summer is faiding; the broad leaves that grev So freshly green when June was young, are falling;
And all the whisper-haunted forest through The restless birds in saddened tones are calling

From rustling hazel corpse and tangled dell;

"Farewell, sweet Summer, Fragrant, fruity Summer, Sweet farewell!" Upon the windy hill, in many a field, The honey bees hum slow above the clover, Gleaning the latest sweets its blooms may yield

And, knowing that their harvest time is over, Sing, half a hullaby and half a knell.

"Farewell, sweet Summer, Honey laden Summer, Sweet farewell "

The little brook that babbles 'mid the ferns O'er twisted roots and sandy shallows play ing, Seems fain to linger in its eddied turns, ing, Sadder and sweeter than my song can tell,

"Farewell, sweet Summer, Warm and dreamy Summer, Sweet farewell!" The fitful breeze sweeps down the winding lane, With gold and crimson leaves before it flying; Its gusty laughter has no sign of pain, But in the lulls it sinks to gentle sighing, And mourns the Summer's early broken spell—

"Farewell, sweet summer,

Rosy, blooming Summer, Sweet farewell!" So bird and bee and brook and breeze make moan, With melancholy song their loss complain ing; too, must join them as I walk alone

FULL TEXT OF MACMAHON'S MANIFESTO. PARIS, Sept. 19 .- The following is the full text of MacMahon's manifesto:

Frenchmen: You are about to be called upon to nominate your representatives in the chamber of deputies. I do not assume to the chamber of deputies. I do not assume to exercise any pressure upon your choice, but I feel bound to dispel any doubt upon what you are about to do. What I have done is this: For the last four years I have maintained peace, and the personal confidence with which I am honored by foreige sovereigns enables me daily to render our relations with all powers more cordial. At home public order has never been disturbed for a moment, owing to the policy of concord which brought around me men devoted be fore all things to their country. The public prosperity, momentarily arrested by our misfortanes, has recovered its elasticity. The general wealth has increased notwith-standing the heavy burdens born by the people. The national credit has been strengthened, and France, peaceable and confident, at the same time sees her army, always worthy of her, reconstructed upon a new basis. These great results were, how-ever, threatened with danger. The chamber of deputies, daily throwing off the leadership of moderate men, and more and more avowed leaders of the radidominated by avowed leaders of the radi-cal party, at length forgot the share of authority which belonged to me, and which I could not allow to be diminished without involving the honor of my name before you and before history, contesting at the same time my rightful influence in the senate. #### Overland Train Robbed.

CHEYENNE, Sept. 19.—The east bound pas-nger train which passed here at 3 P. M. to-ny, was stopped and robbed by 13 masked day, was stopped and robbed by 13 masked men at Big Spring, Nebraska, 160 miles east of here to-night. The robbers first took possession of the station at the Spring, destroying the t-legraph instruments, and compelled the agent to hang out a red light. When the train stopped the robbers took possession. putting the train and passengers under guard. The express car was broken into and the safe rebbed of about seventy-five thousand dollars. The passengers were also robbed—of what amount is not yet ascertained. To delay the train in reaching the next steation and lay the train in reaching the next station and alarm being given the fire in the locomotive was wet down. A freight train overtaking the express its engine was sent to Ogalalla, from where a report of the robbery was made. The robbers are believed to have gone north. The railroad company offer a reward of five thousand dollars for the arrest of the thieves. Big Spring station, where the robbery of Big Spring station, where the robbery of the express train was committed last night, is a water station 162 miles east of this place. There are only one or two houses beside the station there. The robbers rode to the sta-tion in the evening and took possession of everything, tearing the telegraph instruments out and throwing them away. The red light was hung out to stop the train, which reachwas hung out to stop the train, which reach-there about 11 r. m. On the conductor stepping off to see what was wanted he was con-fronted by two men armed with revolvers, who ordered him to throw up his hands. The who ordered him to throw up his hands. The engineer and fireman were secured and a guard placed at each coach door. The station agent was compalled to knock on the express car door, and on its being opened for him the robbers rushed in and overpowered the messenger, Miller, and took possession of the car. They secured $65,000 in coin and about $500 in currency from the express company.

The passengers in the coaches were then visited and relieved of cash and valuables. The plunder taken from passengers is stated to be $1300 in cash, four gold watches and a ticket to Chicago. One man named Morris lost a gold watch and four hundred and cighty dollars in money. The arrival of a freight train evidently interfered with their plans, for after putting out the fire in the locomo-tive of the express train they mounted and rode away without disturbing the occupants of the sleeping cars. To-day the U. P. R. R. company and Union Pacific Express company offer a reward of $10,000 for the arrest of the thieves and recovery of the money; a pro rata of the reward to be paid for the repro rata of the reward to be paid for the re-covery of any portion of the money or cap-ture of any of the robbers. The sheriffs of surrounding counties and commanding offi-cers of the military posts throughout Ne-braska and Wyoming and along the K. P. road have been notified of the robbery, and everything possible will be done to effect their arrest Just previous to the arrival of the express train in charge of Conductor Patterson, two masked men stepped into the office of the station agent, Mr. Barhart, who was taken completely by surprise. They pointed four cocked revolvers at him and ordered him to tear up his telegraph instruments. Mr.

Barnhart tried to deceive them by taking up his sounder, but they stopped him and made him take up the relay which they carried off with them. The person who gave orders was a captain, and seemed to be an intelligent man, and Mr. Barnhart is of opinion that he is a telegraph operator. They then ordered him to put out his red light. After the red light was hung out on the track, they commanded Barnhart to get his mail ready a manded Darmart to get his man ready is usual. The train came along and stopped in obedience to the red signal light. They be-gan at once to carry out their well laid plan. Four men who had Barnhart in charge took him to the door of the express car and madhim knock, as he usually does, when he locked at each end of the road, they did not touch. The messenger did not know the combination and could not, therefore, reveal the secret to them, notwithstanding their threatening demands. The robbers did not interfere with the U. S. mails, but went from the express car into the first-class passenger coach and robbed the passengers, after which they disappeared. They had no horses in sight, but it is supposed they had their steeds concealed near by.

After so many trials France desires stability, order and peace, and with God's help we will secure to the country these benefits. You will listen to the words of a soldier who serves no party and no revolutionary or gratulations. The performance of the team will be better appreciated when it is known the weight drawn by them was over 340 pounds. The appointment will not be made until the return of Mr. Hayes from Ohio, where, as the dispatches this morning informs us, he is "explaining his policy." What a familiar sound that word "policy" has, by the way, to those who remember the events of ten years ago. And how all the events of the year resemble those of that time. Neither Labracon, Hayes were dested weigher. the year rese or Hayes was elected president Johnson or Hayes was elected president, both of them pursued a course distasteful to the leaders and the party which had sup-ported them; both adopted the plan of go-ing around the country, in charge of politi-cians, and under the direction of politicians, to defend the "policy" they had proclaimed.

It will be interesting to trace the parallel still further, as events drive Hayes from one act to another during the remainder of his term.

Sixty-three years ago, this month, Baltimore was successfully defended from a British attack by land and by water. To-day the few survivors of the fight, known as the "Old Defenders," celebrate the event appropriately, but quietly, in the city they preserved. Much interest is felt throughout the state in the celebration, but Marylanders have never been noisy in sounding their own praises. May these gallant old men live long to enjoy the general regard of their fellow

To what was generally believed of the cor ruption of republican office-holders in South Carolina may be added the specific state-ments of ex-state treasurer Parker. If one man, prominent or influential in the repub-lican party in that state, has escaped what appear to be well founded accusations of corruption, I do not recall his name. Now let the people of Louisiana get at the facts in regard to their late rulers from 1865 to 1877, and proceed, as the South Carolinians propose to do, to the punishment of the guilty. It is no good excuse for delay—it ought to be an inequiry to the proposery performance. be an incentive to the prompt performance of their duty—that the investigation in their state may effect the position of high officials outside of the state.

