

Spokane Falls Review: The constitutional convention has provided that the location of the state capital shall be submitted to the voters this fall. It is generally believed on the east side of the mountain range that the capital should be brought over to the central part of the territory. The present location is exceedingly unfair and inconvenient to those residing east of the mountains and is not especially convenient to many of the people on the west side. Olympia was a good place for the capital in the old days when the principal settlements were along Puget Sound and the Columbia river, but times have changed and conditions have done the same. All portions of Eastern and Western and Central Washington have become settled communities and in fairness to the people of all quarters it is now quite generally conceded that the seat of government of the new state should be located at some point in Central Washington.

In an interview published in the Review to-day, Mr. W. J. Milroy, a citizen of Yakima, presents the advantages of that place over its competitors, and gives what must be conceded to be strong reasons why the people of all eastern Washington should unite their votes in its favor. These reasons are based mainly upon the peculiar topography of the country, which makes Yakima the point most easily reached from the northern, southern and eastern parts of the state, and equally as accessible as any other place from the west side. The argument is that people coming to central Washington from Vancouver and all of the southern counties must come to Yakima by way of the Vancouver & Yakima railroad, as there is only one pass through the mountains in that direction; and that if the Southern Pacific or any other line is ever built from Portland to Spokane Falls, as now seems probable, this road would make a direct route to Yakima from all the northern and northeastern counties. The Northern Pacific, passing through, affords direct connection from Walla Walla, Columbia and Whitman, and should any road be built through the Natchez pass to Gray's Harbor or Puget Sound, it must enter the pass by the Natchez river, the mouth of which is within a mile of Yakima.

The fact that Yakima is beautifully laid out, with a great profusion of shade trees and streams of water running down each street; that it is in the center of a valley that is easily approached from all directions, and is blessed with a good climate, combine in making it certainly the best point in the territory for the seat of state government. Ellensburg and Pasco are competitors, but while Pasco is too far to the southeast, Ellensburg is too far up in the mountains and too inaccessible, as well as too notoriously windy and cold. These are advantages and disadvantages that will bear investigation and should certainly be frankly considered in this connection. The vote of Eastern Washington should be considered, as far as possible, upon the best point, for we certainly want the capital of the state made easier of access than the territorial capital is to this section. It is now a journey more than equal to a trip to Portland to go from Eastern Washington to Olympia. Considering that the supreme court, the legislature, and other state affairs will call our citizens and their representatives often to the seat of government, it becomes a matter of much importance to have the capital placed at this more convenient point.

POLITICAL PARAGRAPHS. The Bee is buzzing in many a bonnet, and the politicians all over the country are as active and as persevering as the Pacific coast flies. Cities, towns and hamlets are visited by the office-seekers and their emissaries, and the host of man, the striver and the saloonist are made happy by the prodigal hand of him who desires to serve the public for well, we'll say glory. In the democratic ranks there is activity in organizing, but little or no perturbation. This can be accounted for largely by the fact that the defeat of last fall has made the leaders cautious, and with the strife going on all along the republicans here they have determined to await the results of the republican convention and take advantage of any mistakes there made.

In local politics everything is subservient to the advancement of Yakima. The location of the capital is the issue at heart, and the energies of both parties will be bent in that direction. The republicans held their primaries on Saturday last. Two tickets were in the field—one known as the Capital ticket and the other as the Straight Republican. In North Yakima precinct the former carried the day by a vote of 160 to 90. The convention is in progress to-day.

Both parties in Kittitas county have held their conventions. The republicans nominated Eugene T. Wilson for state senator, Dr. L. N. Power and John P. Sharp for representatives, and T. B. Wright for county clerk. The democrats chose J. T. McDonald for senator, J. B. Fogarty and Charles Miller of Roslyn for representatives, and H. M. Baldwin for clerk. In the republican convention there were four colored and three white men from Roslyn. At the primaries of that precinct the leader of the white element told G. L. Bailey, the colored politician, that his people would be allowed two delegates to the county convention. Bailey replied that he appreciated the kindness, and would be still more magnanimous and allow the whites three delegates. And so he did, retaining four for his own sable brethren.

There is some agitation over the selection of a candidate for superior judge among the republicans. C. B. Graves and M. Gilliam are the aspirants from Ellensburg, and Sol Smith from Goldendale. Among the democrats the only names mentioned are J. B. Reavis and H. J. Snively, of North Yakima, and F. H. Rudkin, of Ellensburg.

The republican contest for the congressional nomination appears to have narrowed down to John L. Wilson, of Spokane Falls, and R. Oregon Dunbar, of Goldendale. Both have strong followings, both are able men, and either would creditably represent Washington in congress.

Frank Dalim, editor of the Davenport Times, is most favorably mentioned by the republicans for state treasurer. He has always been an active party worker, is thoroughly qualified for the office and the republicans would do a graceful act by tendering him the nomination.

ELLENSBURGH ZEPHYRS.

Ellensburg's jealous antics over the prosperity, growth and good name of Yakima are more laughable than a minstrel show. The latest comic gyrations of one of its papers is over what it terms "the unpleasant winds" of this section. Holy mackerel! How can an Ellensburgher ever have nerve to talk about winds prevailing in other places? With a climate that is its greatest drawback, it should keep its mouth as a clam on the subject. It should remember the experience it had with Sells Brothers' and Barco's circus; how the bill-boards, usually so brazen, modestly retired to Mother Earth before an Ellensburgher, and how the poor showmen were unable to raise their tent but were compelled to give their performance behind canvas thrown over a circle of wagons. In its telegraphic account of this occurrence, Ellensburg laid away on a shelf the name of "Capital" hill, where the tent was to have been erected, and substituted that of "Craig's" hill instead. Poor, unfortunate "Capital" hill.

This was only one of many incidents which illustrate the strength of and have created by her frightful winds. The last occurred only Tuesday, when Lloyd Bro's' new brick building was blown down, with the result of seriously injuring two of the men working thereon. Ellensburg very industriously telegraphs to the outside world most of the happenings of that place, but faithful newspaper readers have been unable to find anything in print regarding the ravages of Tuesday's "breeze." If she had her desire of becoming the capital the public might be kept on the anxious seat from fear that the capital buildings and the legislature would be found on some windy occasion blown into an adjoining county.

EDITORIAL in Portland Oregonian, August 24: North Yakima comes to the front as a candidate for the capital of the new state of Washington. The situation is as central and accessible as any other point in the state; the surroundings are attractive, and the natural resources of the adjacent country are great. North Yakima is on the main line of the Northern Pacific, and is reached from both the eastern and western sections of the state, and when the railway from the Columbia river is built it will be accessible from the southern part. North Yakima means to enter the race for the capital, and her citizens think she has good chances of success.

CAPTAIN HOLTON, of the Republic, was actively engaged in planning his campaign for the lieutenant-governorship when the shock of Saturday's primaries convinced him that he was very effectually in the consoance and that he had better turn his attention to swimming out. As his editorial utterances last week were strongly in the line of harmony, and principles and party above persons, he doubtless will endeavor to overcome the bad taste which the bitter pill has left in his mouth and shout himself hoarse for Allen and Howlett.

William T. Higgins, a widely known republican politician of San Francisco, died on the 21st inst., of heart troubles. He was 61 years of age and an Irishman by birth.

An earthquake was experienced on the Russian frontier August 26th. In the village of Kheicson 1296 persons were buried alive.

Dining cars will hereafter be maintained on the O. R. & N. railroad from Portland to Huntington.

The democrats are stirring themselves all over the country. They have recently bought the Seattle Morning Journal and now it is reported they have purchased one of the Ellensburg papers and are negotiating for an organ at Spokane Falls.

The Pullman Herald, published by Thomas Neill makes its appearance in a spick, span new dress, and is so clean and neat, and well-edited that it is a weekly pleasure to find it on the exchange table.

THE PEDAGOGUES.

They Hold a Pleasant and Profitable Session at North Yakima.

The teachers' institute of Yakima county convened on Monday, August 26. The address of welcome was delivered by Hon. J. B. Reavis in his usual pleasant manner. He was followed by W. L. Jones in a lecture on pedagogues, which was an oratorical effort, for humor and for its general subject matter was pronounced one of the brightest efforts heard here for many a day.

The attendance upon the meetings throughout has been large and much interest has been manifested. Distinguished educators from abroad have been present, including Superintendent of Public Instruction J. H. Morgan, of Ellensburg, and Prof. L. E. Follansbee, of Olympia, the institute conductor. Too much praise cannot be lavished on County Superintendent Hilda Engdahl for her untiring efforts to make the institute the success it has proven.

