What Advertising Will Do.—Mr. J.

M. Welsh, of the Eareka Mills, stepped into our office last evening and gave us the pleasing information that his advertisement in the Statismax-had been the means of obtaining him a good customer. One of our readers saw at the Dalles his "ad." and sent him an order which was so satisfactory that this week Mr. Welsh shipped several tons of flour down to our reader. There are many-business men in this city who act as though advertising in a newspaper was an act of charity on their part and pay their bills so begradgingly that we feel like making them a present of their money. There is no money spent that brings in so good an interest as cash freely spent in advertising. We have experience every day in that there is something or other in the papers staring as in the faces so persistently that finally our curiosity is excited; we examine into it and hually our money is paid out. Another instance of what advertising in the STATENAM will do is the case of a man living 70 miles away, who saw Colit sea "ad" in our paper and the fact that it is the most heartless, deliberate, each of the crime has stirred their feelings to their lowest depths on the fact that it is the most heartless, deliberate, each of the crime has stirred their feelings to their lowest depths on the fact that it is the most heartless, deliberate, each of the crime has stirred their feelings to their lowest depths and the crime has stirred their feelings to their lowest depths and the crime has stirred their feelings to their lowest depths and the crime has stirred their feelings to their lowest depths and the crime has stirred their feelings to their lowest depths and the crime has stirred their feelings to their lowest depths and the crime has stirred their feelings to their lowest depths in the case of a man living 70 miles away. begrudgingly that we feel like making them a present of their money. In this speeches by Mayor Kalloch, and authorized the judiciary committee to investigate the matter and report. It is said that this is the first step toward impeaching the Mayor. The election commissioners to-day, in the matter of the Workingmen's protest, decided that they had no power to go behind the returns and so was at a higher rate than would have been paid had their been no special purchase or necessity in the transaction. With this single exception, nothing at all has been done, as the news of vast arcumulations of grain in California warehouses has tended to dull the market.

that the parties, Thomas and Brumfield, were the men who lefthere with their wives. Mr. I. states that he gave these men a written description of the route they were to take; he wrote it in the note book of the murderer, and amongst other directions he gave them, was to cross the Touchet at Harvey Shaw's place. It will be remembered that this is the very place where the murdered man, who was brought to this city, on Sanday, the 7th of March, was found in an eddy of the river. He had a long conversation with the old man, who told him he had been traveling for eight months and that it Sunday, the 7th of March, was found in an eddy of the river. He had a long conversation with the old man, who told him he had been traveling for eight months and that it cost him nearly two thousand dollars, also that he had been to California, but still had plenty of money left, and was going on to hunt up a stock ranch and settle down. Now that the murdered man is known, there are several citizens who can recognise him, who were in doubt at the time when they saw him lying dead; this is by reason of the great change in his appearance through lying in the water so long and having had his long beard cut off by the murderer. Mr. Ireland came to town soon after the body was placed in the coffin and the lid screwed down, and his request to view the body was structured in the coffin and the lid screwed down, and his request to view the body was structured in the coffin and the lid screwed down, and his request to view the body was structured in the coffin and the lid screwed down, and his request to view the body was structured in the continuation of the lid screwed down, and his request to view the body was selected in the coffin and the lid screwed down, and his request to view the body was selected in the coffin and the lid screwed down, and his request to view the body was selected in the coffin and the lid screwed down, and his request to view the body was selected in the coffin and the lid screwed down, and his request to view the body was selected to the railroad station, whereas if they had stayed in the city for only half an hour they would, in all probability, have been recognized as a portion of the party who left in company; enquiries as to the whereabouts of the others would have been very natural, and the sight of one may have assisted the memory of many of those who saw the murdered man, and the conclusion would have very speedily been reached that they were the murderers; it is very examples to the policy for all with the conclusion would have very speedily been reached that they were the murderers;

"In many circumstances this latter mur-der bears a striking similiarity to the deed recently perpetrated on the Touchet. In both instances the death wound was caused by a bullet in the back of the head, and both wine stripped of commencial stripped of by a bullet in the back of the head, and both were stripped of every vestige of cloth-ing; the woman was of small stature with dark hair and eyes. It is a very open but probable theory of ours that perhaps the two murdered ones may eventually turn out to dove tail into each other. What is more likely than that the two should have been man and wife, and the man killed first for the money he may have had and then the woman

Pat out of the way on the principle that "dead hien tell no tales." We are in possession of certain circumstances, that, if we were a detective we would follow up with the assiduity of a sleuth hound on this very theory. It would be strange indeed if the Touchet murder case were to "out" in this manner, and be brought to light by the very means taken to destroy the only evidence thereof.

