Lincoln's Christmas Present.
Written at the fall of Savannah.
BY CAPT. E. G. ADAMS.

Captain the bold hero,
And slay the royal pain,
The City of Savannah
Is laid in Adam's gain.
'Till never be forgotten,
The ball that she did give,
Bales of sea-land cotton
Of thousands twenty-five.
Tell it from our Eldorado
To the play wads of Maine,
That the Southern desperado
We are landing with a chain.
From the North Pole to the Isthmus,
From the smooth sea to the rough,
We will have a very Christmas,
For the news is good enough.
Drive Sherman to the river,
May never such decrease
Till War's rough and sanguine river
Empties in the bay of Peace.
There never was such present
Ere given on Christmas morn,
Since was Christ, the royal peasant,
For the world's redemption born.
And the day of our redemption
Breaks into light at last,
Forevermore exemption
From War's dread holocaust.

No more will sudden pain
Strike the people with alarm,
Nor will leave his back mechanic,
Nor the farmer leave his farm.
From Tennessee to Oregon
No more Jeff. Davis reigns,
All severed o'er like Borgia,
With Tyranny's soul stains.
Soon will see the fierce fire-color
Of the war-delighting North
Slaying different kind of nestle
From the other side his mouth.

And the bloody South Carolinians,
Who the hangy sport commenced,
Will be shivered 'neath the pinions
They so proudly once against.
And England, cruel vulture,
Who thought to pick our bones,
Will think from his squallors
Again has risen Jones.
Who laid his fire and pillage,
Along her island coast,
In ashes may a village,
And London's heart almost.

When she sees our rams of iron
Against her heart of oak,
The song of the old cry
Will be changed into a wail,
And with a sudden pang,
Back to her island lair
Who came like fiend Satanic,
Will fly like frightened hare.
Napoleon, who the Latin
Over the nation would exalt,
Will his calculation that in
Most sadly find in fault.

Back to his home o'er yonder
Will Maximilian go,
When we've killed the usqueant
Whose tail is Mexico.
Soon the province Canadian
Will follow in our trails,
And, to rule, will let no lady in,
Nor even the Prince of Wales.
From the North Pole to the Isthmus
There will not be a slave,
Rebellion by next Christmas
Will be silent in his grave.

And the crown, that symbol regal,
From this Continent will drop,
And soon will Freedom's eagle
From every mountain-top.
And our Liberty's banner
Will bid it in the name
With us 'on Union's altar
We forever keep the flame.
Then we'll about the loud hero,
Soon like starry heroes unfurled,
We'll shake our starry banner
O'er a liberated world.

How a Rebel was Clobbered.
Stephen M. Deason, belonged to Co. "D," 2d N. H. Vols. He was one of those dare-devil, good hearted fellows that create mirth, and throw sunshine on the darkest scenes of a soldier's life. He boasted he was the only private for duty in Co. "D" the next morning after the 2d of July at Gettysburg. After Lee had escaped into Virginia, our Regiment (the 2d) among others, was sent to block his game at Manassas Gap. The 24th of July found us skirmishing through the Gap to beyond Front Royal. When we returned back from pressing the Philistines, some of them hid beyond stone walls, and in clumps of bushes, hung on our rear to pick up strag-glors. Col. Bailey and Adjt. Cooper found their horses minus shoes, and as Deason was a blacksmith, these three stopped behind in the village smithy. Their horses were shod, and they were mounted, and overtaking the column, but Deason was afoot and behind. The Rebels were gathering in the village, and he knew it, but he took it coolly, as he did every thing. He wore a white hat, which, with his apparently leisurely manner, completely lulled all suspicion of his being a Federal. He walked in a sauntering manner, as though nothing was the matter, humming "Dixie." At last he is hailed by a Johnny. He returns the salute and Mr. Rebel joins company. A mutual enquiry follows as to respective regiments. Mr. Deason is suddenly transformed into a Mississippian. The rebel was from Alabama, with a huge plantation hat, and a mouth, that, when open, made his head just half off. As their intimacy increased, Deason desired to examine Johnny Rebel's gun to see what kind it "mought" be. The gun changed hands, and the scene shifts—Deason lifts the gun on the Rebel and announces the astounding fact that he is a prisoner of war, warning him if he tries to escape, or make any disturbance whatever, he will blow his brains out. This feat was done in a village full of Rebels, and within halting distance of them, and in an hour or two Deason joined the column with his captive. That awful hat and still more awful mouth I often afterwards saw at Point Lookout. E. G. A.

Portugal Threatening to Follow the Example of Spain.
The following proclamation has been posted on street corners of Lisbon lately, and circulated among the people. The Government, however, has taken no notice of it, and treats it with indifference and contempt:
"Portuguese! At the cry of 'Liberty' has sounded in the name of Spain. Let our cry be, 'Long live liberty!' The union of Spain and Portugal is the happiness of the two countries. Let us shout with all our strength, 'Long live the Iberian Union! Long live Don Louis the 1st as the ruler of the two united countries.' Portuguese! Let us put aside stupid prejudices.
Portuguese and Spaniards! We are brothers in religion, by customs, by language, and, above all, by being acted upon by the same love of liberty.
Portuguese! Let us not miss an opportunity offered us by Providence to become greater by establishing one nation, which would be the envy of the world, since it would be able to give laws to all and receive none from others.
Portuguese! Long live the Iberian Union! Believe the words of free men, who have watched over the greatness of their country and the happiness of their fellow countrymen.
Portuguese! Among freemen none are strangers. All of them are brothers. Long live the Iberian Union!
St. HELENS, Dec. 1, 1868.