The evening sessions have been held at the opera house and the day sessions at the school house, and both have been well attended and the exercises of much interest. The institute will close Friday afternoon.

At the opening of the day sessions Miss Mabel Parker was appointed secretary and Miss Libbie Lewis assistant secretary. Monday Prof. Follansbee took up the subjects of school economy and arithmetic, and Prof. Newman that of teachers' examinations, and handled them in a masterly manner. Tuesday was a busy day and the following program carried out: Reading, L. E. Follansbee; number work, Mrs. Austine; grammar, Supt. Morgan; geography, L. E. Follansbee; penmanship, T. H. Look; school economy, L. E. Follansbee.

On Wednesday Prof. Follansbee again took up the subjects of reading and geography and J. G. Lawrence handled "grammar" in an able and lucid manner. This morning Prof. Follansbee followed up the subjects of reading and arithmetic. Miss Bessie Owens read a very interesting essay on drawing, and Miss Engdahl took for her text "the primary class," which indicated much thought and experience.

The teachers, by resolutions, have requested that L. E. Follansbee be placed on the republican ticket, and J. H. Morgan on the democratic ticket for the office of superintendent of public instruction.

Jack Dempsey was knocked out by Geo. La Blanche, "the Marine," in the fight to a finish which took place in the California Athletic club rooms, San Francisco, Tuesday night. Dempsey had the best of the fight up to the 32nd round, when he attempted to force matters and received in response a terrific blow on the jaw which felled him. Although he struggled bravely to rise, more than ten seconds went by before he could reach his feet and the fight was therefore awarded to "the Marine."

At Chicago on the 23rd inst., Axtell, the phenomenal three-year-old, trotting to beat his own record, and did so, making a mile in 2:14. Axtell's mile clip off 3/4 of a second from his former record of 2:14 3/4, notwithstanding the fact that even that was better than the best previous performance by three or four-year-olds. It is also within 3/4 of a second of Patron's 2:13 3/4, which stands as the best record for a stallion of any age.

The largest individual taxpayer in Seattle is A. A. Denny, who owes up on $473,430. Denny is followed by H. L. Yeeler with $410,965, Watson C. Squire with $324,795 and Geo. Kinneer with $290,690. The Northern Pacific pays taxes on property assessed at $873,745 and the Seattle, Lake Shore & Eastern on $324,795.

The Northern Pacific directors have approved Villard's scheme for placing a consolidated mortgage of $100,000,000, which is to be used for the retirement of first, second and third-mortgage bonds and other securities guaranteed by the N. P. Co., and for additional equipment and the improvement of terminal facilities.

Mrs. Maybrick is not to hang. The sentiment of England was aroused in her behalf and compelled Mr. Matthews to give her the benefit of the doubt, though not till he had sought for plausible excuses in the evidence for interfering with the sentence of Judge Stevens, who has made a special study of murder by poison.

The Northern Pacific has just placed orders for rolling stock which are among the heaviest of the present year. Four classes of cars are among those ordered and number upward of 2600. These are in addition to 500 furniture cars, orders for which were placed earlier in the season.

The third annual fair of the Whitman County Agricultural Fair Association will be held at Colfax, commencing October 9th, and will continue four days. The programme arranged for this year is unusually attractive.

HOW ABOUT YAKIMA?

Listen to the Story as it is Told by Careful Observers from Abroad.

(San Francisco Examiner.) The new State Capital will probably be at North Yakima.

(Spokane Falls Review.) The best and most extensive agricultural region in the Yakima Land District, and in the Territory, lies about the City of North Yakima and is known as the Yakima Valley.

(Seattle Post-Intelligencer.) To-day, where four years ago were unimproved prairies, the home of great herds of unrestrained wild cattle and vicious bands of coyote ponies who knew no halter, now stands the City of North Yakima, the Queen of Eastern Washington.

(Northwest Magazine.) The knot of valleys which meet at the new town of North Yakima seems a bit of Southern California here in the north. Public opinion in all parts of Washington has settled upon this place as the Capital of the new State.

(Portland Oregonian.) There is no just reason why this city and country, when they shall have reached their maximum in population, should not have in the city from 15,000 to 20,000, and the county 40,000 to 60,000. Neither is there any good reason why they should not be eventually among the very wealthiest towns and counties in Washington Territory. All the material elements that go to make a big and prosperous city are here.

(Tacoma Ledger.) The valley in which the city of North Yakima is situated in the center of a series of very fertile valleys which open into it and have grown famous for their products. With a splendid agricultural country surrounding it and the peculiar advantages of its location for railroad approaches North Yakima cannot but figure in the future brilliantly.

(Spokane Falls Review.) Although less than forty miles apart the difference in climate between Yakima in Yakima county and Ellensburg in Kittitas county is almost as great as that between a northern and southern latitude. The valley surrounding Ellensburg is excellent for producing grain, while in the valleys near Yakima the farmers are devoting more attention to fruits, vegetables, hops, tobacco and similar crops, which can only be grown in a warm climate.

Interview with Judge J. R. Lewis on his return from attending the Mechanics Fair in California, Published in the Seattle Post-Intelligencer. It was a great exhibition of the wealth of California, but I found no better specimens of vegetables and many varieties of fruit than Washington Territory produces. I can go over into the Yakima country and in two days collect finer products in those lines than I saw in California. The Yakima peaches are of better quality and flavor than any raised in California, the apples are superior and the prunes are ahead of anything I ever saw. Then, too, they raise finer melons, squashes and all kinds of vegetables in the Yakima country than any produced in California.

"Seeing that the action of the Biochemic Remedies are so certain to cure, surely every medical man who desires the good of his patients will select from these for the scientific and rapid cure of the sick; and all patients will be anxious to be treated and restored to health in the new way, with safe and truly rational remedies." Prof. Huxley, before the International Medical College at London in 1883.

"Biochemic Remedies, which act in perfect harmony with Nature's laws, have achieved such notable cures that thousands of thinking minds have already accepted this method by which health is so certain to be restored, even in almost hopeless cases, if Providence be pleased to grant ever so small an amount of vitality or powers to further the continuance of life." Dr. Walker, Dundee, Scotland.

"The question whether this or that disease is or is not dependent on the existence of foreign germs or bacilli, is of no importance in Biochemic treatment. If the remedies are applied correctly the great aim of medical science—that of curing disease—will be gained in the only true scientific way." W. H. Schussler, M. D., Oldenberg, Germany.

"I have made Biochemistry a careful study, and like it better and better through the light of actual practice." Wm. Chapman, M. D., Columbus, W. T.

"Long standing chronic diseases, which have been brought on by excessive dosing with drugs that form no part of the human organism, such as quinine, calomel, opium, alcohol, &c., can be cured by small doses of the Inorganic Cell Salts." Prof. Leibig.

"I use the Biochemic Remedies exclusively in my practice, with the most wonderful results. A careful study has convinced me that no so-called medicine can be a remedy that is not a constituent part of the human organism. These remedies are only found in the twelve Inorganic Cell Salts." AGENT PRIESTLEY MAKES HIS REPORT.

Captain Thomas Priestley, agent of the Yakima Indian reservation, has just made his annual report to the secretary of the interior. It embraces the following points: There are 277 children of school age on the reservation, of which number 125 are attending school. The reservation containing 830,000 acres is the abiding place of numerous scattered remnants of tribes which formerly inhabited Washington and British Columbia. In the reservation are 240,000 acres of arable land. It is estimated that 2975 Indians are attached to the reservation, but the agent states that his census, taken in the year past, shows but 1670. The Indians are engaged in stock raising and farming, and, with the exception of a few old men, are self-supporting. In the matter of civilization they are progressive, as is shown by their desire to leave their blanket life and secure homes in which to live. Their nature is yet barbaric, however, and they last year killed two Indian doctors with the idea that they were doing nothing wrong. Infidelity to their marriage vows is also strongly prevalent with them. They have 25,000 acres under fence, many Indians alone having as high as 1000 acres under fence, and trouble is likely to arise when an attempt is made, under the allotment act, to induce these men to relinquish all but 100 acres. Captain Priestley suggests that white men be no longer allowed to reside on the reservation simply because they have Indian wives, and says that the Indians themselves object to this.

