How the Law Helps an Infamous Trade in Women.

A richly but badly dressed woman walked into the recorder's office yesterday afternoon. She was remarkably stout, short, and in both her manner and appearance showed her calling.

The document was a chattel mortgage in favor of the woman. The consideration on her side was $50. The other name which appeared in the mortgage was that of a young girl.

There was one clause in the mortgage mentioned which revealed the true inwardness of it—the words written under the printed word "Schedule." Here is what they were:

One trunk and contents, one seal sacque, one plush dress, one saton dress, three cloth dresses, one flannel dress, four cashmere dresses, four bonnets, fifteen suits of underwear, one extra muff and collar, five pair of shoes, stockings, ribbons, trinkets, etc., the above being all my wardrobe, kept and to be kept at—Broadway.

With these articles in someone else's possession, with not a shred of clothing she could call her own, for her to attempt to leave the house without the permission of the mistress of it would be for her to commit felony—to steal another's belongings. If she incurred the displeasure of the landlady she could be turned almost naked into the streets, without a cent to buy either food, clothing or lodging.

On the county records for every month many of such mortgages are recorded, many of them in the name of one landlady, whose eyes are ever open to the chance of making money and keeping it. The schedules of these mortgages are curious, both from the standpoint of the slavery they impose, and of the wardrobes they indicate.

Is Consumption Incurable?

Read the following: Mr. C. H. Morris, Newark, Ark., says: "Was down with absence of lungs, and friends and physicians pronounced me an incurable consumptive. Began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Am now on my third bottle, and able to oversee the work on my farm. It is the finest medicine ever made."

Electric Bitters.

This remedy is becoming so well known and so popular as to need no special mention. All who have used Electric Bitters sing the same song of praise. A pure medicine does not exist, and it is guaranteed to do all that is claimed. Electric Bitters will cure all diseases of the liver and kidneys, will remove pimples, boils, salt rheum and other affections caused by impure blood.

—Why people will continue to suffer from day to day, constantly complaining to their friends of pain in the back and loins, and with every symptom of that terrible scourge, Bright's disease, staring them in the face, is certainly a mystery when they might be made strong, healthy and happy by using Oregon Kidney Tea.

—Ladies, do not ruin your complexion by the use of poisonous cosmetics and face powders. If your face is red or sunburned; if you are so unfortunate as to have pimples or blotches on the neck and face, DuRard's Specific will not only cover them like a coat of paint, but will most effectively remove all blemishes from the skin and restore it to its natural youthful bloom.

The Washington territory pine forests are estimated to contain 100,000,000,000 feet. This is more than Michigan or Wisconsin ever had.

STATEHOOD CHAMPIONS.

The Untrusting Advocates Put Four New Stars in Our Flag.

A Review of the Movement on Behalf of the Admission of the Territories in the Far West.

We chronicle an epoch in American history. Four new states are added to the national sisterhood, and the far-reaching importance and effect of this mighty step toward the perfect development of our Union, and the consequent general interest centering in it, suggests the appropriateness of a review of those circumstances and of those determining influences which have brought to pass an event so pregnant in many ways with weighty effect on the future of the country at large.

WAR OVER SAMOA.

Admiral Porter Thinks We Are Well Prepared.

Money Will Build a Navy—If a Principle Is Involved It Is Worth Fighting for—A Slack-Made Impossible.

Admiral Porter, who has made a very careful study of the Samoan situation from a naval standpoint ever since the existing complications arose, is quoted by the Evening Star as having said recently: "A plea is worth fighting for if a principle is involved. The first war with Great Britain was for a principle, and it gave us our independence and national existence. The war of 1812 was for a principle, and gave us our maritime independence. The war with Mexico was for a principle and gave us our Pacific coast. The war for the restoration of the authority of the constitution and gave us a people, north and south, animated by a military spirit which will be equal to every possible requirement."

AN AGE OF WONDERS.

After Centuries of Bigoted Darkness, Light!

Every Assault Upon the Insuperable Citadel of True Science Adds Numbers to Its Cause.

The annihilation of calumny has been exploded. The deadly projectiles hurled and arrows broken at the feet of victory. And when Aurora's rays shall have pierced the smoke of the battlefield, the name of the histogenetic system of medicine will glitter a bright and imperishable star in the diadem of science, when those who tried to wind their slimy coils around the snowy throat have moldered in oblivion and their epitaphs have vanished from the face of the earth.

Our New Navy.

Unless unforeseen obstacles are encountered, within a few months after the beginning of the next fiscal year, July 1, contracts will have been let for the construction of new war vessels, which will in the aggregate increase the tonnage of the navy nearly 15,000 tons.

When Secretary Whitney relinquished his office he left as a legacy to his successor the responsibility for building eight new vessels, authority for whose construction was given by the fiftieth congress. The list includes three 2000-ton cruisers or gunboats, vessels somewhat larger than the Yorktown, just finished, and similar to that vessel in many respects, although embodying many new features. There will be two 3000-ton cruisers. These vessels will be smaller by 100 tons than the new cruiser Newark, but by law they are required to attain the extraordinary speed of twenty knots an hour.

The Convention of '92.

A Walla Walla student in local history has collected the following regarding the constitutional convention of 1892 and the reception of its work by the voters:

"The proposition for calling a convention to frame a state constitution, preliminary to asking for the admission of Washington territory to the Union, was first submitted to the voters of the territory by an act of the legislature, session of 1888-89, providing for a ballot upon the question at the June election of 1892. Failing to meet the favorable consideration of the people at that time, it was again submitted at the general elections of 1872 and 1874, and each time defeated. In 1876 the question was again submitted, and the people declaring in favor of such action, delegates were chosen, and the convention convened at Walla Walla, the second Tuesday in June, of 1878. After a session of forty days a constitution was framed, receiving the endorsement of the people at the general election of that year—the vote being 6462 for and 3231 against—a total of nearly 3000 less than the vote cast for delegates to congress. The records indicate that Walla Walla never lost an opportunity to take a stand against the measure. In 1860 she gave 24 votes for and 286 against, her total vote for delegate being 1124. In 1872 it was 57 for and 839 against; total vote for delegate, 1555. In 1874 her vote for delegate was 1549, and of this number only 300 were sufficiently interested to vote on the question of constitutional convention—236 voting against it. In 1876, those favoring the proposition numbered 85, while those opposed were 292; total vote for delegate, 938. Not satisfied with this record, Walla Walla refused to ratify the constitution by a vote of 847 to 89, the delegate vote totalizing 1226."

The New Cabinet.

James G. Blaine, the most distinguished statesman of America, heads the list, as most people assumed would be the case when Harrison was elected. Since he was the occupant of this position under the lamented Garfield he has traveled extensively in foreign lands. The information thus acquired added to previous attainments equipped him for dealing with matters coming before the department of state the most amply of any man in America.

The selection of William Windom for the treasury department has been so strongly urged and the arguments in favor of such selection have been dwelt upon at such length that little further mention of this appointment need be made. He, too, was a member of Garfield's official household and has a splendid record for conspicuous efficiency in every public position he has held. Redfield Proctor of Vermont has for several years been growing in strength in his state, and although some rivalry has existed between him and Senator Edmunds, it is not to be assumed that any affront to Edmunds was designed in his appointment. He is a lawyer by profession, but has devoted his attention to other matters of late years, and has grown wealthy as a dealer in Vermont marble. He is a strong man in New England. The selection is a good one, but it is unfortunate and not wholly fair to the Pacific coast that two representatives were given to New England and none to the great country lying west of the Rocky Mountains.
