TO ADVERTISERS.—The Walls Walla Statesman has a much larger circulation than any other paper published in the Territory of Washington, and hence offers superior inducements to advertisers who would reach the very best class of paying customers.

"In the forefront of the battle" was where a brave man was put to be slaughtered some thousands of years since because the head of the government found him inconvenient. Custer's fate may show how little the world is changed.

The Irish home rulers still clamor for amnesty to the Fenians; their brethren on this side of the Atlantic took the more effectual course of taking a batch of them out. We do not suppose that either mode of attack is pleasing to Deceit.

A GOOD POINT was made by Mr. Kernan in the Senate. It having been charged that the action of the House in reducing salaries in appropriation bills was nullification and revolution, Mr. Kernan said that the country was prepared to stand a good deal of this kind of nullification and revolution.

THERE IS HONESTY still in the public service. Mr. New's accounts as treasurer of the United States were found to be precisely as the books represented, and only a discrepancy of less than five dollars was found in the amount of money on hand, this being caused by slight errors in making change. Mr. New will not require the aid of Congress to relieve him from the responsibilities of his position, and the country, in consequence, has more reason to regret his retirement.

THE BELKNAP IMPROVEMENT is now proceeding in its regular course before the United States Senate, and the testimony of the several witnesses for the prosecution is being taken. The defense rests on the technical objection as to jurisdiction in the case, but objects to particular points of evidence damaging to the accused. From present indications the trial of ex-Secretary of war will not last very long.

HOW THEY ARE SUPPLIED.—It is stated that the Indians encountered by Custer had arms of a superior kind to those of his troops, and it has been asked, where did they get them? The Helons (Montana) Independent enlightens us on this head. It says the Indians are furnished with these arms by the traders. They are exchanged for pelts, from the sale of which immense profits are realized. The Government has time and again been apprised of these transactions, without using any effort to put a stop to them, and the consequence of its negligence is read in the sad fate which overtook Custer's command on the Little Big Horn.

THE LABOR QUESTION IN ENGLAND has again become one of the serious importance. Trade must be depressed indeed when not only reduced wages and reduced time, but a limit of four working days in the week, are determined upon. Whether such reductions are justifiable or not their effects cannot fail to be most deplorable. At the present rates the condition of English operatives is not a happy lot. With reduced wages, and only four days in the week to earn upon, no fate could be much worse than is likely to befall them. Depressed as everything is with us we have not yet fallen so low as the condition of things in England.

THE NEGROES AND THE WHITES are having another episode in the South, this time at Hamburg, opposite Atlanta, Ga. It seems a silly thing to drag a lot of negroes before a court for obstructing the roads when they were merely playing soldier on the Fourth of July, and it is thoroughly reprehensible that armed whites should support masked the power of the magistrate while the cause was on trial. The negroes cannot be justified in their petty warfare any more than the whites, but the affair seems to indicate that in part of the South there is one line of conduct for the blacks and another for the Caucasians.

CUSTER.—The daring deeds that have marked the military career of the gallant Custer would fill a volume, for he never hesitated when duly called for, or his native valor prompted action. The love Custer's officers and men bore to their leader was the natural outgrowth of their confidence in his skill and admiration for his courage. He never failed to be in the front rank of the battle, where the bullets flew thickest, and he ordered even a squad into action without being willing and anxious to lead it. The memory of Custer will live in the hearts of the American people when that of his ungenerous persecutors will have faded into a shadowy recollection.

MUST WAIT FOR SUPPLIES.—There is a little satisfaction to be derived from the telegram from the neighborhood of the Indian seat of war, to the effect that hostilities must cease while the Indians send to the agencies for supplies. They are in need of more repeating rifles, revolvers and ammunition. Our Government kindly permits these things to be sold to the Indians at the agencies, and generously gives the Indians money with which to purchase them. The circle of folly is completed by a selling out soldiers to be killed by the arms furnished the Indians by the Government. We presume there is plenty of arms and ammunition at the agencies which the Indians can obtain in time. Then they will be prepared to take the field again.

