

The Chinese Bill Vetoed.

For the second time in the history of the Pacific Coast, States and territories their desires have been scorned by a Republican President in vetoing a bill placing restrictions upon the emigration of Chinese to our shores.

The second veto however has come from a man who is looked upon as the representative of the wing of a party who will stop at nothing to further their ends.

The excuse of subterfuge the President gives as his reason for vetoing the bill is that it conflicts with the treaty of China.

It is true and will be conceded by all that Chinese labor has been in the past of great benefit to the country in the building of railroads, but right here their usefulness ends, in opposition to this we advance the proposition whether or not their presence has not been seriously detrimental in a thousand other fields of labor.

When the present railroad mania ceases and the roads are completed, thousands of men will be thrown out of employment and then it is to be expected that the trouble will commence; the white labor of this country are patient and law abiding, but at times patience ceases to be a virtue.

Reasons for Vetoing the Chinese Bill.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The vital objection of the president is to the twenty years' suspension of immigration, which he construes as virtually prohibitory, and therefore a violation of the spirit, if not the letter of negotiations on which the treaty was based.

The president said Chinese labor had been of great value in this country, and that monuments of their industry existed. They had largely built the Pacific railroad across this continent, but it might be wisely considered now whether limitation should be put on immigration of this labor.

The veto of the Chinese bill was telegraphed to the STATESMAN late for our last issue of the paper, but was delivered in extra form for an extra; for the early news 20 hours in advance of any of our enterprising contemporaries.

If the tunnel which it is proposed to build across the English Channel should cost $50,000,000, which was one of the estimates, it would take 1,000,000 passengers at $2.50 each to pay five per cent. on the investment.

THE CROSS.—With the exception of land lying adjacent to the Touchet river where some of the wheat has been winter killed grain looks very well and bids fair to yield very well.

EASTER SUNDAY will be a great day at the Episcopal Church. The young ladies' Helping Hand society have had it nicely decorated and the church will otherwise be beautifully decorated.

Through Other Eyes

It is evident that in spite of the ignorance of the New York Sun on the subject of the resources of this territory that we are becoming well known throughout the country.

The report of the House committee on territories, by Mr. Aldrich, in favor of admitting the province of Washington to full representation in congress, is not a very powerful argument in support of the bill for that purpose.

Though Washington is situated between the 46th and 49th degrees of north latitude, its southern boundary being on the parallel of Mackinac, the climate is very much milder and more equable than in any corresponding region east of the continent.

The precipitation of moisture is abundant, and near the coast, superabundant, for all purposes. It is divided, like Oregon, by the Cascade range of mountains, into western and eastern Washington.

The eastern section is also divided by the great Columbia river, a stream that would be navigable from its mouth far into British Columbia.

Excepting along the southern border near the Columbia river, eastern Washington is still a wilderness. The 75,000 inhabitants (ascertained by the census of 1880) are nearly all in that one-third of the province between the Cascade range and the coast.

The population has increased from 10,000 to 75,000 in twenty years. The rate of increase during different portions of this period is so suggestive of future probabilities that it is worth while to present the following statistics:

Table with 2 columns: Year and Population. Rows include 1860, 1870, 1880, and 1881.

While the increase in the decade between 1870 and 1880 was only 11,000, or perhaps some less than 13,000 within the present boundaries of the province, or a little over 100 per cent, the increase in the succeeding decade was over 30,000, or more than 300 per cent.

Without doubt this rapidly accelerating boom of population in Washington has been largely owing to the opening of local railroads, and in some measure, to the renewed expectations of the Northern Pacific.

Dakota.

One of the measures to be called upon in the house soon is the bill to admit Dakota into the union as a state. This party lines will be closely drawn on this bill.

The republicans, of course, favor the bill, as it gives them an additional member of the house and two new senators. The majority report on the bill was made to the house by the committee on territories some time ago.

The Oregon Democratic Convention. At the Oregon State Convention, held at Portland, on Thursday, April 6th, the following nominations were made:

For Congress, W. D. Fenton; Secretary of State, H. Abraham; Douglas Co., Treasurer, W. L. Worthington; Wasco, Superintendent of Public Instruction, W. Cornell; Marion, State Printer, E. D. Shattuch; Multnomah, Supreme Judge, J. S. Smith.

Telegrams from all parts of Iowa indicate Democratic majorities in the towns for the first time in many years. Dayton, O., gives a Democratic gain of 493, and the Democratic candidate for mayor receives 400 majority.

In Cincinnati the Democratic majority in 33 precincts is 5600 and 8500 on the member for Board of Works. At Indianapolis the Democrats gained a sweeping victory by 500 majority.

Nearly the entire German vote was cast for the Democratic ticket. Columbus, O., elected the Democratic ticket by 400 to 600 majority.

Cleveland piles up a Democratic majority of about 2000. Toledo defeats the Republican ticket by 1000 Democratic majority. Towns in Michigan also give large Democratic gains.

A meeting in New York to consider the cases of American citizens confined in British prisons is considered here very ill-timed, as the government was progressing favorably in negotiations to secure action on cases which may now be delayed.

It is reported the President is determined to recall Lowell and appoint Cornell, thus making an opening for Folger for governor of New York at the November election.

Recently a mob of 80 at Kokomo, broke down all the jail doors and took Long alias Johnson, who rapeda little girl, and in the presence of 1,600 people hanged him from a bridge.

