WHEN WILL THE INDIAN RESERVATION BE OPENED?

The Great Canal of the Northern Pacific, Yakima & Kittitas Irrigation Company Christened in Champagne and Formally Opened, Saturday, March Twenty-sixth, Eighteen Hundred and Ninety-two--Distinguished Visitors Present.

California is the pioneer state in irrigation. There this great factor to prosperity was brought through Mexico from Spain along with the holy cross, by the Mission fathers, in the latter half of the last century. But for irrigation her fame would be confined to the products of the mines, and the fruits and wines which form so important a part in her prosperity would have no existence. With the gradual and pronounced decrease in the output of minerals she would become decadent in population and bereft of commercial importance but for the artificial distribution of water. The same undesirable condition has prevailed throughout much of Eastern Washington, only to a greater extent, for we had not even the producing and supporting mines to fall back upon. As late as the sixties all of that portion of Washington east of the Cascades was known under the generic name of the Walla Walla and Yakima countries, and was considered of little value except as a vast cattle range; in fact it has only been within the last few years that Yakima has been considered in the least from an agricultural or horticultural standpoint. 'Tis true that small patches of land along the streams were utilized for the growing of hay and vegetables, but it anyone had maintained that the higher lands and plains would some day be brought under successful cultivation, and that hops, alfalfa, fruit and vegetables were destined to crowd the cattle from the ranges, he would have been considered a visionary and a fit subject for public charge; but such has come to be the case, and the former sterile plains are now looked upon as the equal in productiveness of the historic gardens watered by the Po and the Nile. This condition has been brought about through the science of practical application of water to arid soil and the investment of capital.

As California is to the other states so Yakima is to the Northwest--the pioneer of irrigation. Here the first ditches were constructed for bringing the vivifying waters on the parched earth. The lines were run by persons who had little knowledge of surveying beyond the fact that water, under the great laws of nature, is bound to run down hill. As a consequence but small areas were watered by these simple contrivances. To-day all of this has changed, and the enterprise and skill of man has reclaimed and is reclaiming the millions of acres of land within the confines of Yakima county, and made it possible to build up in the center the thriving city of North Yakima, on which is now directed the eyes and admiring attention of tens of thousands of people who are looking for fairer skies and more fruitful lands than those around them. It is not one irrigation enterprise that we are depending upon for the purpose of making these broad valleys and great plateaus fulfill the prophecy of Isaiah and blossom as the rose, but a number in which aggregated capital has envied the city with great water courses, and with their laterals spread out like veins from the main arteries the trickling fluid permeates every arable section.

The interest in irrigation has just received a fresh stimulus through the completion and formal opening of the first 25-mile section of the great canal of the Northern Pacific, Yakima & Kittitas Irrigation company, which occurred on Saturday last. The announcement of the date of the ceremonies was very brief, but sufficient to attract a large throng of people, who, early in the morning, could be seen wending their way down the river road by every means of conveyance possible to be secured. Paul Schulze, president of the company, arrived in his special car on the 8 o'clock train from Tacoma, accompanied by a number of distinguished guests, including T. B. Wallace, president of the Fidelity bank; Theodore Hosmer, president of the Tacoma Light and Water company; George Browne, of the Tacoma Lumber company; I. W. Anderson, president of the Tacoma Land company; President Strong of the Eastman Kodak company, and Architect Pickles, who were desirous of witnessing the ceremonies and inspecting the great work, which is but the beginning of the most important system of irrigation canals in America. The intake of the canal, where the dams and headgates are located, is seven miles from North Yakima and within sight of the Two Buttes, the historic Indian battle grounds. There a platform had been built, and at 11 o'clock Hon. R. K. Nichols, as master of ceremonies, called the assembled people to order. His introductory remarks related mainly to the extent of the work, and the results which would accrue therefrom. To show the importance of the canal he made some calculations, taking as a basis the 75,000 acres to be watered by this means and the maximum amount of land which would be cultivated to the crops for which this land is especially adapted (4) acres to the farm. From these figures he found that there would be 187 farms supporting something like 20,000 producers and non-producers, and adding fifteen millions of dollars to the taxable wealth of Yakima county. Mr. Nichols words were interpolated with the applause of his audience, and he closed with a tribute to those enterprising and progressive gentlemen who were carrying on this great work, and with introducing as the next speaker Hon. Edward Whitson.

Mr. Whitson's Address.
Mr. Chairman and Ladies and Gentlemen: In this presence we may congratulate ourselves that the dream of the early settler has been realized and that the hopes of every citizen and friend of the county of Yakima has found fruition in the enterprise now about to be dedicated to the object of its creation.

First of all let honor rest like a crown upon the heads of those who, at a time of extreme stringency in monetary affairs had the financial ability; the masterful grasp; the courage and faith to carry to consummation this magnificent work. Of itself it will always suggest to even the casual observer the inquiry as to who were its projectors, and who carried it to successful completion, and, as its benefits become more apparent and its magnitude better understood, the future will yield as willingly its tribute as the present offers so earnestly its praise.

Like Egypt's Nile which seems to rise and fall as if at the behest of the gods for the beneficial use of her inhabitants, so will this stream, supplied by a million rivulets from melting snows, flow on its ages yet unborn, and, who shall say that at this time and this hour is not being performed the incipient act which in art, knowledge and civilization will make this the Egypt of the west.

We stand in view of historic ground, where Sheridan and Nesmith, both now sleeping with the heroic dead of earth, led the assault upon Fort Konnewock, and by this very spot the Indians in retreat were followed by the troops until upon yonder hill at Union gap, where the Yakima breaks so triumphantly through the mountains, there made another stand but at last yielded to the superior force of the government and acknowledged themselves a conquered people. It is true the supreme crisis followed later, but the battle here fought and the scenes there enacted led to the making of the treaty which ceded an empire to the government of the United States. This canal is located upon that cessation. That was an eventful time. It marked at epoch in the history of this region. The inhabitants became a conquered people, but it remained for the acts of peace to subdue the country. That event tragic, historic, long to be remembered in tradition and in song, was worse than useless but for this development now so auspiciously begun, and while we say of the heroic Sheridan and the noble Nesmith, both our own because their fame began with us, they filled to the fullest measure the duty of the time in which they lived, we also say to those now here present to see the consummation of this splendid enterprise, we honor you as well for subduing what they conquered, and by your efforts bringing its golden fruitage to the markets of the world.

How strange the coincidence that the great irrigation enterprise should begin in the locality where the Indians made such desperate endeavors to resist the advent of the whites into this country and that this canal should wind its sinuous course through Fort Konnewock, even now well preserved, a monument to the valor of the Indians; a remembrance to the bravery of our race. To me it is an omen of success. Even as the Indians were successfully vanquished, so now is the country effectually subdued, and the blessings of peace have followed the conquest of our arms, so that we may appropriately recall the poet's words--

"Peace has her victims, no less glorious than war."

