Poetry.
Close on the death of Mrs. E. B. Fletcher.
Gone to thy home where the angels are slaying
Angels of praise to their Saviour and God—
While the soft harp and the timbral are ringing
Where the rude foot of man never has trod.
Naught there of earth's alloy:
All, all is peace and joy.
'Tis the bright beings who circle the Throne,
Rich beams of golden light
Drive far the hues of night
Out from his presence who rules us alone.
Slightly tears on thy grave are now falling:
Friends mourn the loss of a loved one earth,
While the glad seraphs rejoice and are calling
"Praise to our God for a new angel's birth."
Sadness now nevermore!
Happiest evermore!
Rejoice forever with Heaven's great King,
Gladly thy song shall rise,
And through the arching skies,
Loud hallelujahs forever shall ring.

The Cars.
BY E. G. ADAMS, A. M.
On through the mountain-pass they fly,
Over the valley below,
Leaving upon the air a strain,
And on the earth a sound.
Such shout as victor army gives,
When half the foe is dead,
Give they, 'er Earth, a captive thing,
Lies grinning 'neath their tread.
The giant hills have stood apart,
To give the conquerors way,
The lofty valleys have risen up,
Till high as hills are they.
The waves have 'neath their feet bowed,
And lein as still a thing
As bird from which some spoiler's shore
The star-restless wing.
To change their course for hindrance,
These conquerors never know,
They go as Alexander went,
Who left behind no foe!

THE RESURRECTED SOLDIER.
A Romance of Dakota.
BY E. G. ADAMS, A. M.

The Oct. U. S. Vol. Inf. arrived at Fort Rice, Oct. 17, 1864.—Shortly after their arrival a detachment under command of a Sergeant was sent to a block-house built near mouth of the Cannon Ball River. The locality is very romantic.—The valley and lands that border the river are among the finest in the Territory. Here the Government stock were sent to graze, and these soldiers were for a protection to the stock and herders. The weather, when the Regiment first arrived at Fort Rice, was severe, but it soon melted away, and the season, till winter, seemed, with its soft winds and dreamy, hazy skies like an Indian Summer. These men were most of them hunters from childhood. The gun had been their companion in the sunny South and far Southwest from boyhood. They were perfectly insane on hunting. They had no fear of an Indian. They had never been wounded by an arrow. They had never seen the terrible agony of the savage's victim. They had faced bullets and shells so long in the Rebellion that they deemed the Indian and his warfare an object of sport and ridicule. The citizens warned them of their imprudence, but little heed did these brave and reckless young men pay to their admonitions. Experience was to be their instructor. Facts are the best orators.
No one was more passionately fond of his gun and the pursuit of game than George W. Townsend, the hero of our story. Young, gay, dashing and heedless, he sailed round through the bottoms and prairies as a hawk sweeps round through the unmeasured empyrean. He always returned with game, sometimes loaded with prairie chickens with their pied plumage, sometimes with jack-rabbits, cared like mules; and upon perhaps with finely antlered deer, with dun skin like an amber cloud, which fell, and spilled its blood while tears filled its eyes as if it were a human being.
No Indian had thus far waylaid his path. One day as he and two others, soldiers like him, walking in the skirts of the forest, they heard a slight rustling in some low underbrush. They paused, thinking some deer had just been roused from its lair. They brought their guns to a ready, and stood expectant. Their eyes glanced in another direction, and they beheld twenty warriors, painted red and nearly naked. Feathers were fluttering in their hair, altogether they presented a fierce aspect. The ponies which they rode were marked with paint, and every token they were evidently hostile. Just at this juncture other Indians rushed from the undergrowth where the soldiers had heard the slight rustle and soon the arrows began to fly upon their victims, as they thought. But the soldiers were ready. Their guns soon sent the bullets whirling into the crowd, and they drew off, partly frightened and partly to gain advantage by change of position. Townsend had no fear; he rushed forward when the foe retreated, the other two remaining in statu quo. At length he got separated from the others, and the Indians in a circle gathered upon their victim before he could reload his piece. They pinioned his arms like a felon with a long lariot of buffalo hair, and helped themselves to his gun and ammunition with a cry of rapture half grunt and half howl. A young buck seized his soldier cap and stuck a feather in it, and fastened on the top a fox's tail, and swung his head as proudly as a little girl in a carpenter's shop, hanging shaving curls on her ears. Nothing exceeds an Indian's vanity except his cruelty—and superstition is a great check sometimes to the latter quality. Another Indian divested him of his blouse, and nothing now covered him but his soldier pants and shoes. By their gaze of triumph he knew full well he was a victim to adorn some horrid dance, and that torture was all that hovered over him in life. Imagine the sadness of a man adrift on a single plank on the broad ocean, and it is faint in comparison to the feeling of oppression that Townsend felt. His companions kept firing and rushing up till they found it useless, and slowly and sadly withdrew towards the blockhouse. A big squad was soon dispatched to rescue Townsend, but the Indians had already waded the Missouri, and were far away amid the wilderness of buttes. Tied alongside a pony he traveled, the sun falling on his naked head and shoulders. He heard their talking, but could not understand a word, but by their gestures, which were profuse, he judged he was the principal topic of conversation, and that his prospects were not of the most flattering kind. How hard and brassy seemed the sky!—It appeared to him that Nature should open to him her bosom of pity, and appear for his deliverance. But there stood the vast heavens silent, speechless, and the great prairies without a voice, and the huge belt of woods on the muddy Missouri like a stoic to all his fearful anticipations.

