GOING TO SLEEP.

Come hither, my baby, my darling,
My hily, my wonderful ross!
The white-bosomed flowers in the garden
Begin their soft petals to close;
The bees have gone home from the clover,
The swallows are under the caves,
And down in the orebard the robin
Broods over her nest in the leaves.

Broods over her nest to the Jeaves.

Come, baby, my beauty, my darling!

Your eyes are heavy with sleep;

Your little red mouth has grown silent,
And scarcely its laughter can keep;

Lay off the white robe from your shoulders,
Unclasp the small shoes from your feet—

Oh, daintiest blossom of Eden,
I kiss you, my lity, my sweet.

I kiss you, my, my swell be you feel the cool wind coming softly, And see the young moon in the sky? The clouds sailing over the annest, The bas flitting sileatly by? In you hear how the cattle are lowing Along the green lane by the hill?

And the brook running over the pebbles, With music that never is still?

With music that never is still?

With music that never is still?

Now, hush, while I sing to you, baby,
A song of the angels above,
That come on invisible pinions
To watch o'er the children they love.
So all through your beautiful dreaming,
The voice of your mother shall creep,
Lest hearing the harpings celestial,
Your soul should fly honaeward in sleep.

To the question remetery, the specting her mission to the cemetery, the inscription on the tomb, 'Alfred born, 1840, died 1862,' was the sole answer. Cross-examination elicted the fact that Alfred had been the lady's lover, but had died before she had seen her husband. 'But what tomb,' she inquired in turn, 'were you visiting?' This was a poser. The inscription bore the grave which the gentleman had visited was 'Blanche.' His was precisely a similar case to that of his wife. The two uitted the cemetery, agreeing to come again

With the light of history, and the records of medical literature—with what has been already written, and what is known to be already written, and what is known to be sound medical opinion by the intelligent public of San Francisco, and in face of what they have been orally taught by those in whom they have confidence—we say that it is a sin and a disgrace that the small-por continues its work of devastation amongst us. For more than half a year the number of victims for each month has steadily increased —beginning with twenty in Juce, it reaches one hundred and forty-eight in December More than half a thousand people hurried one hundred and forty-eight in December More than half a thousand people hurried in six months to "Lone Monatain" by a preventible disease! It seems no use trying to teach Supervisors, Health Office, or Health Officers; the people themselves must do the work with the energy and determination that the people of California have ever shown when necessite has compalled them to expand necessity has compelled them to grapple with any great evil, or overcome any great difficulty. When every man goes to his daily work with an inward fear—When death is bringwith an inward fear—When death is bring-ing sorrow to so many hearts, and so many are untimely cut off in their prime—when even commerce is in denger of being para-lyzed by this resistless foe—it is really an in-sult to common sense, a mockery to experi-ence and intelligence, to play experimental farces—to work with feeble weapons—when record upon record, when unquestionable testimony, undeniably proves that the ready antidote is before us.

record upon record, when unquestionable testimony, undeniably proves that the ready antidote is before us.

If we were writing for the public we should tell them what this ready antidoto is—what is the truth that is in us; we should appeal to them in the name of humanity and common sense to take the matter into their own hands, and not rely longer on those who have the power, but apparently not the knowledge to ston the pestilence; we should tell them to stop the pestilence; we should tell them that a thousand tongues have said again and again, and recorded experience has verified the utterance, that universal vaccination and revaccination is the only remedy and the very ready antidote; that prudence has sug gested the necessity of disinfecting the house and clothing where an infected person has been, and that while infected he should be seet, and that while injected he should be kept as isolated as possible. But we write to the profession, and we are sure there is not an intelligent member of it in San Francisco who does not believe that if these measures who does not believe that if these measures were put effectually in force, that the disease would not only be "stamped out," but rooted out in less than a mouth.

Well, why has it not been?

We do not wish to be personal in our fault-finding; but our authorities—the Supervisors, the Health Office, and the Health Officers—have not met the foe with the proper weapon; they have gone out with a "sling and a stone," but their hands are not the hands of David—and the sling and the stone and a stone," but their hands are not the hands of David—and the sling and the stone is a teeble weapon in unanointed hands. Speeches and letters, showing plausible ignorance, self-sufficiency, and half-educated ignorance, self-sinclency, and native dealers conceit—pumping water into sewers, and sending round a catt evolving chlorine gas—are far punier weapons than a tiny langet with a drop of vaccine lymph. This is the weapon which is sure to kill the small pox.

