"The Corn, the Oil and the Wine."

When the years of the world could be counted by And the race of mankind just begun, An angel from Heaven came flitting down, Flashed with glory and crowned like the sun; And swiftly she flew from her home upon high, Commissioned by power divine To bring to the world the emblems of love— The corn, and the oil, and the wine.

And the words that she spoke in that long distant Should be cherished in these latter years, (time, When the hills and the prairies are shaking the Of gold from the well-ripened ears; grains That the first was the emblem of Plenty, and none From hunger should suffer or mourn (earth— While a Brother should share of the blessings of The oil, and the wine, and the corn.

And so it was that the angels were his words, As she spoke of the second, and told (Heaven Then one drop rightly given was looked on in As more precious than all of earth's gold!

And the third one should bring to the sufferer's The long stolen breathes of health; (sweat To the fainting give strength; to the sorrowing, joy; To the poor, one sweet whisper of wealth; To the slave, the freedom; to the despairing, hope; The morning point to promise divine, (yet, And no Brother should the charge of the angel fore- Of the corn, and the wine and the oil.

But to leave the messenger sped; but the gifts Will remain to the latest of years. And the true heart that in Mercy and Love, Binds up wounds and dries up the hot tears; That feeds the hungry, that silences the cries For all are as Brothers to Him who gave The corn, and the oil, and the wine.

RATE OF TAXATION.—The rate of taxation, in gold, upon each man, woman and child, for national purposes, is as below:

United States	$11 46
Great Britain	10 32
France	7 91
Belgium	5 50
Prussia	5 43
Austria	5 27
Holland	67

From these figures, supplied by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, it will be seen that the people of the United States are taxed heavier than those of any other nation in existence. But the figures given do not show the full amount of taxation, to which we are subjected. Our taxes, direct and indirect, for State, City, and County purposes, are, in the aggregate, about as much as those for national purposes, so that in the aggregate the people are taxed full $22.50 per head, annually. Divided up among the total population, the national debts, for each individual, are as follows:

United States	$ 74 28
Great Britain	125 00
France	52 00
Belgium	26 00
Prussia	25 00
Austria	12 00
Holland	121 00

The REBEL DEFENSES IN CHARLESTON HARBOR.—Fort Moultrie is a ruin. The walls still stand, but the barracks are gone. It is now occupied by a company of colored troops. Down the beach is Fort Beauregard, with no guns, however, grinning defiance across the bay. Between the two forts stands a group of ragged palmettos, and the beach scarred with many a mark of shell and bullet. Sumter, against whose face had been hurled the iron rain from floating and stationary batteries, still stands, its brick wall facing the sea, and its iron casemates, the spot where a turret iron-clad fortress is to be erected. A walk around the battered wall, a glimpse of the casemates and you have seen all there is of Sumter. Morris Island shows more of the fight than any other portion of the harbor fortifications. A few guns are still pointed toward the city. Haversacks, knapsacks, and camp equipage, are strewn along the beach. Battery Wagner appears to be nothing more than an open earthwork. The fort now consists of two high sand walls running parallel, and is garrisoned by a squad of colored troops. On the extreme end Vinegar Hill has disappeared, and the light house is a thing of the past. Just beyond Lighthouse Point is Folly Island, where General Gilmore planted his masked battery, mounted the "Swamp Angel," which threw shells into the city, and gained a march on his antagonists which was never recovered.

A MODEL TEMPERANCE HOTEL.—In a few years ago, when the Maine liquor law was in full force in Vermont, Judge C. of —, was on a journey. He stopped at a tavern in the town of — for the night. After supper the Judge asked the worthy landlord "for a glass of gin." The landlord said "he was sorry he could not accommodate him. I am obliged by law to keep a temperance house." It was late so the Judge could not go on that night, but told the landlord he would leave early the next morning before breakfast. "Very well; I will carry your valise and show you to your room." The Judge was taken to a nice room; the landlord said, "I hope you will be comfortable." There was an open stove in the room, where Judge C. found a bottle of brandy. He then went to his washstand and opened it; he found a bottle of gin-water, glasses, etc. The Judge after helping himself, went down and told the landlord he would not leave early. After breakfast the next morning Judge C. paid his bill, and said to the landlord, "I have been a great oppressor of temperance houses, and I always refuse to stop at one, but I like the bang of yours, and will call whenever I come this way." The landlord said, "I am sorry I could not let you have some gin last evening; but the law is so strict and my neighbors keep close watch, so I am obliged to keep a temperance house."

