The Welcome Back.

BY ELIZA COOK.

Sweet is the hour that brings us home Where all will spring to meet us, and Where huddling, striving as we come To be the first to greet us.

When the world has spent its frowns and wrath, And care been sorely pressing, 'Tis sweet to turn from our roving path, And find a fresh blessing.

Oh joyfully dear is the homeward track, If we are not sure of a welcome back.

Romance.

"Black your boots, sir?" A sweet and clear voice thus attracted my ear, as I idled up Broadway, on the day preceding Christmas, cutting with my other self.

"What is the worth of the diamond's ray To the glance that flashes pleasure, When the words that welcome back betray 'Tis from a heart's chief treasure?"

"Oh! joyfully dear is our homeward track, If we are not sure of a welcome back."

How to be Polite.

Politeness is maintained by courteous inquiries after the many friends and families of those whom you meet, and in manifesting a cordial interest in them.

It is shown by detaching a little space in every leisurely "treasure" for friends. It is a highly gratifying form of politeness to all from whom you have received kindnesses which warrant you in so doing.

It is polite to conform your dress, and (in reason) your habits, to the superior feeling of those whose guest or associate you may be.

It is polite and complimentary to inquire of any one of whose acquaintance your friend may have reason to be proud. It is polite, when you are a guest, to endeavor to enjoy yourself as much as others do so.

It is polite to those who are assembled in any place to avoid heated argument, and all noisy remarks of every kind.

It is polite to prompt to ask every one to take a chair who enters your house or office, the more cultivated you are, the more widely will you extend such courtesies to humble people.

It is polite to do everything for another which would gratify him or her, and is not unreasonable. It is polite to make no illusion to age. It is polite to spare people older than yourself, and women of any age, any exertion of personal effort even in the merest trifles.

It is polite to take no notice whatever of accidents or annoying occurrences, unless by so doing you can make others do so. It is polite to make ready and unostentatious sacrifices of your exertion of your comfort to gratify others; as for instance, to escort any lady, or do a service for a friend.

It is polite to suppress your peculiar tenet or religion in politics before those who differ with you. It is polite to never take it upon yourself in any way to punish any person, unless it be distinctly your business to do so.

It is polite to avoid practical jokes. It is polite, when you have occasion to refer to any feelings in any way, to apologize for it, as clearly as possible, without reservation or excuse, since the more vulgar a man is, the more does he obscure and degrade an apology by self-justification.

It is polite to express in the most direct and unadorned manner what is dear to others. It is sometimes more polite to accept a gift or courtesy, especially from humble people than to refuse it; and it is polite to show the warmest kindness and courtesy to those who have been reduced to poverty. And it is something more than polite to interpose and shield another person from mortification, wounded self-respect and loss of dignity.

Sayings of Josh Billings.

It is highly important that when a man makes up his mind to believe a remark, that he should examine it closely, and see if he can't better himself by a phoo.

When you pra, pra right at the bull's eye. "Tell the truth, and shame the Devil;" I know lots of people, but I don't know no other thing bothers them.

It is a very delicate job, to forgive a man, without lowering him in his own estimation, and you're two.

As a general thing, when a woman wares the blue, she's her head and neck red with it.

A good thing, and I am glad that I am, for I find that wealth makes more people mean than it does good.

Woman's influence is powerful—especially when she wants anything.

Sticking up your nose don't prove anything, for a soap bubble, when he is away from his hum, smells everything.

No man lives on a hot seat but it fits better than a hot seat, than a hot seat.

Aw! kind of horse are a nuisance, but it is better to be bored with a horse order, than a gimlet.

It is a good thing, that a horse don't know his own mind, but I don't see why that's a snook doo nuther.

"Be sure you are rite then go ahead," in case of doubt go ahead anyway.

Sets and keeps up religious, are like pocket knives, good now few tenite out a dircushun but the nearer the pole you get, the worse the work.

Men ain't got tew get kicked out of good society for being rite.

The man who rite iz always kept in good repair, and the travelpers pa the expense of it.

If a man begin life by being fast Lutent in his families, he need never look for promotion.

The California Wines.

The State of California has suddenly sprung into notice as first among the grape growing and wine producing States in the Union.

It is known of the capacities of the Golden State in this respect, that the announcement made a short time since in our columns, to the effect that California would produce this present year, 600,000 gallons of wine, was received with astonishment.

Grapes were planted in California at an early day by the Jesuits; in Los Angeles in 1770, by cuttings from the vines of Malaga. Since then they have flourished mightily, grows more luxuriantly and lives longer than in any other part of the world.