With shame we confess that this long con tinuance of the small-pox is an infumous disgrace to us. We do not mean to the medical profession, for as a body they have no power; we believe each individual has done his duty; the blame, the sin, lies with the authorities we have mentioned, because they have not long ago enforced the power a State ordinance has already given them, of ap-pointing physicians for house to house vacci-nation, and compelling each and every one to be vaccinated who has not been so during the present epidemic. It is a work of supererogation to say any It is a work of supererogation to say anything to an informed mind as to the paramount importance and urgent necessity of such a measure as this. Some we know may deny, may doubt. In answer to those, all we have to say is, some people deny the existence of an Almighty, and some doubt a future existence.—Cal. Medical Gazette.

SATURDAY NIGHT.—Somebody gets off the following beautiful paragraph on the closing night of the week. There is a volume of truth in it: "Saturday night makes the people human, sets their hearts to beating softly, as they used to do before the world turned them into war drums and jarred them to reason with tuttors. The ledger. world turned them into war drams and jarred them to pieces with tattoos. The ledger closes with a clash; the iron door vaults come to with a bang; up go the sbutters with a will; click goes the key in the lock. It is Saturday night, and business breathes free sagin. Homeward ho! The door that has been ajar all week gently closes behind has been ajar ail week geurly closes outlind him; the world is shut out. Shut out? Shut in, then rather. Here are his treas-ures after all and not in the vault, and not in the book—save the old family Bible—and not in the bank. May be you are a backelor, not in the bank. May be you are a bacelor, frosty and forty. Then poor fellow! Saturday night is nothing to you just as you are nothing to anybody. Get a wife, blue eyed or black eyed, but above all true eyed; get a little home, no matter how little, and a little sofa, just to hold two or two and a half, and then get the two or two and a half in it of a Saturday night and then get this paragraph. Saturday night, and then read this paragraph by the light of courage.

THE ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH IN IRE THE ROMAN CATHOLIC GRUEGE IN IRELAND.—The Roman Catholic hierarchy consists of four Archbishops, whose sees are in Armagh, Dublin, Cashel, and Tuam, and twenty-four Bishops. The Bishops are nominated by the Pope, generally out of a list of names submitted to him by the Bishops of the Province and the clergy of the vacant diocese. In the case of expected incapacity from age or infirmity, the Bishop names a coadintor, who is usually confirmed by the from age or infirmity, the Bishop names a coadjutor, who is usually confirmed by the Pops. Every diocese has a Dean and Archdeacon, the former appointed by the Cardinal Protector at Rome, the latter by the Bishops; but these dignities are without jurisdiction or emolument. The whole of the clergy are supported solely by the voluntary contributions of their flocks. The Episcopal emoluments arise from the parish in which the Bishop officiates, from marriage licenses, and from the cathedraticum, an annual sum varying from £2 to £10, paid by each incumbent in the diocese. The 2,425 civil parishes in Ireland are amalgame ated into 1,070 ecclesiastical parishes or 2,425 civil parishes in Ireand are amaginariated into 1,070 ecclesiastical parishes or unions, being 440 livings less than in the Established Church. The parochial elergy are nominated exclusively by the Bishop. Number of priests in Ireland in 1854, was 2,291, of whom 1,222 were educated at Maynooth College. Their incomes arise from Taylouth Conege. Then moved and deaths, on Easter and Christmas dues, and from incidental voluntary contributions, either in money or labor. Candidates for clerical ordination, formerly under the necessity of obtaining their education in continental colleges, are now educated at home. Birthdays.

How fast the birthdays come! How swiftly each year, silently and almost imperceptibly, glides away, bringing changes so gradual, yet so complete! It is no use to weep for golden opportunities gone, yet we cannot but wonder that we blindly let them slide through our grasp. How gladly you hail the day which makes you nine years old—how true are your kisses, how buoyant your spirits. What pleasure you take in making a "rounder," "knuckling down," and tossing your "jacks." Pare then is your love for her who first taught you to lisp "Our Father," free from guile your heart—unknown to sorrow your brief life.