DISCONTENT.-How universal it is! We never knew one who could say "I am contented," Gowhere you will, among rich or poor, the man of competence, or the man who earns his bread by the daily sweat of his brow, and you hear the sound of murmuring and the voice of complaint. "The other day," said Freeman Hunt, a good while ago, "I stood by a cooper, who played a merry tune with his adze around his cask. 'Ah,' said he, 'mine is a hard lot-forever trotting around like a dog, driving away at a hoop.' 'Heigho!' sighed our neighbor, the blacksmith, in one of the hot days, as he wiped the drops of perspiration from his brow, while his red hot iron glowed on the anvil. "This is life with a vengeance, melting and frying one's self over the fire." "Oh, that I were a carpenter!" ejaculated a shoemaker, as he bent over his lap-stone : "here I am, day after day, working my soul away in making soles for others, cooped up in this little seven by nine room." "I am sick of this out door work," exclaims the carpenter, "broiling and sweating under the sun, or exposed to the in-clemency of the weather—If I were only a tailor:" "This is too bad," perpetually cries the tailor, "to be compelled to sit perched up here, plying my needle— would that mine were a more active life! 'Last day of grace-the banks wont dis count—customers wont pay—what shall I do?" grumbles the merchant; "I had rather be a dray-horse—a dog—anything!" "Happy fellows," groans the lawyer as he scratches his head over some perplexing case or pores over some dry record— "happy fellows! I had rather hammer stone than to cudgel my brain over this tedious question." And through all the ramifications oi society, all are complaining of their condition-finding fault with their particular calling. "If it were only this or that or the other, I should be content," is the universal cry-"anything but what I am."

THE IMPROBABLE IN WAR. - The New to all appearances, the escape of any man so placed is utterly improbable, if not well nigh impossible also. Bullets fly around him thick as hail; shells burst and solid shot scream around his head for hours. That some one of the thousand missiles shall hit him seems to be almost inevitable, and yet in very few battles does one man in ten sustain any sort of harm. The writer of this article has seen a 13-inch mortar shell fall and explode in a a rosen mortar pit 15 feet square, in which eight men were standing, without doing harm to any one of them. Ninety-nine times in a hun-dred such an occurrence would kill every man so exposed, but in this case the utterly improbable thing happened. In another case within the writer's knowledge a caisson with seventy, five nowledge from the interval. seventy-five pounds of powder in it, exploded without injuring a man who was sitting on it at the time. Improbable things of a conit at the time. Improbable things of a con-trary sort happen not less frequently. To draw still from the writer's observation, a man lying in a mortar pit fourteen feet deep, lying close to the revetement, too, was killed by a musket ball which came from a distance of not less than a thousand yards, and passed through the man's lungs. It had scalable

Senator Beck on the Currency.

The Cincinnati Enquirer reports a length a speech delivered by Senator Beck at a mass-meeting of the democrats of Mason county, Ky. We quote the following in which he is speaking of the democratic arry:

"We are pledged as a party to the unconditional repeal of the gold resumption act which the radicals have fastened upon the country in the interest of the foreign and domestic bondholders. We regard the contraction of the currency necessary to such resumption as the prime cause of the bankruptcy and ruin which threaten all the debtor classes, and of the paralysis which has fallen upon our industries, making beggars of thousands who are willing to work, and causing outbreaks which endanger the peace of the country and the security of property everywhere. We will restore for all purposes the old standard silver dollar as a unit of value equal to gold; it was demonetized by fraud, falsehood and suppression of the truth by the radical leaders and their foreign allies so secretly that even the press, which learns everything, did not know for months that it had been done. I hope and believe that we will succeed in requiring the government to receive its own le-gal tender notes for its customs dues, and stop its repudiation of the paper it forced all but the bond holders to receive for all the debts it owes. We will surely mainthe debts it owes. We will surely maintain our position to so adjust tariff taxation that its main object, at least, will be to obtain revenue, and not to keep it as now, arranged to destroy revenue and quadruple the cost of necessary articles to the consumers by prohibiting imports, so as to enrich a few pampered monopolists. With these reforms effected, and with decent economy and reasonable hon. with decent economy and reasonable honesty in administration of public affairs, with states and people allowed to manage their private concerns, free from officious meddlers, we will at once become a free, prosperous and happy people. I know how little value is attached to general charges of mismanagement and maladministration made by the men of one party against the other, therefore I propose to state briefly an outline of the facts relative to currency and taxation, as these are pressing questions now, so that each of the audience can examine for himself party against the other, therefore I pro and see whether or not the radical policy is bad as I claim it to be.

"They have brought the country by law to the point where all debts of the general government, of the states, of the municipalities, of the railroad and other all the gold coin the world. We have not got, and cannot possibly obtain before that date, over $300,000,000 in gold, or say 5 per cent. of the amount we owe less than one year's interest, half of that in the hands of foreigners. Forced resumption now fastened upon us is, under such eireumstances, universal bankruptcy; the number and magnitude of the failures of our business men are fearful to contemplate, and we are daily going from bad The federal and state governto worse. ments, the banks and other great corporations, are all compelled to contract their loans and their circulation in order to meet what they have outstanding in gold, any business, as it is obvious that he cannot hope to realize enough from the sale of any product of industry hereafter to repay the money he borrows and its in-terest in gold. A lender may be willing to lend $10,000, taking a mortgag farm worth $20,000, in the hope of buy-ing it for the $10,000 loaned; but the owner of such a farm, no matter how much he wants the money, dare not borrow it. Yet we are told money is abund rnt? Certainly, because safe borrowers cannot be found. Manufacturing establishments, rolling-mills, industries all over the land which demand vast sums of money, are closed, and their hands are tramps or strikers, because there is not only no prospect of profit, but a certainty of absolute ruin, by a continuance of the business. Yet the bondholders and other leeches who are demanding gold, and gold only, so that they can buy property at their own prices, are continuing the cry that money is cheap and abundant. Does any gentleman here (unless he is a banker or bondholder) know how, where, or from whom he can obtain gold to pay his debts or meet his liabilities? The government pays gold only to the bondholders; from nim only can it be obtained, at his own rates, by those who are compelled to

A Russian corporal, arrested as a spy by Turkish outposts, was recently brought to the head quarters of the Ottman army, south of the Balkans, and told a horrible story of the sack of Eski-Sagara by himself and his friends. A Daily Telegraph correspondent writes of the miscreant: "He did not tell the tale hastily, as though he was shocked or excited; on the contrary he held his head a little on one side, looked at the wall, and in the quietest possible he held his head a little on one side, looked at the wail, and in the quietest possible man ar, and a voice very soft and steady, spoke as follows: We certainly did kill everybody we found on entering Eski-Sagara; we were told, in fact, to exterminate the Turks, and we did our best to carry out the order. Lot course did not see all that we order. I of course did not see all that was done; my attention was principally drawn to one incident which took place in a farmyard. Our men took some twenty Turkish women and children, placed them in a barn, filled the place with straw and hay, and

I was greatly interested in this, and watched it for some time. Of course I took no part in the business.' There was something so cool about this recital that I felt my blood so cool about this recital that I call it is standing still in my veins. Had the made been telling me of an eclipse of the mod which he had chanced to witness, or of som interesting scientific experiment, he could not have talked with less emotion. I could though the pattern of the paper were not al-together unpleasant to him. To me it seemed that, had I been the witness of such a spectacle, the pitiful

And women would have haunted me forever, They appeared to have struck no sympathetic chord in this Russian's heart. He regarded the incident as not altogether devoid of interest; as something worth recounting, in fact, just as he would have considered the given him that sufficed. He told us how he had been detained at Sistova, three days only; how he had gone by forced marches he had been detained at Sistova, three days only; how he had gone by forced marches to the Balkans; how they had passed through the defiles without resistance, and how they had expected to find Constantinople at their municipalities, of the railroad and other corporations, as well as of private individuals, have to be paid in gold alone, or its equivilent, on and after the 1st day of January, 1879, about seventeen months from this date. His-voice was of the gentlest, but what a tale of horror it told! It was an Æolian harp play-ing the dance of death—the softest of breezes breathing blood and cruelty. "They danced around the bern as it blazed," he said! Bear in mind that he was by no means forced to tell the terrible tale. He had been