THIRTY WARNING.—E. Meeker & Co.'s Puyallup Circular, of the 22nd, cautions growers against premature picking and says that hops picked in an immature state are of much less market value, yield very much less in weight and approach that condition of being very nearly worthless to the consumers. Early picking inflicts a certain loss, while a later beginning brings a compensating return even if some loss does follow, but which is by no means certain to occur. Meeker's Hop Culture says: "A hop when fully ripe and well-matured will be well and compactly closed at the point; it becomes harsh and crisp to the touch and makes a rustling noise when clasped in the hand. The seed will be hard and of a dark, purple color. The color of the hop will have changed from a greenish cast to a bright yellow or golden. The lupuline will be abundant not only at the base of the leaf or carpal, but will extend well out on the leaf; the little yellow globules of lupuline will show brighter and larger than in an unripe hop."

THE JURY DISAGREED.—The HERALD readers will remember that during the month of May last Richard See was taken from Ellensburg, by requisition from the governor of California, to Los Angeles to answer the crime of murder alleged to have been committed about eighteen years ago in the latter place. Since that time many inquiries have been made as to the result of the trial. District Attorney Saively has just received a letter from the district attorney of Los Angeles, in which he says that See has just been tried for murder in the first degree and that the jury disagreed, standing eight for conviction and four for acquittal. The district attorney stated in his letter that they had found new evidence and that they would be sure to convict him at the next trial. See remains in jail without bonds. It is not known when he will have his next trial.

FIRST SHIPMENT OF HOPS.—The first car load of early hops was shipped from Yakima to Milwaukee by Charles Carpenter, Monday. Mr. Carpenter purchased them from the growers at 14 cents a pound, delivered at the depot. He pronounced the quality excellent. Although the crop on some of the ranches is light, owing to a shortage of water, there will be fully as great a quantity for shipment this year as last when upward of sixteen hundred bales were disposed of to eastern and English buyers. There are about thirty-five acres more under cultivation this year than in 1888, which accounts for the aggregate yield being as great. The hop picking in Yakima will commence in earnest next week.

NORTH YAKIMA SAYS "HELLO!"—John Lawrence, superintendent of the Sunset Telephone and Telegraph Company, assisted by L. MacLean, made a canvass of North Yakima last week and secured more than enough subscribers to warrant the operating of a system of telephones in this city. Mr. Lawrence, who was greatly taken with the beauty, thrift and enterprise of Yakima, said, previous to his leaving for the Sound, that he had already negotiated for the poles and that within two weeks after their receipt he would have the wires up and the system in working order.

IT IS NOW LANDLORD SMITH.—C. E. Smith, late steward of "The Tacoma," has become the lessee of the Hotel Yakima. Mr. Smith is a very pleasant gentleman and has a large acquaintance with the travelling public, having been connected at various times with the Bates House, of Indianapolis, the Windsor, of New York, the Washington Park club, of Chicago, and the Hotel Del Monte, of Monterey, California. Mr. Smith is greatly pleased with his new possession and is determined to give it a reputation equal to that of any hotel in the west.

NO CHANGE IN SCHOOL BOOKS.—J. H. Morgan, superintendent of public schools, who was in the city during the principal part of the week, said that the text books now in use in the schools will be continued, at least until such time as the courts may decree otherwise. As any litigation which may arise will take months to settle, no apprehension need be felt on the part of school officers that the books will be changed during the coming school year.

LOCAL BRIEFINGS.

—L. S. Darian shipped a car load of sheep to the Sound Tuesday.
—J. A. Thomas will ship nineteen car loads of sheep to Chicago on Monday.
—Daly's stable of race horses passed through Yakima Monday, bound for California.
—Ex-Postmaster J. J. Mueller, of Ellensburg, died at that place on Monday of last week.
—Call at the C. and N. W. photo tent and get a life-size portrait of yourself, free of charge.
—S. J. Lowe exhibited this week a Persian or Kasaba melon raised by him which weighed 22 pounds.
—The largest holdings of the Ontario Land Company in this territory are at Yakima and Gray's Harbor.
—Among the shippers this season have been S. J. Lowe with four car loads of melons and Henry Kampeter with five.
—The baby daughter of Hugh B. Purden, of the Abatanum valley, died Wednesday morning, and Mrs. Purden is dangerously ill.
—Myron H. Ellis reports business tip top and says that he is now receiving his fall stock, which embraces the best goods sold in the market.
—There are three corps of engineers working in the Cascade mountains on the line projected from Portland through Vancouver and Yakima to Spokane Falls.
—The ladies of the M. E. church will give a melon social at the Methodist hall on First street, Friday, September 6. Everybody come, eat melon and get acquainted.
—Two hundred boxes of Yakima peaches were shipped to Tacoma Wednesday. They will give the people of the Sound an idea of the superiority of Yakima fruit over that grown in California.
—General Manager W. S. Mellen, of the Northern Pacific, accompanied by a large party of officials, passed through the city Sunday, westward bound. This was Mr. Mellen's first official trip over the road.
—The North Yakima steam laundry will be ready for operations on Monday, September 2nd. All work executed promptly, reasonably and in good shape. Wagons will call for clothes when ordered. Oplistil & Garrecht.
—Mrs. M. W. Wallace will begin teaching a class in stenography shortly and persons desirous of taking lessons should apply at once at her residence, corner of Natchees avenue and A street. Mrs. Wallace is agent of the Remington Standard typewriter.
—On Thursday last Judge W. H. Calkins in chambers heard arguments in the Abatanum water case of Sampson vs Harry Roberts, et al, and granted a temporary injunction restraining the defendants from taking more than one-third of the water and from wasting the same.
—Dan Plan-o-ple-o-pike, the Indian who was sentenced to one year in the penitentiary for killing an Indian doctor on the Yakima reserve, is again at liberty, his time having expired. Dick Wyncoo, who was sentenced at the same time for a similar crime, died in prison a few weeks since.
—On Monday there were four car loads of stock, three of hay, two of melons and a car load of hops shipped from Yakima. Agent Humphrey says that the shipment of products from this place average five or six car loads daily. Is it any wonder that the people have faith in Yakima, and in store for the future when our fertile lands are more fully improved.
RAILROAD RUMORS.—Rumors are multiplying regarding the building of a railroad from the east through Yakima to Gray's Harbor, but nothing definite is known as to what company it is. It is known though that a party of engineers are in the Cascade mountains working in this direction and that they have run lines from Chehalis to Gray's Harbor and are now working from Chehalis toward the Natchees pass. The rumor most current is that it is the Manitoba company and recent remarks made by General Samuel Thomas of that company give strong coloring to this belief.
GRANTED TEACHERS' CERTIFICATES.—At the recent examination of applicants for teachers' certificates, Miss Lou Monroe was granted a first grade certificate on the strength of a diploma from the territorial university, Lewis C. Parrish and Miss Annie Hicobotham second grade certificates, and Miss Mollie Giesentanner a third grade certificate. There were four other applicants, but they failed to come up to the required standard.
DEED.—At North Yakima, Sunday, August 25, A. C. Casero, aged 35 years. The funeral was held Tuesday under the auspices of the Odd Fellows, of which order the deceased was a member.
WANTED.—Three girls to work in North Yakima steam laundry. Apply at once to Oplistil & Garrecht.
—I buy my underwear direct from the factories, and am now offering it at prices which were never before heard of in North Yakima. Call and examine goods and prices, and see for yourself.
MYRON H. ELLIS.
—Goodwin & Pugsley's fire insurance companies do not cancel their policies. Give us a call.
—Call on Myron H. Ellis and examine his fine line of winter underwear; one door south of opera house.
—You will always find Morgan's "Gilt Edged" butter at Bartholet Bros. store. Call for it.
—The finest line of neckwear ever shown in North Yakima just received at Myron H. Ellis'.
—A full line of shirts always on hand at Myron H. Ellis'.