In short, the more horrible or im-possible the positions the more artistic the so considered the most artistic, and a favorite and charming ahusement of the beau ser is to send some open-mouthed greenhorn's hat flying with the tip of her toes. During all this time the most infernal yelling must be kept up—the true spiciness of this exquisite dance consists in that hermonious adjunct. In the most celebrated dancer in the Latin quarter is a young man, or rather a pair of long legs surmounted by enough body to keep them together and receive their sustemance, who rejoices in the pleasant soubriquet of Sardine, although in no respects does he resemble that 'brief' aquatic animal. Sardine leaps higher than any one else, and all dances around among the women, who pass between his legs with perfect facility, with all the air of the great artist he is generally settemed to be. He is the envy of all the students and the despair of all the women. Now he throws one leg ten feet in the air—no whe leaps clear over the head of some astonished woman, and throwing a graceful somersault, twists himself like a corkscrew back to his partner, whom he salutes by gently waiving his leg over her head. To discuss the sudents' ball is undoubtedly the greatest curiosity in the Latin quarter, if not in all Paris. It was created by the greatest curiosity in the Latin quarter, if not in all Paris. It was created by the greatest curiosity in the Latin quarter, if not in all Paris. It was created by the m. The effect of the peculiar character of the student is here more plainly visible than anywhere else. The utter abandon of their natures, and their entire disregard for, all conventionalities, have here their full sway. The terrible influences which licentions and thought have produced upon the unhappy female portion of the quarter is here presented to view in its most glaring colors.

How to Roast A Pio.—To have it in prime order it should be from four to five weeks old, not older, and should be killed and dressed the day before roasting. Make and dressed the day before roasting. Make and dressed the day before roasti ment is situated in the left of the Boulevard Saint Miohel, and just beyond the garden of the Luxembourg. Three balls are given each week, with sometimes, par extraordinaire, a fourth. On ball nights the entire Boulevard is encumbered with the streams of men and women on their way to indulge in wild reverly and amusement. The gaily, painted facade of the building is illuminated in gorgeous style, and an immense crowd of tes miserables, gather in front to admire the toilets of the gay women as they enter, and feast themselves upon the strains of lively music. In all their poverty and wretched. music. In all their poverty and wretched-ness their hearts are doubtless filled with onvious longings at the sight of the gay and laughing women who flutter in and out like bright-colored butterflies. Little do they bright-colored butterflies. Little do they dream that beneath all the splendid exterior which dazzles their oyes there lies more misery than beneath their own rage and poverty. Entrance to the saloon is gained by a flight of steps, some ten or fifteen feet in depth, conducting to a large and brilliantly illuminated ball-room, half subterraneau, and capable of containing several thousand people. The saloon is entirely roofed over in the winter, but during the summer one half is left uncovered, forming quite a handsome garden, ornamented with fountains, statues, and charming little alcoves, where the enamored swain may enjoy some degree the enamored swain may enjoy some degree of seclusion with his charming fair partner. Upon first entrance, especially during the winter, the smoke is to dense that the eye can distinguish nothing but a confused mass can distinguish nothing but a confused mass of humans beings heaving to and fro like an ocean, and the ears are assailed by a din of human voices which confuses the sense and beggars description. I doubt if such a noise us goes up fram a crowded Bullier ever went up from any other assemblage in the world. The crowd at the Bullier is not like any other, except that it is composed of his man beings; indeed, it can hardly be said to bear that resemblance, since it is a question whether medical students and cocottes are human beings or not. If they are they cer-tainly form a distinct species peculiar to lainly form a distinct species peculiar to Paris, and to the Latin quarter particularly. This horritle noise, if noise is not too musical a word to give to the terrific discord which burst through the smoke like thunder through the clouds, is a compound of all the sounds which the organs of man, by distortion or other means, are capable of producing. Terrific yells of the men—French valls which are not like any other wells and ing. This magnificent and harmonious flow of sustained nusic has for tonique, or fundamental note, the continuous droning buzz of more moderate talk and laughter, from which musical basis the more terrible effects swell from time time in magnificant excession. Modern mothers, from some reason, have from time to time in magnificent crescendos. Wagner might introduce the Prado, one of its nights, to add to the effect of some of his forte movements, and thereby economize the wind of his trombones and the muscle of his grosse calies. It is here, in the midst of this storm of evelry and excitement, that the French student may be seen in all his glory; here he lays aside all restraint and gives his whole soul up to enjoyment. It is here, too that the women, sharing by force of association the utter abandon of the students, lay aside all the magnificent and stately airs from time to time in magnificent crescendos es. Sure enough, upon listening, I heard a shoeless foot carefully ascending the stairs.
I got out of bed hastily, and possensing myself of my revolver, commenced a search for the intruder. By the dim light of the hall lamp he was seen pursuing his way in the direction of the servant's room. I raised my pistol and attempted to take aim, but I was somewhat nervous. I had never shot at was somewhat nervous. I had never shot at was somewhat nervous. I had never shot at a map before, and I then trembled the least bit lest I should miss him. When I thought I had him, I pulled the trigger. One bound and a yell like an Indian—then be rolled upon the floor shouting, 'Murder!' 'Watch!' 'Police!'