Surely Nature looks different through different eyes, and different through the same eyes at different times. If the heart is gay, how the landscape dances in the sunshine! If the heart is sad, sunshine seems an intruder, and un-appropos.
Night came on at last. The sun went down in all its glory. The air was warm, as if a thunderhower was in conception. Tall, fleecy piles of clouds stood like icebergs heaped on some ledge of the Arctic, or glaciers on a Switzer's home.—Behind them the lightning danced like circles of waltzers in a festive and splendidly-draped hall. No clime has such beautiful clouds as Dakota. The Earth is dreary, but heaven, unapproachable as happiness here, is glorious. The rainbow here surpasses imagination. The Aurora Borealis is beautiful in its magnificence as the bursting of light on a new creation. But all appeared like mockery to Townsend. He could not lift his thoughts to heaven. The wolves howling on the hills and in the ravines seemed calling for his blood.
At last, he perceived smoke like deep mist rise from a sort of amphitheatre amid the hills. Then there was a sound like that of tame crows, and then a gibbering, as that of squaws. Then the snarling of dogs fell on his ears. He knew they were approaching a camp. Soon the squaws, with red blankets, fringed leggins and beaded moccasins rushed forth to welcome the braves from the war-path.
Immediately the slaughter of dogs commenced, for there was to be a feast and dance; for a victim they had brought.—Him every one came to see. The child looked with childish stare. The young squaw cast her side-long glances. The young bucks looked saucy and important. The old squaws as if it was but a matter of course, and showed but little emotion—constant labor and hardship had made them stolid and indifferent. The old men appeared grave the selectmen of a down east county town in convention. The horses were soon corralled, and with a huge, hideous drum sounding like a Chinese gong, the savages were called together for a feast. The lodge was that of the Chief. It was capacious and commodious. On the well tanned buffalo hides that, sewed together with deer-skin, formed the tipi were painted the deeds of valor its occupant had done, and engraved in dark paint were horses' hoofs to enumerate the number of horses he had stolen. The poles that stayed it were so arranged that it was ventilated from the top. The brothers of the Strong-heart were called together. There was the Chief, the Full Moon, in all his glory. The war-shirt was on him, curiously and deftly ornamented with brightly tinted porcupine. The tails of white weasels hung like snow-flakes all around its borders. Pictures of hoofs on the shirt imaged forth the number of horses stolen, and locks of hair of fallen men also. His history was written on his garments; so among Indians, if not among whites, a man can be known by the clothes he wears. His face was also painted as well as his shirt, every streak was a sign or symbol of some exploit, and had to the initiated a meaning, but to the uninformed was perfect hieroglyphics.

All the assembled chiefs and head men sat on their haunches like squirrels on the inner circumference of the tent. The simmering hot dog meat and maize in a big kettle smoked in the centre, and sent forth an odor grateful to their senses, for each and all emitted a guttural sound of pleasure as the steam curled upwards in the capacious lodge. They would every few minutes sing together like croaking frogs, their legs moving as with an involuntary tremor; when in the last notes they would break off like "yapping" dogs. It would beggar description to paint an Indian eating. When he eats every part of him is instinct with the motion and gratification, and he eats clear down to his toe-nails.
While the feast of the Strong-hearts was proceeding, Townsend was taken to an open space not far from the lodge of the chief, Full Moon, and tied to a stake driven deeply in the ground. All this was done by squaws. Strings of buffalo fat were tied round his legs, and it was with difficulty that the voracious dogs were kept away.
To return to the Lockhouse on the Cannon Ball. News of Townsend's death (no one doubted that) was sent to Fort Rice, and the Commander of his Company, Lieut. Wilson, sent his Final Statements to L. Thomas, Adjutant General of the U. S., and he was considered in the Regiment as the first victim of Indian warfare.
Let us return to Townsend. The clouds had cleared away that betokened rain, and the full moon arose in its splendor, but the rays fell upon a victim whose heart sickened at the sight. He looked round on Nature as if to take a last farewell of all things sublunary. It was sad to die such a death as he was about to die, so full of youth, of strength, of hope. How beautiful seemed the feast of life to him, now it was to be snatched from before him! It is human nature to value things, alas! too late.
Who is that approaching from the rear of the lodge of the Chief, Full Moon? The shadow, even is beautiful. It is a female form. Her long, dark hair is ornamented with the feathers of the Dakotian magpie. They are a dark, glistening green, with white spots. Her moccasins glitter like diamonds on the dark sward, garnished as they are with cut glass beads. Her leggins are brilliant with porcupine quill and delicate fringe of antelope tufted with the same. She has a Mackinac blanket of the brightest purple, but more glittering than the necklace of shell about her neck or the bracelets of gold from the Black Hills about her wrists, are her eyes. Sweet, rare as the fountains that gush round Mini Wakan is the glow of those lustrous eyes. She approaches Townsend. She lays her soft velvety cheek against his. She certifies by signs the fate that awaits him. With an air of hauteur she bids every staring squaw retire, and then emitting a slight "wish" through her half-shut teeth, motions that she will relieve him when the moon has sunk in darkness, that she has gained permission to be his sentinel, and that she will liberate him. He understands enough of her signs to know that a savior has appeared, and the pulse that beat lately so low throbs at fever heat. At a late hour all was still in the Indian encampment. At sunrise Townsend was to be stuck full of knives, and thus dashed, to be burnt, and the following day was to be devoted to the horrid orgies of Indian life.
In a curious ladie, made of the horn of a mountain sheep, Owarpi, Full Moon's daughter, brought the parched victim drink, and placed between his lips a ball of toro to appease his ravid appetite.
At last deep snoring was heard in every tipi. Silent as the dew Owarpi stole to the side of Townsend, and unloosed every thong that bound him. An Indian woman is the stillest mortal in the world. They can tread as softly as a sephyr. In anything relating love or a lover they will not even breathe.—talk about a partridge—they are not half so shy as an Indian woman. Townsend pulled off his heavy shoes, and a light pair of finely worked moccasins encased his feet. A blanket and feather made his disguise complete; at a short distance any one would have thought him an Indian. Owarpi led him, "whishing" down some dogs that commenced to growl, to a little corral in the shade of a ravine close by. There he saw two splendid American horses, saddled and bridled. Their frames presented a combination of strength and fleetness rarely seen. Evidently stolen from some frontier settlement, they had just enough of the blood of Indian ponies to make them stout, but not to diminish their size.
Owarpi placed the bridle of one of the steeds in his hand, and motioned to him to mount, while she leaped across the Jark back of the other as a rainbow arches over a dark thunder cloud. Her horse had a burden of blankets and food, but most compactly arranged, and also a tent folded snugly as a morning glory before it has opened to the gaze of the sun.

