THE GREAT CALAMITY. Wreck of the Pacific. Henry F. Jelley, one of the survivors of the ill-fated steamer Pacific, has been interviewed by the following result:

THE GOOD OLD TIMES. A New York letter says: "The old-fashioned merchants of this city, up to forty years ago, were wont to live over their stores, paying, in most instances, not over $800 for the whole building."

TOSSING ON THE WIDE WATERS. Jelley thinks that probably other boats were launched which were not swamped, notwithstanding he did not see any but the one into which he leaped. While he was engaged in helping the ladies into the boat, and just before Capt. Howell sung out that the vessel was sinking, he heard some one say, who was standing on the deck, "Thank Heaven two boats are off any way."

THE WHEEL HOUSE. A portion of the hurricane deck, to which was attached the wheel house, floated within a few yards of Jelley and his companion shortly after the steamer sank, and thinking it more safe than to trust themselves on the shark's back of the boat, they got on board the raft. Fortunately, several life-preservers floated past, and they were caught by Jelley. He took his knife and cut the cords which held them together, and with the lines thus obtained, lashed himself and his companion fast to the pilot house.

THE HEARSE. It is one of the finest things in San Francisco, which is tendered to the public free of charge. Orders promptly attended to by leaving them at my residence, or at the Walla Walla Bakery, 35-1/2.

NEIL O. HENTLEY'S STATEMENT. An occasional correspondent of the London Daily News sends the following interesting story from Berlin: A circumstance has recently occurred which throws some interesting rays of light on the social life in Germany. Among the upper ten of the Imperial capital there is a Herr von Schafer-Volt, who, as owner and founder of the Bear, one of the best gazettes of fashion published, has amassed a large fortune. Having distinguished himself also by his interest in public affairs, he was some years since raised to the rank of nobility. His eldest son aspired to the honor of officer in the Cuirassier Guards, one of the crack regiments of the Prussian army. Now, although the officers of the regiment felt a personal inclination toward the young Herr von Schafer, they nevertheless raised certain objections to his being enrolled amongst them on account of his low descent. He was therefore compelled to pass in a regiment of cuirassiers of the line, where he immediately received a commission. During the last war he fought with such bravery that the iron cross was conferred on him. Unfortunately, in the cavalry attack after the battle of Vionville, in which the Westphalian cuirassiers behaved so gallantly, the young hero, with many of his comrades, found a premature death. It was reported at the time that owing to his inability to enter the regiment of his choice his honor was so wounded that he himself rushed into destruction. The father was so deeply afflicted at the intelligence of his son's death that for a time fears were entertained for his life. At the termination of the war, as an expression of sympathy for the loss of the young man, those drawing-rooms previously closed to the Schafer family were now thrown open. The social position of the Schafer's thus gradually assumed a firmer footing, a circumstance partly attributable to the grace and charm of the eldest daughter, constantly surrounded by a crowd of admirers. The young lady finally gave her heart to the suit of Count Friedrich Eulenburg, Lieutenant in the Gardes du Corps, an elite troop of the Emperor's. The bridegroom, a descendant of one of the oldest Prussian families, and very rich, only intended remaining a short time longer in the army, being desirous of pursuing a political career. His engagement with the daughter of a parvenu excited everywhere, especially in military circles, great surprise, and some of his young aristocratic friends, who, report states, had vainly sued for the hand of the handsome Fraulien von Schafer-Volt, went to the successful suit to express their regret at being obliged, on account of his unwillingness, to break off all intercourse with him. This insult caused Count Eulenburg to challenge them and lay complaints before his commander, Colonel von Alten. On the Colonel taking part against the Count the latter sent him a challenge, too—a step rendering him guilty of a violation of military discipline. Colonel von Alten immediately acquainted the authorities with the case, and Count Eulenburg was called to account and ultimately condemned to a year's confinement in a fortress. The sentence now lies before His Majesty, and a step rendering him all in favor of Count Eulenburg and his betrothed, there is no probability of the Count escaping imprisonment, great weight being justly laid on a rigorous observance of discipline in the army. Much curiosity is expressed to know how the Count will proceed after his release. As his condemnation does not affect his honor, he can still, if he chooses, remain in the army. He will probably prefer to be changed to another regiment, and in so doing the esprit de corps of the overbearing Body Guards, who seek to exclude all but noble blood from their ranks, will be satisfied. The petty spirit displayed by the Prussian "Junkers" on this occasion, has created much displeasure in liberal circles, the mere so as nothing else is said against Fraulien von Schafer and her family. In the approaching session the Imperial Court will in all likelihood embrace the opportunity of showing its displeasure at the conduct observed by the Gardes du Corps. The entire powerful family of Eulenburg have unanimously approved the marriage of the young Count. By her alliance with Count Eulenburg, Fraulien von Schafer-Volt enters also into near relations with Prince Bismarck, whose only daughter is just engaged to Count Wend von Eulenburg, a cousin of the offender.