This is a canal indeed; in its depth, its width, its carrying capacity it takes rank with the great irrigation canals of the country.

For ourselves be it said that its success is our success; its failure would have been our failure. This is but the beginning of a system which, when completed, will compare favorably with the notable irrigation enterprises of the world. It is fitting, then, that we celebrate this time, for no event in the history of this county has equalled in importance this occasion. The building of the Northern Pacific railroad in no way compares with it. Agriculture being the basis of wealth, this opens up that avenue to us.

Now here, standing upon one side of this splendid river, at one end of this splendid structure which reaches across its broad bosom, no better time, no opportunity nor occasion more fitting to speak of the domain that lies upon the other side. I only speak the common knowledge of all when I say that nothing within the state of Washington can compare for broad expanse in fertility and latent agricultural wealth with the Simcoe valley lying at our feet. But it is there only in name; in fact it is a forbidden land. The hand of enterprise may not touch it. The waters coursing across its bosom must flow unobstructed to the sea. You may in the distance enjoy its splendid background of landscape, but you cannot enter and make it yield by your magic touch its rich treasures to your charge. Mount Adams, in silent eloquence, looks down in mockery upon this worse than waste, that might be and must be made of benefit to man. And so I say, because the occasion and the scene before us seems to demand it, and because there are present those who could reclaim it and make it an empire contributing by its productions to your wealth. And so be it said a conquest is yours. A fair conquest, one upon the principles of justice. The thousand Indians who do not occupy this Yakima Indian reservation need not and may not long retain it from their fellow men.

Ladies and gentlemen, this river has flown onward unobstructed to the sea until seasons have ripened into cycles, and the hand of man has not stayed its flow. Now here the stream divides. Like some strange visitor in a foreign land this water shall find its way into the heart of the desert, and it shall be received as a welcome guest, and there shall rise up along its course a harvest for the reapers who shall follow in its wake.

Address by Hon. J. B. Reavis.
Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen: Nearly nine years ago Senator John R. Allen, Judges John P. Hoyt and R. O. Dunbar, now of the supreme court, Hon. Edward Whitson and myself each applied to Uncle Sam for 640 acres of desert land in the Sunnyside. Shortly afterwards came my first interview with the now president of the Northern Pacific, Yakima & Kittitas Irrigation company.

I was supremely enthusiastic in my description of the possibilities, and endeavored to spread out the prospective of the grand future of this fruitful valley when watered. We had then some surveys and estimates of the expense of the reclamation of our claims. All this I mentioned. I was encouraged in my estimate of the future, but my estimate of the cost of irrigation met a merry twinkle of the eye. We did not succeed. Uncle Sam, perhaps not trusting the sincerity of our intentions, got weary of waiting for our reclamation and cancelled our entries.

We all, with one exception, applied to the people of the state for different lines of business; but owing to some slight misunderstanding and differences of opinion among the people, the other gentlemen were engaged and your speaker was relegated to his efforts in desert land reclamation. I have seen that same twinkle in the eye of the president of the canal company today, but it is one of deserved triumph in the success of the grand enterprise which is today formally announced. It is the triumph of science generously supplied with vast outlays of money.

It is said that 3,000 years ago a tiny flower seed was imprisoned in an Egyptian mausoleum. Thirty centuries afterward, when restored to the sunlight in a generous soil on a foreign continent, from the liberated germ was born a beautiful flower which spread its bloom and odors for the delectation of a new race and civilization. The life and soul of fruits and cereals and flowers which have been hidden in this valley since a period older than Egyptian civilization, will now, by this vivifying current of the waters of the Yakima, arise to maintain and support thousands of happy and prosperous homes with all the comforts of advanced modern civilization. This is an epoch in central Washington. The ardent hopes, isolated and weary waiting of the pioneers are today realized. Over a century ago, when the way for civilization was first broken across the Alleghany mountains, among the first parties of hardy frontiersmen that trooped down upon the solitudes of an unpeopled land, a horseman alighted at the summit and silently put his ear to the ground. A comrade asked him what he was doing. "I am," said the prone advance guard, "listening to the tramp of the millions who are coming." Thus today, in the swirling sound of these waters, we may hear the tread of the thousands who will people this fair valley, and see the homes, schoolhouses and churches which will illustrate American pluck and enterprise. We will now witness the reunion of the land and the water, which have been separated since Noah's deluge.

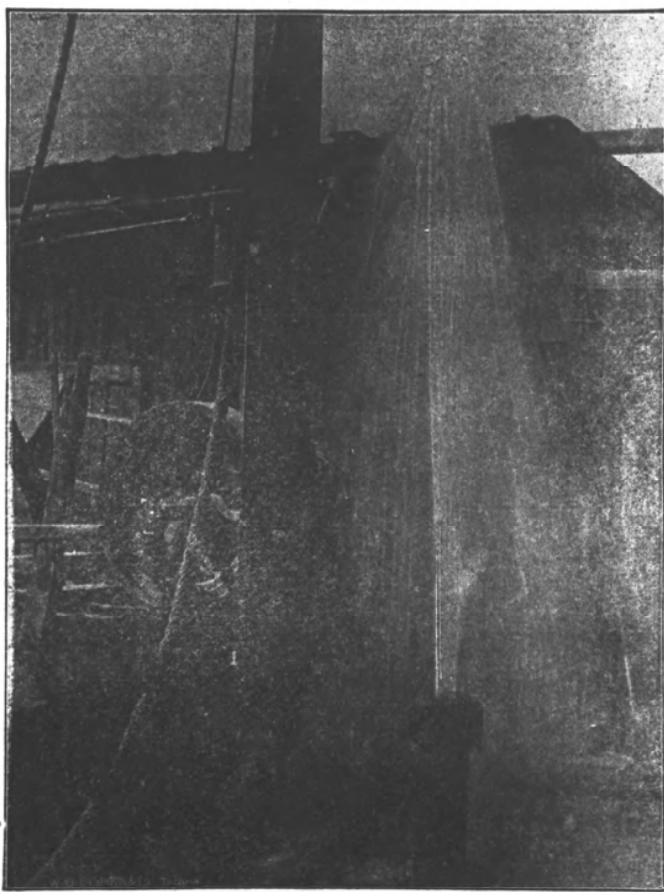

SECTION OF THE GREAT CANAL.

THE SPOUTING WELLS OF YAKIMA.

The Fertile High Lands of the Moxee Are Being Reclaimed by Means of Artesian Water.

An examination of geological indications has convinced intelligent men that there is an immense underground flow of water, at least in some localities, and it can only be utilized by boring. In Yakima county artesian wells have been talked of for many years, but it remained for a company, which included in its personnel H. B. Scudder, A. K. Hiscock, W. L. Steinweg and Fred R. Reed, to make the first practical test. Through purchase from the railroad company and by desert filings these gentlemen secured a large body of arid land in the upper Moxee valley, purchased drilling machinery and went actively to work in sinking wells. The business was new to them, and they had to overcome many obstacles of geological conditions which are only found in this section.