Fleets as the wind Owarpi and her victim dodged behind a butte, and when day began to dawn they were afar off on a lofty eminence watching the camp. Soon they saw it pour forth its denizens. But pursuit was useless. On they fled, day and night till they reached the camp of the friendly Crow.—With these they went to the mouth of Milk River, where they spent the winter in the warm lodge of an old French trapper, De Mornin by name. In early spring with Owarpi, Townsend started for Idaho, and is engaged in digging gold from the rich placers. He considers himself not a deserter, as his Final Statements are at Washington, and some day, if you go to that Territory, you may yet meet the Resurrected Soldier.

BAD INVESTMENT.—Our friend Capt. Guindon, of the blown up steamer Rosolite, is blessed with an imperturbable good nature which rarely forsakes him under the most trying circumstances. While hobbling about town on crutches a week or two since, he was accosted by a life insurance agent who—thinking, no doubt, that a man who had made such a miraculous escape as the Captain, would be a safe subject for insurance—solicited him to buy a policy. "No, I thank you," said Cap. good humoredly, "it's a devilish bad investment for me; my life is already insured for five thousand, and here I've been blown up sky-high—came down alive, and lost the only chance I ever had in my life to make a cent."—Territorial Republican.

The caudal extremity of the Herald says Unionists are goings. Better be the geese that saved Rome than the turkey-buzzards that picked out the eyes of Rome's dead heroes.

The Walla Walla Statesman admits there is one sensible Republican. I suppose Mr. Statesman would admit any Republican sensible to the amount of three dollars if they would take his luminous sheet.

A SENSIBLE REPUBLICAN.—The following note to the editor contains so much of good sense that we give it entire:
WHATEVER, Sept. 28, 1868.
Dear Sir:—In accordance with the delicate and polite hint you gave me by stopping my paper, I enclose $10, which you will please place to my credit on your subscription books. I believe that no man can judge correctly on any subject, unless he bears both sides of the question, consequently I take all the papers published in the Territory, and the leading papers of both parties from the States. As I file all my papers, I would like if you could fill my file—the last number I received was July 17th. As long as I have a dollar I will pay the printer.
EDWARD ELDRIDGE.

The election of Grant would be the indorsement of negro suffrage, military law, high tariffs, income tax, the Chinese treaty, and every other outrage of radicalism. The election of Seymour would be the indorsement of the Constitution with all its guarantees of civil liberty.—W. W. Statesman.
Before the election.

TO PREVENT FLAY-IRONS FROM STICKING.—Irons are apt to stick to starched articles. To prevent this, lay a little fine salt on a flat surface, and rub the iron well over it. This will make the iron smooth, and also remove any smokiness.

CLEANING BLACK LACE.—It must be carefully sponged with gin, or if preferred, with green tea, and afterwards wound round and round a bottle to dry. No iron if avoidable must be used, as, if touched with it, the lace would assume a flattened and glossy appearance, which would spoil it. It is a good plan to fill the bottle with hot water to expedite the drying process. The lace must not be placed near the fire or it will become a rusty color, and never look well.

General, then Colonel, R. E. Lee, captured John Brown in 1859, for having rebelled against the State of Virginia. John Brown was hung. Gen. Grant captured the same R. E. Lee, in 1865, for having rebelled and fought against the laws of the whole United States. Gen. Lee is now telling us the proper way to rule the country.