Dear Friend:—I returned yesterday from Linn County, whither I have been on the line of the survey of the O. C. R. R. Co. Through Linn County, almost entire, a distance of 34 miles, the line is without a curve. 'Tis the longest air line in the United States, except one on Platte river, the line of the U. P. R. R. Co., which is 100 miles long. The last survey in the County of Linn is the one I refer to above, and the right of way is very nearly all secured.
Yours, etc.,
W. B. DANIELS.

STEAMBOAT FOR SALT LAKE.—General P. E. Conner has built, on the river Jordan, and ready to be launched, a steamboat to ply on Salt Lake. The machinery for the steamer was from California, but everything else necessary for the equipment of the boat was furnished on the ground. During the winter the steamer will be used for towing ties for the Union Pacific Railroad, but during the coming Summer it will be fitted up for the accommodation of passengers.

Democrats assert that "under the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States all distinction of race and color is abolished," and, as a consequence, Chinese immigrants are made admissible to citizenship. This is a disingenuous statement.—The 14th Article has nothing to do with Chinese in the least, and so far as distinctions of race and color are concerned, the Amendment only embraces those males of twenty-one years of age and upward, who were born on American soil, leaving the Chinese and other foreigners to the operation of old Democratic naturalization laws, which have never been repealed.—Times.

Money-Making.
Civilized man's ambition to acquire riches has been manifested ever since the infancy of civilization, whenever that was,—riches in lands, in flocks and herds, in houses, in precious stones, in gold and silver. Some men have become wealthy by industry and economy; some by craftiness and fraud; some by violence and oppression. All cannot become rich; for, if all were equally wealthy, riches would lose their value, and none would be rich. In like manner, all cannot be rulers, as in that case each man's jurisdiction would embrace himself alone. But every man may strive to become wealthy; and if one man succeeds in his endeavor, it is because he has superior opportunity, more energy, more tact, more talent, more industry, or more frugality than those who fail. Multitudes hanker after money who are too indolent to make the necessary efforts, or too unwilling to practice self-denial. As a general thing, labour is the source of wealth; yet no man achieves property by the strength of his single arm. A poor young printer, say, of undaunted courage and stern integrity, determines to make his way in the world. He starts early and late; he lives simply, and denies himself all personal luxuries. In 10 or 15 years he has saved a thousand dollars of his earnings. It has been a hard struggle; but he has done it. He buys a press and types, and is able to hire other labour besides his own, his savings in the next five years are much larger. So he goes on, ever expanding, till he occupies an immense building, filled with types and presses, and lively with the hum of profitable industry. It is not difficult to point out in this and other cities cases similar to this.

Labour Congresses may talk and talk, and resolve and re-resolve; but the truth of the matter is, that in general every man makes his own place,—in this country, at all events. If the young man in the case cited had had less industry, less courage, and less self-denial, he would have spent his wages as regularly as they were earned, and at forty years of age he would have been as poor as at twenty, and, discontented and grumbling at his ill luck, he would have turned reformer.
There are, it is true, some philosophic workmen who do not seem to think it pays to struggle for wealth. To these, increase of riches is simply increase of cares. And so they work contentedly, live prudently, and save and safely invest something every year, as a provision for sickness and old age. These men do not become reformers. They believe that in this world happiness is, after all, pretty evenly distributed among all upright, well-behaved men, be they richer or be they poorer. And they are right.
A successful man is commonly looked upon with envy, and his merit is decied. He does not deserve such treatment. It is truly a public benefactor, and the whole community is directly or indirectly indebted to him. He gives employment to many men, and a hundred families owe their sustenance and comfort to his ability and energy in opening to their hands a field of constant and well-paid labour. He indirectly benefits all by his example and by the new customers drawn to the town by means of his reputation as a skilled producer or manufacturer. Even if he be moved by no higher motive than to get rich, the results of his activity are to the public good; but there are doubtless men who have higher motives, and who, actuated by a wish to enhance their country's welfare and greatness, bear the burdens of a heavy business till they sink under them.

Getting rich is not to be the chief end of man's being; but to get rich honourably and honestly, is surely acceptable in the eyes of Heaven. Not money, but the love of money, is "the root of all evil;" and he who makes and uses money right is surely more to be commended and honoured than he who fails to improve the opportunity and talent which God bestows upon him.—Typographic Advertiser.