The grape crop in California is always a certain; while in Europe, for 341 years the records show only eleven years of unusually good yield and two or three very good.

The enormous productiveness of the soil of California is another great advantage. From 650 to 850 gallons of wine is made to the acre, while the very best land in Europe gives under the same treatment, but 400 gallons.

Thus it will be seen that Italy (called of old the "vine land" par excellence) falls only two hundred gallons short of the average yield per acre in California.

It is a fact, however, that the vines of California are not so rich and full-bodied than the German wines, without the tartness which is strongly developed in the Rhish varieties.

It is a fact, moreover, that the approval of many of our best connoisseurs. Specimens have been sent to some of the wine districts of Germany, and the most flattering expressions in its favor have come from the Rhine.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

MAXIMS.—Use no reproachful language against any one—neither curses or revilings. Do not too soon to believe the lying reports to the disparagement of any one.

In your apparel be modest, and endeavor to accommodate nature, rather than to procure admiration.

Associate yourself only with men of good quality, if you esteem your reputation, for it is better to be alone than in bad company.

Let your conversation be without malice or envy, for it is a sign of a tractable and commendable spirit; and in cases of passion, do not reason too soon.

Use not base and frivolous things against grown and learned men, nor very difficult questions or subjects among the ignorant, nor things hard to believe.

Speak not doleful things in the time of mirth, nor at the table; nor of melancholy things as deaths or wounds, and if others mention them, change, if you can, the discourse.

Break not a jest when none take pleasure in mirth. Laugh not loud, nor at all without occasion. Deride no man's misfortune, though there seems to be some cause.

Speak not in furious words either in jest or in earnest. Scold at no one, though you may get occasion.

Be not forward, but friendly and courteous—the first to salute, hear an answer—and not be pensive when it is time to converse.

Go not thither when you know not whether you shall be welcome or not. Reprehend not the imperfections of others, for that belongs to parents, masters and superiors.

Speak not in an unknown tongue in company, but in your own language, and that as those of quality do, and not as the vulgar.

Sublime matters treat seriously.

Sollitude, says Seneca, makes us love ourselves conversation others. The one to comfort, the other to heal; the one allies, the other whets and adds new vigor. Nothing pleases always, and therefore God who built us for labor, provides also with refreshment.

A roller boy of a printing office summoned his employer for five dollars due him for labor. The judge decided for the plaintiff on authority, older than anything to be found in Coke or Blackstone—on the well recognized maxim that "the devil should have his due."

Kindly Deeds and Kindly Words.

Half the evils we are meeting, Are the ones ourselves create; Half our sorrows, deep and lasting, From our follies emanate.

In our human aims and blindness, Little heed—love and kindness Check all evils here below.

God's great laws are written plainly, Saving not from who intent; Yet we struggle daily, vainly, If they may be erased or bent.

These we reap the fruits of sorrow, Sowing still of bitter seeds, Plant to-day and reap to-morrow, Just result of evil deeds.

Judge the fall as Christ has spoken— For if all these sorrows were mine, Then, perchance, God's laws were broken, And our sins were yours and mine.

Circumstances oft prove man's ruin, Leading mortal steps astray; Others, equal wrong pursuing, Pass unheeded on their way.

Kindly deeds and love to others, Bless the life that's passing o'er; Saints and sinners all are brothers, By the precepts of our Lord.

Daniel Bryan's Oath.

At length all hopes were given up. Week after week the fallen man would lie drunk on the floor, and not a day of real sobriety marked his course.

I doubt if such another case was known. He was too low for conviction; for some whom he would have associated would drink with him. All alone in his office and chamber he still continued to drink, and even his very life seemed the offering of his jug.

In early spring Moses Felton called on his son, Daniel Bryan's wife, and offered to take her with him; but she would not go.

"But why stay here?" the brother urged.—"Yes, my sister is an angel, and it is upon you, why should you live with such a brute?"

"Hush, Moses, speak not so," said the wife, keeping back her tears. "I will not leave him now, but he will soon leave me—he cannot live much longer."

At that moment Daniel entered the room. He looked like a wanderer from the tomb. He had his hat on and his jug in his hand.

"Ah, Moses, how are ye?" he gasped, for he could not speak but in a broken, husky voice. He was too low for conviction; for some whom he would have associated would drink with him.

"Daniel Bryan, I have been your best friend except one. My sister is an angel, and it is upon you, why should you live with such a brute?"

Follies of Great Men.