The Portland Herald is very severe in the epithets it applies to the editor of the Oregonian. "Old 200 lbs" is the latest, having dropped the "Fat Boy." The Herald is dreadfully sharp. Beriah's wit will bring him into notice yet, or kill him.—Idaho Statesman.

Brigham recommends his followers to go into raising fish. He is a whale himself and goes on the principle that the big fish eat up the little ones. His followers will find themselves ultimately in the condition of Jonah.

The Deseret News publishes a sketch entitled the "Boyhood of Ole Bull." That must have been when he was a young calf.
Mythology tells us that Io died because of her intense love for Jupiter; but the charm of the romantic story has lately been destroyed by a chemist discovering iodide of potassium.—S. F. Chronicle.

RAILROAD MATTERS.

When more we are under the necessity of referring to statements made in the Olympia Transcript in regard to matters connected with the Puget Sound and Columbia River Railroad Company, and the work they have undertaken. It must be conceded that the Transcript has a singular way of showing its vaunted devotion to the interests of Washington Territory. For fear the great desire, the earnest prayer of the Territory has been for a Railroad connecting the waters of the Sound with Columbia river. When that prayer is about to be answered, the Transcript holds up its hands in holy horror, and prays that it may not be answered; or, if it must be, somebody else may answer it beside those who are likely to do it. Now this may all be very patriotic, and very unselfish devotion to the interests of the Territory, but we can't see it.

After quoting the statement we made some weeks since that a contract had been entered into by Holladay & Co. to construct a first-class Railroad from the Columbia river to Puget Sound, the Transcript asks "Does any sane man believe that a bona fide contract has been made with these parties?" Now this question is equivalent to saying that Holladay & Co. and all the gentlemen of the P. S. & C. R. R. Co. are unscrupulous liars. "Does any sane man believe that they are?" Who will the people believe? The editor of the Transcript, who knows nothing about the matter, or the gentlemen connected with the Company and Mr. Holladay, who know all about it? In the same paper in which the editor makes the above statement, his Portland correspondent says that such a contract is made, and that he had it from Holladay himself! Which states the truth, the Gazette at Olympia or the Gazette at Portland?

The writer of the editorial betrays in the very next sentence either a gross ignorance of what he writes, or an intention to mislead his readers, in representing the "route commonly unknown to the surveyor's compass." The fact is the route is in far the greater part over a surveyed line, and Lander gave even an estimated cost of $25,000 per mile of road over this identical route.

The statement that the P. S. & C. R. R. R. is an opposition to the Northern Pacific road is a bare assumption. It supplies no link that is not supplied by the bill before Congress at its last session. If, then, this road is hostile to the Northern Pacific that would be, and the Transcript is as much bound to oppose the one as the other. The truth is either would aid the Northern Pacific, by developing commerce and creating a necessity for more transportation than any single line could supply. The views of the Transcript are simply those of a man born and reared where railroads never existed. The Northern road, the road to the Columbia, a road thence to connect with the Central or Union Pacific, one and the same through the valley of the Columbia and Snake rivers to Salt Lake are only wants of the near future, and for the Transcript to oppose either is to show itself unequal to the situation. It is all these roads that will build the great city soon to be on Puget Sound. Does the Transcript understand?

And now it does seem a little tough on the few gentlemen at Olympia who tried to effect the same arrangement that the "Vancouver seven" succeeded in, and failed. If they had succeeded does any sane man believe that the Transcript would now be publishing the articles it is? Or "does any sane man believe" that there would have been any incorporators at Vancouver? Does the Transcript understand?

ANNUAL SCHOOL MEETING—District No. 6. Pursuant to notice and adjournment, the legal voters of School District No. 6 met at the District School House, in this place on the 20th inst. The meeting was organized by calling Julius Suiste, Esq., to the Chair, and appointing I. T. Maulsby, Esq., Secretary. The election of two Directors for the District being in order, the Chair appointed J. D. Potter and Gay Haydon as follows: The following persons were duly elected to serve—Mr. H. L. Caples for three years, and Mr. E. Thomson for two years. Mr. G. T. McConnell, Clerk of the District, presented his accounts for approval to the meeting, and at his own request a motion to grant him two weeks to perfect his report was carried. Accordingly the meeting adjourned until Friday, the 4th day of Dec., 1866, for the hearing of the report of the D. S. Clerk, the electing of a new Clerk, and the transaction of other business pertaining to the interests of the aforesaid School District.

A leading gentleman of Portland bought a block in East Portland a year ago for $1000. It is now worth $2000. He has been offered $4000, and refuses to sell. So much for the East-side railroad of Inhabitants of Vancouver must bestir themselves if they wish to secure the Bridge and Junction.

The Columbia says that all the ship-bills of San Francisco are arriving in Puget Sound. One company invests $500,000 for the erection of a sawmill and shipyard near Seattle. Verily, "things" are beginning to move on this northern coast.

Figures Don't Lie.

The building of a Railroad through our County is the most vital importance to every man, woman and child in it, and it shows the way to submit a few figures for the inspection and consideration of our readers.

