Strikeout of all literature the elements that rest in moral law, a belief in the right, and a strong expectation of the triumph of that right, which have been among the strongest convictions of the human race for lags, and you climinate from it the element of hope and stead it with despair. Like a man out of whose culture you take faith and hope and out of whose culture you take faith and hope and out of whose culture you take faith and hope and love and all the sensibilities. This sensibility furnishes the occasion for the exercise of the moral nature, and the formation of moral ideas just as ensation furnishes the occasion for the excuse of the rational nature and the formation of rational ideas. For the origin of moral ideas there must be a moral material. In this view of the case can it honestly be said that from so questionable a moral principle, constantly presented to the sensibility as objects of choice, do not finally work out a supremacy.

Another question just here: Are you safer in your higher intellectual capacities than the callow poy in his dime novel period? Is it not true that you are not as safe from the very fact that his mind is in its formative state, and that what shall come after may bury the present impression, and that what secures a foothold in your mind, permanently set in its dispositions, will influence it for good. The circular giving no by the so-called Health Ordinance, which, when investigated, is about the most absurd piece of literature in the volume issued by the City Council. Under such an ordinance, the Health Officer cannot even act or report, intelligently. Section 3 of this ordinance sets forth that it shall be the duty of physicians to report cases to the Health Officer or the Mayor. It is a fact that the Health Officer is not notiported to the Mayor, and that official fails to notify the Health Officer.

Section 2 requires the Health Officer to

Our Mail Facilities.

On Monday the STATESMAN anno that our mail facilities would be greatly incre-sed in a few days, and that beside the mail from the east via 'Frisco and Portland, would have a service via the Northern Pacific. Appended we give a letter from Col. Ben Simpson, post-office inspector, through whose efficient efforts, the change, which is so greatly to benefit us, has been brought about :

PORTLAND, Ogn., Nov. 13, 1882. EDITOR WALLA WALLA STATESMAN: Sir. -In answer to your inquiry in reference to delay in transit of eastern mail to Walla Walla, I have to say that the order changing the transit from the route from Kelton to Perdleten, to that by rail to San Francisco, thence to Portland, Ogn., by steamer, was intended to expedite as well as to better protest the mail, as it would be carried all and developments. The ladies are both exthe way through by mail and steamer, and perienced travelers, Mrs. Strahorn espec under the present arrangement we will have | ially, having completed over 10,000 miles of a steamer every three days with a through mail by rail from Portland to Walla Walla, after the 20th of this month. That will give the people of Walla Walla their mail the next day after it arrives in Fortland, so that you can readily see that the transit will be quite rapid. I will state further that about the 17th of the present month there will be started a through mail six times a week from Missoula, Montana, to Portland, Oregon, over the line of the Northern Pacific railroad. There is already an eastern mail six tion.