Fortunately, several life-preservers floated past, and they were caught by Jelley. He took his knife and cut the cords which held them together, and with the lines thus obtained, lashed himself and his companion fast to the pilot house.

TO ADVERTISERS. The Walls Walls Statesman has a much larger circulation than any other paper published in the Territory of Washington, and hence offers superior inducements to advertisers who would reach the very best class of paying customers.

BEN BUTLER WANTS the national dollar stamped upon some convenient and cheap material of the least possible intrinsic value, and never to be redeemed. At the same time, he wants it 'quite equal to, or a little better than, the present value of the average gold dollar of the world.'

More Advantageous.—Zack Chandler is not the man we have advised President Grant to appoint as Secretary of the Interior, remarks the New York Sun, and yet we are not sure that Chandler's appointment may not, in the long run, prove more advantageous.

The farmers of Minnesota during the past season are said to have realized net profits largely in excess of any previous year. After making necessary deductions for loss occasioned by wet harvests, they have, as a fair estimate of the season's production, 28,000,000 bushels of wheat, 15,000,000 of corn, 12,000,000 of oats, and good crops of articles of less importance.

PEACE ON THE ATLANTIC COAST.—Our Government has just ordered the removal of the monster gun now lying at Fortress Monroe to the exposition grounds of the Centennial at Philadelphia.

PEACE TO REIGN IN EUROPE.—In his letter to the German Parliament at its opening on the 27th ult., and on his reception of the President and Vice-President of that Parliament, the Emperor William laid stress on the eminently peaceful condition of European affairs.

Specie Resumption. Senator McDonald, Chairman of the Indian Democratic State Committee, made a speech some time ago in which he fairly represented the prevailing opinion as to the necessity of resumption of specie payments, and of the difficulties in the way to the realization of this desirable end.

At a time like this when such a persistent attempt is made to misrepresent the sentiments of the leaders of the Western democracy, the views of such men as Senator McDonald deserves attentive consideration. His speech enables us clearly to perceive that the main obstructions to the resumption of specie payments are imaginary, due to ignorance of the operations of currency and banking, and of the results these produce.

This would give an average annual immigration during that period of 405,998, or 178,500 more than the year covered in the last report of the bureau. It is needless to moralize upon the effects of such failure in the great stream that has for years poured life, vigor and productive energy into the heart of the north.

GUARANTEES WANTED.—A Vienna dispatch says that the conference between the powers on Turkish affairs has resulted in a determination to ask Turkey whether she has any guarantees to offer for the fulfillment of her obligations. A man in private life whom circumstances have involved in debt retrenches, develops every source of power and frees himself so far as possible from everything which is a drain upon his income.

EXPENSIVE RAG MONEY.—There are seventy-three banks in the city of New York with an aggregate capital of $79,969,500. The net profits of these institutions for the year ending October 2, 1874 were $30,224,800, or in a fraction of fifty per cent. Their loans during the year amounted to $278,841,300.

The Tide of Emigration. The report of the bureau of statistics for the month ending June 30, 1875, contains much valuable information. One of the most suggestive tables in it is that giving a statement of the immigration during the year which closed with the publication of the report.

It is natural to glance at the total in such a table before examining into the details presented; and the figures in this instance are startling. The whole number of aliens arriving in this country during the year ending June 30, 1875, was 244,632, of whom 17,132 were travelers not intending to remain in the United States.

This would give an average annual immigration during that period of 405,998, or 178,500 more than the year covered in the last report of the bureau. It is needless to moralize upon the effects of such failure in the great stream that has for years poured life, vigor and productive energy into the heart of the north.

RESULT OF MAL-ADMINISTRATION.—Senator Wallace, of Pennsylvania, recently delivered an address before the American Club in Philadelphia, in which he drew a graphic and startling picture of the languishing condition of all the industries of the country.

A SWINDLER.—The court of inquiry, at San Francisco, which had Mr. Pinney's affairs under investigation, has ascertained that he is a swindler to the extent of $950,000. This is close on to a million, and perhaps before the court gets through it will find the deficiencies to exceed that aggregate amount.

FOUR HUNDRED MILLIONS.—It is not a very good time to ask for subsidies, for the people are poor, the times are hard and the taxes are high. Nevertheless the following "great expectations" are announced:

THE ONLY PROTESTANT SCHOOL EAST of the Cascades. The Fourth Year opens September 1st, 1875. TERMS: Board and tuition, including fuel, lights, etc., per quarter of ten weeks $50.00; Tuition $5.00; Fuel $5.00; Books $2.50; Total $62.50.