The present value of property in Clarke county is in round numbers $700,000. Now it is not unreasonable to suppose that with a Railroad passing through the center of our city and county the property of the same will be ten times as valuable as it is at present, or worth $7,000,000, cost of building Railroad bridge across our part of the river $1,000,000; cost of building the Railroad thirty-five miles across our county, at $35,000 a mile, $1,225,000; making in all $9,225,000. This is saying nothing of wild lands which in the course of a few years, if the Railroad is built, will be a source of immense wealth to us.

Clarke county has an area in round numbers of 885,000 acres of land. At present there is claimed only 48,000 acres; deducting the part settled from the whole we have 837,000 acres of land yet to settle. We are told by Mr. Alexander Coffee, who, with his brother, Mr. T. M. Coffey, and his brother-in-law, Hon. Lewis Van Vleet, surveyed the county, that nine-tenths of 837,000 acres of land is susceptible of settlement and cultivation. Nine-tenths of the above amount is 753,300 acres. Almost all this land is timbered—covered with fir, cedar and other valuable woods. On one acre there is not less than fifty thousand feet of saw logs, which, at twenty-five cents per thousand, make the land worth $125 per acre; but call it $50 per acre, and we have the sum of $37,665,000. This, added to the improved portion of the county will make the increase sum of $14,000,000.

Walla Walla needs our timber, we need her grain. We shall have a Railroad between us. The immense tracts of land east of the Cascade Mountains must be supplied with lumber. The mills on Puget Sound are now unable to supply the demand for lumber. The Islands of the Pacific, the Eastern Continent, the vast country lying between the Rocky Mountains and the Cascade Range, are open, it will be opened to us, and our immense forests will thus be rendered of incalculable value to us, as enabling us to supply them with lumber, which they must have, but which, at present, is so earthly rare to us or anyone else. The Railroad, citizens of Clarke county, is everything to you. It will render available the dormant resources of your county, and bring into speedy demand what is at present a drug, if not an actual curse.

Citizens of Clarke county, awake to your interests! You have a future open to you, if you grasp the golden opportunity, which will place your county in the foremost rank of counties on this coast. Shake off your lethargy. No stand with arms folded in Turkish apathy till it is too late!

Awake to your interests! Give freely of what you have! Make this road cross here and ere long our county will be crossed in all directions with branch railroads.

Again, we say, awake to your interests! This Railroad will place us in communication with every place, whereas we are now totally isolated from the world.

The prospect most gladden the heart of all who have the slightest interest in the prosperity of Vancouver or Clarke county. We must have this Railroad! Civilization without its appliances is worse than barbarism. We should have this Railroad if we but try! Public spirit is all that is required to insure it. No narrow-minded policy should for a moment be entertained. Sunk trifling considerations! Log in the manger should not be tolerated. Give liberally! Give freely, nor make those who solicit your aid assume the character of mendicants. 'Tis not for empty glory and idle pomp we seek, it is to relieve your present dependent condition.

That there is no deception about it is evident from the fact that not one dollar is issued until the work has actually begun! You simply agree that upon the performance of certain specific acts whereby you are to be benefited you will make the parties who perform a slight recompense for their services. Could anything be fairer? Could any thing be plainer?

The prospect is certainly cheering to the heart of the statesman, philanthropist and Christian. This must be regarded as the connecting link between the Old World and the New. It will open another avenue of approach and communication with Asia, American Ideas and American Christianity will thereby obtain another foothold in the land of the idolater. The glorious institutions of our country, our blessed and revered Christianity will take the place of idolatry which now courses half the globe, and the American people will be the best and the greatest on earth.

We of Clarke county shall be in five years in communication with the whole world. We could elaborate this subject infinitely, but are admonished to stop. The contemplation of such a prospect is bewildering to the senses. Thoughts flow in upon us to fasten a connected utterance. We pause to ask you "What will you do?" Promise these men that you possess if they do what they agree to, or by a loggery, penny-wise and pound-foolish policy allow the prize they hold out to you to go by default. The former course will secure for you your children's blessing, while the latter will mark you as such a class of imbeciles as the world has never before seen.

Citizens of Clarke county, your destiny is in your own hands! Your beautiful country seat can be made what nature intended it should be, a great commercial and manufacturing city, or allow it to remain the seat of "monstrous inactivity" as it is at present. The development of the latent wealth of our mines and forests, in our time, depends upon our decision in this matter. Never were such documents held out to a people! Hesitate long, then, ere you cast them aside! We, the citizens of Clarke county, whether you are holding as you have for the past fifteen years or whether you will have your country traversed by a Railroad bearing trains laden with riches greater far than Egyptian arg-sies ever bore.