THE DECLINE IN SILVER.—The London Standard gives four causes which have combined to produce the recent depreciation in the value of silver. These causes are, first, the increased production of the American mines; second, the demonetization of silver by Germany; third, the absence of demand in Europe, owing to the fact that so many of the great nations have suspended specie payments; and fourth, the diminished demand of the East, especially of India. One of these causes, that arising from the demonetization of silver by Germany, will unquestionably be temporary. In a short time Germany will have sold as much of its silver as it has no longer need for. The large amounts of silver thrown upon the markets of Germany have served to lower its value, especially coming at a time when the other causes were operating. But the Standard says that very soon after Germany ceases to be a seller, it will become a purchaser. Silver will be needed to keep good its volume of taken money. The Standard concludes that the silver problem will be determined by the United States and France. The latter action as the head of the League, and one of the wealthiest in Europe, will indicate the course of Belgium, Switzerland, Italy and Greece. If these countries and the United States resume specie payments with the same eagerness as before, there will be a check to silver depreciation. If they resume on a gold basis, the depreciation will go on.

JOHN KELLY, the newly appointed collector of customs for Oregon, has the reputation of being a honest man, which is more than can be said for the average federal official.

THOS. W. PROSEN has been appointed Postmaster at Seattle. Tom is a clever young man, and as such we are pleased to see him in luck.

THE CHINESE question is to be investigated by a committee of the Senators which is to report at the next session of Congress. Between the black, the yellow, and the red skins our country is in sore perplexity.

THE GALLANT CUSTERS.—There is a terrible pithiness in the curt despatch, "The whole Custer family died at the head of the column," and again, "General Custer, his two brothers, his nephew and brother-in-law were killed." Never, perhaps, in American history, did a family ever offer up so many lives for the flag in a single engagement. We recall the Curtin from Roman history and the Macabees from the Hebrews. Beside them in heroic remembrance must stand the name of Custer. In the mad charge up the narrow ravine, with the rocks above raining down upon the fated three hundred, with fire spouting from every bush ahead, with the wild, swarming hordes circling about the heights like shrieking vultures waiting for the moment to swoop down and finish the bloody tale, every form, from private up to general, rise to heroic size, and the scene fixes itself indelibly upon the mind. "The Seventh fought like tigers," says the despatch; yes, they died as grandly as Homer's demigods. In the supreme moment of carnage, as death's relentless sweep gathered in the entire command, all distinctions of name and rank were blotted, but the family that "died at the head of their column" will lead the throng when history recalls their deed. It was mad, it was rash, but, though "some one had blundered," it was theirs not to reason why, theirs but to do or die. Success was beyond their grasp, so they died—to a man.

THE entrance of Colorado into the Union as a State completes a round twenty five that have been received since we commenced business. We started in trade under the constitution in 1787, with thirteen States, seven free and six slave. The first addition was that of Vermont in 1791, and not a decade has passed without bringing us acquisitions. The longest interval is that which has just occurred; the latest admission, previous to Colorado, being that of Nebraska, 1867. There remains nine Territories, including Alaska, to build new States from. New Mexico is already on the threshold, and Utah would have been in long since save for the curse of polygamy. Washington Territory remains out in the cold, and is likely to continue so to the end of time.

CAMPAIGN SONG.—A poet, who apparently desires to exhaust the whole possibilities of rhyme, favors the N. Y. Herald with the following: "With glad arms we hail thee, Hayes! 'Tis no ass brays, turned out to graze, 'tut Pegasus neighs, eager for frays, and spurs delays, while he essays to sing great Hayes! Oh, happy days! oh, welcome phase! the sun's bright rays dispel the haze that blinds our eyes; and lo! a blaze of glory plays about our Hayes! Thy name, oh Hayes! all fear allays of a 'Greedy craze' which but betrays; thy fame outweighs the foe's arrays; lo! bring forth boys to crown our Hayes! Billy Wheeler was the leader of the Louisiana row; and that, upon a bigger scale, is just what we need now." Although this is poetry we print it as prose, for the reason that life is short and laureates are long, and because much as we respect the muse we must all ways give space to the news.

THE RUMOR that France has postponed her international exhibition of 1878 is officially declared to be without foundation. There is no reason why, in the midst of a profound peace, her people flourishing in spite of the great war burdens, her government definitely established and no change in the Presidency possible, except by death, before 1880, that France should deny herself the privilege of a great world show. Everything of the kind which shows that what was possible as a demonstration of industrial progress under a monarchy or an empire come just as easy to a republic will help the cause of popular government in Europe.