SUCRINE OF THREE GIRLS.—A London paper says: A singular case of triple suicide took place October 10th, near the Queen's road bridge, Regent's Canal, Dalston. John Whitman, keeper of the Acton lock, was aroused at about quarter to two by a man in charge of the pump-engine on the canal, who, having heard screams, followed by a splash in the water, had come for the drag.—Whitman immediately proceeded to the spot indicated, about 100 yards from the lock-house; and, after dragging for a short time, succeeded in bringing to the shore the body of a girl. In the meantime Inspector Ramsey, with several policemen, followed the party to the house for the drag, as it was known that two other girls had jumped from the Queen's road bridge. Whitman at once returned, and after a short time brought one body to the surface. The weight of the drag was very great, and it was soon discovered that the hand of the body in sight was tightly holding the hair of the other unfortunate creature. Both having been got out of the water dead, the bodies were removed to Shore-ditch workhouse.

All the girls had been seen together at a late hour, at one time sitting in the street drinking from a bottle, and two of their companions say that they spoke of making away with themselves. Previous to jumping from the bridge one of those who chose that method of existence observed, "There are some papers in my bosom, and some handkerchiefs—that will be sufficient," and afterwards turned to her sister, to whom she gave a portrait of herself, telling her to "give that to father, he would know where she was." No papers were discovered upon her, but two folded pocket handkerchiefs were found under her dress. The girls who jumped from the bridge joined hands. Their names are Watts and Hayson, aged between 16 and 17, but the body of the other has not been identified. Each had the appearance of having been respectable servants.

Who wrote the most—Dickens, Warren or Bulwer? Warren wrote "Now and Then," Bulwer wrote "Night and Morning," Dickens wrote "All the Year Round."
The daily ornaments of Bea Griffith, a Texas desperado, were three six-shooters and a double-barrelled shot gun. Through the energy of a sheriff he now ornaments a rustic graveyard.
Cultivating out soil one inch deeper would add $50,000,000 to the wealth of the country.

ON CATCHING COLD.—Catching cold is a common phrase for an attack of catarrh, but it is a very innocuous one. One year I suffered so severely from a series of colds, that my attention was drawn specially to them. I was then a lecturer in medicine, and nearly every night from five o'clock to six during the winter had to leave out from a warm room to go through all weathers, lecture for an hour in a theatre heated by a stove and lighted by gas, and again return to his snugger at home. When I felt a fresh cold beginning, I tried in vain to account for it, until I accidentally saw in Copeland's dictionary that the most fertile cause of a cold was coming from a moist cold air to a hot dry room. This at once explained to me the reason of my frequent suffering, for I had invariably gone into my hot room straight from the cold. I, of course, soon changed my habit. I dawdled in the hall while taking off my great coat, perambulated the rooms which had no fire in them, went up and down stairs, and the like, ere I went into my study, whose temperature was also reduced. Since then I agree with a friend who says, "that a cold comes from catching hot!" and I am disposed to think that there is a strong analogy between a chilllain on a child's face and cold in a person's nose, throat, and lungs.—Med. Mirror.

Working the Soil.
You cannot work the soil too much; it is almost always worked too little. We have, for a few years, experimented in this particular. The effect where the soil is a fair one, is almost miraculous. People do not experiment, and therefore do not know; scarcely ever is the thing thoroughly tried. Who works the soil once a week, or once in two weeks, to say nothing of daily stirring? Very few indeed can answer in the affirmative.
Now, there is such a thing as soil being so poor as that stirring, however much it is done will not benefit it, or but little. This is the case with soil composed nearly of all sand. But where there is a good proportion of clay, with other constituents to make, as we have said, a fair medium soil, great benefit will be derived by turning it up-side-down often. A rich soil will also be fearably affected—but especially a soil having clay pretty largely, as clay is a conductor. And the advantage which results from stirring the soil is based on this—it is by throwing the ground to the air, which imparts its fertility to it—the ground, particularly the clay, attracting it. The more it is stirred, the more porous it will become; and the more new and un-aired ground will be brought up and in contact to receive the benefit. Hence an almost constant stirring is an almost constant feeding. Besides, the texture of the soil is improved. Water, and long continued rains, are of no consequence. They pass through it at once, leaving it comparatively dry, and leaving also the ammonia and carbon and other gases of the atmosphere, which the soil abstracts from the water. A rain therefore is not harmful as it generally is when long continued. The ground does not become soiled and packed, to crack when the sun strikes it, which is so common and such a detriment. The cracking is a sure sign that the soil is not in proper condition. A properly worked soil is springy, lively and mellow—just the soil to hold moisture through a drouth, which is such an affliction in our hot summers. But it lies there drying the sun, drying the rain, and the frost. It is its protector. And it will keep you cannot readily spoil it. It will bear sootier plowing after a rain, and sootier getting in. And when it comes to the working, it will stand work itself. Compare it with other soils in this respect.

