the vegetables were boiled they would be considered wanting in thrift, for if anything is to be found in the water in which it was cooked. It is usual there to slice just vegetables, but when they are boiled the best fluid possible is used, and that, with the addition of cream or milk, is not suitable to serve as a soup, but kept as a receptacle for an ultimate use, which will help to flavor and enrich the soup, and which seems to be used only for that use. Every little bit of bone and gristle that is thrown from the meat that is to be served in other forms, every leaf of celery, every core of cabbage, when the wing-tips of chicken and the bones that fall from the kaf of bread when the bones of beef with the marrow left in it, and this will be the basis of stock for several days, the constant addition I have spoken of giving it to tone and flavor, and helping it to last longer, besides saving from loss many things that are nourishing and palatable. The first day stock is made it should be cooked slowly for several hours and skimmed occasionally, and once every day after it is heated over, you cut out a piece, the size of a willow, and take it for the foundation of soups of different names, and flavors, straining, and if for clear soups, straining the portion that you make use of.

Happy is that human being who has the tact to do a disagreeable thing beautifully. Here are the men of America continually a babbling concerning the aggravating light of feminine hats in theatre audiences. And yet no manager in the land has the wit to remove those torments in the simple manner adopted by the functionary of a French provincial theatre. He made no boisterous observations; he gave no stern orders; not he. He merely printed in large letters on his play-bills this masterpiece of genius: "The manager begs that all good-looking ladies will remove their hats for the accommodation of the rest of the audience. The aged, the bald, and the plain are not expected to comply with this request." From that auspicious night the mountains hats were invisible in that wise man's theatre.

OUR TRADE WITH MEXICO.

The American deputation of merchants to Mexico has returned and made a report on trade prospects between the two republics, in which they say: "We have found a unanimous desire for closer commercial relations with the United States. We have observed no special insecurity to either person or property, or hostility among any class of internal improvements or developments of trade. We have especially noted an earnest desire on the part of the public men of Mexico for increased railway and steamship communication between the two nations. It is our opinion that the United States Government should encourage this sentiment."

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN.

The Scientific American gives the following novel plan for checking bleeding at the nose: "The best remedy for bleeding at the nose, as given by Dr. Gimson in one of his lectures, is in the vigorous motion of the jaws, as in the act of mastication. In the case of a child a wad of paper should be placed in its mouth, and the child should be instructed to chew it hard. It is the motion of the jaws that stops the flow of blood. This remedy is so very ample that many will feel inclined to laugh at it, but it has never been known to fail in a single instance, so it is said, even in very severe cases."

MY HUSBAND ALWAYS TELLS ME EVERYTHING THAT HAPPENS.

"My husband always tells me everything that happens," said Mrs. Smith, in a delighted, happy tone. "That is nothing," said Mrs. Jones, "my husband tells me any number of things that don't happen."

TRADE OF ST. PAUL, WIS.

TRADE OF ST. PAUL, WIS.—There was an increase in the business of St. Paul of 157 per cent. in the wholesale trade for 1877 over 1876, a decrease of 10 per cent. in the retail trade. The amount of business was less than $200,000, amounting to $30,025,000. In 1878, not including articles in which the amount of business was less than $200,000, sales increased 35 per cent. The lumber export, and when the national revenue collections increased nearly 50 per cent.

AT HOME.

At last, after contending against the discomforts of a late spring, and the disadvantages incident to a new country like this, we have succeeded in placing the Spokan Times material in its temporary office at this place.

How to Reach this Country.

Inquiring letters are so frequently received, as to the best mode of reaching this new country, the rates of fare, the shortest routes, &c., that we have compiled the following facts for the express benefit of those who would come among us.

There are three routes which Eastern people may take in coming hither. If a person wants to save time, and desires to bring stock, wagons, &c., the quickest and most direct route would be to come from Omaha to Ogden, thence by wagon road to this country; traversing the distance from Ogden to two or three weeks, when roads are good—say in the month of June, July or August.

BRIEF MENTION.

First paper ever printed in Stevens county. Prairies are blossoming with wild flowers. Hangman creek is easily forded, near this place. New faces are constantly appearing upon our streets.

Mr. L. W. Rima, C. E., has finished the survey of Havermale's Addition to Spokane Falls. Foundations for new buildings on Main street indicate increased business in the future.