Matilda Jano began screaming at the top of her voice, for the dear creature imagined the burglar had killed me.

The wounded man rolled over the floor, apparently in great agony, groaning, and crying, 'Bedad, run here quick, Bridget, I'm dead entirely!' Bridget, dressed in her night-gown, rush of frantically from her room and threw her-self on the body of the burglar, calling him 'Darlint,' 'Mavoureen,' and other pet names, which at once disclosed to me the nature and character of her attachment. I was surprised beyond the power of expression. With my abbreviated night-garment fluttering around my body and the chill air making itself sensibly felt around may bare legs, I stood with open mouth and protruding eyes, contemplating the scene. Unable to restrain my expressive. I descended to know restrain my curiosity, I demanded to know (What the devil all this meant.)

'He's me husband, and va's kilt him !' 'He's me husband, and ys's kilt him !'
'Yis, Sir, I'm kilt, but barring the burting
I forgive ye!'
'Bridget, is this man your husband?'
'Oh, yis, sir, but you've kilt him.'
'Stop your howling he ain't dead; but I want to know what he's doing here at this time of night?"

As the contest waxes hot between the leading aspirants at the center for the radical nomination for the Delegateship, the chops of the lesser ones on the outside water with expectation as they watch with glistening eyes the bone they cannot hope to gnaw until the chief pretenders are disabled and laid helplessly on the field.

The spectacle is particularly interesting to those who understand the stock and the situation, for big politicians, like big dogs, have their followers, whose business it is to sniff their master's greatness and growl approbation. Growling may at times do the business at the head of either pack, but the position of big dog is always hazardous and cannot be maintained without a full set of teeth. The smelling and growling now, would seem to indicate that the bone of nomination lies between Flanders and Garfielde, and so far as the latter is concerned. there is no question that he is the big dog of his gang-in fine, the only aspirant who has succeeded in organizing and whipping in a pack of his own. He is a mastiff, but alas, it is only a mastiff among fiests. The heavy fellows who have an eye to playing big dog themselves at some time, constitute what is known as the Flanders ring. They are for Flanders, simply for the reason that the last one of them believes himself capable of eating him up in case he should be in the way-and against Garfields, because they know he will have no friends except those who smell and growl.

First in importance of the Flanders riog apon the Sound, is S. D. Howe, U. S Assessor. Howe has thus far disclosed better ments for leadership than any other man of his party. Whilst he has been active in directing its movements, he has showed no disposition to jump himself into the king-row crosswise of the board. He has been prudent enough to stir up no jealousies against himself, and by observing the line which he has heretofore followed, will inevitably slaughter the more brilliant but less profound Garfielde. He beat him at Claquato with Denny; at Vancouver, with Flanders; and will beat him agan, next spring, with Dennison, Baker, Anderson Cox, or any other man who will serve the purpose-and that will be the Waterloo of his career. We feel no great interest in the result of these squabbles among the "trooly loil" for the plunder, as we expect to beat them upon principle, let them nominate who they will. The fight for the bones is not confined to Wa hington Territory, it is general, and if there is any truth in the old saying that, "when rogues fall out honest men will get their dues," the democracy may look up with hope.

The State of Washington.

Westward the star of empire takes its way."
We publish in this week's issue the act of the last Legislature, submitting to the voters of Washington Territory a proposition for calling a convention to frame a State Consti tution, and to move in the matter of the formation of a State out of our Territory. We do not propose at present to enter into a discussion of the merits of the proposition. Much may be said on both sides, and our present purpose in publishing the law is to call attention to the matter, as it is a practical question soon to be considered by our ate and passed to a second reading, which people, and of very great interest to us all. The question is not a political one, and any attempt to make it a party issue should be discountenanced on all sides. That we possess many of the elements requisite in the support of a State government may easily be demonstrated, and if upon a full consideration of the subject the advantages of a State gives to the U. S. Marshal and his deputies government would seem to be greater than any objections that may be urged, our people will hail the formation of a new State out of

Letter From Warren's Diggings.