AN IMPORTANT STEP.—Russia is about to take an important step in advance of the rest of the world in the control of the steamship and railway interests within the Empire, by making the proprietors strictly responsible for personal damage done, even to their own employees.

A CASE OF NEGLIGENCE.—A letter-carrier of Washington was recently tried and found guilty on a charge of detaining letters. The statement of the culprit was to the effect that he had no criminal intention, but had placed the letters in pockets of garments which he had laid aside, and had forgotten them.

THE QUALITIES OF LAW.—The law is a terror to men without money, for whom it has but one of two interpretations. To the rich who are willing to pay for the luxury, it can be made as pliant as the mainspring of a watch or the professions of a man without a conscience.

THROWING DIRT.—A year or two since the editors of the Dispatch and Standard were engaged in the congenial task of throwing dirt at the editor of the Statesman. At that time the two beauties were in cahoots, and wore the same collar. Just now they are at odds and here is what Brown says of Murphy:

A disinterested public act; a political profession or principle which has not a personal or pecuniary motive at its base, is utterly incomprehensible to the editor of the Standard. He cannot understand or discuss any public measure, but from a personal standpoint.

ST. PAUL'S SCHOOL, WALLA WALLA, W. T. A Boarding & Day School FOR GIRLS. THE ONLY PROTESTANT SCHOOL EAST of the Cascades. The Fourth Year opens September 1st, 1875.

A Timely Suggestion. WALLA WALLA, Nov. 16, 1875. ERROR.—STANLEY.—A brilliant idea suggested itself to my mind after reading the leader in the Walls Walls Union of Nov. 6th, headed "A proposed reduction on freights," and thinking this grand scheme might not be consummated, I desire to give your readers the full benefit of it, in order that they may have something to fall back on—

First—organize a "responsible company," and have the said responsible company make a proposition; then get the secretary of the Patrons of Husbandry to sign a paper that the aforesaid responsible company has proposed to the farmers east of the Cascade mountains that they will take all the unimproved grain farms, and will give bonds that they will run said farms for a period of five years, in consideration of which they agree to sell wheat and oats delivered at the national depots in Walls Walls county and the principal shipping points in Eastern Oregon, at one-half the rates now charged by farmers for the faithful performance of which they agree to give bonds; and further, in case there should be any doubt in the minds of any of the farming community to the ability of this powerful and rich company to perform their part of the contract, the company will issue scrip annually, which scrip will be received by the farmers at the expiration of the five years at its face (check) in full of all demands.

Another great inducement for the farmers to give up the use of their farms to this powerful company, is that at the end of five years, they will learn how to raise grain at one-half the present price—hence the bonus asked is really no bonus at all, but is merely a guarantee to our people that showing them how the thing can be done, and will come back to them in good time.

DIED. Near this city, Friday morning, the 18th inst. Sarah, wife of G. W. Redman, aged 31 years, 4 months and 14 days. Funeral from residence this Saturday at 11 o'clock A. M. Friends of the family invited to attend.

Bold Stage Robbery.

Yesterday morning after the Silver City stage got on top of the hill about a mile and a half from the river it was stopped by highwaymen and Wells, Fargo & Co's treasure box and the mail sacks demanded.

It rained heavy after this and obliterated the tracks of the robbers and the long time that elapsed before the circumstance was known in this city gave ample time for the robbers to hide their booty and get back to this city and mix up with the people as if nothing had occurred, provided they were from this place.

"CORK LEATHER."—The Paris correspondent of the London Times writes to that journal: "A stall has lately been added to the Maritime Exhibition by the Cork Leather Company, for the purpose of showing a fabric which is very like leather, but with qualities not possessed by any animal's hide."

A FEW WORDS ABOUT HORSES.—Hay and oats make the best feed for horses that are obliged to work hard and regularly. If the hay is cut fine and the oats bruised or ground, the whole mixed and moistened, the horse will eat his rations quicker, digest them sooner and thus have more time for resting and renewing his power for labor.

HOGS WANT SULPHUR.—Whether hogs want sulphur as an essential to their health; or whether it is sought by them as a condiment, may not be discovered. But one thing is true, they devour it with greed wherever it is to be found.

Paper Money.

A clear appreciation of the nature and use of paper money, which cannot be too much insisted upon is expressed in the following passage from Blackwood's Magazine: "Whatever be its theoretical position towards coin, paper money is particularly handy; and if we could only remain in ignorance of the fact that, possibly, it may lose its assumed value and be worth nothing we all should be inclined to look upon it with a tenderness absolutely parallel to that which we accord to the brightest sovereigns."