SUFFRAGE.
The American people are like a man fallen heir to a great estate.—This estate consists of the priceless boon of liberty, bequeathed by their forefathers who have died on a hundred battlefields, that they might be free and consequently rich and powerful. But it is often hard to keep a great estate as to earn it, particularly when those that enjoy it know not the toil and the care of its accumulation. And many now who possess a country great and powerful as their heritage have made no sacrifices to acquire it, but have set in the shade while their forefathers have been fighting in the glorious sun of Secession. It is related of a man that found a bag of guineas that he knew no enjoyment after he obtained it. Sleep could not visit his eye-lids, nor slumber refresh him, he was so afraid he should lose them. And the man awake to his country's interests feels quite as much care now as he did when Lee marched on Gettysburg, and the destruction of our country seemed imminent and immediate. Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty. Because every man is free, every man is not capable of making a right use of his liberty. A man needs to have arrived at a certain status before he becomes capable of legislating even for himself. We have guardians for imbeciles and maniacs. Because everyone is free, everybody is not a Daniel Webster at once, or a Salou. Slavery is wrong, but not the only wrong in the world. Demagoguism brought on this Rebellion as much as slavery. They were twin-brothers. Demagoguism lives. It incited the poor whites of the South to burn their own houses and attempt to annihilate what little liberty they had. A part of the same people are left, and another race is added to the stock in hand for demagogues. We glory in the freedom of mankind; we inherited a hatred for slavery from our mother, we have been called "Abolitionist," and even "Nigger," because we wished slavery abolished, but we do not think the country requires no care because King Slavery no longer reigns. Man, black, white or red must be educated for his position. A freeman's position is not a low one. In his flat, in his vote rest the destinies of millions.—The election of Abraham Lincoln, the nullifier—

That come down as still
As now flakes on the soil,
Yet scarce the freeman's will
As lightning from the sky of dead!
As lightning from the sky of dead!

Railroad Meeting.

The citizens of Vancouver and Clarke County, W. T., met at Brant's Hall on Saturday the 21st inst. at this place. The meeting was duly organized by calling Gay Haydon to the chair, and appointing J. Suiste Secretary.

The Chairman stated to the assembly that the citizens had met to hear all remarks that might be made in relation to a railroad proposed to be built from the Columbia river to Puget Sound.

The following gentlemen, to wit: Rev. H. K. Hines, S. W. Brown, I. T. Maulsbly, A. C. Cooke, A. A. Shaeben, Capt. Adams and Judge Doubth, answered to the call of the Chair, and presented to the assembly remarks throwing light on the subject.

From the remarks of these gentlemen it appeared:

1st. That a company has been organized under the name of the Columbia River and Puget Sound Rail Road Company in order to construct a railroad from a certain point on the Columbia river between the Cascades and Owlitz to Puget Sound.

2d. That that company incorporated under the laws of Washington Territory, has entered into a bargain with Ben. Holladay and Company to construct that road, reserving to himself only the choice of the termini.

3d. That Ben. Holladay and Company have in view three different places on the Columbia river, for the crossing of the road, to wit: Sandy, Vancouver and Martin's Bluff.

4th. That in these different places offers have and will be made to secure the locating of the railroad, and that all things taken in consideration the place having made the best and most liberal offer shall get the terminus.

5th. That the contract entered into between the Incorporators and Ben. Holladay and Co. is unconditional, except as to the location of the termini. That as soon as the surveys are made, the offers and deeds completed, they will be submitted to Mr. Holladay for his consideration, and that his decision whatever it be, shall be irrevocable, and never to be reconsidered again.

6th. That in view of these facts, it was the duty of the people of Vancouver and Clarke county to offer the builders of the road, the most liberal inducements, and that if the people should not respond to that call, and should sleep the sleep of the seven sleepers, they would be dead, buried and done for forever and ever.

The meeting adjourned until the 23d inst., on which day the above gentlemen together with Messrs. M. R. Hathaway, J. D. Potter, J. Lassater of Walla Walla, and Joseph Brant, treated the above question in the most satisfactory manner.

On motion it was resolved that the ladies in general be requested to attend the next meeting, and that a Committee to engage the U. S. Band of music be appointed.

The Chair appointed A. A. Shaeben, S. W. Brown and I. T. Maulsbly to that effect. Tuesday 24.—The meeting amidst the sound of music was called to order by the Chairman with a large concourse of citizens of Clarke county and vicinity.

In addition to the gentlemen above named, Hon. H. G. Struve, Judge McBride of Idaho, and Rev. Mr. Belknap, made very appropriate remarks on the subject of this railroad, showing in numbers and figures the immense use of value in the property of the place should the railroad be built and into what insignificance this city and county would sink should not the road be built.

Mr. Cook, in behalf of the R. R. Co., and in the presence of several ladies who had joined the meeting, asked the persons present what they would be willing to give the corporations for the furtherance of the enterprise, and down came an avalanche of grants which give a fair hope that the railroad will pass through or near Vancouver. To be brief and not to offend the gentlemen, we will only mention Mrs. Capt. Ingram who promised the company 100 acres of good land.

The motion to appoint a Committee of three gentlemen to cooperate with the R. R. & P. S. R. R. Co., by asking grants and donations for the furtherance of the enterprise, and also for the appointment of meetings and speakers in the county of Clarke was carried.

The motion to appoint J. Suiste, I. T. Maulsbly and Gay Haydon was carried.

On motion the meeting adjourned until Saturday the 28th inst., at Brant's Hall at 2 o'clock p. m.

J. SUISTE,
Secretary.

FROM NEVADA.—By the politeness of Dr. I. L. Tobey, we have been allowed to make the following extract from a private letter from Hon. Hiram Cochran, dated Camp Winnfield, Nevada, Nov. 1, 1868.