Personal Recollections of Distinguished Generals.

Messrs. Harper & Brothers have published a book under the above title, written by Mr. Wm. F. G. Shanks, a newspaper correspondent with the Western armies during the war. It is interesting, as all words are, which are devoted to reminiscences of the war of the rebellion, and, aside from the criticisms of the author, which are not always just, will be found very interesting. A few extracts are appended.

General Sherman may be described as a bundle of nervous string to his greatest tension. No woman was ever more painfully nervous; but there is nothing of the woman's weakness in Sherman's preference. General Sherman knows how to get work out of his subordinates, and may be judged by the following: When the rebels, in evacuating Reaca, succeeded in burning the railroad bridge over the Oostanaula River, he turned to Col. Wright, his engineer in charge of railroads, and asked him how long it would take him to replace that bridge. Col. Wright replied after a short calculation, during which Sherman showed his impatience at the delay in the answer, that he could build it in four days. "Sir," exclaimed the General, hastily, "I give you 48 hours or a position in the front ranks." The bridge was forthcoming at the proper time. It is recorded of Sherman that, on witnessing from the top of a race mill on the Oostanaula River the capture of Fort McAllister by General Hazen's forces, and the successful termination by that capture of the "march to the sea," he exclaimed, imitating the voice of a negro, "Dis chile don't sleep dis night," and hurried off to meet General Foster and complete the junction of the two armies. Great difficulty was found in the operations before Corinth in distinguishing the two Shermans. The soldiers solved the problem by giving each Sherman a nickname. "F. W. Sherman was called 'Port Royal Sherman' in allusion to his services in South Carolina, while W. T. Sherman was known by the somewhat inappropriate title of 'Steady-old-nerves,' in contradistinction to the other, who, as before stated, was most timidly nervous. Mr. Lincoln, with some reflection on this coincidence of names in his mind, called Gen. Grant, on being introduced to Gen. Sherman, if he was W. T. or T. W., and laughed with boyish glee at the "joke on Sherman." During the battle of Bull Run, when Gen. Sherman commanded a brigade, he was approached by a civilian, who, seeing him make some observations without the aid of a field-glass, proffered him the use of his own. Sherman turned to the gentleman and gruffly demanded: "Who are you, sir?" "My name is Owen Lovjoy, and I am a member of Congress."

"What are you doing here? Get out of my line," said my hero. Nothing satisfied Sherman but the immediate retreat of the member of Congress to the rear.

GEN. GEORGE B. THOMAS.
The best idea of Gen. Thomas is obtained by contrasting him with Sherman, and illustrating Sherman as a great strategist, Thomas as a great tactician.

The two appear in every respect in contrast, and possess no similarities. One may be called a nervous man, and the other a man of nerve. Sherman derives his strength from the momentum resulting from his rapidity with which he moves; Thomas moves slowly, but with equal resistless power, and accomplishes his power by sheer strength. Sherman is naturally the dashing leader of light, flying battalions; Thomas the director of heavy massed columns. He may be called heavy ordnance in contradistinction to Sherman's light ordnance. Sherman is dignified by any other. His slow gait, and quiet, dignified style of riding gained him the title of "Old Slow-trot." "Uncle George," and "George B." are often used by the men in facitious hours, and the titles always linger on the tongues of the soldiers like sweet morsels.