The Sublime History of Fools is a book which ought to be written, and which we doubt not would sell greatly.

All great men have had their follies, and the field open for gleaming is almost boundless. For instance, we have such facts as the following, recorded in biographies and histories:

Techo Brabe, the astronomer, changed color, and his legs shook under him on meeting with a hare or fox. Dr. Johnson would never enter a room with his left foot foremost; if by mistake it did get in first he would step back and place his right foot foremost.

Julius Cæsar was almost convulsed by the sound of thunder, and always wanted to get in a cellar, or underground to escape the dreadful noise. Queen Elizabeth the simple word "death" was full of horror.

Even Talleyrand trembled and changed color, on hearing the word pronounced. Marshal Saxe who met and overthrew opposing armies, fled and screamed in terror at the sight of a cat. Peter the Great could never be persuaded to cross a bridge; and though he tried to master the terror, he failed to do so.

Whenever he set foot on one he would shriek out in distress and agony. Byron would never help any one to salt at the table, nor would he be helped himself.

If any of the article should happen to be spilled on the table, he would jump up and leave his meal unfinished. The story of the great Frenchman, Malabranché, is well authenticated.

He fancied he carried an enormous leg of mutton on the end of his nose. No one could convince him to the contrary. One day a gentleman visiting him adopted this plan to cure him of his folly.

He approached him with the intention of embracing him, when he suddenly exclaimed: "Ha! your leg of mutton has struck me in the face!" at which Malabranché expressed regret. The friend went on: "May I remove the incumbrance with a razor?" "Ah! my friend! my friend! I owe you more than life. Yes, yes, by all means cut it off!"

In a twinkling the friend lightly cut the tip of the philosopher's nose, and adroitly taking from under his cloak a leg of mutton, raised it in triumph. "Ah!" cried Malabranché, "I am saved! My nose is free; my head is free! but—but—this is raw, and that is cooked!"

"Truly, but then you have been scalded near the fire; that must be the reason." Malabranché was satisfied, and from that time forward he made no more complaints about any mutton leg, or any other monstrous protuberance on his nose.

MARRIAGE IS LAPLASS.—It is death in Lapland to marry a maid without the consent of her parents or friends. When a young man has formed an attachment for a female, the first step is to appoint their friends to meet to hold the two young parties near a race together.

The maid is allowed in starting the advantage of one-third part of the race, so that it is impossible, except willing of herself, that she should be overtaken. If the maid outrag her suitor, the matter is ended; he must either have her, or be penal for the man to renew the matter of marriage.

But if the virgin has an affection for him, though at first she runs fast to try the truth of his love, she will (without Atlanta's golden balls to retard her speed) pretend some casualty, and make a voluntary halt before she comes to the mark or the end of the race.

Thus, none are compelled to marry against their will; and this is the cause that in this poor country the married people are richer in their own contentment than in other lands, where so many forced matches make feigned love and cause real unhappiness.

HANDSOME FLEETINGS.—A very silly and a very unscientific practice has come into vogue among light-headed school-girls, which they ought to be made thoroughly ashamed of. It is the practice of attending to the attention of the sterner sex, by a skillful use of the handkerchief.

So general has this silly custom become in some places, that ladies who regard their character for respectability sorely dare put their handkerchief to necessary use in the street, for fear of attracting the attention of some bold bad man. Now it may be very funny, my dear young lady, for you to toss your embroidered cambric to some handsome cavalier with elegant manushood, will ever attract the attention of a vulgar fellow.

Every time you do it, your character for modesty and respectability is seriously compromised. Bear in mind that no true gentleman, who honors womanhood, will ever resort to such silly manifestations.

Only very young gentlemen, who know no better than to imitate the manners of corrupt villains, or those villains themselves, ever take notice of your handkerchief displays.

A STRATEGIC MOVEMENT.—The Mari-Posa (Cal.) Free Press, a copperhead paper, gives the following account of a late movement of a company of cavalry soldiers:

A portion of the cavalry company stationed at Bear Valley made a flank movement on the Benton Mill precinct, on the morning of election day, and succeeded in capturing it "without losing a man."

The result is, in a precinct of about 14 legitimate voters, Lincoln received 61, and McClellan 1. "Our army correspondent" reports the utter demoralization of the enemy.

An Irishman who was at the celebrated battle of Bull Run, was somewhat startled when the head of his companion on the left was taken off by a cannon ball. In a few minutes, however, a spent ball broke off the finger of his companion on the other side. The latter threw down his gun and howled with pain when the Irishman rushed upon him, exclaiming, "You odd wamm, stop cryin'! You are makin' more noise about it than the man who has just lost his head."