The initial well was started at a point thirteen miles from North Yakima, and at an altitude 260 feet higher. Water was struck in well No. 1, in August last, at a depth of 325 feet, and the accompanying illustration is from a photographic view taken while the machinery was yet around it. A test of the well was made shortly afterwards and the water was spouted over a stand-pipe thirty feet above ground. By actual measurement the volume of water from this well is 635,000 gallons per diem. Since that time two other wells have been drilled, and the company is now engaged in sinking the fourth. Well No. 3 has even a greater flow than that of the well shown in the illustration, and its depth is somewhat less.

ARTESIAN WELL NUMBER ONE.

This company, which is known as the Yakima Artesian Well & Land Company, proposes to have a flowing well on every quarter section of its holdings, and as the land is thus irrigated to dispose of it in small tracts suitable for orchards and hop growing.

The success of the efforts on the Moxee has stimulated others in this direction, and now there are several drilling machines in the county engaged in an endeavor to obtain flowing wells.

There are several points about this method of irrigation that commends it above all others. Once water is obtained there is no further expense beyond distributing it over the land. No fears of ditches breaking and no expense for repairs. It flows on without cessation unless the cap is adjusted; and the water is of a temperature varying from 70 to 80 degrees, being so warm that it will act as a force to the crops.

It is calculated that these wells will cost from one to two thousand dollars, and will each water 100 acres of land, while the difference in market value of unirrigated and irrigated lands is from twenty-five to forty dollars per acre.

Not only are the artesian wells of great material benefit to Yakima, but they have proven one of her best advertisements. People have come from all over the country to see them, and invariably they have expressed themselves as well repaid for the trip. The drive to and from the wells gives the sight-seer an opportunity to appreciate the Yakima valley.

At the close of Judge Reavis' address, which, like that of the preceding speaker, was frequently interrupted by applause, Hon. Gardner G. Hubbard, of Washington, D. C., was called to the platform. Mr. Hubbard's remarks were of a brief character, full of humor and good, hard sense, and he closed with a tribute of praise to Mr. Paul Schulze, through whose efforts the building of the canal was made possible.

In response to a general call Mr. Schulze addressed the audience briefly and in good taste. He thanked the people of Yakima for the reception accorded him, and the speakers for their complimentary words, but he disclaimed the right to appropriate to himself all the praise bestowed, for the great work accomplished was mainly due to the confidence that Mr. Willard, Mr. Oakes and other directors of the Northern Pacific had in the producing worth and the assured wealth and prosperity of Yakima. Mr. Schulze spoke of Mr. William Ker and Hon. Gardner G. Hubbard as the pioneer irrigators of Yakima county, and thought that a great amount of credit was due them for demonstrating the value of the practical handling of water on a large scale for irrigation purposes.

With the close of Mr. Schulze's remarks the master of ceremonies called for music by the band, and announced that Miss Dora Allen had consented to break a bottle of champagne over the headgates, which would be the signal for turning the waters of the Yakima into the canal. At this the people moved closer to the banks of the river, and with the lines

"Flow on thy liquid saviour of our land,
And blessings on you."

Miss Allen baptized the great work in a spray of champagne, and, as the headgates rolled up and the huge volume of water entered into the thirsty channel, the band struck up an appropriate air, the spectators showed their joy in lusty cheers, and the anvils gave notice to settlers far and near that the battle was won and the beautiful Sunnyside country conquered and ready to submit to the behest of the husbandman.

Universal history is little more than a record of the westward migration of eastern races in search of an earthly paradise. It was in this pursuit that the nomad Tartar crossed the Caucasus; it was for this that the Israelites persevered in the hard conquest of Canaan where the grapes of Eschol grew; and that the Greek voyagers sailed out boldly beyond the pillars of Hercules in search of the Islands of Hesperides. When America was discovered the imaginations of men fairly glowed with expectation. Desire strengthened credulity that somewhere on this continent was El Dorado with all its attractions of flowery fields, skies of eternal summer reign and fountains of perpetual youth. Fortune and life was lost in this quest, but the same hopes and the same pursuit, though with less glowing fancy and less credulity, has been continued down to this time. Westward has been the march of empires, and many attractive spots have been found, but none that promised more congeniality of climate or productiveness of soil, but for one thing, than the various sections of Yakima county. Mother Earth was rich in nutrients; the climate was equable; there was plenty of water in the streams, but there was the trouble--the rainfall was insufficient in quantity to insure successful crops. Clouds would gather and pass over, but there would be no precipitation to quicken the parched earth. Homeseekers would praise the climate and the richness of the soil, only to seek some other locality. Longing eyes were often directed towards the Sunnyside country because it was the broadest, and longest and one of the fairest divisions of this great country; but the natural obstacle of getting water on to the land, which seemed to be greater even than in other sections, made all hesitate. THE NEW MOVEMENT.

The early opening of the present spring accords well with the eagerness apparent on every hand to put new acreage in cultivation. Sagebrush fires light up the nights, and trainload after trainload of hop poles indicate an activity such as has never before been seen in this valley. It is no longer an uphill argument to convince farmers of the superiority of continuous sunshine with irrigation to the risks and vexations and losses of cloudy and uncertain weather. Many who went heedlessly over the sagebrush plains, even in the earlier days of settlement in the northwest, eager to acquire farms among the timber of the luxuriant coast on the west side, are now returning after a hard fight with stumps, preferring to pay for water to irrigate, and so get immediate results, rather than continue the warfare with rain and timber. The old parable of the stone rejected of the builders becoming the chief of the corner, applies to the situation when discussing the dry land that is being watered and cultivated so successfully in the Yakima valley. It used to be said, a few years ago, that we must look to California and Colorado—states where irrigation is in operation, and where it is understood for a population; that we could not expect newcomers from the east, where such a thing as a water-right for irrigation was never heard of; nor from the rainy counties on the west, where people get more moisture than they want without money and without price, to come here and buy both land and water. This supposition was erroneous, as time has shown. Those who come from the east are struck with the results and, being convinced by careful investigation, take hold readily enough, while our neighbors over the mountains are now our chief promoters. So accustomed are we to seeing them over here by the dozens that we fancy all absences from home in Seattle, Tacoma and Paylapp are explained by the three words, "Gone to Yakima."

These are the most propitious signs of the times with us. We have made a persistent fight of it with our irrigated fields and orchards. We have been up to Spokane and over to Tacoma with our products to record our doings in the great exhibitions at those places; and it is now a great satisfaction to see results in this incoming of people from other parts of our own state as well as from abroad.