A WISE CHILD WHO DID KNOW HIS OWN FATHER.—Considerable amusement was created among some of the railroad boys a few days ago, by a circumstance which occurred on one of the night trains into this city. The affair is supposed to have leaked out through the report of a frequenting car. A lady, with a little boy, aged, perhaps, two years, was on a journey eastward, and had taken a berth in a sleeping car. Toward morning the child awoke, and raising up, saw a man in the berth where he was sleeping, and being alarmed, called to his mother, who was sleeping in the berth next to his, and asked him, "What's the matter with the child? The child took another look at the stranger, and then, in an excited tone, exclaimed: "You ain't my pa!"

"Again the woman told the child to keep still. The man also called the child by name, and asked him if he did not know his pa. The boy replied: "You ain't my pa; he ain't got whiskers. What are you here for?" "Yes, I am your pa."

"No you ain't my pa; is in Joliet; ain't he, ma?" The woman found matters approaching a crisis, and taking hold of the child, compelled it to lay down, and the man got up. The noise had awakened several passengers, who cast many a sidelong, contemptuous glance at the corner where the divided family were situated, but they could do nothing with the train moving at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour. In due time the train arrived, and the passengers, with the exception of the "family" alluded to, changed cars, but the man and woman did not leave until the car had been emptied of its cargo, and they strolled up town to await the departure of the day train, on which there were none of their late fellow-travelers.—Toledo Blade.

The "red republican" element, as it is called in Europe—the "amoralized element," as it should be more justly called—is not very strong in this country, but it makes a good deal of noise—enough to scare a good many well-meaning people over into the ranks of a party with whose reactionary spirit they have no sympathy. When a doubtful fellow cries out, "In the name of liberty let us have chaos," there are quite a number of men in the community who say to themselves, "If we must choose between chaos and the democratic party, we shall have to take the latter."—N. Y. Post.

MOBILE IS CELEBRATED by the fact that an inoffensive young school girl has been murdered in that city by some person, supposed to be a woman, who climbed into the window of her sleeping apartment, dashed her brains out with a smoothing iron, and then stole her clothes.

A Daniel Come to Judgment—Yea, a Daniel.

EX-GOVERNOR Henry W. Allen, of Louisiana, late editor of the Richmond Times, held Pollard, of the Richmond Examiner, up to the execration of his brother Confederates in the following caustic article:
"The civil war in America is ended and the banner of the stars, that waved over Jackson and gleamed upon the track of Stuart's reckless riders, has been put away as men hide the trinkets of a dead, dead love.
"Although the blood of Virginia's best and bravest is not yet dry in the War, yet the grass grown over the premature graves of the many Confederates who fell before Petersburg, yet E. A. Pollard, a pretty writer and a talented editor, in a long newspaper article denounces ex-President Davis, General Lee, Johnston and Beauregard, and says the Southern people disgraced themselves forever when they refused to fight to extermination; that they lacked courage and endurance—statesmanship and intelligence. He criticizes campaigns, retreats and laments the heroic efforts of Joseph E. Johnston and the brave, but unfortunates, who have left to history a glorious name."
Who is E. A. Pollard? He is a Virginian, the editor of the Richmond Examiner, and the author of the "Southern History of the War." We have grief for the first, blushes for the second, and contempt for the last.

During all these years of carnage and blood, this Richmond Examiner was an insatiate field of opposition and hatred. Step by step it broke down the brave, fond heart of Sidney Johnston; again and again it lacerated and gored the sensitive heart of Henry Warrenton; it denounced the heroic efforts of Joseph E. Johnston; and now, when Jefferson Davis is chained amid the waves of his rock-ribbed prison, it tries to stab his reputation and his honor.

Pollard wanted extermination, but he was in New York city, job-sitting with Greeley, and telling his pleasant story, in his pleasant way, of the four years war. He wanted fifty thousand men to fight a million to the death, but he never fell in beside them and proffered to share a common fate. Like Job's war horse, he snuffed the battle from afar! Shoddy is cheap, and humbug is more so; but sincerity, faith, and chivalry, manhood, oh! how pure and unpopular.