"There is one thing, however, which Nevada can boast, that certainly is worthy of mention, which belongs to her, and that is the great Central Pacific Railroad, that is certainly the wonder of the age in which we live; and Doctor I certainly would advise you the next time you feel like taking a tramp for your health, to make the trip across the Sierras on this road. You cannot help but feel that you have been well paid for your trip, and I am satisfied you will regard it as the most wonderful enterprise ever undertaken by man on this Continent, or perhaps on any other. But it is thought here by many that the Union Central Railroad Company will not connect with it. Some think they will branch off to San Diego, and some think to Puget Sound. Now is the time for the friends of the latter branch to make the strike, as I have found but few who think that the road across the Sierras can be kept open during the winter, even with all the sheds now constructed at an enormous expense, and which are of a continuous length of sixteen miles, the roofs of which they have gone to the expense of painting with caluar. I suppose, too, the object is to preserve from decay, as the scarcity of timber is the great drawback to this country, a drawback which cannot be overcome as they have to use wood altogether for fuel, and you travel for hundreds of miles without seeing as much as a switch large enough for a walking stick. Rough lumber used at this Post costs $120 per M. People here precipitately construct their houses of sods, and thatch them with straw. Few of the houses have any windows, hence the residences are rather dismal looking hovels with ground floors, and no prospect of getting any better, as you seldom can get freights through on the Railroad as the Company are using the road to its full extent in getting their own supplies through for building the road. The weather is very favorable, as it is a rare and warm, with every prospect of its continuing so. With all Nevada's drawbacks she is good for 1,500 for Grant & Colfax on Tuesday next."
H. COCHRAN.

THE ADVANCE GUARD.—We are pleased to acknowledge a call yesterday from Hudnutt, who has charge of the locating engineers of the Union Pacific Railroad. He has a party of 18 picked men now exploring the country between Snake river and Boise valley. They will reach here in about three weeks. Hudnutt reports the route from the junction at Promontory Rock to the crossing of Snake river as good as could be desired, and from the latter point to Boise valley it is nearly if not equally so good. His instructions are to explore the country as far as possible this winter towards the Columbia river and report to the company. Hudnutt is an elderly gentleman, of plain, businesslike manners, and altogether such a man as one could wish to see in charge of any great business enterprise in any country. We learned from him many facts not necessary to repeat, but there is one thing about which we feel good. That is, the Union Pacific road is coming. About that there is no mistake. Idaho is not to be left out in the cold 200 miles from any place, as was contemplated by the Central and the North Pacific, but right through the best portion of the Territory, right down Snake river and Boise valleys will run the great Pacific Railroad. Hudnutt is the foremost scout of the advance guard of that magnificent enterprise. He is the first live representative of any practical railroad interest who ever reached this city, and we note his arrival as the beginning of the realization of our four years' hopes, that the great railroad would eventually follow the track Nature designed it should.—Idaho Statesman.

The same surveyors are in the Blue Mountains this side of La Grande surveying different passes, Meacham's and others. Wherever the bridge is, there will be the junction of the Union Pacific, Oregon Central and Columbia River and Puget Sound Railroad.

PORTLAND ADS.—We would call attention to A. Grabenholm's boot and shoe store. Remember he took the prize at the Oregon State Fair. If you want any fur goods go to DalBo's. He is a splendid workman in his line. If you want any lead pipes, pumps, &c., Donnerberg & Barrett can fit you out. He has a big supply of everything of that kind. If you want first-class furniture, cheap and durable, go to G. C. Rider's. If you want a umbrella or any fashion able clothing, go to Currier's, in Carter's elegant block. It is a princely store. If you want your teeth filled call on Mack & Hatch, or on Dr. Cardwell. See their Ads. Their reputation as first-class dentists is established. Randall & Sunder-land have a splendid boot and shoe store by the Post office. Mr. Randall kept in the same place formerly a music store. Mr. Randall is well known by the public as a business man of talent and worth. He will give you a good bargain for your money. If you want presents for the holidays go to McCormick's. He has everything splendid of books, papers, periodicals, and the like.

We would call attention to B. E. Gilmer & Co's advertisement at St. Helens. Any one visiting their store will find it well stocked with a general assortment of goods at reasonable prices.

We would also draw attention to Captain Fisher's Ad. The Steamer Ranger is always on hand. We came up the other day on her, and it seemed that everybody and their aunt were for taking a steamboat jaunt. The jovial Captain knows how to run a steamer, you bet. Don't fail to patronize him.

THE ADJOURNED RAILROAD MEETING.—We are asked by the friends of the enterprise to say that this meeting is to be held particularly for farmers and others from the country. All from the city as well as country are cordially invited and respectfully urged to be present. The presence of one encourages and inspires another. The presence and cooperation of the ladies is especially requested. Remember two o'clock, Brant's Hall Saturday Nov. 28. Come everybody, rain or shine. In a multitude of councilors there is wisdom. Two heads are better than one; and many heads and hearts and hands are irresistible. Citizens of Clarke county and Vancouver! We beseech you to pass unimpaired this golden opportunity to pass unimpaired on this subject that will be held in this city. Let us make the occasion interesting and profitable by a full attendance.