ELACKENED RUINS AND CHARRED BONES in order to spare the survivors the pain which springs from fruitless hope; as though he had wished to say, "Do not waste time in expecting that you will find your women and babes again. They have really all been burned; I witnessed the death of twenty of them myself. It was not at all an interesting spectacle, its only folly lying in this, that there was no absolute need for the butchery; otherwise as a remembrance the sight ery; otherwise as a remembrance the sight was not wholly unpleasant to me." It was clear that if he had not exerted himself to help kill the poor people, he had not made any great effort to save them. The utter ab-sence of anything approaching what we are accustomed to regard as human feeling wonderfully amazed me. It was not so much that the man was hideously cruel as that he did not appear to understand that the tender limbs of babes and women ought not to be burnt, and that to scorch these helpless ones to death was a horrible crime, REST a while after breakfast as well as after dinner. Do not begin work the instant you rise from the table, if it is possible to avoid it. Irving said: "It is de-lightful to breakfast leisurely; then go out and saunter in the garden; walk down to the water and give the dogs a swim; sketch out a kite, to be completed in the decided that black and white children shall be educated in separate schools. A QUESTION OF LAW, important and interesting toowners of vessels, merchants and common carriers, has just been decided by the Supreme Court of the United States. It is this: Does the law permit a common carrier to show as an excuse for non-delivery of goods pursuant to his bill of lading that he delivered them upon demand to the true owner? The court decides in the affirmative. This question has from time to time given rise to much controversy and to several con-tradictory decisions in the courts below.

THE AMERICAN VOTER. - Variety is the spice of life, and the voter in Pennsylvania or New Jersey will this year have uncommon opportunities to select his ticket. New Jersey has just now no less than seven political organizations— democrats, republicans, temperance men, labor reformers, greenbackers, grangers and taxpayers—each of which will present a ticket for the acceptance of the people. In Pennsylvania there are already four complete state tickets in the field. New parties are sprouting all over the West alharmony, and vexes the souls of the machine politicians. But the people can

AN ORATORICALL TREAT.—The lovers of stump speaking in Ohio are about to be gratified with a rare treat in the department of political science. Hon, G.
H. Pendleton has accepted the challenge of General Garfield to travel with him and campaign of that State. Their meeting will, no doubt, be entertaining, but the Cincinnati Enquirer doubts the propriety or usefulness of these joint debates. It remarks, very truthfully, that "the newspaper has outrun these discussions and their capacity for individual or party advantage, especially when the people be-fore whom the decussion is held are not the jury to pronounce at once upon the merits of the contestants.'

A DELICIOUSLY RICH SUGGESTION made by the commissioners appointed to wind up the affairs of the ill-savored Freedman's Bank in Washington. They are anxious that the depositors who have been swindled should constitute themselves into a gigantic lobby to induce the government to buy the building, which cost in the first instance twice as much as it ought to have cost, at, of course, a valuation to be fixed by the commission. who have been so cruelly victimized.

GOING HOME TO VOTE. - A dispatch states that residents of Ohio holding office in Washington will be allowed to go home and vote. The president, it is said, will reconcile this order with his attempt to diverge office helding from redities on the divorce office holding from politics on the ground of urgent necessity. Criticisms can this movement should be tempered by two considerations. First, the number of Ohio voters now on duty at Washington is large; and second, the republican majority at the last election was small. There is great danger, according to the Speaker of the Ohio House of Representatives, that the democrats will carry the state unless the Ohio office-holders hurry home and vote. Under these circumstances it is claimed to the Washington next winter. The come to Washington next winter. The state that paper could be made equal in state that paper could be made equal in the conspiracy against Mr. Grover as revealed by the affidavit of W. B. Higby, certainly deserve to be properly placed before the public. Higby swears to the details of the Stiles perjury, and shows how extended the plot was; but the most infamous part of the transaction was that Higby went to Morton and told him of this infamy, and Morton, instead of putting him upon the stand and getting at the bottom facts, ordered him to come to Washington next winter. The reconcile this order with his attempt to divorce office holding from politics on the ground of urgent necessity. Criticisms on tle attention to polities on the part of of-fice-holders who are voters in Ohio into an inattention to public duties which justifies their discharge. A presidential or-der is one thing, and the president's conatruction of an order may be quite another.

NERVOUS AND FEARING RADICALS. There is perturbation in the radical camp. at the prospect of such revolution in the Senate as shall deprive them of their majority in that body and place the democratic members in power. It will give the democrats the president pro tempere, and they will substitute a democrat for secre-tary in the place of Gorham. And, more exasperating still, it will clothe the demo-crats with the authority to confirm or reject the appointees of the de facto president. With a democratic majority in the Senate as well as in the House, the administration would be powerless for harm and the wild schems of Secretary Sherman on finance could not work injury to the country. The sickness of Morton, the defection of Spencer, and the feared antagonism of Conkling, together with the probability that two or three others. en as radicals, may cease to co-operate with their party and go over to the democrats, are not cheerful subjects for contemplation to the radicals throught the Union, but inasmuch as the Senate of 1879 will contain a clear majority of democrats, elected as such, and not come as corverts from radicalism to the party, they may as well begin to prepare for the fate which will inevitably befall them.

The democracy are rapidly coming to their the public should be glad to know on what "evidence aliunde" finally determined by design. fate which will inevitably below their "evidence this decision."

How Hostile Indians are Helped. Colonel Gibbon in his official report of the Big Hole fight with the Nez Perce Indians, "reflects severely upon the in-habitants of Montana, who sustained the murderous Nez Perces by trading off provisions for stock stolen by them from the whites, thus prolonging their fight and adding to the danger of pursuit." It is by no means surprising that any army officer, engaged in fighting hostile Indians should feel annoyed at these evidences of the dominant mercantile passion of the good citizens of Montana. From his stand-point it is even possible that those who thus sold provisions to the hostiles, taking stolen stock as payment, appeared as no better than the wicked. Yet we think it highly probable that the Montanians remonth of July no less than 4756 men and 344 women received relief and shelter in the public charitable institutions, and 7544 men and 1043 women received relief in private institutions.

The Opponents of the Southern policy

The Opponents of the Southern policy men havs always been found ready to supply goods, and even ammunition, to their country's enemies. During the rebellion several Northern merchants drove a lu-The Indians have in all wars been notoriously supplied with ammunitlon by white traders, and this was conspicuously the case in the last campaign against the Sioux. It is not a pleasant subject to reflect upon, but we fear that our soldiers must make their account with meeting just so many of these ugly exhibits as the temptations to white rapacity in Indian wars may suffice to account for.

CONFESSING ROBBERIES. - Several of the indicted ex-officials of South Carolinia are candid enough to confess that they were leagued together for the purpose of were resqueet together for the purpose of robbing the State. Among these is Owens, a former State Senator. On being asked who were the greatest thieves of the number, he replied: "Well, sir, if you desire me to name the men who I believe benefited most by republican legislation, I believe them to be Scott, Moses, Cardoza, Chamberlain, Parker, Nash, and that notorious rascal, Tim Hurley." But Parker who had been a member of the Legislature, made a still more astonishment state. lature, made a still more astonishing statement. Said he:

I do not seek to deny or extenuate the part which I took in the ring corruption. I frankly admit these acts of mine in South Carolina, which I now bitterly regret and which I would give much to be able to blot out. I can only say that I went to South Carolina an honest men, and succumbed like others to the great temptations in my path. We were surrounded by enemies and were obliged to maintain our places by the exercise of all the power which we could get into our hands. With the power and opportunity presented to us, surrounded as we were by an array of unusual temptations—temptations such as few men eyer had presented to them before—it is not strange, perhaps, that rings were formed and corruption regined as it did in New York City under the Tweel ring.