There was a time when agriculture was avoided as promising return rather than other pursuits. Now the pendulum is swinging the other way. It is the one calling of all that is never overdone, and with a judicious variety of crops promises the quickest returns; and, with irrigation, the surest. The Yakima people can well afford to see the towns go slowly for a year or two longer while the country catches up. All have realized that the country must be permitted to come alongside; but not until recently did so many believe that the great agricultural revival would begin around Yakima so vigorously and so soon.

If congress will do, in proportion, half as much with the arid lands of the entire country, as Yakima is doing, then the face of the earth will see a great change in the next few years on this side of the Rocky mountains. There is just one thing to do with the arid land question, and that is to pour water upon it. Talk will never settle it.

The HERALD prints this week what we fondly consider a handsome number. It is full of illustrations of town and country, and shows that the people have not only been enterprising in building up the country and the city from a commercial point of view, but they have endeavored to live, and to enjoy the comforts of life. Fine residences have been built, and the intellectual and moral welfare of the coming generation of men and women provided for. Stately schoolhouses have been erected and a high standard of education maintained, and seven churches attest the interest taken in the cause of religion. Here law, order, thrift and enterprise are harmoniously interwoven, resulting in a condition that combines the good qualities of old settled communities with the liberality and vigor of the new west.

One of the results of Gardner G. Hubbard's visit to Yakima was the decision to plat the unimproved lands of the Moses company, and dispose of them in small tracts to actual settlers. The home farm, consisting of 600 acres, will be maintained intact and devoted, as now, to the growing of fruits, alfalfa and hops. The lands to be sold embrace three thousand acres, all of which is under water, and so near to North Yakima as to prove a very important factor in its development and prosperity.

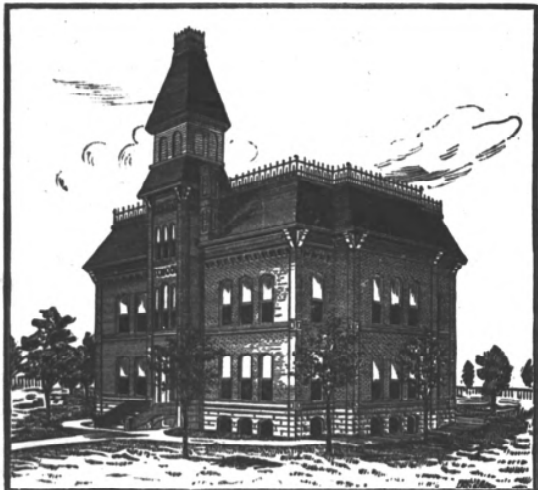

One of the best indications of the new era of prosperity for Yakima is the large acreage devoted to hops. Heretofore the combined area of the hop yards of this county amounted to only about four hundred acres, while this year the new acreage figures up to considerably over one thousand acres, and may reach fifteen hundred. In three years from now, Yakima will ship more hops than any other section of the northwest.

SENATOR HILL, if he is reported correctly in the eastern newspapers, will not be a candidate for the presidential nomination. This would leave the nomination practically between Cleveland and Palmer with the odds strongly in favor of the former. It looks now as though the leaders of the last campaign would again be pitted against each other.

NOT A VENTURE BUT AN INVESTMENT.

This is the Great Irrigation Enterprise Looked Upon by One of Seattle's Most Prominent Men.

SEATTLE, Wash., March 26, 1892. FRIEND REED, OF THE YAKIMA HERALD, NORTH YAKIMA, WASH.:—In anticipation of the opening of the great water ditch today, and prompted by the deep interest I have always felt in the affairs of the Yakima country, I desire to express my hearty congratulations to the good people of Yakima upon this very important event in the history of the country. I regret that matters here prevented me from being personally present at the opening exercises.

That the Yakima country is destined to be great and rich, no one who is acquainted with its vast agricultural resources for a moment doubts; and some of us who have waited a good many years—and all of us in truth—with a strong faith in the ultimate outcome, holding our interests there, feel great pride in every advance toward the certain prosperity.

That this great enterprise is being pushed to completion with so much energy, and at such an enormous outlay of money by these far-seeing business men, evidences that it is not a venture, but an investment sure to bring large returns, abundantly guaranteed in advance by the broad miles of rich plains which they will water, well known to these enterprising gentlemen to be capable, by reason of the favorable climate, of the very highest state of cultivation attainable in the temperate zone.

This great enterprise and many similar ones contemplated, coupled with the equally important discovery of what seems an inexhaustible supply of artesian water, seems to offer a sufficient guarantee of the greatness and coming importance of Yakima county and consequent growth and prosperity of the pretty city of North Yakima. To all of which it is with great pride I testify. Yours very truly, A. W. ENGLE.

Land Office Proceedings.

The commissioner has ordered a hearing in the coal contest by Alvah Churchill's widow against the coal cash entry of J. W. Livvite. This is on an application of contest filed June 23, 1890, by Churchill, and the hearing will open up the same old questions that were traversed in the coal cases on trial at the land office for the best part of last summer. No time has yet been set.

The contest between the N. P. R. R. vs. Robert S. Morgan was decided Tuesday at the local land office in favor of Morgan. This has been pending several years, and the decision is on a rehearing had last fall. In granting the rehearing the secretary of the interior indicated that the finding should be for Morgan if the affidavits accompanying the motion were sustained as to material facts at the rehearing. This contest involves the Morgan homestead in Wide Hollow. It is a farm worth several thousand dollars.

The contest of George L. Bounds vs. Wessal Maywald has been decided by the commissioner of the general land office in favor of Maywald. This is an affirming of the decision of the local office, and leaves Maywald in possession of the timber culture claim he bought from John Reed.

ANOTHER PIONEER PASSES AWAY.

Death of Rev. Isaac A. Flint on Monday—La Grippe Carries Off an Old Citizen of Yakima County

The tolling of the bell of the Christian church on Monday morning carried to many the knowledge of the death of Rev. Isaac A. Flint, one of the pioneers of the Yakima valley and the founder and first minister of the Christian church of Yakima City, at the age of 76 years. About a year ago Mr. Flint suffered from an attack of pneumonia, from which he never fully recovered. And when five weeks ago he was taken down with la grippe he realized that his end was near, and gave instructions regarding his funeral which he desired to be of a simple character and without ostentation.

Mr. Flint's life was an eventful one, he having been one of the early pioneers of the Pacific coast, and participated in the stirring scenes of those times. He was born in Chenango county, New York, and crossed the plains to California in 1845. The next year he journeyed to Oregon, but returned to California in '47, and engaged in mining for a couple of years; then again moving to Oregon he settled in Polk county, remaining until 1852, when he went to Wisconsin. Recrossing the plains the following year he settled on lands in the Umpqua valley, in southern Oregon, where he lived for several years, moving from there to the Willamette valley, and thence to Yakima in '68 or '70.