THE DOWNFALL OF TWEED.—The New York correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette, speaking of Tweed and his faithful wife, says: "They were married when the man was a chair-maker, and they might have had a happy career had the former remained honest. They lived in a plain manner, mingled with mechanics' society, and were the parents of two boys and two girls, good looking and healthy children."

THE LIBERAL PATRONAGE EXTENDED.—The Association by one of the Northeast, has published its annual report, and the liberal patronage extended to the public, offering Life Endowment at LESS THAN HALF PRICE.

WOMEN AND DEVILS.—Old Winston was a negro preacher in Virginia, and his ideas of theology and human nature were often very original. A gentleman once accosted the old gentleman one Sunday: "Winston, I understand you believe every woman has seven devils. How can you prove it?"

FORGOT THE CLERGYMEN.—The Jersey City Herald says: "No man but a horse-car conductor has the right of putting a lady on the back without an introduction," and any clergyman in the land, taking the Jersey City Herald, who doesn't stop his paper at once is lacking in justifiable spirit.

Facts About Suicide.

Dr. Wynter, in his "Borderland of Insanity," has a chapter which treats of suicides, which, contrary to a prevalent notion, are wholly unconnected with fogs and depressing climates. Sometimes a person determined to destroy himself will wait months and years for an opportunity of executing the deed in the particular manner he marked out for himself, and the very inclinations to suicide may be removed by withdrawing the particular objects that would awaken the idea.

A BENEFIT FROM THE ELECTIONS.—It is claimed by some of the best financial papers of the nation that since the result of the Ohio election capital is losing its timidity, and the business of the country will no longer be paralyzed. Since the result of the Pennsylvania election, it is now evident that the nation will never for a moment entertain the policy of illimitable and irredeemable currency, and capital will no longer fear coming out for legitimate investment, as it has ever since the panic of 1873.

TO REMOVE WARTS.—Warts may be removed, says a celebrated physician, by rubbing them night and morning with a mixture of equal parts of marble and sulphur, which will gradually destroy them.

D. 1875, in a certain suit therein pending, wherein David J. Whitaker was Plaintiff, and Samuel G. Ellis was Defendant, in favor of said Plaintiff, and against said Defendant, for the sum of One Thousand Six Hundred and Eighty Dollars and Eighty cents gold coin, with interest and costs of suit, I have levied upon and seized the following real estate, to-wit:

Taxes for the Year 1875.—THE WALLA WALLA COUNTY TAX BOOK for the year 1875, is now in the hands of the County Treasurer, to whom taxes can be paid until the 1st day of January next. After that date unpaid taxes will become delinquent, and with interest added, be placed in the hands of the County Treasurer.

A Dream.

Bundy has been married two weeks, and left his wife.—Bundy is a little man, and his wife weighs 240 pounds, and was the relic of the late Peter Potts. About ten days after marriage Bundy was surprised, on awakening in the morning, to find his better half sitting up in the bed crying as if her heart would break. Astonished, he asked the cause of her sorrow, but receiving no reply, he began to surmise that there must be some secret on her mind that she withheld from him, that was the cause of her anguish, so he remarked to Mrs. B. that as they were married she should tell him the cause of her grief, so, if possible, he could avert it, and after considerable coaxing, he elicited the following from her:

"Last night I dreamed I was single, and as I walked through a well lighted street I came to a store where a sign advertised 'husbands for sale.' Thinking it curious, I entered, and ranged along the wall on either side were men with prices affixed to them. Such beautiful men; some for $1000, some for $500 and so on to $150. And as I had not that amount I could not purchase."

Thinking to console her, Bundy placed his arm lovingly around her, and asked: "And did you see any men like me there?" "Oh, yes," she replied, drawing away from him, "lots like you; they were tied up in bunches like asparagus, and were sold for ten cents a bunch."

Bundy got up and went to see his lawyer if he had sufficient grounds for a divorce.—St. Louis Republican.

"I LIVED with him nineteen years," says an Indiana applicant for divorce, "and all he ever brought me was a bunch of hair pins and a tooth brush." You can see by this what a hard time she had to keep well dressed.

SWINE BREEDING.—The breeder seeks first for animals of good form and good constitution; he looks next to their pedigree—which of their breeds he shall select may depend upon many circumstances, and largely, of course, upon his associations and his taste.

FORGOT THE CLERGYMEN.—The Jersey City Herald says: "No man but a horse-car conductor has the right of putting a lady on the back without an introduction," and any clergyman in the land, taking the Jersey City Herald, who doesn't stop his paper at once is lacking in justifiable spirit.