After these admissions and the opposite

After these admissions, and the great amount of testimony elicited to convict the culprits, it will not do to say that their prosecution arose from political malice. All the proof, voluntary and involuntary, goes to show that there was a ring of official plunderers, of which the men named by Owens constituted the central figures and that if they had not been arrested in their robberies they would have reduced the State to bankruptcy. Their pun-ishment has overtaken them none too

THE SPEAKER of the House of Repreentatives appoints the committees of the House; the committees prepare the bus-iness, monopolize the debates, call the "previous question," and where the majority is strong usually control the legis-lation. The Speakership is, therefore, an important office, and an able and ambitious man rightly regards it as next in point of power to the Presidency. It is an object of desire to all prominent members of Congress, and the democratic party which will organize the next House on the 15th of October, has had during the sum-mer at least a dozen candidates for the Speakership, and probably quite as many more willing to serve if they should be called on. At this time it seems probable that Mr. Randall, Speaker of the last House, will be re-elected, and he is, on many accounts, a very fitman for the place. valuation to be fixed by the commission. This building was put up at public sale some time ago and withdrawn because a sufficient sum was not offered. Why the government—that is, the people—should give more for it does not appear to be in the least wrong or improper to the coming all cases with due regard to fitness and the least wrong or improper to the coming all cases with due regard to fitness and the least wrong or improper to the coming all cases with due regard to fitness and the least wrong or improper to the coming all cases with due regard to fitness and the least wrong or improper to the coming and clerks out of material that nature intended for blacksmiths, bricklayers, carmissioners. The best thing these gentle-men can do is pay out the money they have on hand to the unforttnate people wing of his party. wing of his party.

ONLY TOO APPARENT. - It is not pleasant death's door as Senator Morton now is, have the respect of. There are many remarks the Portland, Maine, Argus, but the recent developments of the Oregon ting at the bottom facts, ordered him to come to Washington next winter. The object of this was to keep Mr. Grover under suspicion as long as possible for its effect on the elections. But the facts that paper could be made equal in value to gold, with but little difficulty. There is but one disturbing element, and have come out and the resuppossibility for silver coin. If silver coin were made have come out, and the responsibility for silver coin. If silver coin were made the transaction should at once be placed to the credit of the proper persons. That Senator Morton deserves a large share is

WILL BE A MATTER OF SMALL MOMENT. The Philadelphia Chronicle is not of those who believed it well for Mr. Key to accept a place in Hayes' cabinet. He has not proven 2 success in any sense. His attempt at facetiousness in New England was one of those dismal failures to which people subject themselves who undertake a role with which they are not familiar, and for which they are not familiar, and for which they are not proof to this effect. familiar, and for which they have no natural adaptation. The sooner Key ceases to be a democrat, and embraces Hayesism in all its purity or impurity, the better it will be for himself. As to the democratic party it will be a matter of small moment what the postmaster gener-

MIGHT GET ALONG FASTER. - The world moves, and the ladies are anxious to bear down upon the lever and assert themselves to an extent that shall convince the public that the forces of progress are not exclusively drawn from the men-tal resources of the so-called stronger sex. Perhaps if they sometimes asserted themselves less strongly and labored with more integrity of purpose for certain compre-hensive principles that make for the im-partial elevation of the whole human family without regard to "sex, color or pre-vious condition," they might get along faster, even in the very strife they pro-fess to be engaged in, but the "woman in case" seems as yet to be made unduly prominent. A number of Illinois women have issued a call for a Woman's Congress to be held in Chicago on the 4th and 5th of next month, to discuss a series of subjects of special interest to woman and form an association of the sex to aid in making "better homes, better schools, better churches, better charities, better laws, better service for humanity and God." A comprehensive round of business is mapped out, certainly, and the central aim, as here announced, is an admirable one. The Boston Post has great faith in the ability of the sex to make better homes, better schools and better churches, but does not believe that a formal presen-tation of abstract and frequently impossible theories will advance the good work a foot. The services in any enterprise can be given on the spot and not by talking about it somewhere else.

A CLOSE STATE. One of the most interesting of the fall elections, and one concern-ing the prospects for which very little is known in this section of the country, is that in Wisconsin. Four tickets will be offered to the voters—radical, democratic, greenback and prohibition, though very little impor-tance is attached to the last two. While the state has chosen a democratic governor but once in twenty-two years, the average radi-cal majority has been small. Only twice has t exceeded 10,000, and that was in 1863 and 1865, under the influence of the war excite-1865, under the influence of the war excitement. Four years ago the democratic candidate received the support of the grangers, and was elected by a majority of over 15,000. Two years ago the radicals elected the governer by 790 majority, the rest of the officers chosen belonging to the other party. Hayes had only 6141 plurality over Tilden last year, and the Cooper ticket also received 1500 votes. So, it will be seen, there is no large majority for the radicals to fall back on. If they carry the state this fall it will be by dint of hard work, and whether the leaders have spirit enough to make a fight be by diff of hard work, and whether the leaders have spirit enough to make a fight remains to be seen. The grangers seem to have returned to their former party associations. The partial radical success of 1875 was due wholly to the personal popularity of their candidate for governor, who secured more votes from Milwaukee democrats than constituted his majority. The German vote, so far as it is a solid force, is believed to be more inclined to the radical side than in some past years, though this is by no means cer-tain. If the democrats act with the prudence they have displayed during the past four years, there is no reason why Wisconsin should not join the ranks of the democracy.

OUR CROPS AND THE BALANCE OF TRADE. - The recent publication by the bureau of statistics of exports and imports of the United States for the seven months ending July 30th, shows a trade balance ending July 30th, shows a trace parance in favor of this country amounting to $60,500,000. The surplusage for the fiscal year ending June 30th, was $162,544,760. If the situation was simple as these figures indicate, we certainly would be fairly on the road to prosperity, but it s paradoxical. By a comparison of the detailed figures we may safely assume that we have seen the maximum of our export trade. The imports for the month of July, trade. The imports for the month of July, 1877, show an increase of 33 per cent. over those of July, 1876, and for the seven months an increase of 13 per cent. over the corresponding period last year. The great crops and the reviving industries will increase the ability to consume for-eign imports, and, while the balance at the end of the next fiscal year will undoubtedly be in our favor, it will not be as large by a good many millions. To overcome the increasing imports it will probably require the entire increase in our exports of grain.

A BIG MISTAKE.—It is noticed that there are more young American men in tended for blacksmiths, bricklayers, carpenters, tailors, and other honest trades and callings. It is a mistake, and a big one, to teach boys and girls to believe that to labor is disgraceful, and that to do nothing for a living is more becoming the men's sons and daughters who are now beingeducated to play the part of "lead-ing lady" and "walking gentleman" in the great drama of life, who will land in the great drama of life, who will land in a poor-house or penitentiary before they

THE radicals have ascertained by an ex-THE radicals have ascertained by an examination of the returns of the vote cast in New York state that the radical defeat there last fall was not occasioned by a falling off in the radical vote, but by an increase in the democratic vote. What consolation they find in this is difficult to imagine. The fact COVERING THEIR TRACKS.—The burning of the Patent Office building, at Washington, and the destruction of the records looks very much as though the office-holders were endeavoring to cover their tracks. The next Congress is sure to be democratic in both branches, and hence it was well to be prepared for investigations.

Drop Him. - If Postmaster-General Key keeps on he will get entirely around to the radical party, and then the president would have to drop him in order to fill his place with a democrat. It is necessary to have at least one undoubted democrat in the cabinet, and Key is MAINE AND BLAINE.—The State of Maine has given the radicals a majority, as it has at every election for 20 years, and the radi-cals rejoice over their victory. Bah! Letter from Southern California.

VENTURA, Cal., Sept. 14, 1877.