The deceased has been preaching ever since 1863, and it was largely through his efforts that the present Christian church was built, he having wielded the hammer and saw in its construction, and cut most of the shingles that yet cover the building. Mr. Flint was married twice and leaves a family of six children—P. J. Flint, Eugene Flint, A. L. Flint of Ellensburg, Albert Flint, Mrs. Joseph Fairbrook and Mrs. T. H. Look, to mourn the loss of a father who was greatly respected by all, and whose strong individuality and force of character left its imprint on the community in which he lived for so long.

JIM HILL GETS THE YAKIMA FEVER.

He Will Make Us a Visit, and As a Result the Great Northern May Come Here.

Rumors are multiplying regarding the engineers of the Great Northern working in the Natchez and Cowitz passes, and of the quiet visits of officials of that road to Yakima, but there is nothing more definite or encouraging than the following extract written by a distinguished member of the World's fair commission to one of our citizens:

"I came home so enthusiastic over Yakima that I partially communicated it to President Hill, whom I met upon the following evening. I told him of those immense valleys and the grand possibilities for that country. He promised to look the situation over at an early day, and if, in his estimation, it had not been overrated he would build in there. The road runs within forty-five miles of Yakima, and they can easily build a branch."

Fenn B. Woodcock, of the Athanum, has advertised to make final proof on the homestead filed on by his son Charles, who died more than a year ago.

Nelson Short has purchased Scott Kremer's interest in the Churchill saloon, which will hereafter be conducted by Mr. Short and Andrew Popovich.

Lombard & Horsley have received an immense and well selected stock of wall papers. Give them a call before buying elsewhere.

A Newspaper Critic. It is certain that journalism has no severer critics than those of those who are found in its own ranks. The other day a man who works on an evening sheet was asked something about an article that had appeared in that paper. He knew nothing about it. "What!" said his questioner, "don't you read your own newspaper?" "Read my own paper?" he answered scornfully, "that reminds me of the story of Bobbs and Jinks, you know. They were Bohemians and had got dreadfully run down. One day Bobbs went into a horribly cheap restaurant and sat down at a table to order a meal, when up rushed Jinks in a waiter's apron to get his order. Bobbs was struck nearly dumb, but he managed to blurt out, 'Good heavens, Jinks! you don't mean to tell me—' Jinks looked at him very loftily. 'I wait here,' said he, in a cringing tone, 'but I don't eat here!' The inquirer was left to make his own application of the story. He had no difficulty in doing so.—Boston Transcript.

Retelling a Straight Remark. We heard a friend speak of a little episode in the W. C. T. U. meetings when Miss Willard, the president, was presented with an acre of land on Mount Desert, state of Maine, and upon receiving the gift thanked the W. C. T. U. and the Maine-lads who were so generous. Our friend remarked, "Miss Willard was very happy in her reply, and expressed her gratitude to the W. C. T. U. and the other inmates who so kindly remembered her."—Congr. 2. 10-tf

Easter Millinery Opening.

Mrs. W. L. Conolly will hold her annual opening of spring millinery at her store on First street on Thursday and Friday, April 5th and 6th, to which she extends a cordial invitation to the ladies of Yakima. Mrs. Conolly has received a large stock of all the latest fashions in hats, trimmings and fabrics and is prepared to furnish the very latest conceptions in Easter millinery.

Warning to Fishermen.

You are hereby warned, if you will go a fishing and not have the proper appliances for catching the finny tribe you will be sure to have the fisherman's luck, but if you first repair to W. H. Royal Baking Powder ABSOLUTELY PURE

Jack Frost has made his appearance here in the last week, but according to reports from the Moxee, Konecok, Altatum and other sections of this country, no injury has resulted.

Edward Hensley was taken in charge by Deputy Marshal Ryan, on Friday last, for vagrancy. Hensley is only 13 years old, and when brought before Justice Gardner that official wisely concluded to turn him over to Judge Graves to be examined as a candidate for the state reform school.

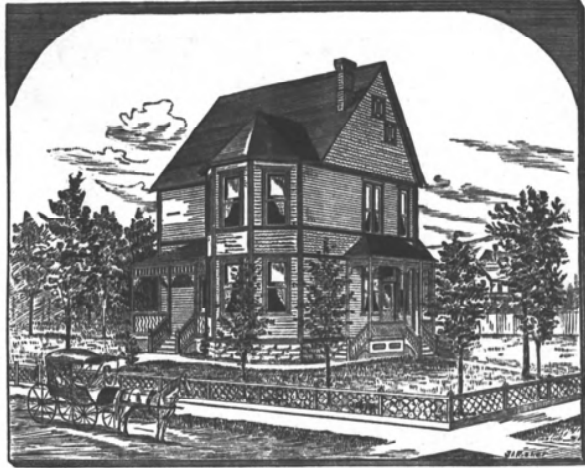

The regular quarterly communion service at the Presbyterian church will be held next Sunday evening at 10:30. Members of both the Presbyterian and Congregational churches are requested to be present.

About $15,000 was realized from the sale of the state school lands Monday. In section 34, township 13, range 18 E, Charles H. Lombard bought lot 1, consisting of 10 acres, at $70 per acre; Charles Kinney, lot 2, 10 acres, at $100; O. V. Carpenter, lot 3, 10 acres, at $110; James Casers, lot 4, 10 acres, at $104; Russell W. Rock, lot 5, 10 acres, at $45; G. W. Roberts, lot 6, 10 acres, at $54.

On Saturday night of last week T. Sanford retired to bed in the McGlothlen house with the happy consciousness of being the possessor of a good suit of clothes and $30 in money. He slept the sleep of the righteous, and when he awoke in the morning and looked around he began to think that he "had 'em."

George M. VanDoren, of Seattle, sent a handsome buggy to R. J. Frazier this week. Mr. Frazier is managing Mr. VanDoren's large interests here and is superintending the planting of his 100 acres in the Sunnyside country to corn.

Lester Knapp and several companions expect to leave the latter part of the week for the Okanogan country on a prospecting trip.

RESIDENCE OF GEORGE DONALD.

The purchase by the canal company of the land in school section No. 35, township 11 north, range 30 east, gives color to a belief that has been held for some time that the Sunnyside town will be on the river or just back from it, on section 25, at this point.

Yakima is attracting much attention abroad and is receiving more favorable mention from the press than any other section of the northwest. That this is having a beneficial effect is evidenced by the fact that representatives of the C. B. & Q. (Midland Pacific) and the Union Pacific railroads have recently been here to look over the situation, and we have the assurance of a visit from Jim Hill, of the Great Northern, in the near future.

A dispatch regarding hops from New York city says that 24 cents is bid for Washington's, June delivery.

J. L. Smith has returned from the sound and states that the settlement of the question of continuing right along with the work on the big ditch will be made within the next few days.