W. W. Chandler and Nicholas McCoy have returned from the Gray's Harbor country where they made considerable investment.
David Murray, accompanied by Miss K. Myre and Miss Longworthy, of Ellensburg, were the guests of the Hotel Yakima this week.
Miss Kate Driscoll, of Pomeroy, who has been visiting the family of Dr. O. M. Graves for the past week, will leave for her home Friday.
J. C. Berry, for a long time past foreman of the Farmer, has decided upon remaining here and not accompany the paper to the Sound.
E. J. Callender has returned from the Sound. He is one of the incorporators of the new Citizens' Banking, Loan and Trust Company, of Olympia.
F. E. Stearns, late lessee of the Hotel Yakima, left on Friday last for Columbus, Ohio, where he is shortly to be married. Mr. Stearns expects to return to this state but has not decided at what point he will locate.
J. M. Adams, of Spokane Falls, spent Sunday and Monday in the city. He says the sentiment of the people everywhere is that North Yakima is naturally the proper point for the location of the capital.
W. H. Chapman left on Wednesday for Missoula as a representative of the Chamber of Commerce to interview Mr. Woolston on matters pertaining to the water works he is to build here. Mr. Woolston telegraphed last week that the plant had been shipped.
Sister Donald, the Sister Superior of the House of Providence of this city, who has been so well and favorably known here and who has done so much to build up the Catholic institutions of Yakima, has been called for New Westminster, B. C., and left for her new home Monday. She will be succeeded by the Sister Superior from Sprague.
The teachers from abroad who have been in attendance on the institute held in this city during the past four days are L. E. Follansbee, Olympia; Miss Mollie Giesentanner, Kiona; Miss Edna Rich, Prosser; Miss May Conrad, Tappico; Miss Kate Driscoll, Pomeroy; J. H. Morgan, Ellensburg, and Miss Ida Hutton, Spangle. There were thirty-seven members all told who signed the rolls.
The Hotel at Yakima.
Tacoma Ledger: C. E. Smith, the courteous steward of the Tacoma, will assume management of the hotel at Yakima in a few days. Mr. Smith will make an excellent landlord. He has been connected with the Bates house of Indianapolis, Windsor of New York and some of the leading American clubs. He will make the Hotel Yakima a success.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Plans for the New Building—More Teachers Engaged—Director Prosser's Successors—Bids Wanted.
The plans and specifications for the new $12,000 brick school building to be built on the west side, are now open for inspection at Clerk Milroy's office, and the directors have requested that bids for its construction be all in by Monday next. The plans were drawn by Architect John Nestor, of Seattle, and give evidence of a handsome and imposing building. It will be located on eight lots donated by Goodwin & Pugsley, in block 250 of Ker's second addition.
The fall term of school for the North Yakima district will begin on Monday, September 9. The corps of teachers engaged consists of Prof. J. C. Lawrence, principal; Prof. J. M. Newman, assistant; Mrs. G. W. Rodman and Miss Bessie Owens, intermediate; Miss Lou Monroe, primary. These teachers are all well known and have a high standing as educators in this community, excepting Prof. Newman, who is a recent arrival from Illinois, but who comes highly endorsed.
Col. W. F. Prosser has resigned from the board of directors of District No. 7, and is succeeded by Dudley Ebelman. Clerk Milroy has been instructed to receive bids from contractors for the furnishing of 25 cords of wood.
The public schools of this city will open for the fall term September 9th. Examinations for the purpose of grading the new scholars will take place on the 9th and 10th. All pupils who have not a permanent residence in the district will be charged a tuition of $1 per month in the primary and first intermediate departments, and $1.50 in the grammar and advanced departments. These charges must be paid in advance to Clerk Milroy. Board in private families, at reasonable rates, can be secured by call on or addressing J. G. Lawrence.
Call for Democratic Conventions.
All democrats and persons desirous of co-operating with the democratic party will take notice that primary conventions will be held in the various precincts in Yakima county on SATURDAY, AUGUST 31st at 4 O'CLOCK P. M. to select delegates to the county convention to be held at North Yakima in the Court House on September 7th, at two o'clock p. m., to nominate a candidate for the legislature, a candidate for county clerk and to select delegates to the state convention to be held at Ellensburg, September 9th. The primaries will be held in the various precincts at the usual places for holding such meetings, except that the primary for North Yakima will be held at the court house, the primary for the Wenas at the school house nearest John Cowen's place and for Yakima City at the public school house.
The basis of representation recommended by the County Central Committee is one vote for each precinct and one additional vote for each ten votes cast for the democratic candidate for delegate to congress at the last election and for each fraction over five votes so cast.
Upon this basis the precincts will be entitled to the following votes:
Horn 1 Yakima City 5
Red Rock 1 Abatanum 2
Prosser 4 Cowychee 3
Alder Creek 1 North Yakima 18
Parker Bottom 2 White 1
Moose 2 Mt. Pleasant 1
Wenas 4 Tappico 2
Fort Simcoe 2 Natchees 2
By order of the Democratic Executive Committee, this 21st day of May, 1889.
W. F. JONES, Secretary.

WALKED IN HER SLEEP.

Adventures of a Sombambulist Beauty in a Sleeping Car.

A young man whose house is in Chicago and who has been in Denver only a little more than a week, had an experience in the Pullman sleeper between Kansas City and that point which he will not soon forget, says the Denver Times. Interesting and novel as it was he does not care for a repetition of the adventure.

At about 12 o'clock of the first night out from Kansas City—the hour when most uncomfy things are wont to happen—the young man was awakened in his berth by a pressure on his feet, and he saw sitting at the foot of his bed and dressed for the night in a spotless white garment with insertions and ruffles and things foreign to the midnight makeup of male humanity, the form of a girl or young woman, whose features he could not distinguish in the dim, if not religious light.

While the young man is not susceptible to shocks so far as the follies of woman are involved, he was somewhat astounded, and lay still for a few minutes wondering what to do under the circumstances. Presently he found his wife and voice.

"Are you comfortable?" he asked in his softest tones.

"I'm quite comfortable," was the calm, unruffled reply.

The passive assurance of the woman in white interfered somewhat with the young man's line of thought and conjecture, but he was not long in formulating a second attack.

"Wouldn't you prefer a seat at the head of the bed?" he asked.

"No, I thank you," was the response; "I'm very comfortable here."

"Perhaps you would like a pillow?" he suggested.

By this time the young man was thoroughly satisfied that the woman was young and pretty if not unsophisticated, so when she adjusted the pillow between her head and the footboard of the berth, the temporary owner of the premises was more pleased than pained. Partly in a spirit of fun, and partly on account of the proverbial meagerness of the sleeping car pillow, the young man held out the other feather cushion, saying:

"Won't you take the other one?"

Yes, she would, and did, placing it with its companion piece and snugly nestling her head upon the pair. All this time the visitor had sat upon the edge of the berth, her feet resting on the floor of the aisle, her head and shoulders resting against the foot-board.

The conversation which the young man had indulged in was in plainest tones, that he should disturb no other occupants of the car. The replies of the unexpected caller had been less guarded in volume. In fact, they might have been heard a good many feet away had there been any wakeful ear within the distance named.

As the creature in white lay contentedly back upon the pillow, her hands crossed, and her breath coming and going with what seemed to be measured regularity, tempers did not fly very fast for her berth mate. He hardly knew what to do, in the face of such indifference and under such circumstances, but he collected his wandering thoughts and asked her again if she was comfortable.

"Perfectly comfortable," she said. He sat up in the bunk. She didn't move. He put his feet in the aisle and sat on the edge of the bunk close beside her. She paid no attention to him, when a parting of the curtains let a ray of light fall on her face. The eyes were stonily gazing at nothing, and not a feature of the countenance betrayed the slightest evidence of consciousness. The face was pretty and innocent—that of a pure-minded girl between 18 and 20 years of age. It was plain that she slept; that she was a somnambulist, and that she had no knowledge of her whereabouts nor of her words or deeds. The young man would as willingly have kissed a corpse as that sleeping maiden. He tried, by talking to her, to find out how she had come to his bunk, but could get no intelligible replies, other than that her sister and herself were traveling to Salida, where they intended visiting some friends; and, moreover, her train was here.

Went of all, the train came to a standstill while he was endeavoring to make her tell where she belonged. The situation was increasingly embarrassing. Suppose the girl had a father or big brother on board and that relative should find her in this strange young man's berth. Odds would! Suppose the young girl should suddenly recover consciousness and should scream, as only a young woman similarly placed might be expected to scream. Conner's ghost! The young man would not find a friend or believe on that train.

The hero of the tale restored the maiden to her rightful position on the pillows, dressed himself partly and went in search of the porter. That functionary was found asleep. He was told that there was a somnambulist on board. The porter could not make out what a somnambulist might be, so he called the conductor. This last named heard the young man's briefly narrated story and accompanied him and the grinning porter to the berth. There was no sleeping beauty anywhere visible. The berth was empty.

With many mental reservations as to the condition of mind and body in which the young man had retired the evening before, the conductor consented to waken two young ladies, sisters, who were occupants of the car. Only one of these young ladies could be found. The young man had not been dreaming. The sister who was found was greatly disturbed. She readily admitted that her younger sister had been known to walk in her sleep.