Considerable excitement is felt at Fort Leavenworth over the rumor that the Cheyennes and Arapahoes are threatening an outbreak near Fort Reno.

Major Randall with five companies and Captain Hood with three companies of troops, are on the ground. The Indians number 2,000.

Their grievance is that they have been put on half rations of beef, and the proposed branch of the Atlantic and Pacific railroad through the territory will destroy their hunting grounds.

Major Randall thinks his troops inadequate to prevent a general sweep.

Cornelius Vanderbilt Dead. NEW YORK, April 2.—Cornelius J. Vanderbilt, brother of Wm. H. Vanderbilt, shot himself at the Glenham hotel, on Fifth avenue, at 2 o'clock this afternoon, and died from the effects of the wound at 6 o'clock.

The motive for the act given by friends is that it was the result of mental derangement, brought on by years of suffering from epileptic fits. No other reason could be given, as his financial affairs are in a prosperous condition.

Vanderbilt came to the Glenham hotel two weeks ago last Friday from Florida, where he had been several weeks. He had frequently visited Hot Springs, Arkansas, for the benefit of his health, which has been poor for the past year.

DIED.

At Portland, Oregon, March 17th, 1882, Elizabeth Maria Sutherland, aged 35 years, native of Danville Province of Quebec, Canada, and the beloved wife of Kenneth Macleay, of the firm of Corbett & Macleay, of that city.

"Death loves a shining mark," is a saying well applied when youth, beauty, refinement of manners and varied culture combine with a devoted spirit in the same person; and such a mark death selected when Elizabeth Maria Sutherland, wife of Kenneth Macleay, breathed her last March 17, 1882.

Surviving friends had a slight alleviation in recalling her many excellences; and now we leave a chaper to hang upon her tomb—the only offering remaining which affection can bestow upon departed worth.

The symmetry of her character was apparent in all the relationships of life; and the artless expression of it was heightened by accomplishments which left nothing wanting to honor each, or invest the whole with a charm that won all hearts and created the warmest attachment in return.

Self-forgetfulness, and devotion to the happiness of others, were woven into her daily life. With all her gentleness she possessed invincible fortitude which was manifest on several occasions.

This self-renouncing spirit was refined by religious principle which influenced her whole life. The moderation of her tasks gave her time to devote to pursuits, which produced unalloyed satisfaction in the performance, and the remembrance of which is ever delightful.

Life was very attractive to her. The present was full of enjoyment; the future bright with promise. The mystery of the inexorable fate which pursues us in this world, deepens into unutterable sorrows and questions, when one so qualified to enjoy happiness and to impart it, is snatched away, and the light of our eyes is quenched, and the music of our ears is stilled!

But the explanation of the mystery must be clear and fall on the other side of the line of demarcation, since, as she was crossing it her eyes were for a moment illuminated with the light of that world into which she was entering, and her lips murmured of its endless joys.

There is consolation in the thought that the qualifications which contribute to human enjoyment shall all be enlarged and purified in the future state; that the genuine culture which is presented here shall not even be interrupted by the strokes of death, but only set free as a bird loosed from its prison bars towards heaven.

Less than a year ago she stood at the altar in bridal apparel. Now she is arrayed in the habiliments of the grave! But our vision resting only a moment on the casket, rises to the blessed company of the faithful, who are arrayed in white robes, and from whose eyes God hath wiped all tears away!

Let us be no more inactive to cherish her memory; may we have grace to emulate her virtues.

OUR PRICES

A visit and inspection is all we ask, that is all that is needed, our prices will strike the public mind in language more eloquent and convincing than any words we could express. We have learned before now that the people of this Territory can appreciate low prices for fresh, desirable, and substantial goods.

When we inaugurated this system the people knew that it was the only upright and just method of carrying on business. They first doubted our assertions, but as time wore on we knew that they were convinced of the truth of our advertisements, and our assertions now are the same as they were then and that is, that those rates will be carried out with the same sacred certainty that night succeeds day.

GOODS SOLD ONLY FOR CASH! This is the great rule which forms the foundation of our business. Consider for a moment what this rule enables us to do. We purchase our goods from the manufacturers for cash, and we mark them in plain figures at the lowest living rate of profit, but we mark them only to sell for cash, we give no credit, we have no book accounts, and we don't propose to have any, we don't believe in asking a cash customer to pay some one else's bad book accounts. In marking our goods we charge no percentage to make up for doubtful book debts because we have none. Our theory is this, if we sell a lady fifty dollars worth of goods very cheap for cash, that our gain is as much as the lady, the lady saves probably fifteen dollars, but that lady ever afterwards in reason recommends us to her friends, and we believe we ultimately gain as much by that means as the lady. We are well aware other houses think differently but that is our idea and we believe it is right.

Correspondence

The following is from our athletic correspondent in the Sage Brush and Cactus lands of the North Pacific: SANDY POINT, I. T. Mar., 28, 1881. ED. STATESMAN—I have noticed quite recently that there is a young fellow in the eastern states by the name of Oscar Wilds who is utterly gone over the beauties of the sunflower and lily. That fact goes to prove that the young man has never been out west rolling prairies of the west all glorious sage brush and cactus (better known as prickly pear) he never would have taken such a fancy to the sunflower and lily. Or if he had favored them in his tender moments; after coming in close contact with the tender cactus, and wondering through the ever beautiful fields of sage brush he would have gone back on his own.