The celebration of the completion of the first section of the N. P. Yakima & K. Irrigation canal was concluded Saturday night at the Yakima club. Members of the club and Mr. Schulze and his friends were present and the entertainment was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The new Baptist church will be formally dedicated on Sunday next. Rev. Mr. Propper, the Baptist state missionary, will be present on this occasion.

ANNA STONE, Plaintiff, vs. HENRY T. STONE, Defendant.

The State of Washington to the above named Defendant.

You are hereby notified that Anna Stone, Plaintiff, has filed a complaint against you in the Superior Court of Yakima County, State of Washington, at North Yakima, which will come on to be heard sixty days after the first publication of this summons, to-wit: sixty days after the 25th day of February, 1892, and unless you appear and answer the same on or before the 27th day of April, 1892, the same will be taken as confessed and the prayer of said complaint granted.

The object and prayer of said complaint is to obtain an absolute divorce from the bonds of matrimony existing between the Plaintiff and the Defendant.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Superior Court, at the City of North Yakima, Washington, this 24th day of February, A. D. 1892.

YAKIMA COUNTY BOOMS!

Not as a Speculative Proposition, but as a Solid and Legitimate Agricultural growth. And why? Because Yakima County has

The Soil & Climate, Abundance of Water for Irrigation, Geographical Position, Cash Markets for Produce in All Directions.

The Public is Beginning to Find Out

That Yakima County has some other Resources than Coyotes and Real Estate Agents.

That it is the Home of the Peach, Plum, Pear, Grape and Apple.

That we grow Six Tons of Alfalfa to the Acre during the Season.

That the choicest Vegetables grown in Washington are raised here.

That it is the Hop-growing section of the State, producing 2000 Pounds to the Acre.

That every Citizen of Yakima County who Rustles and Saves, is Prosperous.

That a Crop is never lost here by Pests.

That Cyclones, Tornadoes and violent Storms are unknown.

That great Irrigation Companies are spending millions of dollars reclaiming our Arid Lands.

That 40 Acres of our Volcanic Ash Soil, well handled, will net more money each year than 160 Acres in the Middle West.

That YAKIMA COUNTY IS TO-DAY THE BANNER AGRICULTURAL COUNTY OF THE STATE!

To the Home-Seeker

UTILIZING NIAGARA FALLS WATER POWER.

Buffalo, N. Y., to Be Lighted With Electricity Through Power generated by These Great Falls.

The problem of the utilization of the power of Niagara falls has long been a fruitful source of study for engineers and of infinite speculation for laymen. A company has just been organized whose object is to transmit power from the falls sufficient to light Buffalo. A scheme has been perfected whereby an equivalent of 103,000 horse-power can be used for that purpose. The plant will be located near the falls.

The central feature of the work is the great tunnel, 7,250 feet long, which will form the tail of the race, starting from the river at just above the water level below the falls, and running under the village of Niagara, at a depth of about 200 feet below the surface of the ground, the upper end of the tunnel being beneath a large tract of land the company has purchased adjacent to the river bank above the village. Over 1,400 acres of land has thus been acquired and laid out by the company in mill sites, and for the necessary surface canals, through which water will be supplied from the river to the various wheel pits, all of the latter being connected by lateral tunnels with the main discharge tunnel.

The tunnel has somewhat of a horse-shoe shape, being 19 feet wide and 21 feet high inside of the brickwork, with which it is to be lined throughout, and having a cross sectional area of 386 square feet for its entire length. The total amount of excavation, including that necessary for the timbering and brickwork, represented a cross sectional area of 522 square feet.

The base of the tunnel at its discharge point in the river bank below the falls is 205 feet below the sill of the headgate at the entrance of the main canal from the river above the falls, which represents the total fall, of which it is expected that about 140 feet will be practically utilized, the difference being taken up by a liberal allowance for clearance from the wheel pits, incline of the lateral tunnels leading therefrom to the main discharge tunnel, and the incline of the latter, which is made at a grade of 36 feet to the mile. To prevent damage to the tunnel by the immense rush of water it is lined on the invert and sides for a distance of 200 feet back from the discharge point with closely fitting cast iron plates, there being a heavy cast iron frame at the mouth, and the tunnel is lined throughout, including the invert, with four courses, or sixteen inches of brick.

would be but a rash judgment which would undertake to say that it might not also, in the very near future, be similarly carried as far as New York city in a way to be utilized at far less expense than the present cost of steam power.

"Beauty" may be "only skin deep;" but the secret of a beautiful skin is pure blood. Those coarse, rough, pimply complexions may, in most cases, be rendered soft, smooth, and fair by the persevering and systematic use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

THE HUNDREDS OBLIVIOUS ALMOST A CURE-ALL.

The Prunes of This Vegetable Sounded by a Devotee-It is a Drug Store on a Small Scale.

They are invaluable for soaps. They are blood purifiers. A liberal use of them is recommended as a cure for boils, and they tend to make the complexion clear and the face free from pimples. The children of those nationalities who eat of them most largely noticeably escape that bane of childhood, worms. Their use is beneficial to the digestive organs; they are excellent in diseases of the bladder and kidneys; are of benefit in liver complaints, and their power for good in lung troubles is well known. They are the best cure for insomnia.

A favorite remedy for a cough is a syrup made by alternating slices of raw onions with white sugar. Cut a large onion, horizontally, into thin slices, put one in a dish, sprinkle sugar over it, then add another slice of onion, building it up thus by layers until all are used. Cover the dish. About once in three hours a teaspoonful of syrup will have formed, which should be taken at intervals of about this length throughout the day.

Hot poultices made of onions and mixed with goose oil have been used advantageously in croup. Roasted onions are sometimes bound on the feet and placed upon the chests of little ones suffering from the effects of a cold. Placed raw upon a cloth, then beaten to a pulp, bandaging with this the throat and well up over the ears, they have given relief in cases of diphtheria.

Derivations of Some Common Names

Blankets, it is said, were named after their first makers, three brothers of Bristol, England, named Edward, Edmund and Thomas Blanket, who established a large trade in this article of woolen goods, and were the earliest manufacturers of it in the fourteenth century.

Cambrics, we are told, came from Cambria, a town in French Flanders famous for its fine linens; and damask originated in Damascus.

Calico is derived from Calicut, on the Malabar coast, and muslin from Mousoul, a city of Asiatic Turkey, giving evidence that though these goods are now sent to India and the East they were originally imported there.

COLONEL PROSSER ADVANCED A FEW.

In New York He Was a General and Gives Newspaper Men His Views on the Coming Revolution.