Pollard's mother State lies prostrate in the dust, her hearthstones desolate, and her idols shatter'd. All over the land it is not as if he were a candid man, but as if he were a man who had been a partner in all the speculations and town sites. I have worked earnestly and hard for you, and hope to succeed. You do not stand as much chance for the Marshals as you do for the strike by lightning, and Kingsbury is not much better off. This is on the square.

"Truly yours,
J. M. ASHLEY."

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 12th, 1861.
"MY DEAR CASE—I have made some progress to-day about the Surveyorship of Colorado. In order to secure the Indiana delegation, and to operate on Smith, the Secretary of the Interior, I have promised that all the sub-appointments shall be made by me jointly. I give them the first choice. You must write a letter immediately, authorizing me to make that pledge for you. I want you to write immediately to all your friends, and let them write letters endorsing you as a practical civil engineer and otherwise, and direct to the Secretary of the Interior, and to me on envelope. I have written to—and twice on the subject, to get you the endorsement of the Legislature. I have not got it yet. Please write them. Charley feels delicate in pressing your claims, because he expects to be a candidate for the next House, and does not want to run across the track of any one. What you do, do quickly.

"Now, Frank, this is the best office, in my judgment, in the gift of the President, and I would resign to-day if I were sure I could keep it for four years. If you get the Surveyorship, you will be a full partner in all the speculations and town sites. I have worked earnestly and hard for you, and hope to succeed. You do not stand as much chance for the Marshals as you do for the strike by lightning, and Kingsbury is not much better off. This is on the square.

"Truly yours,
J. M. ASHLEY."

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 12th, 1861.
"MY DEAR CASE—Everything hangs on a hair. You must see the telegraph to obtain letters, and have them forwarded to me at once. Let the writer send them to me instead of you. If I get this appointment it will be the first of such importance where the candidates are none. I have promised all the subordinate places under you to get help, and you must write me at once, authorizing me fully, under your own hand, to make this good. I ask for three of the places made, and give the rest to other Territories, and is the best of all the Territories appointments. I want to have an interest with you, if I get the place, in the city and town lot speculations. The Pacific railroad will go through this Territory, and it will be a fortune to us if I can get it. There are some fifty or more applications for it. —has promised to "Write immediately—make the letter plain and unequivocal as to the appointments I have promised, so I can show it, and on a separate piece of paper say what you think of my proposition for city and town lot speculations. If I get this appointment, I will probably be chairman of Committee on Territories, if we can carry out the programme to elect Grew Speaker, and your brother, Charley Case, of Indiana, Clerk, and then I will know all the proposed expenditures in the Territories, and post you in advance. Write one letter for me, and that you will fully authorize me to pledge you to perform the promise I have made that the surveyors and sub-contractors to be employed by you are to be at the joint disposal of two other persons and myself. Please copy and send me the enclosed for this purpose. —Now, one thing more. It is agreed that my brother Eli is to be chief Clerk, and my brother William, who is now in Colorado, shall have such a position as he can fill, he having always been a farmer. The other I shall select carefully, etc., we will fill after the appointment by meeting at Toledo or —, by agreement with —, and others.

"Now, if I get this I want to be a full partner with you in the purchase of all the real estate that you may make. I want to have an interest in that, and if I do get it I hope you will cheerfully go with me. I have drawn up the enclosed agreement, which I wish you would sign and keep, and copy one just like it, sign it, and forward and return it to me by the return mail, and bury along any letters and telegrams from men who can have any influence here.

"In haste, yours truly,
"J. M. ASHLEY."