EDITOR STATESMAN: — Please send me a copy of your paper as there are many here interested in the Umatilla country, and particularly in the reservation which the Indians are expected to leave next July. The drouth here is trying men's souls, and pockets as well, and the laboring part of the community, without homes of their own very naturally are inquisitive about other places. Too little are inquisitive about other places. Too little rain, coupled with a superabundance of land grants, is an objection seriously considered here and now. The grantsmen seem deter-mined to hold their lands till they are rendered more valuable by the railroads, yet to be projected and built. That may be a quar-ter of a century in the fature.

In our next accessions from Mexico our legislators will have profited by the baleful influence of recognizing such large landed estates, and provide for the purchase of them by government and this promata measurement. by government and thus promote prosperity, growth and harmony. If the matter be in the hands of southern Californians such will the hands of southern Camorinais such with be the legislation, and demonstration too, of the advantages of local sovereignty. The counties of Santa Barbara, Ventura—

The counties of Santa Barbara, Ventura— and probably all the southern ones—have been diminishing in population for the past year, a general desire for a more rainy region being uppermost, and as your quarter offers especial inducements to the poor, it will re-ceive a share of our population. In a coun-try of grants the poor man has not the ad-yantages he requires, and it is the case here vantages he requires, and it is the case here just as it is in Ireland, England and other countries. Would that southern California were owned by the people as in France.

English Grain Markets. — Literipose, September 21.—A leading grain circular says: With some exceptions the weather throughout the country during the past week has been much more favorable, and fair progress has been made in securing the crops, though ENGLISH GRAIN MARKETS. - Liverpool has been made in securing the crops, though generally in poor condition. Larger quan-tities of new wheat are now appearing on the market, but mostly in such a state as to be quite neglected by millers, while fairly dry qualities are readily taken at full prices and quanties are readily taken at full prices and, in some instances, foreign parcels mark ls, per quarter advance on the previous week's quotations. On the coast there is only one cargo of wheat undisposed of. Those on passage are very firmly held without much doing. On spot business has been quiet since Tuesday, at reduced rates. Maize has been dull. been dull. Arrivals into port for the past three days were small of wheat and flour, three days were small of wheat and flour, and small of maize nearly all from Atlantic ports. This market to-day was thinly attended, though there are several buyers of wheat from distant countries. The usual operators have taken very sparingly. Business in the aggregate is thus of limited importance, and sellers meet the situation with a concession of 1d, on white and 2@3d, per cental on red descriptions. Flour is dull. Barley is given at last quotations and there is little inquiry. Mixed corn is declined 6d, per quarter. Other sorts are unchanged.

THE DISTRICT COURT for Yakima county meets at Yakima city next Monday. In addition to Judge Wingard and A. R. Ayers, district clerk, Mesrs, Cation, Andrews, Mix and other members of the Walla Walla bar will be in attendance.

FALL RACES.—The annual fall races of the latho Agricultural Park Association will come off at Boise city, commencing October 8th, and continuing five days. The purses offered are liberal, and already a large number of fine horses are training for the races. The secretary will accept our thanks for a

JOE FOSTER again represents King county in the legislature. Joe always has a score of fraudulent bills on hand which he usually manages to get through by the aid of oily gammon-polite name for lying. We mention this for the information of members representing eastern counties who otherwise might be induced to vote for some of Joe's swindling bills. Look out for another Sno-

Joseph is reported to have had another fight with Gen. Howard and his braves. Two hundred and fifty Indians were fitted against two thousand soldiers, and the result a drawn battle. If an army of ten or twenty thousand men could be brought against Joseph his defeat would be among the possibilities. Congress should double the numerical strength of the army, remembering that one Indian is equal to at least twenty soldiers.

FOR THE STATE FAIR. - We learn of a very large number of persons who intend to visit the State Fair, at Salem. The hurried work of the season is about over, and our farmer friends feel like spending a week or two in the way of recreation. By visiting the State Fair they are likely to learn much that will be useful to them in the future, and hence we advise all those who have the means and leisure to make the trip.

SHEEP RUNNING AT LARGE. - Dr. L. H. Goodwin sucs Hon. J. M. Lamb for $359 damages, and for cause of action alleges that Mr. Lamb permitted his sheep to trespass upon his (Goodwin's) grain fields. The case will come on for trial at the October term of the district court, when the question of how far owners of stock are liable in damages will be settled. This is the first case of the kind that has come up in this valley and its de-cision will be looked for with interest.

DUSENDERY BROS. have now in store their fall stock of goods and are prepared to offer castomers unusual inducements. In the line of ready made-clothing their stock is unusually fine and enables them to fit all sizes of customers, and in the most fashionable styles. NORTH PACIFIC RAILROAD. -Petitions are being circulated and very generally signed asking Congress to extend the time for the North Pacific Railroad. Should Congress grant the extension, a provision should be included in the bill requiring that railroad lands be sold at the rate of $2 50 an acre. With this provision the settlers would understand the terms upon which an absolute title to the lands could be obtained, and the rapid settlement of the country would follow. It is not business to assume that the company will do the "fair thing" by the settler. It might, and it might not, and hence it is safest to have it "nominated in the bond."

400 DR. A. S. NICHOLS, late of Faribault, Minnsesota, will take chargeof Dr. Kellogg's practice during the latter's absence. Ir. Nienols is a graduate of the Hahnneman Medical College of Philadeiphia, and has taken special courses on diseases of the eye, ear and throat. Also surgery in the Pennsylvania Hospital, and is a member of the American Institute of Homeopathy. Dr. Nichols will give special attention to the diseases of the eye, ear and throat, and will attend to general practice. A thoroughly educated physician, we can confidently recommend Dr. Nichols to the sick and afflicted with the assurance that in his skill they will obtain relief.

THE FURNERAL OF CHARLES BLEWETT, a young man who grew up at Walla Walla and was among the first to volunteer in the fight with the Nez Perces, was had from the largely attended. The military band from the post volunteered their services, and discoursed music suited to the occasion. The mother and sister of the deceased appeared as chief mourners, and the grief of the mother as she hung over the remains of her only son touched every heart. The arrangements of the funeral were in charge of a committee appointed by the Walla Walla volunteers, and everything was carried out in excellent taste. The remains were first taken to the Episcopal church, where religious services were had, then to their final resting place in the city cemetery. The funeral procession was very large, and went to show that our people appreciate the noble spirit that in-duced the brave young man to volunteer his services in a cause that cost him his life.

The Agricultural Fair. The Agricultural Fair was not all that it might have been, and certainly fell behind public expectation. The cause of the failure may readily be stated-a lack of interest. To make an industrial fair a success the cooperation of all classes must be enlisted. We have in this valley a number of industrial enterprises that ought to have been represented. The pavilion is poorly lighted, and altogether a bad place for the exhibition of specimens of artistic skill. With another year a better room should be provided, and then we may expect an exhibition of our products and resourses that will illustrate ths capacity of the country.

In the line of home-manufactures there ARMY SUPPLIES.—Thursday morning, a was absolutely no exhibit whatever. The train of fourteen six-mule teams passed up Dayton woolen mills can make a fine display of cloths, blankets and flannels; but there was not a single contribution from that quarter. Our blacksmith and wagon shops, all of them capable of turning out creditable specimens of mechanical skill, were unrepresented. We have several furniture-manufactories in the valley, and the fair received no encouragement from that she knows it not; his hot breath is upon her quarter. One of these shops—that of Everts hair, his lips almost touch her forehead, yet quarter. One of these shops—that of Everts & Able-turns out specimens that will compare favorably with the best furniture imported from abroad, and should have been represented. A better show room would would call out contributions from the quarters named, and greatly add to the interest of the annual fairs.

Dealers in agricultural machinery should be pressed into the service, and thus by a union of the products of the farm and worksiderable extent in this town. A number of shop secure an exhibition that would repay the visitor for his outlay of time and money. The annual fair of a rich and progressive country like this should be something more than a series of horse races, and it is for the managers of the society to see that in the future there is a marked improvement in this regard.

