The Doomed Crew.
Two weeks ago the crew of the ill-fated bark Lupea, was wrecked.
Says the Advertiser of January 11th: "The sea gives up its dead and the certainty is now fully established that not a soul survived the loss of the Lupea, one week ago last night, off Tillamook head. At low tide last Sunday Mr. Coultrick, the sea-side mail carrier, passed under the cliff of Tillamook Head, and there found the ghastly remains of twelve men, five in one heap and six in another. They were all dressed of clothing, and the probability is that before leaving the vessel they prepared to take the best advantage possible of the last chance of saving their lives. But alas, the place where they came in, was the most forbidding spot along the whole coast, an almost perpendicular cliff of rock, against which, possibly from living to die, they were dashed to death or perished in their futile efforts to get away. The wreck is not in sight from the place where Mr. Coultrick found the bodies. Our informant, Mr. Grimes, says the vessel lay about one mile from the light house, and one mile from the light house. The bodies will be given Christian burial, and a sharp look-out will be kept for the others. The vessel is supposed, from all information which we have, to have carried fourteen men, besides Capt. Ravens and his wife. It is most assuredly a very sorry incident with which to begin the new year, and we hope we may never be called upon to chronicle a parallel of it."

The Thinnest of all Arguments.
The thinnest of all arguments set up for a high tariff is the one which pretends labor is the basis of all value. It is the basis of all value, it is the basis of all value, it is the basis of all value. It is the basis of all value, it is the basis of all value, it is the basis of all value.

Letter From Dayton.
DAYTON, January 13, 1881.
ED. STATESMAN.—As I am detained here for a time "courting," I concluded you might like to know something about the matters that have been taking place, so here goes! The Chinook and rain carried away nearly all the visible snow but the rain turned to snow and froze again, and when the surrounding country became visible this morning, dense fog appeared in a brand new mantle of speltless white, and starched stiff at that. Yesterday the Court was crowded to hear the trial of a rape case. A Mrs. Martin from the Assinipi country charging a man, named Thompson, with the brutal act. She failed, however, to make the jury believe her story. Her evidence yesterday was very much at variance with that given by her before the Justice of the Peace and the jury found a verdict of acquittal without leaving the box. She is quite a young woman, about 20 years of age.

Not Bad to Look At.
When her features are in repose; but when detected in the act of prevarication, under the microscope of examination, the entire expression of her face changes, and the looks like a very much soiled dove. Evidence was introduced to prove that her character for truth and veracity, virtue and chastity were bad before her marriage and since. Unfortunately she was detected in the act of prevarication, under the microscope of examination, the entire expression of her face changes, and the looks like a very much soiled dove.

Unfortunate and Dejected Creature.
Is the daughter of a preacher, living some 15 miles east of Columbia Centre, and doubtless much care was taken in her childhood to show her the "straight and narrow path." How sad to think of her!

Money scarce, roads bad, and reports of high water in Palauk Creek, with much damage to town property at Pomeroy. The Dayton Finance is now in condition to carry timber and lumber from the mountains. The town is crowded, and beds to be had, but very orderly; no drunkards here this week, and no still or hard gambling cases that are so popular in Walla Walla.

Letter From Pendleton.
PENDLETON, Jan. 13, 1881.
The heavy rains of Tuesday night and Wednesday last caused a rapid rise in the Umatilla river, and the town of Pendleton was flooded with water. The river rose four feet in almost an hour, and on Wednesday evening, and pouring over the breaker built to protect the lower end of the town, swept with great fury diagonally across that quarter. It caused great consternation among the citizens living in its course and many of them hurriedly left their homes for safety, a boat having to be used in some instances. Fortunately the rain ceased, stopping the rise of the water, and preventing serious damage. Great inconvenience and seriousness was caused for a time, but no lives were lost. The water broke through the town at several places. The town is flooded at this writing, but the water is receding. It will cost much labor and money to properly secure the town against such a peril in the future, as the water washed a bed out through the break which is enough to draw off a large portion of the current in even comparatively low water.

The Northern Pacific.
The building of the Northern Pacific in the columns of the newspapers is of the past. Real active and practical work has begun in earnest. A call has been issued by the company, through General Sprague, for 200,000,000 tons, 350,000 of which are to be delivered on the Yakima river or its tributaries on or before August 1st, 1881. This shows the company's intention of prosecuting work from this date immediately and with the utmost vigor. Already the company's shops at Astoria are being pushed to their utter capacity, and this, coupled with the fact that the Wisconsin Central recently advanced in Boston from $14 to $20, and it will be placed upon the New York Stock Exchange list about the 1st of January.