Nobody likes to be nobody; but every body is pleased to think himself somebody. And everybody is somebody; but when anybody thinks himself to be somebody, he generally thinks everybody else to be nobody.

AGREEMENT OF THE JURY.—"Have the jury agreed?" asked a Judge, of a court-stroke, whom he met upon the stairs with a bucket in his hand. "Yes," replied Pat, "they agreed to find out for a half-gallon."

Three hundred and seventy-five railway companies in the British Isles own 11,500 miles of road, employ 200,000 persons, and annually carry 30,000,000 passengers and 30,000,000 tons of freight.

The Re-division of Idaho.

Mr. Fenn, member of the Idaho Legislature, from Idaho county, has presented in the Council, a memorial, asking for the re-division of the Territory—dividing it into two parts, and thus forming two Territories out of the present large one.

the Age had urged so many cogent reasons why the division should be effected, and said all the pretty things it could to favor the matter, imagine our surprise, on looking over the succeeding issue of that paper to find it taking the opposite tack, in an article about a column and a half long—completely overturning its former suggestions on the question of division—contradicting and totally annihilating all that it had previously said!

Bah! This is a pretty age in which to allow compunctions of conscience to rise up about like and interfere with little stealing operations like that, when all around you from one end of the national domain to the other, you can behold gigantic thieving operations going on that in comparison, would sink into insignificance any petty theft that you might commit.

SHERMAN'S EXPEDITION.—Sherman's expedition in the interior of Georgia, appears to be the all absorbing topic just now. Where he is going, or what particular thing he expects to accomplish by going, or the objects to be obtained by the move, are matters of wonderment and speculation, and it appears to be as much a matter of surmise and speculation with the government authorities as it is with the outsiders.

Late papers from Indiana, (Copperhead) complain that the October election was conducted unfairly. They state that Republicans only received furloughs in the armies and were permitted to return home to vote. They also state that some Massachusetts Regiments voted at the State election, but that such a state of things could transpire seems incredible.

But to return to the Lewiston Age— "Spirits of just men made perfect!" After

End of Volume III.

The present number of the STATESMAN completes its third volume. We will commence the publication of Volume IV next week and will continue it to No. 52, unless in the meantime some one should offer to our price, and something more congenial to our tastes should offer. But we will premise that there is no immediate probability of either of these things occurring.

THE RULERS.—Henry Winter Davis, after denouncing Lincoln as a "usurper," and guilty of a great outrage upon the legislative authority of the republic, finally came out in favor of the re-election, giving the following reason for so doing:

These are the objects of the Wade faction to which it is boasted that Lincoln sold out, to secure his re-election. If they are to be "Presidents and rulers," being steady and consistent men, no one need be in doubt about the course they will pursue.

REPUBLICAN EXTRAVAGANZA.—We have one instance to record, in which public jubilee was had over the re-election of Old Abe. The demonstration was at Salem, Oregon, and according to an extended account given of it, in the Arena, it must have been a "heart-rending" affair.

PARTIAL LEGISLATION.—Our Lewiston correspondent, "index," complains that the present Idaho Legislature is rather partial towards Boise City in matters of legislation; that, as a body politic, it recognizes no other point in Idaho than Boise City.

Stuffed Russians.—Mr. Linkton has stopped his saw-mill for the winter.

Lewiston Correspondence.

EDS. STATESMAN.—The society of Lewiston at the present writing consists of members of the Legislature (business and outsiders) doubtful characters, in fact almost every conceivable shade is represented usually found in a new mining region.

A Memorial to divide the Territory upon the following lines was introduced by the Council upon Wednesday last, and upon which a lively debate ensued. The proposition set forth, was namely, as follows:

Commencing at the south-east corner of Montana and Idaho, the line to be drawn in the Oregon line, thence along the said line to Snake River, thence down Snake River to a point half a mile above Umatilla Landing, thence directly North to the 49th parallel, thence along said parallel to the North-West corner of Montana, and thence south-east along the divide and present dividing line of Montana and Idaho to the place of beginning.

It is understood that Portland Merchants (with many good brains) have fled a young and aspiring politician of Idaho, to lobby a Memorial through the Legislature, praying "ever praying" that this convenient institution may be located somewhere in the Italian skies that ever smile down upon the valley of the "Walamit."

The Oregon Arena estimates the indebtedness of the State at $250,000. This modest little sum has been entailed upon the people of Oregon through the mismanagement of Gov. Gibbs & Co.