Some few individuals exerted themselves to make the fair a riccess, and these should have special credit. In the line of fruits and garden products we may mention Messrs. Philip Ritz, S. H. Erwin, F. M. Byrd, and George Starett, whose contributions gave interest to that department of the fair. The exhibition of horses, cattle, sheep and swine was creditable, and showed a marked improvement upon the exhibits of previous

The mistakes and omissions of this year can be corrected, and when summoned to attend another fair we trust not only to witness a full representative of the products of bars, it is altogether likely that the bridge our farms and gardens, but also a showing of the products of mechanical and artistic skill. We have manufactures of furniture, saddles and harness, sash, door and blinds, barrels and buckets, boots and shoes, leather, and many others, all of which when brought together and properly arranged makes up a show that is interesting to look at and at the same kind and in the end most likely the same time serves the purpose of instruction.

THE WHEAT MARKET may fairly be described as in a disturbed condition. The "fast freight" arrangement was calculated to confuse shippers, and now comes the announcement from below of an advance of $1 50 per ton on all grain shipped from Port-We understand that some very spicy correspondence has passed over the telegraph within the past week growing out of these freight is possible if not probable. In the meantime the demand for wheat is falling off and operators show a disposition to draw out. Leading merchants still receive wheat on account, allowing the seller at the rate of 70 cents a bushel. The millers are paying 75 cents a just returned from a trip to the head of the bushel for choice wheat, but the demand | Walla Wall river, where in company with from this source is limited. In moving the crop, grain in this market would the course of the trip they came across a be worth full 871 cents a bushel. The difference between 70 and 87½ cents a bushel dam, and brought away a number of "beaver is what our farmers are paying for the neglect of freighters to provide means of transportation. The man who buys wheat now cannot expect to get it to San Francisco inside of two months, and it is this fact that makes operators shy and litterally drives them out of market. In this age of railroads, and steamboats and steamships, it will astound the world to be told that it requires two months to move a ton of wheat from Walla Walla to San Francisco, and yet such is the fact. Indeed, the man who goes into market to-day and buys wheat has ro assurance that he will be able to get it out of the country before the close of naviga-tion. To buy under these circumstances is to take desperate chances, and hence pru-dent men hold off.

EXTENSIVE WHEAT BUSINESS.—The firm of Hawley, Dodd & Co., have received over 40,000 sacks of wheat, and have shipped twenty thousand sacks to San Francisco, for which they have received the highest prices. They are also building another large ware-house at the Railroad Depot, 60x120, which will enable them to store all they can't get off this fall. They are also building large warehouses at Almota and Wa-wa-wai. With their present advantages they are prepared to do better by the farmers than any house

RETIRING PATRIOTS.—Postal Agent Steel and Collector Kelly have retired from the republican central committee. This is in accordance with the acting president's orders and was among the first to volunteer in the fight with the Nez Perces, was had from the Episcopal church, Sunday last, and was the post point of the post po take back seats.

> THE HEAVY RAINS of the past few days will add considerably to the weight of the sacks of wheat piled up in the neighborhood of the railroad. If it continues too long the dampness will cause the sacks to shrink and may occasion considerable damage.

"THE DANCE OF DEATH." - A book with this title has been laid upon our table, and from a hurried reading we think quite favor ably of it. The modern waltz we have always regarded as an abomination, and with us it has been a matter of surprise that any pure woman could indulge in this pastime. We have not forgotten Byron's lines in which the waltz is characterised in language more forcible than polite. And here is a writer who is even more forcible in his denunciation of this fashionable vice. A ball room is sketched, and a couple indulging in the amatory dance are thus described:

"He is stalwart, agile, mighty; she is tall, supple, lithe, and how beautiful in form and feature! Her head rests upon his shoulder, her face is upturned to his; her naked arm her face is upturned to his; her naked arm is almost around his neck; her swelling breast heaves tumultuously against his; face to face they whirl, his limbs interwoven with her limbs; with strong right arm about her yielding waist, he presses her to him till every curve in the contour of her lovely body that with the amorous contact. Her every thrills with the amorous contact. Her eyes look into his, but she sees nothing; the soft music fills the room, but she hears nothing; swiftly he whirls her from the floor or bends her frail body to and fro in his embrace, but amost touch her forehead, yet she does not shrink; his eyes gleaming with a fierce intolerable lust, gloat satyrlike over her, yet she does not quail; she is filled with a rapture divine in its intensity—she is in the maelstrom of burning desire—her spirit is with the gods. With a last, low wail the music excess. music ceases. Her swooning senses come back to life. Ah, must it be! Yes; her companion releases her from his embrace. Leaning werily upon his arm, the rapture faded from her eye, the flush dying from her eheck —enervated, limp, listless, worn out—she is led to a seat, there to recover from her de-lirum and gather her energies as best she may in the space of five minutes, after which she must yield her body to a new embrace."

We commend this book to all heads of families, in the belief that after its perusal they will be careful how they allow their daughters to submit to the embrace of the lewd men who form so large a proportion of those who figure at so-called fashionable parties. The books is sold by Mesrs Kimball & Son, to whom we are indebted for a copy.

THE MAIN STREET BRIDGE, now being put up, looks as though it may prove a substantial structure. The contractor, Mr. Dion Keefe, has had much experience in building bridges in the Western States, and this experience will be of advantage to him in the job now on hand. To commence with he has gone some thirty or forty feet back from the stream to get a foundation, and this of itself gives the idea of durability. The timbers as they are now on the ground are all massive and bolted and tied together with iron will outlast the present generation. The system of putting in brush bridges, to be washed away by every freshet, was expensive, and we are glad to see it abandomed. The most important bridge in the county, it will be the means of introducing a better and more economical system of bridge build-

ACCIDENT, On last Wednesday evening a young son of Mr. Doggitt, living on Dry creek, met with a sad accident. JAMES BROWN, an original character and the man who figured so prominently on the wrong side in the Grover investigation, is at Walla Walla on public business. In politics Brown is a free lance, but in everything else he is a clever, social gentleman. Like old governor Pope, of Kentucky, he has but one arm to get into the treasury, and this doubtless accounts for the fact that he has remained poor whilst other radicals of less ability have ERENCH RESTAURANT.-It will be noticed that Mr. John Lucas, associated with Mr. Adolphe Tellier, has opened a restaurant, where the public will be accommodated with meals at all hours, day and night. Mr. John Lucas has long been known as one of the best cooks in the country, and his name alone will attract all lovers of good living. His partner is also a French cook, and between them they will give their patrons an opportunity to live well.

DR. E. S. KELLOGG informs us that he is arranging his affairs preparatory to making a visit to the Atlantic States. For the pas year Dr. Kellogg has been engaged in the practice of his profession at Walla Walla, and has been successful beyond his expectations. He now withdraws for a brief perriod for the purpose of rest, but may be expected to return at an early day, when he will resume the practice of his profession.

SUICIDE. - On last Thursday a soldier named Schafer, committed suicide by shooting himself through the head with a rifle. He had been sick in the hospital for several months and on the recommendation of the Post Surgeon, Dr. Bingham, had been granted a furlough for 30 days to go to the mountains. The man returned before the expira-tion of his furlough and began drinking, be-came despondent and ended his life.

Col. WHIPPLE, an active participant in the Nez Perce war, is again in his old quarters at Fort Walla Walla.

JOAN AND DARBY, the veritable originals strolled along Main street yesterday, indulg ing in many edearments, with no though of the bystanders who were convulsed with laughter. The happy couple were married the night previous, and swimming in all the glory of "love's young dream," were having a really "good time." As they passed along we noticed young men and old men stop to admire them, and in some cases we thought their admiration was tinged by envy. Even elderly ladies turned their heads and indulged in a quiet smile as they witnessed a scen that brought back the recollections of othe days. Sich is life.

SALDLEY AND HARNESS. - Mr. James Wheelan, at the upper end of Main street has now in store a very full stock of saddley and harness, to which he invites the atten tion of purchasers.