THE Federal brigade consists now of about 94,000 office holders, and the action of these 94,000 men go to make up the present corrupt administration. To purify the corruptions, republicans propose to elect Hayes, whom they say is pure. Admitting, for argument's sake, that Hayes is pure, will one drop of sweet milk in 93,999 sour drops make the whole lot sweet?

ORIN, the republican candidate for governor of Indiana, has been caught in a big steal, and now his party talk of requiring him to withdraw from the canvass. The idea of a party with Grant at its head talking about throwing off on a man on account of party villainy is simply absurd.

THOS. W. BENNETT, nominated for governor of Idaho, declined. The Statesman charges whilst he held the office under a previous appointment he "sold pardons" and done many other things that looked bad. Under these circumstances the people regard his appointment with little favor.

A STRAW SHOWS, &c.—Peace, so far as England is concerned, may be inferred from the fact that English officers are going on furlough from the fortress of Gibraltar, as we are apprised by cable. The straw, however, cannot tell us how long the wind will last. The famous ball at Brussels did not prevent the dancers from fighting next day at Waterloo.

THE Cincinnati Commercial claims that the voice of Ohio was stifled at the Cincinnati Convention by the politicians. It is not far from the truth that the voice of Ohio is stifled by the politicians.

PERTINENT 'INDIAN QUESTION.'—All accounts from the Sioux battle ground on the Rosebud agree in the statement that the Indians are well armed as the troops that are fighting. They have not only the best kind of guns, but they must have a great abundance of ammunition to supply two or three thousand warriors for a three day's battle.

Now, considering that if these savages had not been thus amply provided with guns, revolvers, powder and lead they could not have made a stand against the assaults of Custer and Reno, and the gallant officers and men who were massacred on the Rosebud might have been alive to day, it becomes an interesting question where and how were these two or three thousand and Sioux so thoroughly armed and equipped to fight and kill our troops?

If English speculators within the British American territory had furnished the savages these arms the whole country would be aflame to-day with indignation at the outrage and inhumanity. If a company of foreign merchants had attempted to establish themselves in the Indian Territory, with the purpose of selling arms to the Sioux, they would have been driven out by the government and would probably have been righteously shot by the settlers. But the Sioux did not get their abundant arms and ammunition from foreigners or from foreign territory. Where then?

The plain and disagreeable truth is that they got them from friends and often from agents of the Indian bureau, they got them largely, if not entirely, at the Indian agencies and from Indian trading posts, licensed by the government, and often kept or furnished by friends of persons high in authority, and they paid for the arms and ammunition, to some extent, with the supplies which they drew from the government under Gen. Grant's ridiculous and pretentious "peace policy."

That is the plain truth, which ought to be known and pondered at this time. The agencies, the reservations are, under this peace policy, the military base of Sitting Bull; and as our poor fellows fought bravely we read the cool announcement that there is great mourning among the women and old men who are fed and housed at the reservations, while the young men are out on the warpath. See what this wonderful "peace policy" does. It enables the Sioux chief to thoroughly arm and equip his forces; it then lets him disembarrass himself of the mass of his depreciable and helpless people, who are lodged, fed and clothed at the agencies; and thus doubly prepared for active war, Sitting Bull, wondering at the folly of his enemies, marches out and massacres a regiment of troops. Why shouldn't he? He knows perfectly well that when he gets out of ammunition or food, he has only to march back to the reservation and under the famous "peace policy" he and his bands of murderers will be welcomed by the agents, fed and clothed and fattened up, to go out and massacre another regiment as soon as they have been able to save enough out of their rations and clothing to buy a new store of guns and ammunition of the licensed Indian traders. That is what General Grant's famous "peace policy" means. That is how it works.

Suppose the Indians had been under the charge of the army, does any one believe that such an affair as this on the Rosebud could have happened? Or that army officers in charge of agencies and reservations, and controlling trading posts, would have permitted these thousands of savages to deliberately arm and equip themselves for a desperate and bloody war? The House of Representatives, in obedience to the urgent request of William Welsh, General Sherman and Sheridan, and all the men best informed on Indian affairs, whether civilian or military, and against the opposition of a few men such as S. S. Cox, Professor Seelye, Secretary Chandler and General Howard, has passed a bill transferring the Indians to the army. The senate refuses to pass it. Why? Because it fears to lose a part of its patronage in the nomination of Indian agents. Can it longer refuse, in the face of such a bloody massacre, for which the "peace policy" alone is responsible?—N. Y. Herald.