Carson Lake in New York Press.
Writing of the South I am reminded of a talk I had recently with General W. F. Prosser, of the new state of Washington, who lived in Nashville until thirteen years ago, having settled down there after the war. General Prosser represented the Nashville district in Congress for one term, and is a republican with philanthropic views of the necessity of educating the colored race in the south. In talking with me about republican disasters in the country at the last congressional election General Prosser said:

"I cannot but think that the disasters to republicanism through the north have come more from their neglect of the black race in the south and in their failure to maintain the black man's right as a citizen to vote and have his vote properly counted than to any other cause that can be named. The McKinley prices cry was as nothing compared to the feeling in the hearts of old Republicans that the party had lost its courage, its vitality and its many qualities of aggressiveness because it had left the colored voters of the south to the mercy of their old masters. The north has been simply reaping the whirlwind, which was sown in the neglect of the colored vote of the south. The democrats in that section have such absolute power, undisputed from any source, on a representation in which the colored votes comprise three-fifths or more of the total, that they have impregnated on their fellow democrats of the north the belief that they too, can rob the people of the north of their rights as citizens with impunity. You had an example of it in New York within the last three months. There must be a revolution against such outrages on the laws and the ballot boxes. My own fear is that it will come in the south sooner than in the north, and that it will be bloody beyond conception. Every week we hear of lynchings and shooting of black men accused of crime by lawless mobs who are not opposed by the authorities when they seek their victims in the jails or penitentiaries. The black men are as much entitled to fair trial as citizens, as they grow in education and lack of fear they are certain to assert their rights and retaliate in kind where mobs attack their fellows simply because they are black. They are in a vast majority in many states of the south, and their intelligence will not submit long to the outrages from which they suffer."

A Share Old Book.

The second book printed in the English language was The Game and Playe of the Chess, which the title page says was "Fynished the last day of Marche, the yer of our lord god a thousand four hundred and LXXIII." Only twelve copies of the work are now known to exist.

In 1813 an Englishman by the name of Aichorne sold his copy for a sum equal to $270 of United States currency. Fifty-six years later, in 1869, the same volume (an imperfect copy) was sold for $2,150. The British museum has refused an offer of $10,000 for their copy, which is imperfect to the extent of having seven leaves missing.

A LONDON MAN WITH A JAW OF IRON.
He Entertains People by Lifting an Elephant Weighing Almost a Ton With His Teeth.

London has been entertained lately by feats of strength that are certainly remarkable, and probably unsurpassed in modern times. Sullivan, the latest comer, is 33 years of age, stands 5 feet 8 1/2 inches in height and weighs 168 pounds. His appearance presents little that is unusual in the way of muscular development, and his biceps are neither very large or rigid. It is in his neck and jaw that his strength chiefly lies, and the majority of his feats are such as bring this peculiarity into special prominence.
At an exhibition given in London he fastened a chain to a 50-pound weight, and the other end being gripped between his teeth, swung himself round and round until the twirling chain assumed a nearly horizontal position. The feat was repeated with the weight doubled, and as the performer, with both hands to his hips and using every sinew in his frame, swirled round and round, the audience wondered with anxiety what would happen if one of the links should fly asunder. The most remarkable feat, however, that Sullivan performed was the lifting of an elephant by his teeth.
It was a "baby" 'tis true, but it weighed about 1,500 pounds, and it was lifted a clear three inches from the ground, its whole weight pendent from the jaw of the man above. Sullivan was not successful in an attempt to break a chain with his arm, having injured this limb on the previous night. He succeeded, however, in proving that his prowess was not entirely confined to feats with his teeth by lifting a barrel of water weighing 600 pounds with the middle finger of his right hand.
A Cincinnati man sold a piece of land for $2.25, which was described in the deed as follows: "The 1-1000 part of an inch from the northeast corner of lot No. 23 and running south one-fourth of an inch; thence west to the back line of said lot; thence north one-fourth of an inch; thence east to point of beginning."

A BRIEF AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF CARNEGIE.

The Steel King Tells the Story of His Struggles and Successes Since Coming to America.

Andrew Carnegie, being interviewed by a reporter in San Francisco, was asked the true story of his struggles since coming to America. He thus laconically and epigrammatically responded: "Scotch by birth; American in every other way. Born in the village of Dumfries 66 years ago. Schooling amounted to nothing. Parents poor. Both worked as weavers. Came to America when but 13 years old. Settled at Pittsburgh. Errand boy on Pennsylvania railroad. Picked up telegraphy; in three years became assistant telegrapher. Persevered. Became chief operator when 18 began to save money. "Joined now with brother Tom and bought small iron foundry. Began manufacture of smelting furnaces. Called them Lucy No. 1 and Lucy No. 2. Success enormous. Extended business on all sides.

"Became a millionaire by introducing steel rails in the country. In two years monopoly of the business. Got contracts for equipping all the large American systems with steel rails. Ran the price of rails from $900 down to $25 a ton to beat competitors. In the latter part of seventies made money at the rate of $2,000,000 a year. Now worth between $30,000,000 and $35,000,000. Besides American manufacturing own syndicate of papers published in small English towns. "Ambition ten years ago to build and own reproduction of old baronial castle in Pennsylvania. Bought the lands; had plans drawn; on death of mother abandoned the idea. Promised her when a boy never to marry while she lived. Kept promise. Married two years after her death. Wife 20 years younger; is an American lady."

EPOCH MAKING WORDS OF GREAT MEN.

What They Are Said to Have Remarkd At the Most Critical Moments of Their Lives.

The battle of the Nile was fought August 1, 1798, between the French and English fleets. Sir Horatio Nelson was in command of the latter, and as the engagement was about to begin he exclaimed: "Victory or Westminster Abbey!"

When Charles IX. of Sweden, at the age of 19 years, fought and defeated a large body of Russians at Narva in 1700, Peter the Great, who led his army, had several horses shot under him, and while exchanging a dead steed for a more useful one after a repetition of the occurrence, he remarked: "These people seem disposed to give me exercise." And events proved the truth of this prophecy.

The mace is an emblem of authority, and in use in our congress as well as in the English parliament, and though it is merely a symbol it commands respect. But it was never so insulted as when Oliver Cromwell stalked into the English house to disperse the members and dissolve the parliament. The mace lay in its regular place, and when Cromwell saw it he must have sneered at the petty symbol, for he called one of his soldiers and ordered: "Take away that bauble." So, as the mace was carried out, the doors were locked and parliament effectually dissolved.

The message of Commodore Perry is better known. The battle of Lake Erie had taken place, and the British fleet was defeated. Then the commodore sent to General Harrison, grandfather of the present president, his famous dispatch: "We have met the enemy, and they are ours." It was but a little longer than Caesar's, "I came, I saw, I conquered."

Ammonia—Physicians Opposed to Its Use.

The Sanitary Era of New York in its November number has the answers of numerous physicians all over the country to its question: "Do you consider advisable the habitual use of food in any degree qualified by ammonia?" Over a thousand replies have already been received, and the Era says they are still coming in, and that they are unanimously in the negative—many of them stating the particular harm to the kidneys, stomach, nervous system, etc., occasioned by the drug.

