Senator Bradwell, who lives at Hinesville, is kept constantly informed as to the latest developments in the case.

"This man," he said, "appeared suddenly six weeks ago. He proclaimed himself the Son of God, and the negroes went mad over him. They descrete their fields to follow him. and now things are so bad that it is impossible to get hands sort the plantations near Riceborough. The colored people kneel before him and struggle with each other for the privilege of kissing his feet. He has told them that the Judgement Day will be here on the 16th of August. He says the white people have enjoyed the paradise on earth for the last eighteen centuries, and now it will be turned black and every black man white. He says his body was bornthirty years ago in Ohio, but that his soul has been since the world began. On the 28th of June he was arrested for vagrancy, but it was impossible to hold him on such a charge as he had a quantity of money in his possession. If he were to be arrested now, 500 negroes would be ready to go on his bond, and the women would tear the building down where he was confined with their fingers to get him out. The physical culture of the world has in all times been the simple expression of a desire to recreate the perfect man. The Olympian games and other manly sports of Greece were with a view to the true hero and to producing the model of manly strength and beauty. Modern theletics, such as matches of strength and swiftness, expertness with weapons, baseball games, the running of races, walking matches, boat racing and even the coarser championship of the ring, have had similar aims. The intention has always been honorable, though the idea may sometimes have been blindly sought after. As a healthy mind cannot exist without a healthy body, so mental clearnees is sought through physical excellence. Therefore, it comes that the sanitary inducement is added to other motives for the cultivation of the body through abundant exercise and the pride were with a view to the

In the famous interview between Henry VIII and the French King Francis on the noted "field of the cloth of gold" games and tournaments were presented on a scale of magnificence which has never been equaled. Wrestling was considered the moet manly and entertaining of the sports, and the supremacy of the English caused great chagrin on the part of the French. Later in history we find the French relying more on their dexterity in the use of weapon, mere strength being a the use of weapon, mere strength being a secondary consideration. THE ENGLISH RING.

In England great reliance has always been placed on the fists, but little authentic history can be quoted on the subject till 11740, when public exhibitions of 'professors' began to attract attention and a brute force was made to yield place to science. The first adept in the art of science are always been placed on the first of the science of whom we have special mention was a gentleman by the name of Fig. who was immediately followed and outdone by Jack Broughton. What is called the second era of boxing was in augurated by an English Jew named Mendozs, and his contemporary. Humphries, the 'gentleman boxes.' At first they made use of a belt, with an apron or scarf fastened to it, for their more decent appearance in the combat; but one of the combatants happening to lose the victory by his covering falling off, that accident was the occasion of ascrificing modesty to convenience and retrenching the apron for the future. It was the custom to award the victory to him who gave his antagonist three falls. Thus we are told that Millo Arose, and standing in the midst thus cried one single fall cannot the prize decide. ARKHEN:

The history of archery needs but little elaboration. The how and arrow was one of the earliest of weapons, as we can judge from the fact that it is now known to the most savage and uncivilized tribes and has been used by them for unknown ages. It had advanced to a great degree of perfection among the most advanced pooples when its use as an instrument of war was entirely superseded by the introduction of firearms. At present we consider it only fit for ornament and the archery clubs, yet its general use is one phase of the revival of the love for physical sports.

months Major Davis, of this burgh, has lost no opportunity of abusing us and boasting what he would do if we did not step softly. The reason for this conduct lies in the fact that we not only called him a horsethief but proved him a bigamist besides. Last Saturday, the unjoy who has no more right to the title than a mule has to that of 'professor,' borrowed a shotgun and gave out that he had camped on our trail and meant to riddle our system with buckshot on sight. Word was brought to us, and though we were busy at the time superintending our combined weekly newspaper, harness abop, grocery, bazar and gun store (all under one roof and the largest retail establishment in Arisona), we laid selde our work and went over to Sayder's saloon in search of the maior. THE TIETAN PARK .- By the building of THE THETAN PARK.—By the building of a wagon road, or rather the extending of one of the roads already built, to the Tietan, by the route recently discovered, one of the most beautiful and attractive summer resorts in the entire west will be opened up. This would place Yakima within a short day's travel of a delightful place, where the grasses during the hottest season are luxuriant and green, where there are magnificent groves of fir; scenery that is unsurpassed by the Yosemite or National parks; where trout are found in abundance, and where the mountain goat and other game awaits the gun of the sporusman. Mr. Neall, of Philadelphia, who has recently entered the Tietan by this route, says that a good road could be made to the park—as be denominated it—by the expenditure of a few hundred collars, and that a resort would be opered up, which, when eace known abroad, would induce large additional travel to the expenditure of a few hundred rs, and that a resort would be open-p, which, when once known abroad, dollars, and that a reason abroad, would induce large additional travel to this point and result in great benefit to those point and result in great benefit to the point and result in great benefit to the point and result in great benefit to the point and result in great point and result in great benefit to the point and result in great point and the point of court at Ellensburgh, beginning Monday next. The Ahtanua water care is earnestly drawn to this subject.