RETURNS OF QUARTZ ASSAYS FOR Mr. W. Wadingham, by J. Rosenthal: COSTOCK LEDES, CONTAINS 420 oz. of Gold to ton, at 15 50 per oz. $6,300 and 50 " Silver " " 1 30 " " $12.

REMOVAL OF THE CAPITAL OF IDAHO.—The bill just passed the Idaho Legislature, removing the seat of Government of that Territory from Lewiston to Boise City, has been signed by Gov. Lyon, and is now a law.

Eastern News.

New York, Nov. 23.—Richmond papers state that Gen. Sherman's army is marching on Macon. They have no doubt Cobb's militia will be able to hold Macon. Information considered reliable, has been received that the city is only garrisoned by the Georgia militia, and that a force of mostly old men and boys, and that no attempt will be made to defend the city, for that its destruction would follow.

At Griffin, Sherman captured a portion of the Legislature. He is on the march with his army, spreading out a wide space, devastating and creating ruin to all around. Sherman's other column is reported moving on Augusta and Milledgeville.

The artillery made repeated attempts to flank Gen. Gustar and Powell, in all of which movements they failed. Some magnificent charges were made by the Union cavalry, but the rebels showed but little spirit during the engagement.

The Richmond Whig of the 21st says that Grant has consented that blankets may be purchased in New York for the rebel prisoners at the North. A vessel loaded with cotton, in pay for blankets, is to be sent from Mobile, consigned to the rebel Generals Tremble and Beale, now confined at Fort Warren.

The House of Representatives of the Louisiana Legislature has authorized the issuing of funds to the amount of $2,500,000 for the purpose of carrying on the State Government.

Washington, Nov. 26.—Information from the Army of the Potomac says that since the news of Lincoln's re-election has been circulated in the rebel army, desertions to our lines have increased largely. Deserters say that numbers of rebel soldiers are watching an opportunity to escape.

New York, Nov. 26.—According to the latest rebel papers Sherman's demonstration towards Macon was a feint. No attack was made on that place up to Wednesday last, but within a short distance from it turned north and eastward toward Milledgeville, which town it is reported his cavalry captured last Sunday night.

in strong language, Jeff. Davis and other of the Richmond authorities, for not sending troops to the State to impede Sherman's movements. Baltimore, Nov. 26.—The correspondent of the American, writing from Annapolis last evening, says two vessels, comprising a part of Col. Mulford's fleet of transports, arrived to-day with the paroled men from Savannah and there were about 649 living skeletons, 8 dead bodies, and 9 were buried in the deep on the passage. Our surgeons were appalled at the sight. There were but few among the number of one ship but had to be sent to the hospital, many to leave them only for the grave. The 550 on the other ship were in better condition, and made the welcoming when they landed.

New York, Nov. 26.—The St. Nicholas, St. James, Lafayette, Metropolitan, Astor, Lovejoy's, and Belmont Hotels, with Barham's Museum, were fired last night, none of which were much damaged. The alarms caused great consternation at the occupants of the hotels, and the audiences at the Winter Garden and Barham's Museum. It appears that a woman has been arrested on suspicion of being concerned in the incendiarism. She arrived in the city but a few days since, from Baltimore, and took a room at the St. Nicholas last night. Just before the fire broke out there she went to the Lafarge House and stayed a short time, leaving just before the fire broke out there. She then went to the Metropolitan, a fire, which was very soon afterwards. The manner in which the fire was produced shows a preconcerted plot. In the hotels, the bed clothes and some trunks, etc., were found covered with phosphorus matches, and also scattered about the beds, the fires were then set, and the rooms locked.

Dame Eleanor's Return.
Dame Eleanor waits by the tallest tree,
In the avenue down from the hall;
She watches the red leaves fall,
A stealthy step on the moonlit turf—
A glimpse of lips and hands;
My bark is hiding beyond the surf
To bear us to warmer lands:
Bring gold, bring gems, and flee from the bowyer
Of the lord that loves to more;
My lady is all too fair a flower
To blossom on this barren shore!
Sir Harold has tracked his traitress wife,
"Draw, thief! Draw, coward!" he cries;
The dexter Spaniard flashes his knife,
Sir Harold falls, and dies.
The morning breeze flings the red leaves down
On a pool of emerald green;
The morning breeze a bark has blown Away from the Cornish shore.
A stone knight prays in the Church of Penrost,
And scotches in his blazing armor,
And a Latin legend tells how he lost
At once his life and his love.
The knight had prayed and the scotchmen had When a white-haired woman was found at the
And the feet were wetted with tears.
The woman was worn and weak—the mark
Of a blow defaced her cheek;
Her clenched right hand was hot and stark;
She did not move nor speak.
They lifted her up; by the marble knight
They laid her—dead with grief;
They opened her hand—it was grasping tight
The dust of an autumn leaf.