The late frosty mornings experienced here are said to be without precedent at this season of year in this country. The subscription list to THE TIMES is increasing at a rate unprecedented in the history of journalism in Eastern Washington.

The old bridge on Hangman creek has lately become impassable. Its entire old frame was subjected to too great a strain, and its stringers gave way. The editor of this paper will endeavor to take a ride over that beautiful drive between Spokane Falls and Coeur d'Alene lake, during the latter part of next week.

Capt. Nosler will soon be ready to move into his new office. His stock of drugs and paints will probably arrive here early next week. Look out for his new advertisement. The Colville people, and the soldiers at Fort Colville, favored our Agent with a large subscription list for THE TIMES.

Mr. Monahan, mail contractor on the route between Colfax and Colville, was in this town on Sunday last. He had been below, changing the schedule to conform with the tri-weekly service. County Commissioners met at Colville during the first part of the present week. Perhaps they, like similar bodies in other counties, will have their proceedings published for the information and benefit of the residents of the county.

Trout-fishing has been inaugurated at this place. THE TIMES force was out on the banks of the river a short season, on Monday last, and had pretty fair success, considering circumstances. The largest trout taken on that occasion weighed nearly 8 pounds.

Dr. Masterson is preparing to enlarge his boarding house until its dimensions will make it a very creditable building to our town. He had the misfortune to lose a boom of logs early in the spring, which has proved a serious drawback to his intended improvements. Men's Suits at Downing's, Colfax, $6.50.

THE BEST FRIEND.—The most agreeable of all companions is a simple, frank man, without any pretensions to an oppressive greatness; one who loves life and understands the use of it; obliging alike at all hours; above all, of a golden temper, and steadfast as an anchor. For such a one we gladly exchange the greatest genius, the most brilliant wit, the profoundest thinker.

SPANGLER.—Mr. L. W. Rima, of this place, is now engaged in laying out the town of Spangler, in order to locate definitely the streets and alleys of that promising little business center.

Notes by the Way.

Mr. Chas. A. Cole, Canvassing Agent for THE TIMES, while traveling through this new country, takes his regular notes, and we give the same publication for the benefit of our readers both at home and abroad.

TO COLVILLE AND RETURN. After leaving Spokane Falls, I journeyed down the Indian trail leading to the toll bridge which spans the Spokane river about 20 miles (by the road) below the Falls. I was accompanied by Mr. Archie Pease, a young friend whom I had persuaded to go with me. For the benefit of travelers on horseback, or on foot, I will state here that by taking this trail, instead of the main road, the distance can be shortened about 12 miles.

After reaching the bridge, we partook of an excellent dinner prepared for us by Mrs. Lapray, wife of the gentlemanly keeper of the bridge. After our appetites had been appeased, we went on our way rejoicing. On reaching the north side of the river, we entered the timber which skirts the banks of this side of the beautiful Spokane river, and it was here that I was enabled to have my curiosity put at rest by seeing one of those frontier pests that I had heard of, but never seen—a coyote.

Traveling along for a short time brought us out into what is known as Walker's prairie. This prairie consists of some of the finest kind of agricultural lands. The first farm encountered after leaving the timber is the large one owned by Mr. Haines, who is the Postmaster, (there being an office here bearing the name of Walker's Prairie Post Office.) Mr. H. is a man well posted in all matters pertaining to the surrounding country.

As it lacked some two hours of sunset, both Mr. Pease and myself concluded to travel on, and if we found no place of shelter, to "camp out" whenever it was too dark to keep the road. I not being accustomed to out-door sleeping, thought there would be some pleasure in it; so we camped out just for the novelty of it. We had located our camp near the banks of a beautiful little stream; picketed our horses and built a very large fire; then laid our weary bodies down to rest on the bosom of Old Mother Earth, with our heads billowed on our saddles. Just as I was beginning to enjoy the novelty of it, the fire burned low, which compelled me to gather more fire wood and replenish the fast dying embers.