Was there ever a more disgraceful exhibit than this of the use of political position for private ends? The surveyorship of Colorado, the best gift in the hands of the President, was by Ashley, made a matter of business, and sold and slipped in writing. Its legitimate patronage was farmed out in advance as the price of obtaining it, and an arrangement was entered into by which the chief solicitor and the recipient were to corruptly use its power in city and town lot speculations. Mr. Ashley, "will probably be chairman of the Committee on Territories, and then I will know in advance all the proposed expenditures in the Territories and post you to show — and Mr. Ashley was made chairman of the Committee on Territories, in the last, as well as in the present Congress; Case was appointed Surveyor General of Colorado; "my brother Eli" was made chief clerk, and "my brother William" was given a sub-contractors program, and now it would be interesting to know how much plunder the imbecile Representative Ashley has pocketed from this corrupt and scandalous use of the power of his official position. With these facts before them the people will very naturally conclude that, however censurable the President may be, it is not for such men as Mr. Representative Ashley to frame his indictment, or such men as Simeon Cameron to sit in judgment upon him.—Rockester Phoenix.

Impeacher Ashley.

The accused of the President in the House of Representatives, and the man who figures as his chief prosecutor before the Judiciary Committee of that body, is James M. Ashley, of Toledo, Ohio. Now, aside from any question as to the guilt or innocence of the President, it is of some little interest to the people to know the standing of those who arraign him for official misconduct. This man Ashley is doubtless one of the most unscrupulous knaves in Congress. Our attention was first called to him a few years ago when it appeared in revelations made by the Toledo Blade as to the operations of "Col." J. Graham Kinick, in the quartermaster's department, and directed to the Secretary of the army, and we have kept an eye on him since. Without further introduction we present below a series of letters from Ashley's own pen to "My Dear Case," a radical patriot like himself, who panted for an opportunity, serve his country and put money in his purse, written five years ago:

"WASHINGTON, D. C., March 12th, 1861.

Walla Walla Correspondence.

WALLULA, February 26, 1867. LET US REASON TOGETHER.

EDITOR STATESMAN.—I notice our nearest Oregon Journal, the Columbia Press, in its issue of the 23d inst., seems to write considerably in an article under the head of "contemptible!"

The editor commences by using the following language: "We had occasion some time since to mildly reprove some of our contemporaries whose zeal for their own locality was leading them in reference thereto, beyond the limit of friendly and honorable rivalry."

Now had the green eyed monster of jealousy so far protruded as to close the arena of "friendly and honorable rivalry" in the editor of the Press, he would certainly have read the heading of that article, and by reading he would have found it to commence, "the editor abroad."

The Lapwai Mission.

There seems to exist a conflict between the United States authorities of the Indian Department and the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, in reference to the possession and title of the Lapwai Indian Agency, on the Nez Perce reservation.

The whole matter will be litigated in the ensuing term of the District Court of the First Judicial District of Idaho Territory, to be held at Lewiston.

Under direction and authority of this society, the Rev. H. Spaulding located his mission in 1843 among the Nez Perce, at the present site of the Lapwai agency, which was held by these missionaries till the time of the Whitman massacre, which occurred in 1847, when they were compelled to abandon this as well as the other missionaries in this section of country.

WOOD.—A few loads of wood will be taken at this office in payment for subscription, if delivered soon.

JUDGE McARTHUR, of Umatilla, paid us a visit in the early part of the week, and spoke enthusiastically of the general appearance of our Valley.

HANDSOME CALENDAR.—Mr. H. Parker, agent for the Manhattan Life Insurance Company, furnished us the handsome calendar which graces our sanctum.

RETURNED HOME.—Linkton, W. A. Ball and Geo. Baggs, residents of this city, have returned from San Francisco after a few months absence. They all look well and hearty, and we say "welcome home."

RELIGIOUS REVIVAL.—There has been going on during the past week, at the foot of the mountains, a religious revival, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Reaser. Many converts have been made, and the good work is progressing.

COMMISSIONER'S COURT.—There will be a called session of the County Commissioners' Court during the present month. The regular term will be held in May next. All persons having business should be on hand. The notice in another column furnishes all necessary information in regard to the special meeting.

SNOW.—Night before last, the mountains skirting this Valley were visited by the heaviest snow fall of the season. It is feared that this heavy fall of snow will prove a serious drawback to the pack-trains that are making their way across the mountains. In the Valley there was little or no snow, and at this writing the weather is exceedingly pleasant.