Too Much Ditto.
In a small village in New England lived an old chap who, though quite wealthy, did not possess a good education, as also did his wife. He purchased much of household goods at a dry goods and grocery store in the village, and at the close of the year the bill was presented for payment. On one occasion, in looking it over, he observed that the word "ditto" occurred frequently. On reaching home, he said to his wife—
"What have you been doing with so much ditto this year?" showing her what it stood on the bill. "I haven't bought any;
and what have you been doing with so much?"
"I haven't had a bit," she replied.
"You must have had it," he returned; for G— always dealt honestly by me, and here it is on the bill; you can see for yourself."
"I don't care if it is; I haven't had any,
and G— has cheated you; I always said he would."
"Well, he replied, then I must see about it." So he trudged back to the store.
"Look here G—, what do you mean by charging me with so much ditto? I haven't had any, and my wife says she hasn't."
G— bit his lips and politely explained.
When the old gentleman returned home,
his wife inquired if he had found out about the "ditto?"
"Yes," he replied; "I have found out that I was a great fool, and that you were a ditto."

Divorces.
A Philadelphia paper says, applications for divorce have, it is said, greatly increased within the last few years in our city. It does seem astonishing what a hurry some people are in to surrender the sacred bond, who a few months ago were in just as great a hurry to take upon themselves the obligations and responsibilities of married life.
They kiss and twitter like mated birds for a brief fortnight, and the third week are brought up before the courts for throwing smoothing irons at each other, and indulging in other little endearments peculiar to double-blessedness. In some late cases, husbands and wives have been off the hooks before the taste of the bridal cake and wine had been washed from their mouths. The fact is, the whole preliminary business of courtship is one grand systematic course of mutual deception. Both parties persistently shut their eyes to each other's true character and insist upon investing each other with attributes which neither possess, and which none but angels ever do.
They picture to themselves for the future an earthly heaven of music, dancing, billing and cooing, gaily soaring and pic-nics.
This is the poetic side of the question. The prose reality comes "the morning after the wedding," and then—look out for cold coffee, buttonless shirts, neglected hair dye, pallid cheeks, abandoned ringlets, snapping answers, hysterical cries, pouts, and all the other accompaniments of domestic torture.

The Valley of Jehoshaphat.
The efforts the Jews have made, and the sufferings, losses and humiliations they have borne, for the purpose of obtaining sepulture in the valley of Jehoshaphat, form a singular feature in human history. No other nation has thus struggled, not to live in their own land, but to be suffered to lay their dust there. Many descriptions have been made of this marvelous place; but I confess none of them ever afforded me a notion of its actual appearance. Wandering alone past the fountain of Siloam, and by the arid bed of Kedron, it suddenly opened upon me, a perfect mountain of graves—a hillside paved with sepulchral slabs. Each stone is small—so small as to lead to the conclusion that the bones must be buried perpendicularly. At all events, if the multitudes there interred were simultaneously to rise, they would form a crowd as dense and compact as it would be enormous. Short Hebrew inscriptions (some evidently of great age) are on all the stones; and these are laid together with intervals only of a few inches, as in our oldest church yards. The slabs are almost on the level of the ground, so that it is literally one large pavement of death—an appalling, almost an overwhelming sight.—Fraser's Magazine.

A Prussian Prayer.
According to Carlyle, it was the Prussian General Dessauer's wont to pray before engaging in battle, and thus describes his prayer. A grim terror of prayer is in his heart, doubtless, though the words are not very regular or orthodox:—"Herr Gott, help me yet this once; let me not be disgraced in my old days! Or if thou wilt not help me, don't help those Hundsvoege [damned scoundrels, so to speak] but leave us to try it ourselves!"

DIOGENES being asked which beast's bite was the most dangerous, replied, "If you mean wild beasts, 'tis the slanderers; if you mean tame ones, the flatterers."

Follows without credit find it harder to get in debt than others to get out.

of Fall and Winter Goods is particularly attractive and the great feature to the country merchant is the unusually low prices.
Less than the Cost of Importation!
We also keep the STAPLE ARTICLES in the Dry