NORTHERN NEWS
(From dispatches to the Daily Oregonian.)
Washington Nov. 25.—The new postal arrangement with Great Britain was today signed by the President. It takes effect Jan. 15th.
Secretary Seward authorizes the following relative to Reverly Johnson's negotiations on the Alabama claims to correct irresponsible statements: Our Minister only reports progress in his late dispatches to the state department. The question of the peaceful adjustment of the Alabama claims is approaching settlement and all things look favorable, but there has been no definite conclusion reached upon any important point up to this time. Johnson and Lord Stanley have not even settled so far the agreement on the Protocol. There has been a good deal of correspondence between our Minister and the British Foreign Secretary. A very friendly feeling pervades all this correspondence, but there is no hope for an amicable settlement.—It will not be wise for the papers of this country to rely upon and publish all the rumors which leak out from the British foreign office and are sent abroad through the columns of the London journals, as truth. Mr. Johnson has not been authorized from the State Department to vary in any particular from the instructions given him on the eve of his departure as to the duties of his office at the court of her Majesty.

Chicago, 25.—A meeting of the leading citizens and business men was held last night to take measures in reference to the opening of trade with China and the eastern countries and over the Pacific Coast. Lieut. Gov. Gross, in his speech gave interesting statistics, showing the advantage to trade through San Francisco, and the difference in favor of this route to that between London and China. Other gentlemen spoke in the same strain. The indications are that Chicago merchants will be prompt in opening trade with the Oriental Empire.
Active preparations are being made for a great Soldier's Reunion here on the 15th of Dec. Gen. Sherman will deliver the address of freedom. Generals Thomas, Sheridan, Sigum, Schofield and others intend being present on that occasion.

A letter from Mr. A. P. Shull, dated City of Rocks, Idaho, Nov. 17th, states that Railroad in that section. The railroad is now running past Fort Bridger, and there is a prospect of the reaching Salt Lake by mid-summer '69. The weather is fine and promises to remain so for some time yet. Mr. C. M. Lockwood's assignment, for which Mr. Shull is agent, is being splendidly. There is double the usual amount of travel this Fall. Large numbers are going east. Coal mines have been discovered on Raft river, some 20 miles from here.

We have received a book called the "Good Templar's Manual" from T. H. Crawford, G. W. Secretary of I. O. G. T., for O. F. & W. T. It is a splendid book, with two fine steel plates of leading Good Templars. Every Officer of a Lodge should purchase one if he wishes to see his part well in the Lodge.

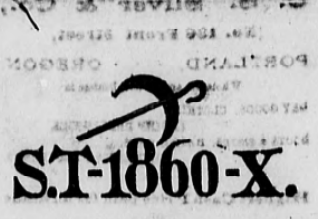

We would call attention to Lacour's Sarsaparilla Bitters. It is highly recommended by all that have used it. It is taking the place of all other preparations of the kind. If you want pure blood, use it; if you are bilious, or if you have any humor of any kind, you should not fail to get it. It improves digestion, awakens the breath, and regulates the whole system. His Jamaica Ginger takes the place of all other gingers in the public estimation. Notice the Ad.

TUMORS, BLOTCHES
and roughness of the skin generally arise from depraved or vitiated humors. Bristol's Sarsaparilla is the best of all known purifiers of the blood and humors. This unflinching detergent neutralizes the poison, and occasional doses of Bristol's Sarsaparilla, taken at the same time, purge out the unhealthy secretions, insuring a smooth, white soft skin.
Mrs. Rachel Posey died recently at Valley Forge, at the ripe age of 102 years and odd months. Her husband was a revolutionary soldier. She lived to see the grand child of her great-grandchild.

A great French Physician says: "More than half of the disease in the world comes from neglect to fortify the system against changes of climate, weather and food. The great secret of health is to keep the condition of the stomach and blood regular and uniform, so that changes from Heat to Cold, from Dry to Damp, etc., will not affect the chemistry of the body, and breed disease." MANHOOD—IN THE YOUNG and rising generation, the vegetative powers of life are strong, but in a few years...

HERBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCUR, for Weakness arising from excess or early indiscretion, attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Stertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and eruptions on the face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequent Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion, and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society, Nothing is more desirable to such patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for Fear of Themselves; no Repose of Manner, no Earnestness; no Speculation, but a hurried Transition from one question to another.

These symptoms if allowed to go on which this medicine invariably removes—soon follow Loss of Power, Fatuity, and Epileptic Fits, in one of which the patient may expire.

During the superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients; reason had for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths by Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions.

RECOMMENDATIONS. GREAT SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, Jan. 2nd, 1868. Mr. H. T. Hembold: Dear Sir: Your communication requesting our terms of advertising was duly received, but from a prejudice I had formed against advertising 'cures for secret diseases,' it was left unanswered.

Two bottles only of the package of your valuable Buchu presented to the Institute have been used by the children, and with perfect success. In the case of our little Lieutenant, A. J., his pride is no longer mortified, and he is free from the daily anathemas of the chambermaid who has charge of his bedding.