But its fertility is after all its greatest point. That is its greatest improvement. "Tilling" the soil, therefore, is an expressive word. It means work, it means law, and it means security against mishap, such as drought, rain, or it means improvement without manure proper—not that it without manure; it but better prepares the soil to receive and appropriate it. It means a garden. Were each man's farm like his garden, there would be the greatest improvement the world ever knew; less so in the richest soils of the West.
Even our gardens can be greatly improved in this respect. The soil wants to be worked up from beneath. That is, the soil in most cases wants to be fed by the air and changed. Summer fallows are an improvement on this principle, and this alone. Turn plowing is better than once, and three times better than twice; and if thoroughly cultivated between each plowing all the better.
Summer fallows are an improvement on this principle, and this alone. Turn plowing is better than once, and three times better than twice; and if thoroughly cultivated between each plowing all the better.
And it is this working of the soil that kills weeds; it cleans the ground and prepares it better than anything for sowing. There is no having of such a soil, but to turn it. The frost but improves it. It cannot hurt it. And the deeper the soil is worked, stirred, in this way, gradually, the better. This gives you the under benefit which is otherwise lost.

Less land and thoroughly worked, is the doctrine of the day. And it has been the doctrine from time immemorial. But is any good when applied to land thoroughly worked, manured and taken care of. This is a necessary necessity.—Rural World.

A curious question is pending in Saalburg, Pennsylvania. Mr. C. Pusey Thorne, son of J. Williams Thorne, came on the day of the October election this year. The Democrats, anxious to exclude every Republican ballot, challenged his vote upon the ground that he was not born until 7 o'clock in the evening, at which time the law provided that the polls should close. It was argued on behalf of the applicant that the law recognized no fractions of days, and that he was entitled to vote, even though he had not been born until 11 o'clock and 59 minutes p. m. on said day. The Democratic election officers, however, contended that he must be between the age of 21 and 22 years, and that he would not have reached that period until the hour of 7 had passed. In reply to this Mr. Thorne, Sr., asked the officers if they recognized 365 days and six hours as a year, and they replied that they did. He then showed that six leap years had occurred in the lifetime of his son; and mathematically demonstrated that he had lived 21 times 365 and six hours, and had 18 hours to spare. This rather dumfounded the Democratic officers, but they still declined to accept the ballot. At three minutes before seven o'clock the Republican judge took the ballot and deposited it in the box.

I was then a lecturer in medicine, and nearly every night from five o'clock to six during the winter had to leave out from a warm room to go through all weathers, lecture for an hour in a theatre heated by a stove and lighted by gas, and again return to his snugger at home. When I felt a fresh cold beginning, I tried in vain to account for it, until I accidentally saw in Copeland's dictionary that the most fertile cause of a cold was coming from a moist cold air to a hot dry room. This at once explained to me the reason of my frequent suffering, for I had invariably gone into my hot room straight from the cold. I, of course, soon changed my habit. I dawdled in the hall while taking off my great coat, perambulated the rooms which had no fire in them, went up and down stairs, and the like, ere I went into my study, whose temperature was also reduced. Since then I agree with a friend who says, "that a cold comes from catching hot!" and I am disposed to think that there is a strong analogy between a chilllain on a child's face and cold in a person's nose, throat, and lungs.—Med. Mirror.

ON CATCHING COLD.—Catching cold is a common phrase for an attack of catarrh, but it is a very innocuous one. One year I suffered so severely from a series of colds, that my attention was drawn specially to them. I was then a lecturer in medicine, and nearly every night from five o'clock to six during the winter had to leave out from a warm room to go through all weathers, lecture for an hour in a theatre heated by a stove and lighted by gas, and again return to his snugger at home. When I felt a fresh cold beginning, I tried in vain to account for it, until I accidentally saw in Copeland's dictionary that the most fertile cause of a cold was coming from a moist cold air to a hot dry room. AGENTS FOR THE REGISTER:

THE VICTORIES OF PEACE.

Every part of the country seems alive to the importance of Railroads. You cannot visit a burg but all the talk is "Railroad." We begin to think the American coast-of-arms should be a steam engine. There is a superabundant amount of energy in the American people, and it must expend itself in some way. Since the rebellion has been crushed, our elastic people have gone to battling with Nature, and the great Union Pacific Railroad will be the first great triumph that will electrify the people as Vicksburg and Gettysburg electrified them during the War. Arouse from your apathy, all ye citizens that have your own interest and the interest of your country at stake. Indulge not the delusion that great public improvements will come like the great blessings of Nature whether you labor for them or not. Indomitable energy is the watchword of success. It will bridge the Columbia as it has bridged the St. Lawrence. It will fill howling wastes with smiling farms; passes, that hear no sound save the whistling of the birds, will hear the shrill whistle of the engine; and the waterfalls that listen to no noise save the continuous roar of their own waters, will hear the hum of multiplied machinery. Riches will flow in like the golden waters of Paeolus. Vancouver is doubly blessed, if her people would only arouse to the fact. She is like a two-headed person. A Railroad, on the one hand, will make her rich, the River, on the other. Let her not be like a three-headed person, a little behind hand, but rather let her improve all her opportunities, and she will be (four) fore handed.