The car was carefully searched and in an unassigned berth at one end of the coach the girl was found snugly curled up and sleeping as sweetly as a babe. The operation of leading her back to her berth did not awaken her, and when she opened her eyes the morning light those beautiful windows of the soul gave no sign that the owner of their tenement knew what the night had brought forth. No one told her of her strange adventure, and possibly no one ever will. She might have wondered why the young man who had been so observant prior to the momentous night did not so much as look at her again during the journey. The young man himself did not wonder.

Etiops.

Goldendale Sentinel: There is a little town situated up in Franklin county, about eighteen or twenty miles north of Pasco, on the Northern Pacific railroad, called at the present time Etiops, but it was not always called so, and about the only thing of interest in connection with the place now, so far as we know, is the origin of its name. The story goes that some time before the Northern Pacific built through that country a party were traveling along and night overtook them in a barren waste of sand, where there was neither wood nor water. But they were compelled to camp, as it was useless for them to travel at night in search of either. The result was that they were moved to name the camp, in true western style after the most suggestive name that presented itself, and in this instance it happened to be "Hell-to-Pay." It went by that name until the Northern came along some years later, and in their characteristic modesty, modified the name to "Etiops," but now the name stands out in bold relief on the maps of the country, "Etiops."

New Men Behind It.

Tacoma News: One of the handsomest and best furnished hotels in the territory is the Hotel Yakima, at North Yakima. The building was erected by Mr. David Wilson, of Tacoma, at a cost of $25,000, and was completed and opened up as a first class hotel about two months ago with Mr. Fred E. Stearns, an experienced landlord, in charge. Mr. Stearns lately interested himself in other projects which will require the greater part of his time, and decided to retire from active connection with the hotel. This was much regretted by the people of Yakima, as Mr. Stearns had made the hotel popular with the traveling public.

His retirement was followed by the organization of a new hotel company, the stockholders of which are North Yakima business men and capitalists who will furnish the best of hotel accommodations for the traveling public visiting the future capital city. The stock company is composed of Mayor Fred R. Reed, Hon. Edward Whitton, Col. L. S. Howlett, and Messrs. J. B. Peaseley and W. A. Cox.

In addition to looking after North Yakima capital interests while in the city for the last few days, Mayor Reed has been looking for a new manager for the Hotel Yakima. Mr. E. Smith, the graceful and courteous steward of the Tacoma will accept the position. He is as able a hotel man generally as he is courteous and competent as a presiding genius of the dining room, and assumes the management of the Hotel Yakima next week.

The M. E. Sunday School Picnic.

The children of the M. E. Sunday school, under the care of their energetic superintendent, Mr. Morgan, enjoyed a picnic Wednesday, Aug. 21st, long to be remembered. They assembled at the M. E. house of worship at 10 a. m., where conveyances were provided to take them to the residence of Captain and Mrs. Thomas, near the southeast suburbs of the city. There the house, porches, easy chairs, hammocks and shade trees were all at the disposal of the little people. On the lovely little lake in front of the house was a beautiful blue row boat, and each little fellow had a chance to have a ride. Roscoe and Jimmie Thomas spent the entire day rowing for the crowd. We wondered at their endurance, and still more at their selfishness, for they must have been very tired. One friend brought a wagon load of melons for the children, and a bountiful table was spread in the yard north of the house, where the children were served first from the very best in each basket, and afterwards the grown people were seated to a bountiful dinner. Later in the day ice cream was served to each one.

While dinner was being served a bright English lassie came and called out: "Oh, look! My flag is floating from the roof." All looked, and there, sure enough, she had climbed to the highest point on the roof and fastened the English flag, and her eyes danced in glee as she saw it waving so near the large American flag in the front yard.

The pleasure of the crowd was enhanced by having Mrs. Uren, the pastor's wife with them—a rare treat, as being an invalid, she seldom gets out.

Baby Guy Thomas could be seen most of the day on a raft out on the lake, paddling to suit himself, never seeming to want the pretty blue boat. The artist, Mr. Pierce, who was sketching, found it an ever moving panorama.

Captain and Mrs. Thomas possess the art of entertaining to perfection, and made each one, young and old, feel that they were their special guests. The friends there assembled will forget many things in the years to come, but the delightful day spent in Captain Thomas' grounds will never be forgotten; and with the memory of the day will ever remain in every heart the sincere desire for God's choicest blessings to rest on their host and hostess, Captain and Mrs. Thomas.

True.

Lady—"What, left your situation so soon, Maria?"

Maria—"Yes, mum, I couldn't stay no longer."

"Why, Maria?"

"Well, ye see mum, my mistress would not let me 'ave my young gentleman to dinner, an' they do say that the only way to a man's 'art is through his stomach."

GEOGRAPHICAL.

Some Information Concerning the Early History of Washington.

In the year 1790 Captain Vancouver, an officer in the British navy, was detailed to take command of an expedition to explore the northwest coast of the western continent. This appears to have been the first well appointed effort on the part of any of the great powers for geographical research in this part of the world. Thus it will be seen that only a century has passed away since the veil was rent that shrouded in darkness this part of our Union soon to become the center of enlightenment, and which is, even now, the objective point of capital and political aggrandizement.

When Vancouver returned to England he was received with distinguished honors by the Royal Geographical society, and in 1795 his notes were written up and published in a number of volumes which constitute interesting and valuable geographical reading matter to-day. The names given by Vancouver to the prominent mountain peaks islands and channels of this part of the Pacific coast are noble in conception and euphonious in sound, and for this reason should still be held sacred, as invaluable landmarks in our written and spoken vernacular. As the little fleet came up the Straits of Fuca and rounded Point Wilson, Vancouver formally named our beautiful sound in honor of Lieutenant Puget, a distinguished young officer in his command.

His own name was also given to the magnificent island which forms the great abutment of our northern frontier. As the fleeting years come and go, the origin of local appellations become involved in doubt and uncertainty and the text-books of our common schools lead the young pupil through devious and conflicting pathways in regarding their historical sketches concerning disputed geographical points. Every child should be well posted in the geographical evolution of its own state or territory, and to this end the above historical scraps are cited.—Olympian.

Yakima Has a Strong Following.

Spokane Falls Review: The constitution raises four questions to be voted upon. First, as to whether the constitution itself shall be adopted; second, whether the right of suffrage shall be extended to women of the state; third, whether the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors shall be prohibited; and fourth, where shall the permanent state capital be located. Upon these propositions it is safe to predict that the constitution will be adopted by a large majority; that woman suffrage will not be enough to give it the majority; that prohibition will receive a much lighter vote than the suffrage proposition; and lastly that a majority of the people of eastern Washington will vote for Yakima for the permanent seat of government, but that enough scattering votes will perhaps be cast for other places to prevent any place from receiving a majority at the election. This will leave the capital question to be voted upon again at some future time. It was stated the other day, however, by a prominent citizen of the Sound that Yakima will receive a large vote on the west side, and if this should prove to be correct, the first vote may possibly determine the matter in favor of Yakima.

Another Swindle.

Fruit tree swindlers are again infesting the country. The scheme now in hand is to furnish a farmer with some dollars' worth of trees—say $500—free of charge. The farmer is to plant, take proper care of these trees and to deliver to the agent one-half the profit for ten or twelve years. But if the farm is sold during this time, the trees are to be paid for at the price agreed upon; and as an evidence of good faith the farmer gives bond to that effect in that amount. So far there is no fraud, but in a short time a man comes along, admires the appearance of the farm and tries to buy it. The price is finally agreed upon and the farmer is to furnish a clear title to the land. Of course the bond has been recorded, and to secure the sale is promptly paid. And after the fruit tree agent has been disposed of, the farmer, to his supposed purchaser, but alas! the bird has flown, and he goes home a sadder if not wiser man.

She Had the Advantage.

Penelope Peachblow—"How do you do, Mrs. Plantaganet?" Mrs. Plantaganet—"You must excuse me, but I do not think we have ever met." Penelope Peachblow—"Yes; last week at Mrs. Westerley's." Mrs. Plantaganet—"With increasing coolness—"You have the advantage of me." Penelope Peachblow—"I think I have, Mrs. Plantaganet, in eyesight, memory and manners. Good afternoon."—Life.

Yakima the Proper Point.

Medical Lake Ledger: In view of the fact that the people will have to decide this fall where to permanently locate the capital of Washington, it behooves all voters to gather the facts relating to the question to enable them to vote intelligently. In our opinion Yakima is the proper point for the location of the seat of government, and this opinion is very generally entertained in eastern Washington.