THE JEW is a miracle among the nations. A wanderer in all lands, he has been a witness of the great events of history for more than eighteen hundred years. that broken but beautiful architecture that rises like a tombstone over the grace of her departed splendor. The Jew saw Rome, the "mighty heart" of nations sending its ceaseless life's throb through all the arteries of its vast empire. He, too, has seen that heart cold and still in death. These have perished, yet the Jew live on—the same silent, mysterious, indistructible being. The shadow of the Crescent rests on Palestine, the signet of a conqueror's faith—still the Jew and his religion survive. He wanders a captive in the streets of his once queenly Jerusalem, to meditate sad and gloomily on the relies of ancient power. Above him shines the clear sky, fair as when it looked down on the traces of Theorem 1. looked down on the towers of Zion; but now, alas! beholds only a desolate city and an unhappy land. The world is his home. The literature of the ancient Hebrew triumphs over all creeds and schools, and sects. Mankind worship in the sacred songs of David, and how to the statement of the secred songs of David, and how to the statement songs of David and how to the statement songs of the statement cred songs of David, and bow to the divine teachings of Jesus of Nazareth, who also was a son of Abraham. Such is the Jew. His ancient dreams of empire are How seldom do we realize, as we see him in our city streets, that he is the creature of such a strange, peculiar destiny. Neither age nor country, nor cli-mate, have changed him. Such is the Jew, a strange and solitary being, and such the drama of his long and eventful history.—Pen and Plow.

MURDER IN DOUGLAS COUNTY. — On Friday last Mr. Hellringer shot and killed Lewis Jones, near the forks of the Umpqua River in Douglas county. They were neighboring farmers and had been to Roseburg on business and returned to their homes together the following mornthe Hellringer farm when the shooting occurred and as there was no witnesses of the difficulty, the homicide bears somethe difficulty, the homicide bears some-what mysterious character. Hellringer immediately proceeded to Roseburg and mself to the authoritie bor Jones and was compelled to do so in self-defense. Justice Slocum summoned a jury to hold an inquest on the body and repaired without loss of time to the scene of the murder when the following facts were elicited. The deceased Jones was lying close beside Hellringer's wagon near the barn, with a Henry rifle in close proximity. The wespon had an empty catridge in the barrel indicating that it had been recently exploded. The only explanation given was to the effect that the deceased had threatened the life of his slayer. The jury returned a verdict that Jones came to his death on the 14th of September, 1877, by a gun-shot through the head, and that the gun was held in the hands of Mr. Hellringer when fired, but they were unable to determine whether a crime had been committed or whether it was justifiable. Our informant was give us any further particulars or what disposition had been made with the accused.—Portland Standard.

Honor. - The true basis of distinction nong men is not in position or possesion; it is not in the circumstances of ife, but in conduct. Causes of Irregular teeth are many, and are either inherited or acquired. It often happens that one parent has a narrow, contracted jaw, and long, slim teeth, while the other has a well developed jaw, ith here has a well developed jaw, with large broad teeth. A child is quite as apt to inherit the large teeth of one parent and the small jaw of the other as any way. When this occurs irregularity is almost sure to follow. In many cases there is from some cause or other a lack of development of the jaw, and, indeed but the exceedingly inferior quality and condition of the bulk of samples marketed has given clear proof, were any required; of the point of the letter. In these cases disastrons effect of the recent heavy rains of the teeth being arranged in a well rounded arch, are so placed as to resem-ble the letter V, the front teeth forming disastrous effect of the recent heavy rains upon the grain crops. In Scotland much of the hay crop has been irretrievably ruined by the rain, while reaping is only general in the most favored districts. Potatoes and a good deal of unripe grain have been damaged by frost. The harvest in the north is precariously late. A good crop of straw will probably be secured, and this is a matter of considerable consequence to stock farmers, as much of their hay is lost. Reports regarding potatoes are less reassuring. The grain trade still preserves sufficient steadiness, but is quite devoid of excitement at present. However, it is hardly time to expect much in the way of speculation, as the interest of all concerned with the trade is centred upon the American crop, and with a large choice of good Russian wheat now in warehouse at their command, millers have purchased only in such quantities as their needs insight. No listlessness or demession, and if treated properly great changes can be mouth in the mouth has a pinched appearance and it not unfrequently happens that this narrow, contracted condition of the up-passages, causing the person to breathe with difficulty through the nose; to sleep with the mouth open, and to give a masal to affect the teeth or roof of the mouth in the least, should be broken up at once. If taken in season—from 8 to 15 or 16 years of age—the most of these irregularities of the teeth and deformed mouths can be prevented; or, if already present, modified to a great extent. At this age the bones of the face are easily moved, and if treated properly great changes can be very high; the most unfrequently happens that this is narrow, contracted condition of the up-passages, causing the person to breathe with difficulty through the nose; to sleep with the mouth last this in arrow, contracted condition of the up-passages, causing the person to sufficiently through the nose; to sleep with difficulty through the nost affect the nasal passages, causing the person to sufficiently through the nost affect the n can be prevented; or, if already present, modified to a great extent. At this age the bones of the face are easily moved, and if treated properly great changes can be made with but slight inconvenience or trouble to the parent. If the teeth have the V shaped arrangement above indicated, the arch can be expanded, which will greatly relieve the sharp, pinched ap-pearance of the features, the hollow condition of the face just above the corners of the mouth will largely disappear, and even the obstruction of the nose be relieved and the voice much improved.

THE RUSSIAN GRAIN TRADE.—The Gazette de St. Petersburg gives the follow-ing details of the conference lately summoned by the Russian government for the purpose of considering, first, the quantity of cereals which Russia on an average year would be able to export; second, the mode in which that export could be effected now that the southern ports have mode in which that export could be effected now that the southern ports have been blockaded, and also in the event of the blockade extending to all the ports of the empire. The conference was attendable between the syllables of lamentation, and licked them in! the empire. The conference was attended by delegations from the chief railway tory for more than eighteen hundred years.

He saw classic Greece when crowned with intellectual triumphs. He lingered among that broken but beautiful architecture the proceedings it appears that the averther than the proceedings in the chief railway companies, assisted by persons intimately connected with the grain trade, and from the proceedings it appears that the averther than the chief railway companies, assisted by persons intimately connected with the grain trade, and from the chief railway companies, assisted by persons intimately connected with the grain trade, and from the chief railway companies, assisted by persons intimately connected with the grain trade, and from the chief railway companies, assisted by persons intimately connected with the grain trade, and from the chief railway companies, assisted by persons intimately connected with the grain trade, and from the chief railway companies, assisted by persons intimately connected with the grain trade, and from the chief railway companies, assisted by persons intimately connected with the grain trade, and from the chief railway companies, assisted by persons intimately connected with the grain trade, and from the chief railway companies, assisted by persons intimately connected with the grain trade, and from the chief railway connected with the grain trade, and from the chief railway connected with the grain trade, and from the chief railway connected with the grain trade, and from the chief railway connected with the grain trade, and the chief railway connected with the grain trade, and the chief railway connected with the grain trade, and the chief railway connected with the grain trade, and the chief railway connected with the grain trade, and the chief railway connected with the grain trade, and the chief railway connected with the grain trade, and the chief railway connected with the grain trade, and the chief railway connected with the grain trade, and the chief railway connected with the grain trade, and the chief railway connected with the age export of grain has risen within the past three years to about 143,000,000 bushels. The shipments from the Black sea and the sea of Azof, with the exception of the ports of Kertch and Elish, amount, on an average to about 62,000. amount on an average to about 62,000,-000 bushels, and as this year only 12,000-000 hushels were exported, it is calculated that about 50,000,000 bushels remain in the southern provinces, to be trans-ported by rail either to the northern ports or to frontier towns. The capacity of the railway system to overtake this increased traffic was the subject of much consideration by the conference, and ultimately a table was drawn up showing the number of trains which would have to be dispatched daily on each of the lines, so as to meet the demands for transport. From this it appears that if the export is not to be de-layed the number of trains per day on the principal lines must be increased from about 130 to 190, and it remains to be seen whether, when the resources of the companies are so greatly taxed by the war traffic, so much additional work can be got through.