We have coal a short distance from here, of great amount. We don't blow like many papers without cause. We wait till we know whereof we speak. We shall speak of this when the time comes, and it will tell, for the circulation of our paper grows every day, and excites the envy of the numerous little starvelings that, like stub-tailed cur, whine and snap on the verge of starvation. Grow on, your little cayotes! Sing your own do-a-h song, as you chew off your attenuated narratives. Soon you will be buried with the "East Coast." Vancouver has a live paper, and will soon have other live enterprises; her sons are not dead, and her daughters shall yet be clothed in fine linen and fare triumphantly every day. "She is beautiful for situation, the joy of the whole" coast.

Through the politeness of Hon. S. W. Brown, we are permitted to make the following extract from a private letter respecting the late robbery at Millwaukie.

Mr. Brown, Sir:—This night one week ago my wife was gone to Oregon City. Willie and I were sleeping in our bed-room. At half past two o'clock I awoke, and lighting the candle, found there had been burglars in my house, and taken from my pocket $95 in coin, my watch from a stand at the head of my bed, Willie's suspenders from his pants, five leaves of brand, four glasses of jelly, one plate of baked pears, one pan of stewed turnips and one pan of milk, and left the well-house, kitchen and parlor doors open, all of which I locked when going to bed. So you see I am minus about $150.00 and I never heard the least disturbance. Whether they had given me Chloroform or not I cannot say, but I must have been very sound asleep, I think unusually so. There were the tracks of two men. One wore boots 12 inches long with heel plates two and three fourths inches long and the same wide, the other a fine No. 7 boot. The robbers also went into three other houses in town; at one they got six loaves of bread, at another two bottles Huxtable Bitters, at the other there was no harm done. Truly Yours, FATH LINDING.

ATTEMPTED BURGLARY.—About 1 o'clock on the morning of the 16th some burglars attempted to break into the store of Michael Wintler on Main street. They were at work on the door, and had a lantern which they extinguished and precipitately fled when seen. Our friend Mike is on the watch, and I will give them without doubt, a dose of cold lead if they persist in entering his rich storehouse of goods and general merchandise.

Enoch's Reply.

Capt. Enoch G. Adams, J. M. believes that the world moves, so he uses the editorial; prints large doses of "my" doings at St. Helens in place of local intelligence gives Portland advertisements in every other column, and keeps over those of Vancouver until next week; is building the Puget Sound railroad, but expects the main terminus to be at his home at St. Helens. He is a curious compound of nervousness, self-conceit and the owner of a home at St. Helens. It may be that he is trying to edit a paper for the benefit of the people of Clark county, but we should judge he was better earning the office of switch-tender on the railroad at St. Helens.

The above is from the Lumpy Transcript, a lame affair published by a Gale of rotten wind and a Gunn of small caliber. Blow on, ye obnoxious gales! fire all your pop-guns, Transcript, fire! We bare our bosom to the "higeous" foe. We are a Captain, are we, Mr. Transcript? Well, we were commissioned Captain by order of President Lincoln, so we don't feel very much disgraced about that; and as for our A. M., we received that from Yale College, and we don't feel very much disgraced at that, either. Why don't you get a title, for instance, A. D., (A. Dampfool), it would fit you well. It would be just the thing. Everyone knows you deserve the title. Cruel not to give you your deserts. Captain Adams knows the world circulates, but unfortunately the Lumpy Transcript does not circulate, that's what's the matter. Captain Adams uses "I" in an introductory remark to an editorial and the Lumpy Transcript doesn't know the difference between an introduction and the real subject matter. Captain Adams has not been a Copper-Johnson man, and sent all his "I's" to Andy to print his speeches, when he swung round the circle, like the Transcript and Standard. He has his "I's" yet, and didn't go it blind, like the Gale that blew up himself and the Gunn that shot his own head off. We don't print what every one has for dinner for local intelligence, as the Transcript does, crying "unclean," and filling in the list, whenever a Copper-Johnsonite wags his narrative. We don't belong to the family of Jenkinases like Gunn & Gale. Here is that? We give Portland advertisements in every column, because we have them. Why don't the Lumpy Transcript get some, too? Gunn hunted advertisements some weeks since, but returned an unladen Gunn to Olympia. We acknowledge we keep over those of Vancouver till next week, (how we don't care) we have kept them over ever since we started. But we don't suffer for advertisements, because everyone is anxious to advertise in a paper of such large circulation as ours. Don't wonder you are jealous, poor little starveling! The reason the Lumpy Transcript has so much room is because it is so empty. Why don't you exchange your old flint-lock for a new set of brains, Mr. Gunn? Why you can't raise the wind when a Gale is blowing all the time. We are "building a railroad to Puget Sound." You mistake; we are a steam-engine, and gunpowder are the sleepers we are running on. You are very anxious to find a terminus and are noseing for it everywhere. We think you can find one in Olympia, without going to St. Helens. Here is that? The Editors of the Lumpy Transcript are very curious compounds of stupidity, inefficiency and owners of two long pairs of ears at Olympia. We are "trying to edit a paper," and make out, too. At least we have brought up a paper circulating 300 at the outside 400 in eight issues. Clark county people patronize a live paper. More than twice the number are now taken here that there used to be. Vancouver is no longer the tail of the Olympia kite. We don't know how we earned the office of switch-tender in St. Helens, unless it was when we taught school in Seppousoo. We used the switch some then, but we used it on children then, and not on jackasses, as we are using it now on the Editors of the Lumpy Transcript. We can make you smart one way, but even God Almighty failed in that. Good-bye, Lumpy Transcript.