It is reported from Hong Kong that the difficulty between China and Russia has been settled, and that China has agreed to pay an indemnity of 20,000,000 taels.—Daily Telegraph. Twenty million taels is, of course, meant, and the indemnity will have the effect of making hair switches the cheapest thing in Russia.

Does anyone feel exhilarated while snow is falling and depressed afterwards? A local snow explains it as follows: While snow is falling and snow gives out oxygen in excess which stimulates. But snow, when on the ground and melting, absorbs oxygen, and the lack thereof in the air causes a depression.

Concerning Diphtheria.
The New York Times publishes an article written by Dr. Kerr, of Pittsburg, concerning the true nature of diphtheria. The pith of the paper is condensed in a Times editorial, from which the following is taken: "Whatever may be the nature of the disease—a floating germ in the air, or even a tendency toward the formation of false membrane in the throat—in its early stage, the disease is purely local. The membrane, which is ordinarily spoken of as a fungus, can be removed by local applications. Dr. Kerr suggests a rather powerful lotion of hydrochloric acid and glycerine. But the moment the membrane forms the patient is threatened with another and far more dangerous malady. While this process in the tonsils is going on a virulent poison is distilled in the neighborhood. The secretion, an insignificant amount of which is enough to impregnate the system, passes from the throat into the stomach, producing acute gastritis and thence into the circulation. The system becomes much depressed; the action of the heart and brain is lowered, and the patient dies, not as is supposed, from the diphtheria, but from the secondary poisoning which it causes. Unfortunately, many persons, when attacked with this disease, resort to the use of the most powerful remedies, and thus hasten their death. The only safe and effective treatment is to keep the patient in bed, and to administer a large quantity of food, and to give a course of the most powerful remedies."

California paid for five deaths in November $10,000. The amount disbursed by the Order at large, in September, to heirs of deceased members was $134,834.

The coming reception to the Grand Lodge of this Order in February, promises to be one of the largest ever most extensive fraternal gatherings ever seen in San Francisco. It is to take place in the pavilion, and the program will include addresses, musical and literary selections, a ball and supper. The entire membership of the State will be invited, with their ladies; as Albany and San Francisco consist of about themselves furnish at least 8,000 visitors, the magnitude of the affair can be surmised.

Delaware reports $3,484 61 paid for relief during the year, and 1,082 members, a gain of 90. California Physicians, as usual, is doing well. The regular and social gatherings are attended largely, with profit and pleasure.

The Knights of Prescott, Arizona, recently presented the play "Palmon and Phyllis," to give the public an idea of the teaching of the Order.

Extensive preparations are being made to receive the Grand and Subordinate Lodges of Nevada, who are to make a visit during the session of the Grand Lodge of California the second week in February.

Notes.
Fraternal society men are discussing a proposition to present to the different Supreme Lodges, the effect of which would be, if adopted, to pay only one-quarter or one-half of the amount guaranteed at death, when the estate is unable to make good on the policy.

Every month a large number of names are read in the various orders, as a means of giving to the members a general knowledge of the names of those who are deceased. These parties on receipt of such notice, immediately "pay up," but the law declares that they shall be formally "reinstated" in open meeting. Some time ago several of our members were notified that their names were to be read, and they were notified that their names were to be read.

Fraternity Societies.
Several new Lodges have recently been formed in New South Wales. The original warrant of Alion Lodge, No. 2, G. R. S., (City of Quebec, was presented to the Grand Lodge at its recent session at Montreal. It bears date June 12, A. M. 1732.

Benjamin Dean, the present Grand Master of Knights Templar of the United States, was born in England in 1824. He is a member of the Boston bar, has served as Senator in that State, and also as Representative in Congress.

The Grand Lodge of Massachusetts recently desired to borrow some money, and such was the high degree of credit it enjoyed, that the Third National Bank of Boston discounted its notes for $30,000 at the rate of 4 1/2 percent per annum.

A little over 30,000 Master Workmen in the Order. California paid for five deaths in November $10,000. The amount disbursed by the Order at large, in September, to heirs of deceased members was $134,834.

In October the Supreme Lodge paid out to heirs of members of Lodges under its immediate jurisdiction, $85,000. The coming reception to the Grand Lodge of this Order in February, promises to be one of the largest ever most extensive fraternal gatherings ever seen in San Francisco. It is to take place in the pavilion, and the program will include addresses, musical and literary selections, a ball and supper.