INDIAN AFFAIRS.—Governor Cole and General McKinney, Superintendent of Indian Affairs, of Washington Territory, are soon expected to visit this place. These officials will visit the Lapwai and Colville Indian agencies, on an inspection tour. Wicked persons will suggest that politics has something to do with the movements of these distinguished officials.

DAILY MAILS.—Commencing with the 1st of the month, we shall have a daily mail through to Portland. For the present, the mail for Portland closes at 8 p. m. The daily mail to Salt Lake closes at 8 a. m. There is one thing certain, whatever other causes of complaint we may have, certainly we have no reason to complain of a lack of mail facilities.

SICKNESS.—Notwithstanding our Valley is generally healthy, there has been considerable sickness on the Touchet, during the present winter. Some ten deaths have occurred in that vicinity from Typhoid fever. Warnings must offer inducements to some of the many physicians in our midst. The balance of our Valley is generally healthy, but still the Esculapians are on the qui vive.

CHEESE CAMP.—For several days past a large number of Chinamen have been camped on a small stream, about half a mile below town. These Johns are understood to be the pioneers of a vast army of Chinamen who are about to invade the country. We doubt the policy of introducing the rice eaters to take the place of our own white laborers, and fear that we shall yet regret the influx of these copper faced heathens.

RECORDING.—Mr. A. J. Miner is having a new Court-house erected on the site of the old one, recently destroyed by the freshet, and will be ready for the May term of the District Court. In this connection we suggest that measures be taken to secure a building better adapted to the purpose of a Court House. Is the old building, the Clerk's office, Auditor's office and Sheriff's office were all jammed together in a manner to render it almost impossible to transact business of a private character. This inconvenience was felt by all who had occasion to transact business with the county officials, and although it might be temporarily endured, it should not be continued a moment longer than is necessary. If possible, a two story building should be procured, and arranged so as to have the different offices, including grand and petit jury rooms on the first floor, and the second floor fitted up exclusively for the purpose of a Court room. We believe that a building of this kind can be procured at an expense to the county, very little greater than the present makeshift arrangement, and we suggest that the Commissioners take measures looking to this result.

MASQUERADE BALL.—The masquerade ball, at Helms' Hall, on the evening of the 22d, was well attended, and was the occasion of any amount of enjoyment. Many of the fancy dresses were both rich and costly, and the wearers, in most instances, correctly personated the characters assumed for the occasion. We append a list of those who were in attendance:

Ladies Masked.—Miss Sallie Barber, zouave in blue; Miss Parrish, as St. Valentine; Miss Morrison, red cambric dress, short, trimmed with playing cards, (game); Miss Parrish, Red Riding Hood; Mrs. Chas. Russell, Highland Lassie, (short costume); Mrs. Roberts, morning star; Mrs. Boyle, queen of night; Mrs. Guichard, white bridal dress; Mrs. Terry, Sister of Charity; Mrs. Vetter, Turkish dress; Mrs. Short, newspaper dress, (short costume).

Not Masked.—Miss Sarah Sheets, Smith, Wilson, Mrs. Cain, Johnson, Vent, Winsett, Bonner, Stevens, Smith, Kelling.

Gentlemen Masked.—Mr. Parroult, Courier; Chas. Bessner, Fireman; Tompkins, Domino; Short, Fatman; Colman, Jim Bags; Simmons, Court dress; Tracy, Tailor, Harry Highlander; Dubois, Clown; Johnson, Clown, white dress; Morrison, Zouave, in red; Whitney, Darkie, Reynolds, Tailor.

Not Masked.—Mr. Childs, Winsett, Schwabacher, Bonner, Shook, Mack, Cannon, Babcock, Baumeister, Noble, Russell, Guichard, Roberts, Boyle, Lippitt, and a number of others.

Marriage and Celibacy, an Essay of Warning and Instruction for Young Men. Also, Diseases and Means of Relief. Sent free of charge in sealed letter envelopes. Address Dr. J. SKILLIN HOGGARTH, Howard Association, Philadelphia, Pa. (177)