The Port Townsend Message asks "Did any one ever hear of anything original emanating from Captain Enoch G. Adams." Why yes; don't you remember that "gal with the valter bar" that the Captain went about—was original, certainly.—Commercial.

The Sausage man should attend to his Sausage stuffing, or he may be like an empty Lyma. He is more fool than beast, being not only green-backed but green-headed, like an inferior kind of duck. As his name is Petty grove, some have called him a green-cupping with great appropriateness. The Commercial had better get some "yaller boys" for his pockets. He has now more hair than brains, and would be called hair-brained if the hair grew on brains instead of on a blackhead. He may like to board merchantmen, but merchantmen don't like to board him.

IMPORTANT LOCAL INTELLIGENCE!—In the Olympia Transcript.—"Nice cow, don't she?" J. M. Fletcher's old red cow has returned to this city from Lake river. Citizens should keep their front gates securely fastened as she has a voracious appetite.

CLARKE COUNTY AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.—A meeting of the Board of Managers of the above society will be held at Brand's Hall, on Monday, 23rd inst., at 1 o'clock, p. m. Officers of the Board are earnestly requested to attend, as important business will be transacted. J. JULIUS SCHEIDT, Sec'y.

The Idaho Statesman fills his great fault with the Commercial for "snipping" its articles without due credit. Mr. Statesman, what is more natural than for a Bull to look?

Grant's motto is "Let us have Peace." The cry of the office seekers is "Grant us a Piece."

Some persons in town want a neutral paper. They had better get Jeff. Davis for Editor. He was neutral when captured.

P. H. FOX, Civil & Military Tailor,

Row.—A small row occurred last night at the Star-Boulevard saloon, in which Angelina Kennard, alias the "bell mare," was again figured herself into notoriety before her Honor. It appears that an individual calling himself John Dougherty, went, at a late hour last night, to the afore-said saloon, where a woman was stopping, who purports to be his wife, with a small child. Mr. D. went in and took the child from its mother's arms, and started Mrs. Kennard, who was in the room at the time, and who went "arter him" in good earnest. Mr. K. holding him by the wrists, and Mrs. K. applying, in a most unbecoming manner, an effective weapon of some kind to his head. The consequences were, he had a "bloody head" put on him in a very short space of time. During the melee the child was taken away from him by its mother, and borne away from the scene of combat. The police arriving opportunely the proceedings were brought to a summary close; the assaulted taken care of and the assauters locked up to await trial, which came off this afternoon at 1 o'clock. No possible reason can be assigned for this unprovoked assault, unless it be steamed whiskey, and a desire to see names in the papers.—Commercial.

PORTLAND ADS.—We would call attention to our new Ad. from Portland. First, the Ad. of Stitzel & Upton. It was kept out for a long time for want of material. Here is an excellent chance for persons to secure property cheap. Now is the time to buy. Property is bound to rise as soon as the Railroad to the States is completed. Mr. Upton, son of Judge Upton, is a gentleman of much legal ability. Mr. Stitzel was lately Sheriff of Multnomah county. He is a man of great energy and tact, and thoroughly knows his business. East & Cahlan have in a new Ad. They are offering a splendid assortment of boots and shoes for sale. Call and see their supplies. We have this week an Ad. from the What Cheer House, one of the best houses in Portland. The host gives every attention to travelers, the waiters are on hand, the food is of prime quality, and every one feels at home. No curt replies, but the utmost politeness and attention: If any article is left in your room when you leave, it is taken care of till you call for it. Don't forget the What Cheer House and its liberal hosts!

RAILROAD MEETING.—A Railroad meeting will be held at the Court House, on to-morrow (Saturday) afternoon, at 1 o'clock. The meeting will be addressed by Rev. H. K. Hines, who is on his way to Washington, on business connected with Railroads in Washington Territory. Mr. H. is an able and eloquent speaker, and will impart much valuable information in relation to a subject in which all our citizens are interested. There will be a full and general attendance.—W. W. Statesman, 11th inst.

MR. HINES, we understand, will be in Washington a week from to-day. CLARKE COUNTY EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION.—The regular meeting of this association will be held on Saturday, 19th inst., at 1 p. m., at the District School house. Rev. Clark Smith will read an essay on "Physical Geography" which will be followed by a general discussion on the "Teaching of Arithmetic." Mr. L. T. Mauley opening the argument. The public are respectfully invited to attend. J. SEISTR, Sec'y.

FIREMEN'S ELECTIONS.—The following gentlemen were elected officers of Vancouver Fire Engine Company No. 1, at the annual election held on Monday evening last: Foreman, Michael Wintler; 1st Assistant, Jacob Isaacs; 2d Assistant, Robert Glover; John H. Troup, President; P. O'Kane, Sec'y; W. H. Smith, Treasurer. Gen. Allen No. 3 elected James Davidson Foreman; G. B. Ernest 1st Assistant; H. H. Leonard 2d Assistant; A. C. Smith, Sec'y; John M. Mullen Treasurer. Vigilance H. & L. No. 1 elected Gay Hayden, Foreman; M. A. Battersby, 1st Assistant; John Alexander, 2d Assistant; Wm. Rank, President; B. M. Washburn Sec'y; Joseph Wooden Treasurer.