WARREN'S, January 18, 1869.
EDITOR STATESMAN: --We have been favored with excellent weather this winter thus far, no reather sufficiently cold to prevent miners from orking, and the snows have been so light that Hunt, the expressman, still continues to ride through on horseback; in fact the snow has not yet been deep enough to prevent prospecting for quartz; two new leads, the "Pike" and "Res-cue," having been discovered lately. How rich they are I have not been able to learn, but their value is such that an expensive lawrely will value is such that an expensive lawsuit probably result to settle conflicting titles. WINTER SPORTS-GOOD DINNERS.

I notice that you have had pigeon shooting at Walla Walla; the town people here have had chicken shooting. They put chickens into a box which was so contrived that only their heads could be seen. There were some twenty competitors. Mr. Ripson won the first prize for rifle shooting, and Mr. Whitman, for pistol shooting. The citizens have also been trying to excel each other in getting up "big dinners," to which they invited their friends, I suppose, to act as judges to decide whose dinner was the best; the decision was generally made in accordance with the quality of the wine drank. We also have two schools in operation which furnish food for the mind, one a public school for the children, and in the evening a commercial school for adults. QUARTZ LEDGES.

Many of the quartz leads are increasing in idth and richness as the shafts are being sunk deeper. Mr. Hurley, our assayer, assayed of the Martinez ore to day, which yielded at the rate of $1,230 per ton in silver. He also assayed some ore from the Knott lead, which yielded at the rate of $1,400 in gold, but that was choice

Mr. Hurley has also run into bars to-day one bundred and thirty-one ounces of retorted gold, which netted $1,580. This gold came from a vein in Florence, which is known as the "Davis' lead. The proprietors, Messrs. E. K. Patterson & Co., have erected an excellent five-stamp steam mill near their ledge, and which has been so to-cated that the miners run the ore out of the tunnel in cars and dump the contents into a shoot which is arranged on such a grade that the ore slides through it directly into the mill.

SALOONS GLOSED—DULL TIMES.

The saloons are all closed except one, and that sonly kept open on Saturday nights and Sundays. Money is very scarce here in the winter. anys. Money is very scarce nere in the winter, as the placer miners cannot wash out the gold on account of the frost, but they continue stripping off the top dirt and making other necessary premarations for taking out the precious metal as soon as the season will admit of so doing. THE CHINESE QUESTION.

Quite an excitement has been created here ately on the China question-whether Chinamen shall be allowed to work in the mines here or not. The claim owners are nearly all in favor of admitting them into the camp, while the laboring men or those who work for wages are opposed to the admission of Chinese, on the ground that the price of labor would be reduced : while the claim. wners think that they would have an opportu nity of selling some of their poor fyroud to the celestials. I think that the claim owners will be successful, as most of those who work for wages have gone below to winter. The health of the camp is excellent, and everything promises a prosperous season next summer. One Can.

Occupations of our Young Men. There is a strong tendency at the present day, says an exchange, on the part of our boys and young men, to shun honest labor; not so much because they are too indolent to work, but because they look upon it as something low and degrading. And this feeling is too often encouraged by their parents, who say they are not willing to have their sons toil and drudge as they have doze. We would ask that father (if he be a laborer or mechanic) in what way his occupation has injured him. It is patent to every one that the working classes of to-day are not lacking in natural intelligence, and they certainly far excel all others in physical strength; and in carning their bread by the sweat of their brow are they not happier far, than many who call themselves their lards? 'True they have not the facilities for menta culture that others have; yet in these short days of labor, night schools, free libraries, &c., they labor, night schools, free libraries, &c., they have ample opportunity for self-improvement, if so inclined; and herein lies the secret. It is not the labor which degrades man, but man the labor. Instead of improving their minds and talents which God has given them, too many of them spend their ovenings in debauchery, which saps and destroys the healthy vigor of their minds. This is what disgraces labor. The first and most essential element, which a boy should possess, for any occupation in life, is a good Eq. (1sh education, yet it does not necessaily follow that he should be a doctor or a lawyer, There is many a dector, many a hawyer and professor of theology, better fitted to hold a plungth, pash a plane or handle a taxwel and Mr. Price. I wish to know if the five acres for Mr. Price. I wish to know if the five acres for Mr. Price. There is many a doctor, many a lawyer and professor of theology, better fitted to hold a plungh, push a plane or handle a trowel, and vice versa. Education will not produce brains, and men often make themselves mis erable for life by cho-sing a profession for which Nature has utterly unfitted them Let our boys and young men endeavor to discern what pursuit is most congenial to their minds, and in which they are most likely to excel. If your choice be for a trade, let no false pride deter you from it; no one whose good opinion is worth having ever despises honest labor. Our greatest men are those who have commenced life by honest labor. Andrew Johnson is not ashamed of having been a journeyman tailor, nor General saving been a journeyman tailor, nor General Grant of having been a tanner. And in the full sense of the word, there is not a more independent unan anywhere than an honest and expert American mechanic. Many, very many of our young men, unable to fit them selves for a profession, imagine the next most respectable calling is to be a book keeper or respectable calling is to be a book keeper or a clerk in a store; employed from 12 to 16 hours a day on starving salaries. But thea they are what is termed "genteel" young men, and that is their chief renumeration. We have heard many such regret their mistaken choice when too late, and lament that they had not learned some useful trade. In classify these countries as world.

