Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That from and after the passage of this act it shall be the duty of the Secretary of State to furnish the Congressional Printer with a correct copy of every act and joint resolution as soon as possible after its approval by the President of the United States, or after it shall become a law in accordance with the Constitution without such approval. And so much of section seven of the act entitled "An act to expedite and regulate the printing of the public documents, and for other purposes," approved June twenty-five, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, as requires the Secretary of the Senate to furnish such copy is hereby repealed.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That the Congressional Printer, on receipt of the copy provided for in the foregoing section, shall in every case immediately cause an accurate printed copy of the act or resolution, as it shall have been furnished to him, to be prepared and sent in duplicate to the Secretary of State for revision and on return of one of the revised duplicates the Congressional Printer shall at once have the marked corrections made, should there be any, and cause to be printed and sent to the Department of State fifty copies, and also cause to be printed separately the usual number for the use of the two houses of Congress: Provided, That on request of the Secretary of State the Congressional Printer shall furnish to the Department of State any additional number of copies of any act or resolution, not exceeding five hundred copies.

Overwork and Under-rest.

There is nothing better understood than that an overworked brain will speedily lose its power, if, indeed, it be not driven to a fatal congestion. We no longer err through ignorance. A clergyman, for instance, knows perfectly well if he devotes his nights to writing sermons, instead of sleeping, that very soon he will be forced to ask his congregation for permission to go to Europe. Still he keeps up his unseasonable work, and makes it a matter of conscience to commit a long and deliberate suicide. It is asserted, upon the strength of a post mortem examination, that the late much-lamented Governor Andrew, a public man, whose life was of the greatest importance to the whole country, was really killed by hard work.

It is painful to speak with anything like candor of a career so self-devoted, especially when we consider that Governor Andrew knew perfectly well the terrible risk which he was running. When he gave himself to the cause of the Republic, he just as literally took his life in his hand as if he had volunteered to lead a forlorn hope upon the field of battle. Was this sacrifice necessary? Was it wise or prudent? Here was a man of extraordinary capacity for public affairs; here was a life of uncommon value to the community; here was that rarity in history, an able man with an educated conscience, here was one who might make mistakes, and who did make them, but who was utterly incapable of any act of deliberate selfishness; and just in the maturity of his powers, just when he had trained himself to fill higher posts in the public service, he is suddenly called away. "At this exigent moment," to borrow the language of Burke, "the loss of a finished man is not easily supplied."

Whoever undertakes to do the work of five days in one, will be sure either to kill himself or to do his work badly. In either case, nothing is gained by excessive and unseasonably prolonged application; yet this is a truth universally acknowledged and just as universally disregarded by students and public men. The President of a College makes a fine speech to the Freshmen; he tells them that they must properly regard the laws of health; that night study is worse than no study at all; that dyspepsia is the bane of our colleges; and it turns out upon inquiry that this excellent President is in the habit of reading Hebrew for half the night, and is himself a wretched victim of chronic indigestion, has something the matter with his head, is growing deaf, or growing blind, smokes more tobacco than is good for him, and will certainly be obliged to go to Italy by advice of the family doctor, unless Divine Providence works a special miracle, which it is not at all likely to do.

EARTH'S CURIOSITIES.—At the city of Medina, in Italy, and about four miles around it, whenever the earth is dug, when the workmen arrive at the distance of sixty-three feet, they come to a bed of chalk, which they bore with an augur five feet deep. They then withdraw from the pit before the auger is removed, and upon its extraction the water bursts up through the aperture with great violence, and quickly fills the new made well, which continues full, and is effected neither by rains or drouth. But what is the most remarkable in this operation is the layer of earth as we descend. At the depth of fourteen feet are found the ruins of an ancient city—paved streets, houses, floors and different pieces of mason work.

BORROWING.—A man who borrows a book seldom returns it, and in his career there is no turning point. The paper borrower usually forgets to take it back, and goes back on the owner who never sees his face again. Bonnyreddle's advice to a neighbor who always honored him by borrowing his paper before he had read it himself, was: "Buy it, my dear sir, buy it." "I have no change," said the borrower. "Subscribe for it." "I have no time." "Surely if you have no change to buy it and no time to subscribe for it, how is it you waste time in borrowing it?"

REMARKABLE BIRTHS.—It is recorded that in Russia, many years ago, the wife of a countryman gave birth to sixty-nine children at twenty seven confinements; four times four at one birth, seven times three, and sixteen times twins. In the year 1809 the newspapers contained the following announcement: "Maria Ann Helen, the wife of a poor linen weaver in Neulerchenfeld, twenty years married, bore at eleven confinements, thirty-two children, twenty-nine living and three dead; twenty-six were males and six females; all by one father, and nursed by herself. She had at her last confinement three children, one living and two dead. Her husband was a twin, she herself one of four. Her mother had produced twenty-eight children, and died during a confinement with twins. The greatest number of children ever produced at one birth appears to have been six, all of whom were boys, and all dead; and the woman who gave birth to them had been twice married, and had already given birth to forty-four children. During her first marriage, which lasted twenty-two years, she bore thirty-seven boys and three girls. In her second marriage, which lasted but three years, she bore fourteen children—three at the first, five at the second, and six at the third confinement."

THE POWER OF THE HEART.—Let any one, while sitting down, place the left leg over the knee of the right one, and permit it to hang freely, abandoning all muscular control over it. Speedily it may be observed to sway forward and backward through a limited space at regular intervals. Counting the number of these motions for any given time they will be found to agree with the beating of the pulse. Every one knows, that at times, when the water from the engine is forced through bent hose, if the bend is a sharp one, considerable force is necessary to overcome the tendency. Just so it is in the case of the human body. The arteries are but a system of hose through which the blood is forced by the heart. When the leg is bent, all the arteries within it are bent, too, and every time the heart contracts, the blood rushing through the arteries tends to straighten them; and it is this effort which produces the motion of the leg alluded to. Without such peculiar demonstrations, it is difficult to conceive the power exerted by that exquisite mechanism, the normal pulsations of which are never perceived by him whose very life they are.

A LAND OF DESPOTISM.—Senator Doolittle, in a letter to a democratic meeting thus concludes: "From where I stood this morning upon the steps of the capitol, with the flag of the union over me, I can look upon a land of absolute, unqualified despotism. If I visit Mount Vernon, and sit down by the tomb of Washington, I sit under the shadow of a military dictatorship, more unlimited than can be found in any civilized country upon the globe. Constitutional liberty is already bound, scourged, and crowned with thorns here, in her own sacred temple. Shall the general of the army, urged on by the jacobin chief priest, crucify her on this sacred capitol hill, in her own house, under her own banner, amid the scoffs and jeers of all the despots of all the Old World? Let the people answer!"

THE HUMAN STOMACH.—A lecturer, enlarging on the subject of diet, said recently: Soup, fish, flesh, oil, vinegar, wines, pastries, confectionery, fruits, and minor ingredients of condoning chemical qualities, are among the materials thrown in. Stir these things together in a vessel, and which of us would not sicken at the appearance and odor? Yet at a dinner party they are all crammed into the stomach, there to ferment and generate pernicious gases. Truly man is fearfully and wonderfully made. No other creature could exist on such diet. It would kill a gorilla in a month. It does kill, though more slowly, thousands of that high and mighty variety of the human race, commonly called gentlemen.