The new editor of the Register uses the "first person singular" in his editorials which makes them sound very singularly.—Standard. Mr. Murphy, editor of the Standard, is a small potato without eyes (U.S.). "O theaters they grow small. Our lines, our lines they grow small. 'O theaters they grow small. 'O theaters they grow small. And they rate them tops and all. 'O theaters, 'O theaters."

Who is a coward, the one that fought in the teeth of the R-bellion on such fields as Williamsburg and Gettysburg, or the man that could skulk away to this Western coast and go on a pirate ship to prey on unarmed merchantmen? How are you, Rebel Emisary? The jacket fits, does it?

Mr. Pen-guawer says he has seen ladies weeping when peeling onions; we have seen them weeping when reading the Herald. It is enough to make an angel weep. Hyem-crow.—It seems to be the aim of many people to pretend to be what they are not. Like Russian hyems, which, seen from the street, seem to be many stories high, when you penetrate them, they are found to be but one story, and very low at that.

Mr. T. R. Brooks is now surveying up the Cowitz river. Mr. Brooks started his survey from Vancouver to Fourth Plain, thence to Paterson's Mill, then to the South Fork of Lewis river, down the South Fork to Hon. Columbia Lancaster's place, thence across both Forks of Lewis river to Martin's Bluff, at which point he left off.

A party headed by Messrs. Maxon and Earnworth started on Dec. 9th to find a pass North from Vancouver. As far as they have gone the report is favorable. The Reservoir is nearly completed. Mr. Glover deserves great credit for the way in which it is done. The cisterns are at the corners of Main and Second streets and Main and Eighth streets. The mechanical work on them was done by Mr. Sperry of this city. Vancouver may well be proud of her cisterns and Reservoir.

EASTERN NEWS.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—The grand reunion of many officers took place at the Opera House tonight, which was crowded to its utmost capacity. General Grant, Thomas, Sherman, Schofield and many other distinguished officers occupied the stage. Gen. Thomas presided, making brief remarks on calling the meeting to order. Gen. Sherman delivered the address of welcome. Gen. W. H. Belknap delivered the oration for the army of Tennessee; Gen. Charles Croft for the army of Cumberland; Gen. J. D. Cox for the army of Ohio and Gen. William Gogswell for the army of Georgia. Each army held separate gatherings to-day for social intercourse. Great crowds of people thronged around each distinguished hero. Everything thus far has gone off with great satisfaction.

Washington, Dec. 16.—Mr. Sumner, from the Committee on Foreign Relations, reported a joint resolution tendering sympathy to the people of Spain.

Mr. Cattell, from the Committee on Finance, reported a resolution disapproving and annulling the portion of the President's message relating to the liquidation of the National debt. Mr. McCrary objected to its consideration and resolution was ordered.

Mr. Williams' bill repealing the prohibition against the organization of the militia in the rebel States, was taken up and gave rise to considerable debate. Messrs. Wilson, Gooden and Conkling speaking in favor and Messrs. Brooks, Edmunds and Davis in opposition. The bill was further debated by Messrs. Wilson and Warner in favor, and Messrs. Buckle and Davis in opposition.

Mr. Edmunds' amendment was finally adopted and passed. The bill was then taken up by the Committee on Public Lands, reported back the Senate bill granting lands in California to construct a railroad and telegraph from Vallejo to Honolulu. Ordered printed and recomputed.

After disposing of considerable miscellaneous business, the House went into Committee of the Whole, and proceeded to discuss the tariff bill.

Mr. Brooks took the floor being entitled to it when the bill was up at last session, and proceeded to declare that corrupt measures had been used by the iron and steel men to carry the election of Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Maine. Then Mr. Brooks spoke in the same connection, of Wm. E. Dodge, and the measures by which he obtained Brooks' seat in Congress, when the Speaker stated that he was unable to see the point of Mr. Brooks' remarks. Mr. Brooks then applied himself to the regular discussion of the tariff bill, after which the Committee rose, and immediately Mr. Brooks moved again to go into Committee, which was agreed to, when the House devoted its attention to that portion of the bill relating to the duties on copper. Several amendments were offered, but not disposed of when the House adjourned.

Robbery at Cheyenne. Cheyenne, Dec. 10.—J. T. White, head clerk in the office of the Union Pacific Railroad Co., was robbed of nine thousand dollars last night while on his way from the depot to Wells, Fargo & Co's office. The robbery was perpetrated by three men who held a pistol to White's head and walked him a half a mile out on the prairie, and tied his hands behind him. The robbers were not discovered.

Purchase of Samana Bay. New York, Dec. 16.—The Herald's special states that the Samana Bay purchase has been completed. A company of capitalists has secured from the Dominican Government a perpetual lease of the bay and peninsula, and pay a large sum down to secure the bargain. It is understood that the United States will proceed to establish a naval station there as soon as the Dominicans give possession to the New York lessees.