THE SITUATION.—We have no change to report in connection with the situation of affairs on War Eagle Mountain. Matters there remain in statu quo. The miners are conducting themselves in a quiet and orderly manner. The wants of the hungry are being provided for, and patience is being exercised all round in hope that all will yet come out right. The Miners' Union have expended all their reserve funds amounting to nearly three hundred dollars in the supplying bread to the families of miners who have not received their pay for several months back. The dispatches from the President of the Golden Chariot Company, received here on Saturday, announcing that a gentleman prominently connected with the corporation would arrive here this week with funds to pay the men, gave great satisfaction and produced a good feeling. At the present writing the money has not arrived. There is a feeling of hope, however, that we shall not be subject to a fresh disappointment.—Oyhee Avalanche.

THE Centennial Commission had up the question of opening the grounds on Sunday, and decided against doing so by a vote of 30 to 9. This settles the question, finally. The debate was somewhat warm, and quite personal. President Hawley was one of the most earnest advocates of keeping the gates closed.

THE Northern Pacific people now propose to complete their road to Glendive creek in twelve months without aid from Montana or any other country.

ARR "FRIENDLY" INDIANS RELIABLE?—Crest was surprised in his advance on the Rosebud. Custer was ambushed on the Little Big Horn. Thus, two of our most renowned Indian fighters were taken at a disadvantage by the Indians, making it clear that Sitting Bull knew all about the movements of the columns of our troops. His information was complete. We can even go further and say that he was immediately preceding the two battles to show that, beyond merely posing spies upon the white columns the Indians took means to mislead the officers commanding them. The false news that Sitting Bull was upon the Little Missouri was brought to Fort Lincoln by half breeds and Indian scouts. This misinformation led to a delay which enabled Sitting Bull to return to strike Custer. Was Crook led on by similar misinformation? The country is shocked by a rumor that Crook himself has been killed. Without giving it any credence, we must admit that Sitting Bull has had time to advance upon the General. The camp of the officers contained "friendly" Indians, and we ask what was to prevent one of them from telling Sitting Bull the reinforcements had been sent for, and that they could come was the time to strike? Regarding as highly improbable that Crook was defeated in his camp, which we must suppose was intrenched, we must still acknowledge his danger and one of its sources, and put the question broadly, Are "friendly Indians reliable?"—N. Y. Herald.

PERSONAL.—We were greatly gratified at receiving a fraternal visit Wednesday evening, from our contemporary Hon. W. H. Newell, editor of the Walla Walla Statesman. Bro. Newell is a pioneer in the publishing business east of the Cascade Mountain range. In 1862, while employed in his office at The Dalles, we received impressions from him with respect to the trade and commerce of Oregon which have since those days aided to guide us in the right way of leading Eastern Oregon and Washington Territory to the sea. Demands upon his time at home prevented Mr. Newell from remaining at Astoria more than one night, but as he is a very close observer, while here he saw enough to satisfy himself that his predictions, made more than fifteen years ago are soon to be realized.—Astorian.

BUSTOW thinks that neither the platform nor the nominee of the Cincinnati Convention is strongly committed to the cause of hard money.

When Should Cows Calve?

Aunt Chloe, in Uncle Tom's Cabin, used to say, "There's reason in all things than in order."

For the man who has a cold, open barn, with nothing but husks, straw, swamp or late cut hay to feed...

HEART'S BLOOD.—In a state of health and rest, the blood comes up into the heart in a steady stream from all parts of the body...

Then, in the fall we have our fodder, corn, pumpkins, cabbage and root tops to feed, with which to keep up the flow of milk until winter sets in...

The cow that calves late in the spring will not give much more milk in the fall months than those that calve in the winter...

THE MATRIMONIAL QUESTION.—There is altogether too much marrying by form of law these who, at the most, only a third or half married in other ways...

A MANIAC BRIDE.—One of the saddest romances we have ever made in these columns is the following: About two weeks since, a gentleman from this county...

Pass them by.—The most despicable creature on the face of the earth are those half educated, half witted beings who are forever talking about their neighbors...