My fellow traveler had already fallen asleep, as his terrific snoring proved. Again I composed myself for rest, and was just about to fall into the arms of morpheus, when I was suddenly awakened by a howl such as I had never heard before. As the noise continued, I awakened my friend Pease and found out to my utter disgust that it was nothing but a coyote rehearsing a solo for the next concert. I concluded that if this was a solo I would not like to hear a quartette. In this pleasant manner I passed the fore part of the night. About one o'clock I fell asleep and slept soundly until awakened by my companion.

At about five o'clock we saddled our horses and started again toward Colville, intending to reach that place before darkness again enveloped the earth. Traveling on through the Colville valley, one is struck not alone with the beauty of the scenery, but with the facilities for agricultural pursuits which are presented to the eye. Here are some of the best looking farms that I have seen in the great northwest. Farmers do more fencing in this valley than in any part of the country which I have visited. I am informed that there is a large tract of land open for settlers lying a few miles east of the Colville valley, near what is known as White Mud lake. This land is said to be very rich for the production of all kinds of grain. White Mud lake derives its name from a formation of white mud which contains strong cleansing properties, found at the bottom of the lake.

After reaching Colville, we betook ourselves to the store of M. Oppenheimer & Co., which is the headquarters of all those who visit Colville. This firm has been here for a number of years and the members of the same have proven, by their untiring perseverance, that they mean to gain the esteem and patronage of those dwelling in that part of the country. Having, through Mr. Oppenheimer's kindness, found a place for ourselves and horses, at Mr. Kealing's, the Deputy Sheriff of this county, we partook of a splendid meal prepared by Mr. K.'s excellent wife; after which we were invited to see the Garrison to see the Dress Parade. I was highly pleased with the quickness that all displayed in obeying the commands given. The Officers and Soldiers can congratulate themselves upon being the best drilled of any it has been my pleasure to witness. The Officers at this Post consist of the following named gentlemen:

Col. Conrad, Commander, who was not there at the time I visited the Garrison; Captain Cook, 2nd Infantry; 1st Lieut. James Miller; 1st Lieut. A. R. Egbert; 1st Lieut. W. R. Parnell; 2nd Lieut. W. R. Abercrombie; assistant surgeon W. W. Gray. I am indebted to Lieut. James Miller for his kindness in showing me all points of interest at the Garrison. Also, to Corporal James Nolan for favors extended. I found all connected with the garrison to be sociable, and men whom we can feel proud of when we speak of them as (the Boys in Blue.) After staying in Colville two days, we concluded to accept the kind invitation of Mr. Jacob Stitzel, Collector of Customs at Colville; to stop at his house one night before leaving the valley. Mr. Stitzel has a nice farm about one mile from the Garrison. Arriving at this farm, we were entertained during the evening by Mr. S. and his estimable wife. Also, we were shown some of the largest wheat heads that I have ever seen; raised by Mr. S. on his fine farm.

Next morning at an early hour we bade adieu to Mr. S. and family, and started homeward, reaching Spokane Falls about 4 o'clock on the second day out from Colville.

Statement of Sas-sop-kin a Chief of the Okanagans.

A correspondent at Fort Colville, under a very recent date, furnishes us with the following true copy of the evidence given by a noted chief: I want to tell the white people that at the time of the Nez-Perce I met a chief named Sisyop-kin, a dreamer belonging to the Oms Lake tribe, and I told him I intended to go to Fort Colville, W. T., and see the Commanding Officer, and have a talk with him, as I hear that General Howard is coming up here, and I want to see him, to talk for my people. When I came to the Post I saw Mr. Sims, and Captain Harris, I told the Captain I was getting old and lazy, that I did not want to have a fight with the whites. After I went home to the Okanagan, I saw Sonas-keet, and told him I was going down to see Moses. He told me that I had better go. I saw Moses, and told him that he had better go across the Columbia; that the Nez-Perces were fighting, and I am afraid your men will get away from you and join the Nez-Perces, in the war, and that will get you into trouble. Moses told me he would not go; that he would have a talk with General Howard, first. I then went home, and after a little while learned that the white settlers had reported that I had been down to see Moses with a view to influencing him to join the Nez-Perces in the fight against the whites.