Fire in Charleston. Charleston, Dec. 16.—The building on the corner of Main and Columbia street known as the Urethm was burned yesterday; loss, $500,000. Five firemen were killed by the falling of a wall. Several others were seriously if not mortally injured.

From Cuba. Havana, Dec. 16.—The government is actively searching for political offenders. Many arrests have been made in this city. Reinforcements have been sent to the interior. The steamer Arctica has arrived with the first detachment of troops from Spain. Two transports are expected to morrow with 2,000 men. Conflicting rumors are in circulation relative to the late military operations in the interior. The Spaniards say that the Government troops suffered defeat, but their assertions are not confirmed by the reports from the interior.

A correspondent of the New York Times at Bogota reports the character of the war as changing. The Spanish troops are disgusted with the lenient policy of the Government in pardoning. The rebels are confidently expecting disturbances in Spain which will prevent the sending of reinforcements. At the same time the planters were more inclined to secure the sugar crop than to take part in the conflict.

The last play we witnessed at Portland was the "From Mask." The troupe have gone to Salem, but will soon return to Portland. We have read much of the French Revolution, and to us and apparently every other one present the play was full of interest. We shall never forget Mr. Bates' excellent acting, a mixture of dignity and grace rarely combined. Mrs. Bates is the personification of elegance, and Miss Cummings of wit and brilliancy. She is like sunshine amid the dark shadows of the piece.

There will be an account of our trip to Astoria, Oregon, next week. We shall give notes wherever we travel. Vancouver does not fear to mention other places, for fear they will outstrip her in the race of prosperity. She builds on solid foundations, her own natural resources, and not on the ruins of other pieces.

There is a paper called the "National Deaf and Mute Gazette," published at San Francisco. Terms $1.75 per annum. Oliver Budget, a mute is agent for it, traveling through the country soliciting subscribers. We do not doubt but what it is an excellent paper. Every one should subscribe to help those thus unfortunate.

J. Isaacs & Co. have some nice lead pencils for sale, two for a bit. They don't forget the Editor, not they.

We will publish the Revenue Law concerning Tobacco, Cigars &c. next week.

The S. F. Times has a letter from Kodiak, Oct. 1, 1868, from which we take the following extracts: Under the old regime of the Russians the services of the natives are very poorly rewarded, their pay being a rouble (about 20 cents) per day. At the present time they are paid one dollar, and many are loth to work for that. The Russians, with one or two exceptions, have left the country, a few Creoles, Finns and native Aleutians alone remaining.

Seven or eight miles from Kodiak there are from eight hundred to one thousand acres of low bottom land suitable for cattle grazing purposes, with a creek of pure water running through it, alive with speckled trout and salmon. There are mountains on the northwest and southeast sides, open to the sea, and well covered with red top and blue grass.

Our correspondent reports the failure of the ice business and fisheries at Sitka. He says that no dependence is to be placed in the supply for the Pacific Coast from that region. Nainokook, about forty or fifty miles from Kodiak, is a reliable fishing ground; as high as eight hundred salmon are frequently caught in a single haul. The natives subsist mostly on dried fish during the winter season.

The island of Kodiak abounds with creeks and bays, which are accessible at all seasons. There is no security for large vessels at the safest anchorage, owing to the terrible and disastrous effect of the winds that prevail during the winter months. There is no perfect charts of the coast; as a proof of which statement, four or five vessels have struck in entering the harbor within the last season.

Sohns & Schuele have fifteen tons No. 1 Walla Walla flour, in sacks, which they have just received. It is a prime article, but all the housekeepers say. If you don't believe it, buy a sack and try it.

CONGRATULATIONS.—What was singular about the ark? It had an R and no R (Noah) in it at the same time.

Mr. Louis B. Young, the barber, has sold out, we understand. He intends to remove to Peru, South America, he informs us. He leaves hosts of friends.

BE ON YOUR GUARD.—There are several miserable loafers about town, and every one is expecting burglaries like those at East Portland and Milwaukie.

Scrofulous Diseases require a powerful detergent to remove them from the system. Bristol's Sarsaparilla possesses all the necessary properties. Its searching, purifying, and healing powers speedily change the depraved nature of the secretions and the blood; moderate doses of Bristol's Pills, taken at the same time, purge out the foul humors set free by the Sarsaparilla, and a cure is effected.

We call attention to M. Wintler's new Ad. Walk up and settle, and commence the New Year aright.

No MAIL.—There was no mail again on Thursday night. It is reported that the steamer had a canoe, loaded with garden truck, in tow from Saavie's Island to Capt. Adams' Terminal, which detained her.—Olympia Transcript.

The bulk of the load was two very large cabbage heads. (Editors of the Transcript) bound to Olympia.

DIED. On the 10th instant, Willie M., infant son of Hon. J. M. Fletcher, aged ten months. He was buried last Saturday by the side of his mother. His mother and child have passed away to the realm of sanctified spirits.