The Indianapolis Independent says editorially, that these opinions are entitled to special consideration because they were published in the Era, being obtained by the editor, W. C. Conant, solely in the interest of the public, and further states that "no corporation is powerful enough to buy an utterance in its columns, or prevent one when in the opinion of its editor one should be made."

The question is of great importance in view of the many baking powders containing either ammonia or alum, or both, and the Era does not hesitate to place what it terms the principal offenders on the "front seat," so that they may be better viewed by the public and avoided in the future. Those thus pilloried are: Royal, Calumet, Davis' O. K., Atlantic and Pacific, Kenton, Patapaco, Silver Star, Dry Yeast, Bon Bon, Zipp's Grape Crystal.

Then follows a list of about 200 other less important brands which are all tainted with either ammonia or alum.

Honest workmanship is the best advertisement C. E. McEwen can have for his harness, bridles and saddles. They are cheaper than inferior articles because they have the lasting qualities and always look well.

A SMALL BOY'S ESSAY ON COLUMBUS.

Johnny in "Harper's Young People"—His Version of the Great Discovery.

Columbus was a great man; is known even now for miles around, although it is over 400 years since he immigrated and discovered the United States. He was very fond of finding out things, and the roundness of the earth like an orange or a ball is due to him. He also made an egg sit up, which is harder, my mother says, than making boys do the same in church like me. I wish my father was more like Columbus's must have been, for when I tried to make an egg stand up on end he told me to stop right away or he'd send me to bed. Who knows what country I might discover if my parents did not discourage me right in the beginning, just as I was ready to start out and begin to commence?

Columbus didn't have a much easier time than I do though. Everybody thought he was crazy, and several times he was incarcerated behind prison bars for various things, and once he came before a large number of people in chains. He fell in with King Ferdinand and Isabella, who gave him enough to pay his fare over to the United States, which he went to, though it was slow work, and some of the sailors said let a go back, but he wouldn't, which was good for us, for if he had where would we be living now? In Turkey, maybe, where the people ain't Christians, but Mauselema, and are ruled by sultans, who get elected because their fathers have just died and are thrashed every fifty years by the aristocrat of all the Russians, which would be terrible.

Columbus was nearly three months crossing the ocean in three boats. He set sail August 3, 1492, at 8 o'clock in the morning, and the cyclopaedia says the first thing he did was to weigh his anchor, though it never says why. Then he sailed right ahead for three days, when he broke his rudder and had to go to Africa to have it fixed, which delayed him some and the crew got mutinous, which he immediately put a stop to and set out again, this time keeping it up until he got to America, where he planted his flag and said: "Oh, never mind about that," to the mutinous sailors, who said they were sorry they had been mutinous.

Then he kissed the beach and told the proprietor it belonged to King Ferdinand and Isabella, but the proprietor never murmured. Then he went back to see King Ferdinand and Isabella, who made him round shouldered with riches and honors, which Columbus liked so much that he started out again and discovered America several times more before he died; but it got monotonous to people after a while, and for a while Columbus ceased to be a great man, even King Ferdinand and Isabella going back on him. He died in 1506 and had several fine funerals.

Remedy for Scald.

Here is an excellent remedy for the scald: Place 10 pounds of lime and 20 pounds of sulphur in a boiler with 20 gallons of water, and boil for one and a half or two hours, or till the sulphur is dissolved into an amber-colored solution. Strain through cloth, and spray. Use only in winter when trees are dormant, but as early in the season as possible. Less lime may be used if thought advisable.

How Railroads Make Their Maps.

The railway official called the young man into his office and asked sharply: "Did you draw this map?" "Yes, sir," replied the young man. "And you call yourself an expert in your line!" said the official with ineffable disgust. "Why, sir, I have devoted years to the study of it, and I was particularly careful with that map. Everything was measured off, even to the hundredth of an inch. I wouldn't have thought a geographical society could have found a flaw in it."

"You wouldn't!" exclaimed the official. "Why, you don't know the first principles of the business. Look here!" He laid the map down on the desk. "Here is Podunk and here is Jonesboro. They are the terminal points." He took a rule and a pencil and drew a straight line from one point to the other. "Now put the other cities on that line," he said. "But, sir, the inaccuracies—" "No 'buts' about it. This is our railroad map. Let the other roads do the zig-zag rail fence act. That's the science of this business."

Saved from Death by Onions.

There has no doubt been more lives of children saved from death in croup or whooping cough by the use of onions than any other known remedy. Our mothers need to make positives of them, or a syrup, which was always effectual in breaking up a cough or cold. Dr. Gunn's Onion Syrup is made by combining a few remedies with it which makes it more effective as a medicine and destroys the taste and odor of the onion. 50c. Sold by Janek's Pharmacy.

A WONDERFUL VARIETY OF PATENTS

Novel Devices for the Benefit of Mankind—Inventive Talent Directed into Curious Channels.

During the first fifty years of the patent office there were only 12,412 patents granted. Last year 22,083 were issued. Their variety is wonderful.

The approach of fly time suggested an idea of a cow tail holder. A clamp like a clothes pin catches the bushy end of the tail and two cords with a snap attachment fasten the tail to the cow's leg, to a post or to a milking stool. The same day that the Nebraska man got a patent for a cow tail holder in Maine got one for the same purpose. The Maine man's tail holder is of a single piece of wire coiled so as to connect the tail with the cow's leg. "A candle for killing insects" is a mixture of insect powder and tallow or something else that will burn, moulded round a wick.

The wife of President Jackson is said to have once accounted to the British minister for a bad cold in the head by telling him that "the General had kicked the kivers off" the night before. But there seems to be no longer any excuse for people who "kick the kivers off," as a clamp and a spring are now patented for attachment to the bedstead. By this simple device the covers are fastened down. The spring gives sufficient play so that there is no danger of one getting chucked in the act of turning over.

Any one might guess that a Kentucky man is entitled to the credit attached to the invention of "a combined inkstand, pistol case and barular alarm." No Kentucky editor's desk should be without it. A hand car which moves along the track and nows seeds fifteen feet away is one of the innovations in railroad machinery. It will do very well to go with the rotary snow plow as an illustration of automatic intelligence.

"August Flower"

Perhaps you do not believe these statements concerning Green's August Flower. Well, we can't make you. We can't force conviction into your head or medicine into your throat. We don't want to. The money is yours, and the misery is yours; and until you are willing to believe, and spend the one for the relief of the other, they will stay so. John H. Foster, 1122 Brown Street, Philadelphia, says: "My wife is a little Scotch woman, thirty years of age and of a naturally delicate disposition. For five or six years past she has been suffering from Dyspepsia. She became so bad at last that she could not sit down to a meal but as soon as she had eaten it. Two bottles of your August Flower have cured her, after many doctors failed. She can now eat anything, and enjoy it; and as for Dyspepsia, she does not know that she ever had it."