they had not learned some useful trade. In closing these remarks we would say to the young men of our town, whatever may be your occupation or condition in life, honor it and it will not dishonor you.

H. Howard:

GENTLEMEN :- Your letter of 'December 28th, was received this morning. By the enclosed slip from the Globe of this morning, you will see that the Walla Walls and Columbia River Railroad was yesterday reported from the Committee on Territories, and would have passed but for the point raised by Mr. Holman, of Indiana, call ing for the reading of the engrossed bill. This sent the bill over, as no bills reported from any of the committees are ever engrossed until after their passage. Although any member has the right to call for the reading of the "engrossed bill," yet I believe this has been done but once before in the Fortieth Congress. It is a trick that very few members of Congress will ever resort to to delay any measure they cannot defeat. The bill will come up again on Monday, on a motion to reconsider, when it will pass.

The present form of the bill is not as I wish it was, but it is the best that could be obtained, and I even had to submit to the proviso of Mr.
Delano, of Ohio, in order to get this much. I do not regard the provision of the bill which requires three fourths of the votes cast at the special election to be in favor of allowing the County Commissioners to subscribe to the stock, as an objection, yet I was obliged to consent to this in order to get the Committee to report it.

I had decided before yours was received to keep this bill separate and distinct from all oth-ers, and not to endanger its passage by allowing any thing, or any other railroad project to be attached to it. I have taken the liberty to send a copy of this letter to the Walla Walla States.

Mr. Ashiey, of Osio. It is very certain. The only point in the bill is whether the House is willing to authorize the commissioners of Walla Walla county, on a vote of three lourths of its people, to subscribe to a road to let them out to the navigable waters of the Columbia.

Mr. Weiker. I desire to ask my colleague why it is necessary that we should pass an act of Congress to authorize a subscription to the capital stock of this road on behalf of this county in Washington Territory? Has not the territorial Legislature power to confer this right upon the county?

HEALTHY.—At this date there is not a single case of contagious disease within the city limits. With the death of Farquar the small pox disappeared, and as a consequence our country friends need no longer hesitate about coming into town. The community never was more free from disease, contagious or otherwise.

A Last Resour .- Our radical friends failing to find an organ grinder to suit their purposes, have as a last resort taken up with " Pie Biter," illustrious "P. We desire to direct the attention of our readers to the advertisement of the American Watch Company, in another column. This Company is the pioneer of Watch making in the United States, and has grown in the short space of affects years to the largest Watch manufacturing establishment in the word. This fact, in connection with another important fact, that their Watches are now selling at less prices in greenlacks than the gold prices asked before the war—illustrates the great success of the Company.

PUBLIC LECTURES .- The course of lectures for on Friday next, the 19th inst., when Mr. W. H. Newell will lecture upon the subject of "Popular Education." Judge Mix will follow on Friday, the 26th, and has taken for his subject "Railroads," just at this time a most interesting theme, and one of which Judge M. is capable of handling ably and eloquenty.