—The Vinings and Mr. Vance returned from Soda Springs, Tuesday, and report are attention of the County Commissioners is earnestly drawn to this subject.

Postmaster Carry Succeeded prompts and Mr. Vance returned from Soda Springs, Tueeday, and report that in the neighborhood of two hundred commission has not yet been made out but he has the backing of the powers that be and has already assumed the duties of the office with full assurance that it will be along in due time. Postmaster Carry's term has not expired but and the work of the office with full assurance that it will be along in due time. Postmaster Carry's term has not expired but when a postoffice some days since. that it will be along in due time. Post-master Carey's term has not expired but be was notified that the republicans and Grand Army men demanded a change he was notified that the republicans and Grand Army men demanded a change and that the most graceful thing for him to do would be to send in his resignation, in which event his successor would purchase the postoffice factures, which are the personal property of Mr. Carey. With these powerful arguments in mind Private Carey, who served two years in the war of the rebellion but who is not a member of the G. A. R., sent in his resignation to make way for Captain his resignation to make way for Captain Duna, who also answered to the call of entry and is a member of the G. A. ptain Dunn's two daughters will to the clerical duties of the office.

Singular But True.—Last week a Mr. Davis, of Spokane Falls, placed a couple of horses aboard a Northern Pacific freight or norses aboard a normern racine regarding for a proper support to Seattle. They made the journey all right as far as Yakima, when a most singular thing occurred. The window in the rear of the car had been left open for ventilation, and through this one of the horses made his exit to a this one of the horses made his exit to a flat car and then to the ground. As the window measures but 1½ by 2½ feet, the reader would imagine that the horse was built like a Kansas grasshopper, but the truth is he is a good-sized animal, and welghs between a thousand and eleven hundred pounds.

BUILDERS OF IRRIGATING CANALS-A BUILDERS OF IRRIGATING CANALS—A number of heavy capitalists from Helena, Chicago, St. Louis and St. Joe were in the city Wednesday looking up irrigation projects. These same parties have 170 miles of canals in Montana, and have long had their eyes on the Yakima country. In fact, their engineers and representatives have been here three different times during the past year, collecting data. They are greatly pleased with Yakima, and intimated that there was a prospect of their becoming largely interprospect of their becoming largely interested here.

RUNAWAY.—On Thursday last, while Mrs. MacLean and her brother were out driving, their horse commenced kicking and finally managed to throw both from the buggy. Mrs. MacLean fell within range of the horse's feet and received a kick in the side that fractured a rib. The horse then took to his heels and made for its barn, leaving sections of the buggy scattered along the roadside.

Meaning of Pend d'Oreille, Cour d'Alene Nez Perce, Grand Coulce---The Names Given by the French Voyageurs.

Visitors of Eastern Washington are always impressed by the beauty of certain French names that have come down from the French Canadians who came in early days in the employ of the Hudson's Bay Campany, and from the Jesuit mission aries. Cœur d'Alene, (pronounced as ji it were spelled Ker Delane) is the name of a beautiful lake, of a mountain range, at the of a beautiful lake, of a mountain range, at the of Indians, an Indian reservation, and a very rich mining district, all of which are in Idaho, not far from the southeast of Spackans. The Hudeon's Baubter word, and as a stop was reached French Canadians, and the train pers traveled through here more than a century ago. Those trappers were almost wholly French Canadians, and very ignorant. They knew the French language more as a tradition than as a correct form of speech. Hence they often missphied words and got things very much mixed. It may have been so in Cœur d'Alene. The French word "cœur" means heart, while "alene" means a sharp piece of Warf Reception. "The French word "cour" means heart, while "alsens" means a sharp piece of iron for piercing leather, a shoemaker's awl. This is the favorite integrate accounts one and accommodate. "heart of a shoemaker's awi." By an accommodation it might mean "heart of steel." This is the favorite interpretation, because it is the most poetical. Still there is no known reason why such an appellation should have been applied by the French organization. Should have been applied by the French organization appellation should have been applied by the French organization. The classification is a lively, segretic one, and every mother's son among its members has the best interests in the new state of Washington on the appellation should have been applied by the French organization. The editors recollect with pleasure the exceedingly good time they amed Cœur d'Alenes were, even as late as 1844, when Father De Smet came as late as 1844 "Oreille" is the French for ear. Literally Pend d'Oreille means "hanging car."

The idea was no doubt suggested to the French Canadian trappers by the heavy pranaments that pulled down the cars of the Indians to whom they gave the name. Similar in significance is the name Nes Similar in significance is the name Nes Perce (pronounced Ne Percy) from the French "nes," noise, and "peer." to pierce. "Perce" is the past participie of the verb and the phrase is thereform of the verb and the phrase is thereform literally, "plerced nose."