WEISER, Idaho, April 2d, 1880. ED. STATESMAN :-- The hard winter, bow happily a thing of the past, has by no means happily a thing of the past, has by no means been confined to the Columbia basin, for in a trip through Eastern Oregon and portions of Idaho, your correspondent has seen unmistakable evidences of the severity of the weather scattered along the roads and on the stock ranges, in the shape of dead cattle and sheep. The trip across the Blue mountains has yet to be made on runners from Cayuse station to the Pelican ranch, the most tiresome piece of travel between the Dalles and Kelton. The difference in the climates of the Umatilla and Grande Ronde valley is very marked, for whereas in the former ploughs were running up to the timber belt, and not a vestige of frost was in the ground; the Grande Ronde valley was corrected with a thin mantle of the "beautiful," and everywhere, clear down to Snake Already quite a large number of old miners have started ria Hope (the best route to the mines) and more will follow. Very encouraging prospects have been obtained, and it is generally believed a large amount of gold will be taken out during the season. Times have been very dull, but the people are living in the hope that the "boom" of prosperity will reach and spring comes slowly.

Melikoffs contiliatory tone the relations between the government and the Nihilists have not materially improved. Arrests are continually being made and suspicious and unknown persons are continually in- prisoned. Startling and unexpected arrests are of hourly occurrence. The local prisons are filled with "suspects" or condemned prisoners awaiting transportation to Siberia. Although the Czar is hedged around with cordons of soldiers, and every care is taken, the Nihilists continue to present their journals and warning messages in his private apartments.

nes B. La Du writing to the torian, of the let inst. makes the follow as simply requiring the tax-payer to make out to said statement before any officer having authority to administer an oath, and that the bill would have failed to become a law if the obnoxious portion aforementioned had been thoroughly canvassed and understood. The enactment of such a provision was an oversight on the part of the legislators (its phraseology having been overlooked) as it will be entirely impracticable in many portions of the territory, from the fact that in hundreds of instances it would cause to the tax-payer an expense in reaching the county seat, more than equal to his taxes, and such being the case, an confident that assessors as a rule, throughout the territory, will be governed by circumstances and a liberal and reasonable construction will be adonted, by which the essential requirement of the law will be carried into effect, without entailing any unnecessary expense upon the tax-payer, and are pleased to note that the assessor of King county has already alopted that course.

The foregoing brief statement, (though rather late in the day) I feel to be due to those whom I represented, and is offered by way of explanation, and not as an excuse for the purpose of avoiding been a party to the enactment of an obnoxious law, and, in that spirit, it is respectfully submitted for the consideration of all parties interested."

Frank J. Wolfenden, our energetic correspondent at Colfax, to whom the country in greatly indebted for the earliest news and descriptions of the murdered woman and the detestable murderers, writes us the following further particulars:

"The murdered woman is the wife of the man found dead in the Touchet some time since, and this Brumfield killed them both. First he started down to Walla Walla to get money to buy land; on the way back Brumfield killed him and took the cash; then when he got back he told Mrx. Thomas that her husband had gone to look at some railroad land, and would meet them again at the Rig Lake; they were stopping with a man named Shafer at the time; they them started for Rig Lake, and camped there for some days on the pretence of waiting for Thomas, and when he could put it off no longer he disposed of the woman as stated."

In this letter he seemed to have lost all knowledge of law or regulations, and treated the matter as if Receiver Painter was trying to rob him of his "honest earnings" and that it was only a question of take and divide. He seemed entirely oblivious of the fact that his compensation came via the Receiver, and was not from confiscation of fees.

PENDLETON, March 20.

ED. STATESMAN:—The bright aumahine of the past few days has cleaned the prairies of the last vestiges of snow, the frost is out of the ground, plows are running all over the country, trees are beginning to bud, the grass is rapidly sprouting, the birds are more cheerful, the young men have the spring fever and are making preparations to quit their winter quarters and strike out for the upper country, in the hope of making an everlasting fortune; in short, all nature combines in proclaiming the glad approach of spring. Business is improving along the line, the blacksmith shops are in full blast, repairing such plows as are not at work, and the farmers, the backbone of the country, were never more hopeful than they are at present, for the construction of much needed railroads to be inaugurated this year, are unmistakable indications that the "good times" for which we have all waited so long and so patiently, are now near at hand, and as facilities for removing crops increase, so will the production of grain, for hitherto, the worthy grangers of Eastern Oregon have been practically cut off from outside markets, and therefore they have had no inducement to engage in the production of creals. All this is happly about to be changed, and we venture the prediction that in three years from this date, the territory now comprised within the houndary lines of Umatilla county will export three times as much grain as the whele of "Wetboot" and Puget Sound com-All fools day.