Sudden Death .- A men named Briggs, who was formerly a soldier, and is known to very many of our citizens, died very suddenly on Sunday last. He had been drinking very hard for some time, and at about 10 o'clock on Sunday morning, started to go into the yard back of Mitchell's barber shop. He had gone but a few stens when he fell and died almost instantly. Since his discharge from the army, he has been engaged in peddling vegetables, and outside of trinking to excess, was regarded as an honest, rell-meaning man. Deceased was a native of ranston, R. Cotton is King. The Memphis Appeal, in a recent review of the condition of the planters of the South, concludes that they are better off than ever before, and that their prospects could not well be improved. The largest cotton crop ever raised was in 1859-60, which was about 5,000,000 bales, realizing, at $50 a bale, $250,000,000. This year the-crop will be about 2,000,000 bales; it is worth $100 a bale, and in the agregate $200,000,000 or only one fifth less than the group 1859-60. bale, and in the agregate $200,000,000 or only one fifth less than the crop of 1859-60. Now, to the profits of this year are to be added some important items. Their expenditures do not include interest on the money which the laborer, as a slave, was worth; nor taxes on the same; nor for the idle, the sick, the young, or the aged. More than this, their money has not been sent North for the purchase of provisions, for whatever food their people require has been produced from their own soil in the greatest abundance. Hence, it is asserted that the present cotton crop will bring in as much money as ever crop will bring in as much money as ever was received by the South from this source was received by the South from this source in her palmiest days, though it is admitted that there are some temporary drawbacks growing out of the "late unpleasantness." Another condition is equally favorable: For-merly the commission merchant in a measure held a mortgage on all the planter's posses-sions, for he made advances on a crop before it was grown, and this continued from year to year, without a prospect of deliverance. But now, through the instrumentality of the Bankrupt law, a modern jubilee has dawned, Bankript law, a modern jubice has dawned, making one man as good as another. Thus, the South has a new and a fair start; and with the certainty of furnishing to the markets of the world $200,000,000 worth of cotton year after year, a large portion of which will be retained among themselves by reason of their newly-established thrift and the enlargement of the list of farm products, they are evidently entering upon a course of unexampled prosperity. This is said of the staple crop of cotton alone; but there will staple crop of cotton atone; but there will be large receipts from sugar, rice, and tobac-co, and it is declared that of themselves they will be able, "in filteen years, to pay off the whole of the national debt." But if they are wise enough to take care of themselves, this $200,000,000 coming in every year will be invested in railroads and other improvements, which will induce immigrants, who will add to their population and wealth, and in time give them that which the North possesses— political power. In view of these brilliant prospects, the North is destined to be unde-ceived, and instead of carpet-baggers she will send men of a different class—men who will seek by industry to build up homes in the Sunny South; and, finally, the North and the whole world will unite in confessing that, after all, "Cotton is King."

Whereas an additional article to the treaty of navigation and commerce between the United States of America and the Emperor of Russia, of the 18th of December, 1832, was concluded and signed at Washington, by their respective plesipotentiaries, on the 27th day of January, 1885, the original of which additional article is word for word as follows:

The United States of America and his Majesty the Emperor of all the Russias, deeming it advisable that there should be an additional article to the treaty of commerce between them of the 618 December, 1832, have for this purpose named as their plenipotentiaries, the President of the United States, William H. Seward, Secretary of State, and his Majesty the Emperor of all the Russias, the Privy Councillor, Edward de Stoeckl, accredited as his Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the United States, and the said plenipotentiaries after an examination of their respective full powers, which were found to be in good and due form, have agreed to and signed the following:

ADDITIONAL ARTICE.

The high contracting parties, desiring to secure complete and efficient protection to the manufacturing industry of their respective citizens and subjects, agree that any counterfeiting in one of the two countries of the trade marks affixed in the other on merchandize to show its origin and quality, shall be strictly prohibited and repressed, and shall give ground for an action of damages in favor of the injured party, to be prosecuted in the courts of the country in which the counterfeit shall be proven.

The trade marks in which the citizens or subjects of one of the two countries may wish to secure the right of property in the other, must be lodged exclusively, to wit, the marks of citizens of the United States in the Department of Manufactures and Inland Commerce at St. Petersburg, and the marks of Russian subjects at the Patent Office in Washington.

This additional article shall be terminable by cither party, pursuant to the 12th article of the treaty to which it is an addition. It shall be

This additional article shall be terminable by either party, pursuant to the 12th article of the treaty to which it is an addition. It shall be ratified by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate of the United States, and by his Majesty the Emperor of all the Russias, and the respective ratifications of the same shall be exchanged at St. Petersburg within nine months from the date hereof, or sooner if possible.