Philological.

Nolan (fresh from the "ould sod") "O! wonder phwat makes thim Doochman, spake such a quare lingo, Teddy. Sure, Oi can't understand thim at all, at all!" Dolan—"Fair, it must be the beer, Barney. Oi can't even understand meself very well after drinkin' a couple of cans!"—Puck.

The Favorite

Medicine for Throat and Lung Difficulties has long been, and still is, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It cures Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, and Asthma; soothes irritation of the Larynx and Fauces; strengthens the Vocal Organs; allays soreness of the Lungs; prevents Consumption, and, even in advanced stages of that disease, relieves Coughing and induces Sleep. There is no other preparation for diseases of the throat and lungs to be compared with this remedy.

"My wife had a distressing cough, with pain in the side and breast. We tried various medicines, but none did her any good until I got a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has cured her. A neighbor, Mrs. Glenn, had the measles, and the cough was relieved by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I have no hesitation in recommending this medicine."

Cough Medicine

to every one afflicted.—Robert Horton, Foreman Headlight, Morrilton, Ark. "I have been afflicted with asthma for forty years. Last spring I was taken with a violent cough, which threatened to terminate my days. Every one pronounced me in consumption. I determined to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Its effects were magical. I was immediately relieved, and in a few days was entirely recovered."—Joel Bullard, Guilford, Conn.

"Six months ago I had a severe hemorrhage of the lungs, brought on by an incessant cough which deprived me of sleep and rest. I tried various remedies, but obtained no relief until I began to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. A few bottles of this medicine cured me."—Ann Loring, 1237 Washington Street, Boston, Mass.

"For children afflicted with colds, coughs, sore throat, or croup, I do not know of any remedy which will give more speedy relief than Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I have found it, also, invaluable in cases of Whooping Cough."—Ann Loring, 1237 Washington Street, Boston, Mass.

SUPPLEMENT.

TERRY'S CAREER.

A California Forty-Niner, and Rose to Eminence in that State.

The Causes That Led to His Tragic
Death—The Terry-Broderick
Duel.

David S. Terry, who was killed by Deputy United States Marshal N. J. Field, for assaulting Justice Field, of the United States supreme court, first came into notoriety as the slayer of Senator Broderick in 1857. He was born in Kentucky in 1826. At an early age he entered the Texan army under General Sam Houston, and in 1849 he came to California among the first of the gold hunters of that year. He settled in Calaveras county, but being a lawyer by education he preferred law to mining, and being a man of ability he soon gathered a large and lucrative practice. From law he went into politics, and at the age of 30 he was elected justice of the supreme court. He had then been only six years a resident of the state. He was at this time what was called a native American or know-nothing in politics. Two years after his election, by the death of Chief Justice Murray, trouble commenced; he took sides against that organization, and on one occasion stabbed one of its members for attempting to arrest a friend of his. He was himself arrested for this, and was held for a time by the vigilantes, but was afterwards released.

While on the supreme bench Justice Terry experienced a change of politics. On the decay of the native American party he joined the democratic party and allied himself with the LeCompton wing of that organization. The republican party was not strong in the state at the time; those who believed in its doctrines were content to be known as anti-LeCompton men. The LeCompton men were backed by the Buchanan administration at Washington. The killing of Broderick filled the state with enemies for Terry. This was shown as late as 1880, when his associates on the Hancock electoral ticket were chosen while he was defeated.

Terry's next prominent appearance was as counsel for the plaintiff in the celebrated suit of Sarah Althea Hill against ex-Senator Sharon and it was this litigation which led to the tragedy. In the trial court judgment was rendered against Sharon for a large sum of money—a wife's share of more than $1,000,000. Under instructions given to his executors on his deathbed the case was fought to the bitter end. Defeated in the state courts, the heirs and executors took the case to the United States circuit court.

At this point Justice Stephen J. Field, who has hitherto had no connection with any of the parties, enters into the case. As one of the justices of the supreme court he is also judge of the judicial district which includes California. The case came before him. It was decided in Sharon's favor. Meantime, pending all this bitter litigation, Judge Terry had doubled his relations to his client, and became her husband as well as her attorney. He occupied this two fold position when Judge Field delivered the decision which cut off himself and his client wife from all hope of the Sharon millions.

There was a scene in court when Judge Field rendered his decision. Sarah Althea became violent and threatened to shoot the judge and the marshal. Judge Terry pulled a knife and threatened to insert it in the vitals of the judge. As a result of this disturbance Judge Field sentenced Mr. and Mrs. Terry for contempt of court. All sorts of legal expedients were brought in requisition to enable the pair to evade this sentence, but they were of no avail. Terry and his wife were put in jail and kept there until the expiration of their sentences. In asserting the dignity of his court the judge rendered the re-ment of the two litigants, and the death of Terry is the unexpected echo of his own threat uttered before sentence for contempt had been written on the records of the court.

THE TERRY-BRODERICK DUEL.
David S. Terry and David C. Broderick belonged to opposing factions of the democratic party in California in 1859. The former had been chief justice of the state supreme court and the latter, with Wm. M. Gwin, represented the state in the United States senate. Gwin, with Terry and the most influential portion of the democracy in the state, were pro-slavery men, while Broderick belonged to the anti-slavery wing of the party. The Buchanan administration and the pro-slavery men generally, hated Broderick, and this feeling was voiced by Terry in a speech before the state convention of the administration faction of the party, at Sacramento in the latter part of the summer of 1859, in the following language:

They (the anti-slavery democrats) are the followers of one man, the personal chattels of a single individual whom they are ashamed of. They bow down, heart and soul, body and breeches, to David C. Broderick. They are yet ashamed to acknowledge their master, and are calling themselves, aye, smooth, Douglas democrats, when it is known—well known to them as to us—that the gallant senator from Illinois, whose voice has always been heard in the advocacy of democratic principles, who now is not dissuaded from the democratic party, has no affiliation with them, no feeling in common with them. Mr. President and gentlemen, I am mistaken in denying their right to claim Douglas as a leader. Perhaps they do sail under the flag of Douglas, but it is the banner of the black Douglas, whose name is Frederick, not Stephen.

This led to the duel. Broderick, on reading these words, said to D. W. Perley, a friend of Terry:

"I see Terry has been abusing me. I now take back the remark that I once made that he was the only honest judge on the supreme bench. I was his friend when he needed friends, for which I am sorry. Had the vigilance committee disposed of him as they did of others, they would have done a righteous act."

Perley took Terry's part and challenged Broderick, who replied contemptuously: "Sir, I fight only with gentlemen of my own position."

Thereupon Terry sent the following letter to Broderick:

OAKLAND, Sept. 8th, 1859.—Hon. David C. Broderick: Sir.—Some two months ago, at the public table of the International hotel in San Francisco you saw fit to indulge in certain remarks concerning me which were offensive in their nature. Before I heard of the circumstance, your note of the 29th of June addressed to D. W. Perley, in which you declared that you would not respond to any call of a personal character during the political canvass just concluded, was published. I have not to be sure been permitted to take any notice of those remarks until the expiration of the limit fixed by yourself. I now take the earliest opportunity to require of you a retraction of those remarks. This note will be handed to you by my friend, Calhoun Fenham, esq., who is acquainted with its contents, and will receive your answer.

D. S. TERRY.

To this letter Broderick replied thus:

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 8, 1859.—Hon. D. S. Terry: Yours of this date has been received. The remarks made by me were occasioned by certain offensive allusions of yours concerning me. He here repeats the language used by Terry with his own remarks to Perley. You are your own judge as to whether this language affords good grounds for offense.

D. C. BRODERICK.

A duel now was inevitable. Preliminary arrangements, seconds chosen and an attempt made to fight on September 12th, near the boundaries of San Mateo and San Francisco counties, which resulted in the arrest of principals and seconds. They were immediately discharged from custody, however, on the ground that no offense had yet been committed. The next day the duel took place near San Francisco. Terry, by the loss of half a dollar, won the choice of weapons. Pistols were used, ten paces were marked off, and the combatants took their places.

At the word Broderick fired first and a second later Terry's pistol rang out. Broderick's pistol it was afterwards learned, had been discharged accidentally and before he was ready, the bullet burying itself in the ground near Broderick's feet. The fineness of the hair trigger, to which Broderick was unaccustomed, was the cause of the accident. Broderick was a good shot, and had the muzzle of the weapon been raised high enough Terry would undoubtedly have been hit. Terry's bullet, however, took effect in Broderick's left breast, inflicting a wound from which he died three days later, and the contest took its place among the most celebrated duels of history.