I have understood that a man by the name of Smith had reported that I was dying, with other Indians, to join in the fight; that me and Moses, was going to war against the whites, but this is not so. While they were making such a report, I was out on a hunting trip, and did not know any thing about it until I returned. At the time when these reports were made against me I had no intention of going to war with the whites and I have had no intention since then. Last winter, after the arrest of Shalukin, one of the Perkins' murderers, in my country, I learned that I was to be arrested; but I did not know what for. I then went to Deputy Sheriff Granger without any arms, and gave myself up, saying to him, you can tie me. I will not fight, since I promised the whites that I would not. This occurred at the house of Mr. Phelps who stated to Mr. Thorp and Mr. Granger, that he knew nothing against me; that he believed me to be peaceably inclined, and that I should be let alone.

I am glad to know that I have friends among the whites. I will work hard and make everything right, I will stop all gambling, and bad conduct among my people; and Oh! I, I will give you my heart to this end as I have nothing else to give. I will here state, before I close, that the Indians in my country are all quiet now, and are well disposed, and I will let you know if any thing contrary to good order should occur.

SAS-SOP-KIN. COLVILLE NOTES. FORT COLVILLE, May 5. A dwelling house belonging to Mr. John Holsteter, Sheriff of this county, was entirely consumed by fire late last night. The building was a one story structure, and was unoccupied at the time, but it was rented to parties six or seven hours previous to the burning. The parties who had the house rented arrived here on the 3d inst., from Coeur d'Alene, and intended to open up in business. Cause of the fire supposed to be the work of an incendiary. Loss estimated at $100.

La. Col. H. C. Merriam, 2d Infantry, who has been on special duty at the Post, left here to-day. Mr. J. T. Frank arrived here last night, from Spokane Falls. Mr. F. will open a drug store in town in a few days. This will supply a long felt want. The Indian Wyemoot, one of the Perkins' murderers, is still in the county jail and under the care of the general Deputy Sheriff Kiebling. Two other Indians are also in jail, one charged with setting fire to a house, the other, for horse stealing.

The theory of the identity of comets and meteors, now adopted by some of the most eminent Astronomers in Europe, assumes, in a word, that the comet is the building material of the meteorite—that the latter is a small planet, the destination of which is to unite with a larger planet, to advance by one step the world's process of increase.

Such persons shall file in the land office of said Company in the district where said lands lie, written notice of such settlement, and shall accept the privilege upon condition that when the prices of land are fixed, and notice thereof is sent to his residence or postoffice address by the Company's Land Agent, through the post office or otherwise, the said person will, within ninety days from the date of such notice, enter into a regular contract with the Company for purchase of the land; and if he fails to do so, the Company may sell the land to any other person.

You will see that the intention is to accommodate those who wish to occupy and improve the land. It was not contemplated that men would seek to secure by these applications large tracts of land, and that it should become valuable by the occupation and improvement of adjacent lands, and then sell a pretended right to it.

Old Man Smith. The old man Smith, of Richfield, is a self-sufficient sort of an old fellow, and prides himself upon his riding abilities. One day he espied his young hopeful leading a colt to water rather gingerly, and remarked: "Why on earth don't you ride that beast?"

INFANT MORTALITY.—It is stated that fifteen per cent. of all the children born die in the first year. This results in summer, largely from improper food. It cannot be made too well known that the addition of a teaspoonful of common lime-water, to be had at the druggist's for a mere trifle, to each bottle of milk adapted to the human constitution, and renders it perfectly digestible to either adult, invalid or sucking infants.

EARLY ENGLISH STYLE OF PIANO AT THE PARIS EXHIBITION.—The piano shown in the accompanying engraving is one of the exhibit of Messrs. Brinsmead, of London. It is a specimen of what this firm can do in uniting beauty and novelty of exterior decoration with splendid musical effects. It is of the early English style, and is a full rich toned upright iron grand, with compass of seven octaves. It is fitted with the "perfect check repeater" action, sostenuto sounding board, and complete iron frame. The curved top part of the back is intended to act as a fontaine, collecting the sound and throwing it forward.

"Oh, I suppose he loves Sarah and would be glad to marry her," she was saying to another woman in the post-office corridor, "but I dunno." "Isn't he a nice young man?" asked the other. "Well, he's nice enough, but very reckless with his money. At Christmas time he made us a present of a French clock for the parlor, and not one of us in the house could speak a word of French. He might just as well have presented us with a German thermometer or a Spanish umbrella. We had to trade it off for a barrel of molasses."
