The more it is studied by the uninitiated, the less can be made of The conference committee locked up their report with confusing changes and obscure Isnguage, and then threw away the key. Experts in revenue matters must interpret the mystery before any intelligent comment is possible. The original report contains only the new rate of duty, and is therefore of no use except by a labored comparison with those now The tabulated comparison is almost equally valueless, because specific and ad valorem duties have been interchanged almost everywhere whether with the effect of raising or lowering the duty can be determined only by consulting the market quotations of each commodity separately. BRILLIANT LIGHT!

Every lady who has ever entered any establish need not be told of the inastimable boon of having good light. In a dark store lady cannot tell cotton from wool, or dark blue from black, consequently it is absolutely inpossible for a person to exercise their own judgment at all. You may judge as well take what you get and say nothing because in reality you have no choice in the matter. All kinds of goods look well in the dark, and where the goods are "shoddy" a dark store is a great advantage to the atore-keeper. In our establishment the light is as perfect as in any dry goods house in America. In this connection we make no assertion whatever, we are dealing with facts that exist as clear advaylight. You can tell the colors of an article in any part of our store as clearly say you could outside in the street. It goods have any defects there is no possible way of concealing them. If goods are soiled, or shop worn, or faded with the suu, you cannot tell anything about it in a dark store, but you find it out when you go home, and perhaps you live so tar away that it wouldn't be possible for you to return them. When people pay their money they like to see what they are getting; they are not buying on chance, they are not dealing in a lottery, they are paying their monef, which they Invariably have to work for, and they (unfortunately for dark stores) like to judge for themselves.

& OUR PRICES AND OUR SYSTEM!

We are assured of the fact that each and every lady who has entered our establishment knows that Doheny & Marum completely demolished the structure of high prices in Walla

We Were Only Half Prepared.

In former years with limited space, with bad light and with scanty stock, we were unprepared to meet public requirements, and were hampered in our ambition to remodel the trade of this city.

A Deal of Sport Over the Great "Indian Out break"--Prompt Action to Stop the Ab-surd Story--Courtesy of Western Un-ion Manager Lamb--Etc.

PORTLAND, Mar. 28, 1883. Arriving at the depot on Monday en route for Portland, I found the railroad officials laughing over a dispatch received from the Willows wherein a most hair-raising and blood-curdling account was given of what the Indians were about to do. The thing appeared so improbable to me, that I thought no more about it until the train arbaggage car. Things began to look warvery stout man in the crockery and class from Portland, began to realize the fact that their days on earth might possibly be Arriving at the Willows we found the agent there in a state of the most intense excitement. He was full of the horrible things they had threatened; but, question as I would, I could find nothing for the port. It was the old thing, brought up every year, for years past, by cowardly, or designing men, for some purpose of their own, and I had hoped that in this new railroad age, that such foolish scares were numbered with the past. As the train only stopped tar a few moments, I had but little time to matter and decided to do something to stop the reports that would grow as they flew, and of course have a tendency to stop the big wave of immigration now rolling this way. After discussing the situation in all its branches, I concluded to take the buil by the horns without delay and denounce, through the great transmitters of public sen timent, the newspapers, that the whole care was a humbug, and without foundation. As the train was deleved by slides, I as it was all humbug, and by this method stop what I felt certain was the most ridicis scare ever gotten up on this coast ignature of such a trustworthy source, and poraries in Walla Walla will give me credit | year to come will for my decided action. Of course, I have courtesies from those most interested in the act. I say "our," for Mr. Lamb is entitled be said, for he placed the wires of the West- portation facilities brought about the mateern Union at my disposal, and in other ways the mischief they might occasion. The Indians are now so hemmed in on all sides, and days be a warning.

CAUSE OF ALL THE TROUBLE

It seems that he lives on an island about two miles from the Willows and near the mouth of Alder Creek, called Long Island. As near as I could learn he is engaged exclusively in hog-raising. He has been trying for some time to run the Indians off the island upon which he has squatted, so he can get full possession. His partner, a man named Forward, left for Yakima only a few days ago, to see about having the Indians all removed to the reservation. He started the boom by getting hold of old man Sheppy, who is of a nervous and excitable temperament, and making him believe they were all going to be massacred. Of course when Sheppy went to the telegraph office with his the Canadian Pacitic. mail, he told the operator and together they concluded to warn settlers and telegraph for Williams When we were having the eraminstion, Williams distinctly stated that he had been told of premeditated outrages by an Indian.