Broderick's funeral oration was delivered by his friend, Col. E. D. Baker, one of the most picturesque characters in American history, who had previously represented an Illinois district in the lower branch of Congress, who subsequently went from Oregon to the upper branch who had been a private in the 13th Hawk war, a colonel in the Mexican war and who was a brigadier general in the Union army when he met his death in 1861, at the battle of Ball's Bluff.

Two-thirds of the people of San Francisco turned out at a Broderick funeral, the flags were put at half mast, and it seemed as if the whole state went into mourning. The funeral was, in fact, the most notable demonstration of its class which ever took place on the Pacific Coast.

Terry was arrested about a week after Broderick's death and put under $10,000 bonds. Although public opinion was strongly against him, the people holding him morally guilty of murder, the jury acquitted him.

M. Probach has received one of the finest lines of spring and summer goods in the city for gents' suits. He has also secured one of the best journeyman tailors, who makes up the garments at home, and is much more beneficial to the community than pedler tailors.

A CAPITAL CITY.

North Yakima Has Been Entered in the Race to Stay Till the Finish.

Mayor Reed Mentions a Few of the Points in Favor of this Flourishing Metropolis.

Tacoma News: Competition for the state capital is beginning to warm up as the time approaches for the people of the new state of Washington to vote upon its location. Fred Reed, of North Yakima, who now occupies the executive high chair of that city and wears the title of mayor so meekly, is on the war path in his war paint in the interest of that bustling city. Mayor Reed is at the Tacoma hotel. He toyed gently with a beautiful Masonic watch chain this morning, as he sat in a bay window of that popular hotel, and advanced to a News reporter a few of the reasons why North is par excellence, the place for the new capital of the great and glorious new state. He said:

"North Yakima is a candidate for the state capital—put that down. In the second place, and don't forget to put that down, North Yakima will be the capital. She possesses more natural advantages than any other city in the territory, including competitors and those cities which are not in the field. She possesses the only natural railroad passes to tide water, for the reason that they are conceded by experienced engineers and railroad builders to be not only the best but practically the only way of getting through the mountains. They are the only passes between the Columbia river and British Columbia on the north.

"North Yakima is a lively, active, hustling little city with a prosperous future before her—you can't find any fault with that town. The people are wide-awake the business men enterprising and well established, and are fixed in the intention to ornament and honor the capital building and grounds as the people of the territory honors them with their choice. North Yakima is a beautiful city. Her scenery is magnificent. She beats all the inland towns in that particular. The man who finds fault with her cell mate would kick on a Thackeray dinner at Delmonico's. The streets are broad and ornamented with shade trees. Irrigation, due full of fresh, clear water runs along the sides of the streets, and we have hotel accommodations that are second to no city in the territory or the future state. We have a hotel now that is better than any in the territory with the exception of the one I am in now. There are four hotels in the city, and in a few days I will be in a position to tell you something more about hotels. Our public buildings are handsome edifices, and would ornament your own Pacific avenue here. I can't speak in any sitting of all the advantages that makes North Yakima the most suitable place for the new capital."

"How does North Yakima find favor in the eyes of the people?"

"The thinking, intelligent people of the territory concede without hesitation that North Yakima is the best choice. If there are any who don't think so, or who have not thought about it at all seriously yet, they will think so when they examine into and study the situation. The city is bound to be a railroad center. The business men of North Yakima are representative citizens of this great country, and their fidelity to the interests of the new state is as public spirited and as deep-rooted as that of any city on either side of the mountains. Our people will leave no stone unturned to see, by legitimate means, the location of the capital at North Yakima."

"You have done something toward dominating a site?"

"Yes, sir," said the mayor decisively. "One of the most beautiful sites in the city has been set apart and reserved for the capitol buildings, and surrounding it are twenty-five acres of as level land as can be found in Eastern Washington. The site affords an excellent view of the mountains and valley, and is on the west side of the railroad track. If there is a finer site or a better city in Washington for a state capital it has got to be made to order by a landscape artist. Nature can't furnish it."

ELISE'S BEAUTIFUL ARMS.

The Great Triumph and Tragic End of an Artist's Model in Berlin.

Two years ago Elise Keunler, then 16 years old, was a waitress at a restaurant in the students' quarters in Berlin. She was not pretty. She was freckled, square shouldered and dumpy. She was so plain that she did not even get the usual caresses and love pats which the German waitresses almost invariably get from every man they serve. She had, however, one beauty of form—her arms. They were long, white and exquisitely modeled. A young artist noticed them one day as Elise, with her sleeves rolled up brought him his beer and roast goose. From that day on Elise was probably more sought after by young men than any other waitress in Berlin. Every artist wished her to sit for him so that he could paint her beautiful arms.

After the young artist discovered her arms and gave their counterparts to his Hebes and Venuses and Dianes, dozens of other artists wished to reproduce them on their canvasses. As a model Elise made double and treble the money that she had earned as waitress. She spent it all upon her person, and became immediately vain. By means of a bit of lacing, a free use of cosmetics and a lot of new gowns she made herself over into a very attractive young woman. She had lovers by the dozen. Hardly an evening passed for the next two years but that she drank wine with an artist or student in a fine Berlin restaurant, or sat beside him in some second-class theater.

A few weeks ago Elise had an engagement to sit for the young artist who discovered her. She went to his room and prepared to reveal the beautiful arms that he had wished to paint. He told her, however, that she need not take the trouble. He had found a woman with more finely modeled arms than hers. She threw herself on the floor and wept. He tossed her some money to comfort her. She threw it back at him and hurried off home. There she locked herself in her room. For two days she refused admittance to every one and ate nothing. On the morning of the third day her landlady was attracted to her bedroom by groans. On the bed lay Elise in convulsions. She confessed that she had poisoned herself, but begged the lady not to summon a doctor, as she wished to die. A physician who was called in considered her incurable. She was sent to the charity hospital, where she died two days later.

THE LATEST SLOT DEVICE.

An Automatic Machine That Takes and Fixes Instantaneous Photographs.

"Drop a quarter in the slot and have your photograph taken."

A South Side photographer was standing by a hand-lens cabinet similar in appearance to the automatic weighing machines which confront one everywhere.

"A quarter! What's the matter with a nickel?"

"A nickel will do in three or four months when the novelty wears off, but until the automatic photo-rapist is succeeded by a machine which will turn out a house and lot, a quarter only will work it. It is the latest thing out."

The reporter squar'd himself before a small slot opening in the cabinet opposite his face. He dropped a quarter in a slot lower down. Instantly a little metal door unlocked the opening, exposing the eye of a camera. There was a flash of light. The opening closed, and in a couple of minutes a finished photograph of him fell on a salver before the reporter.

"How did you strike the idea of such an invention?"

"A board of trade man suggested it," said he. "He said there was big money in it. Eleven weeks ago I started at it, and here it is, patented, with a corporation behind it—all ready to take in the quarters. And it will take them in, for it is the only invention of the sort that appeals directly to the universal vanity of the public."

While apparently complicated, the mechanism of the machine turned out to be simple. It is run by an ordinary cell battery, the quarter completing the current. An instantaneous camera is supplied with the necessary light by a flash of magnesium and chloride of potassium, dropped for each photograph on a pun above the opening and ignited by the heat of a platinum wire. The photograph is taken on a celluloid sheet about the size of a tintype. A set of rollers and a preparation of collodion in emulsion develop and dry the impression. The likeness issues much better finished than the ordinary tintype.

"The machines cost about $50," said the photographer. "The expense of operating them is next to nothing. We will soon have them in every hotel, drug store and saloon in the country."

"Are you going to utilize the invention for any other purpose than amusement?"

"Yes, for two serious purposes. I have a machine under construction which is to have the appearance of a clock and be placed at the railings of cashiers and tellers in banks."

"What for?"

"To enable them to take a photograph of any one who casts a chek, in case they should want to identify them afterwards. While the man is before the railing the cashier or teller will press an electric button and the man's photograph will be taken in a tenth of a second. He will see nothing but a slight flash in the clock, and couldn't get away if he tried before the instrument has indelibly recorded his features."

"And the other purpose?"

"A similar machine will be made for use in police stations. The photographs of suspects and criminals may be made without their knowledge and the consequent distortion of features which characterizes so many of the forced photographs in the rogues' gallery."—Chicago Tribune.

Few children can be induced to take physic without a struggle, and no wonder—most drags are extremely unpalatable. Ayer's Pills, on the contrary, being sugar-coated, are eagerly swallowed by the little ones, and are, therefore, the favorite family medicine.