To Young Men. —We would like to see our young men giving themselves to the farm labors with more readiness than many of them seem disposed to. The great object of every man is happiness, One takes one road and another a different one, but all have the same object in view. The path of ambition has never secured it; it has only multiplied miseries and disappointment. The sure road is the plain path. No man can enjoy life without health. To secure this great blessing the body must be trained as well as the mind. The farm is the place for health, vigorous, manly exercise, the survey for health, without which all other blessings are but blessing on the lips. We would prefer to be Cincinnatus to an Alexander, the farmer Washington to the conqueror Napoleon. We would rather see our young men ambitious, if that h ing that he had shot and killed his neigh- the proper word, to make large crops upon a few acres; to make two ears grow where only one could heretofore be ob-tained; ambition to have fine horses, cows and hogs of their own raising, full barns, neat, well enclosed farms, comfortable and ornamental farm houses and rural dwellings; priding themselves upon "owing no man nothing," and to have their neighbors say of them that "they fear God, love truth and practice virtue. If thus it be, you have no use for the rug ged, dangerous path of ambition full of toils, cares, anxieties, disease and disap-

TREATMENT OF HORSES. -Prof. Wagner, in writing upon this subject says 'Many think they are doing finely, and are proud of their success in horse training, by means of severe whipping, or otherwise arousing and stimulating the passions, and then crushing the will through which the resistance is prompted No mistake can be greater than this, and there is nothing that fully exhibits the ability, judgment and skill of the real horseman, as the care displayed in winning instead of repelling the action of the mind. Although it may be necessary to use the whip sometimes, it should always be applied judiciously, and great care should be taken not to arouse the passion of excite the will to obstinacy. BELIEVE A MULE BEFORE HIS FRIEND -Here is a Turkish fable: Abdallah went to the residence of Nasereddin to borrow his mule. Nasereddin, who was they were not borne to shine, nor to be the recipients of empty honor, but they were born to be men and a nation's bulwark.

Fools and their money soon part. It's Fools and their money soon part. It's worth while being a fool to have the money to part with.

In m. Go thy way, laise Abdallan, said his neighbor, you are not a true friend, for you believe the mule and refuse to take my word."

THEATRICAL CELEBRITIES. - Dion Boucicault, "the modern Shakespeare," has been elected to parliament, from county Clare, Ireland. but thinks he won't take his seat until he has finished his engage ment at Wallack's. He has made nearly $300,000 out of "the Shaughraun," and can afford to sit in parliament better than most actors. Nielson, the English actress, is said to have made $80,000 her first American season. She has 60 per cent. of gross receipts wherever she plays. "Laerts" Townsend of the Graphic intimates that she was once a barmaid, and has lovers; she "loves them for the dangers they have passed, and they love her that she does pity them." George Fawcett Rowe has gone over to his native England with his play of "Brass" and himself in its principal part as "Waifton and Stray," and gets rewarded by being called "an American actor," and his hero pronounced "an absurd and tedious person," whose "dull buffoonery and pointless stories fairly wore out the patience of the audience.
Joaquin Miller's "Danites" is proving a successful play. Mrs. Maggie Mitchell nas $200,000 worth of property at Long Branch, where she resides. She is 41 years old, and has two children; her husband, it is well known, gave up his busi-ness in Cleveland to become her manager and stewart, which furnishes work enough

BLUE CHECKS.—In Ohio, a few days ago, says a correspondent of a San Francisco exchange, I saw a girl in a spank-clean checked apron that went around her waist with a ed apron that went around her waist with a string; the old-fashioned sort made of numberless and undivided checker-boards, with the little blue and white squares alternating with mathematical precision. The sight of that apron would have taken you back to an older wearer of a similar garment who brought apples from the orchard in it, and white maple chips from the wood pile, and gathered eggs in it from the hay-mow, and spread it smoothly and decorously over her lap when she sat, and her knitting work reposed in it; and sometimes a cat, marked like her best Sunday comb, would assay a slumber upon its checkered existence and be whisked off in a second. You have seen that apron flung over its owner's head seen that apron flung over its owner's head like "knitted cloud" of modern times, when she went to the next neighbor's. That You saw where she laid them when her work was done. There is a whole system of mnemonics in those blue and white checks.

BURNED FOR ADULTERY. - The Reng Journal tells the sad fate of a squaw named Mary, who left her husband, San, to live with a brave named Jim. About fifty Piutes, including several squaws, escorted her to the hills just back of Wash-hoe Lake, where, safe from Caucasian in-trusion, they made a huge pile of sage-brush, and after tying her firmly in the midst of it, set it on fire. Then they ommenced a war dance around the scene of cremation in which all joined except Jim—Sam being fierce in his leaps and yells. The screams of Mary added to the zest of the dance. Jim meantime sat quietly by and seemed an indifferent spectator to what was going on. When the body of the unfortunate Mary had been reduced to ashes Sam expressed himself as satisfied and they dispersed. The warriors threaten their squaws with a similar fate if they are not a little more discreet in their conduct.

WASTE NO TIME. - Time lost can never be regained. After allowing yourself proper time to rest, don't live an hour of your life without doing exactly what is to be done in it and going straight through with it from beginning to end. What-ever it is take hold of it at once, and finish it up squarely, and then the next thing without a moment dropped out be-tween. It is wonderful to see how many hours prompt people make out of a day; it is as if they picked up the moments the dawdlers lost. If you ever find yourself where you have so many things pressed on you that you hardly know where to be on you that you hardly know where to begin, let me tell you a secret. Take hold of the first one that comes to hand, and you will find the rest will all fall into file, and follow after like a company of welldrilled soldiers, and though work may be hard to meet when it challenges you in a squad, it is easily vanquished if you can bring it into line.

PALPITATION OF THE HEART. -Dr. Lardies describes a method by which palpitation of the heart not due to organic lesions may be arrested at once. The patient is directed to bend the body, head down, with the arms hanging so as momentarily to cause congestion of the upper part of the body. In all cases of nervous or anæmic palpitations of the heart it quickly resumes its natural functions. If respiration be arrested for a few seconds while the patient is in the above position, the relief is still more speedy.

WHAT THE STARS TEACH. - One Sunday night we were sitting out in the moon-light, unusually silent—almost sad. Suddenly some one—a poetic looking man, with a gentle, lovely face—said in a low one, "Did you ever think of the beautiful lesson the stars teach us?" We gave a vague, appreciative murmer, but some soulless clod said, "No; what is it?" 'How to wink," he answered in a sad sweet voice.

NEW JERSEY DEMOCRACY. - At the New Jersey Democracy. — At the democratic convention at Trenton, New Jersey, Gen. Geo. B. McClellan was nominated for governor with great enthusiasm. The platform opposes special legislation for coporate or individual interests at the expense of the people; demands decreased salaries for public officers, in keeping with the times; and the restoration of the six per cent, rate of interest as the legal one. interest as the legal one.

BRIGHAM YOUNG bequeathed his whole fortune of some two millions to his wives and children excepting the Amelia Palace, which is to revert to the church after the death of that princess. As Mrs. Amelia is still a young woman in vigorous health, the church may have to wait a good while for the legacy.

THE new constitution of Georgia will probably be defeated by the people. It ought to be, as it repudiate a portion of the State debt and legalizes robbery. The people of Georgia ought to show that they are not as mean as her politicians.

ROWLAND HILL was once requested to preach a sermon to the elect. He promptly replied: "Have the goodness to mark the elect with a piece of chalk, so that I may know them, and I will preach to them." The request was not insisted on.

"Will the boy who threw that pepper on the stove please come up here and get the present of a nice book," said a Sunday school superintendent in Iowa, but the boy never moved. He was a farseeing boy,