THE STATE CAPITAL.

Where Shall the Seat of Government of Washington be Located.

Spokane Review: W. J. Milroy, of Yakima, arrived in the city yesterday and remained over Sunday. He is a son of General Milroy and is a promising young attorney. To a Review reporter he stated that Yakima people would have much preferred to have the question of locating the state capital deferred for a year or so, but since the constitutional convention has provided otherwise, the friends of Yakima will place the facts before the people and abide the result. He doubted whether any place would be decided upon by the first ballot, although he thought Yakima would certainly stand first on the list and ultimately be agreed upon. He based this view upon the fact that Yakima is the most accessible point from all directions and is so situated that all roads must cross there if the several practicable passes through the Cascade mountains are ever used.

"If the Southern Pacific is to be built from Portland to Spokane Falls," said he, "the road will cross the Northern at Yakima. The Vancouver and Yakima is now in course of construction and this will enable the people of all the southern or river counties to reach the capital by direct route. If this road is extended into the Big Bend country and to this city, it will afford all of the northern and northwestern part of the state equally direct connection with the seat of government at Yakima. If the Manito or any other road is ever built from here through the Naches pass to Gray's Harbor or to the Sound, as now seems probable, the road must go up the Naches river, which empties into the Yakima at our place. If the Union Pacific is ever built from Umatilla to the Sound, as also seems quite probable, it must go through one or the other of the passes to which Yakima holds the key. In fact," continued Mr. Milroy, "all of the mountain passes come to a center in the Yakima valley thus making it the most accessible point in the territory from all directions."

"What town do you regard as your strongest competitor?" asked the reporter. "Olympia, Yakima, Ellensburg and Pico are the only candidates. As this makes three on this side of the mountains against one on the west side, we naturally look on Olympia as Yakima's strongest competitor. Pico is not regarded as having much strength, and, as Ellensburg is far up the mountains and can only be reached by the road that passes through Yakima and up the Yakima canyon, we do not regard Ellensburg as a very strong competitor among those who know the topography of the country. It was shown by Prof. Clayton's ascension that Ellensburg is 1700 feet above the level of the sea. This is nearly twice the elevation of Yakima and this difference in elevation represents a vast difference in climate as well as in the matter of accessibility. So, as all the people of eastern Washington will have to pass through Yakima in order to go up to Ellensburg, and as many of them will have to change cars at Yakima when the railroads of the future shall have been constructed as proposed, it seems to us the majority of the east-side people will most certainly prefer to have the seat of government at Yakima."

"How will the people of western Washington vote," asked the reporter. "Many of them will vote for Olympia; but a great many fair-minded people over there will vote for Yakima or Ellensburg. How their votes will be divided between these points is difficult to say. The relations between Yakima and the Sound cities are very intimate and friendly, especially since we supply them with a large amount of fruit, melons and vegetables and have many of their prominent men interested in our valley. And the peculiarity is that both Seattle and Tacoma reciprocate the friendship of our people. Of course we can live without the capital," continued Mr. Milroy, "but as Yakima has been spoken of for the past ten years as the proper place for the capital we would of course like to have it located at that point."

THE TRUTH ABOUT IT.

An Eastern Physician on the Brown-Sequard Life Elixir.

Tacoma News: Dr. Hal C. Wyman, of Detroit, Mich., and wife, are in the city enroute to Alaska. Dr. Wyman is the author of several standard medical works and one of the leading physicians of Detroit. He was asked by a News reporter what he thought about the Brown-Sequard elixir of eternal life, which is at present attracting so much attention all over the world.

"In the first place," said Dr. Wyman, "Brown-Sequard does not claim for the elixir properties that will sustain life eternally. That is ridiculous. The eternal part was applied derivatively by others. Brown-Sequard is one of the most eminent physiologists of the day, and a leading authority in medical science. The doctor is getting old. That may or may not have something to do with the alleged discovery. I have not experimented with it. I understand that certain select portions of certain animals are taken and reduced quickly to a pulp and the elixir used without delay, hypodermically. Brown-Sequard claims that by its use he is able to work several hours longer than he would be able to without it. It is a general stimulant—stimulating all the functions of the body."

"Late telegraph dispatches show where the elixir has been used with very dangerous effects, and several of the patients are in a critical condition."

stances, beef tea, if not carefully administered."

"What are the after effects of the elixir if properly used—deblilitating?"

"Not bad or injurious, I am informed."

An Odd Result.

The multiplication of 987,654,321 by 45,444,444,444. Reversing the order and multiplying 123,456,789 by 45 a result equally as odd is obtained—5,555,555,503.

The Gardens of the Gods.

Tacoma Globe: From the famous Yakima valley came a car load yesterday of the finest watermelons and cantaloupes, surpassing in size, flavor and richness the most luscious fruits ever dreamed of in the coon's paradise. The rubber melon of California has better shipping qualities, and will last longer—in fact if the presumptive eater perseveres, the melon will probably be there to dance in triumph over the very ground where the victim fell a victim to colic and chagrin; but with all its staying qualities it flies away in despair when the rich, gigantic and luscious melons from Yakima roll into view.

HE TOOK A FIT.

Our Man Discharged Him Because He Interfered With His Day's Work.

A gang of men were at work on a city street when a slight, beardless youth laid down his pick and, approaching the foreman, said to him:

"Can I take a fit, sir?"

"Take what?" asked the foreman.

"A fit—I feel one coming on," replied the young man, without emotion.

"Why, certainly," said the foreman.

So the young man walked over to a bit of grass under a leafy tree—it was a new street in the suburbs—and had a fit.

Then he went and washed his face, came back to his place in the line, took up his pick and struck into work. After the day's work was over the young man said to the foreman: "You don't mind my having fits?"

"No—I guess not, if you do a fair day's work."

"Well, you see, I used to work for a butcher and he wouldn't let me take fits—said it interfered with business—an' I thought you might feel the same way about it."

And that young man works hard with pick and shovel, and takes a fit once in a while as you and I might take a drink of water.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

IMMENSE FOREST FIRES.

A Sea of Flames Extending From the British Columbia Line to the Stampedo Pass.

Seattle Press: Mr. Alfred Downing, a draftsman of the Seattle, Lake Shore & Eastern railroad, has returned from a three weeks' stay on the east slope of the Cascades, in the neighborhood of Lake Okechus, in the Okanogan country. Mr. Downing says that the whole country east of the mountains, from the Stampedo pass to the British line, is ablaze with forest fires. The country is as dry as a chip, and the fires have spread over large areas and millions of dollars worth of fine timber has been destroyed. The entire country at night is illuminated by the fires. The smoke from the fires hangs like a huge black pall over the country, obscures the sun during the day, the moon at night, and the inhabitants are made ill and dispirited by constantly inhaling the heated, creosote-laden air. The destruction of so much timber is lamented on all sides.

It is reported that the fires in that region were all started by a band of outlaws whom the sheriff of Okanogan county is in pursuit of. The sheriff, with a posse, has been in hot pursuit, and the outlaws set fire to the forest when close pressed to impede the steps of their pursuers, just as the armies used to burn the bridges behind them during the war. The people of the section are in arms against the outlaws, and will hardly show them much mercy if they are captured. A strong and united effort is being made in that direction.

Yakima Ahead on the Capital Question.

Medical Lake Ledger: The announcement is made that the Southern Pacific company will at once commence operations leading to the construction of a line of railroad from Portland to Spokane Falls by way of Yakima. Such a line would pass through an exceptionally rich country all the way and prove of great importance to Washington. In case it should touch Yakima, as announced, that fact would practically settle the capital question, as, in that event, that city would be most conveniently reached from all parts of our new state. Even under present conditions Yakima has better chances of securing the capital than any other city in Washington and should this railroad scheme referred to materialize, that place is assured of the seat of government.

A Scrap of Paper Saved Her Life.

It was just an ordinary scrap of wrapping paper, but it saved her life. She was in the last stages of consumption, told by her physicians she was incurable and could only live a short time; she weighed less than 70 pounds. On a piece of wrapping paper she read of Dr. King's New Discovery and got a sample bottle; it helped her, she bought a large bottle, it helped her more, bought another and grew better fast, continued to use and is now strong, healthy, rosy and plump, weighing 140 pounds. For fuller particulars send stamp to W. H. Cole, druggist, Fort Smith. Trial bottles of this wonderful Discovery free at Bushnell's drugstore.
