The Hon. J. W. Fennimore is the Sheriff of Kent Co., Del., and lives at Dover, the County Seat and Capital of the State. The sheriff is a gentleman fifty-nine years of age, and this is what he says: "I have used your August Flower for several years in my family and for my own use, and found it does me more good than any other remedy. I call Sick Headache. A pain comes in the back part of my head first, and then soon a general headache 'until I become sick and vomit. At times, too, I have a fullness 'after eating, a pressure after eating at the pit of the stomach, and 'sourness, when food seemed to rise 'up in my throat and mouth. When I feel this coming on if I take a 'little August Flower it relieves 'me, and is the best remedy I have 'ever taken for it. For this reason 'I take it and recommend it to 'others as a great remedy for Dyspepsia, &c."

Mrs. George Donald is visiting friends in Seattle.

Miss Cora Wilkins has gone to Seattle to reside.

Born, Wednesday, August 31, to the wife of Robert Rein, a son.

C. N. Perry left on Saturday last to join Mr. Beckwith at Yuma, Arizona.

J. R. Patton and family have returned from a visit of a couple of months in Tacoma.

Sam Vinson attended the meeting of the democratic state central committee at Seattle this week.

O. A. Fichter has been made committee-man-at-large by the democratic county central committee.

S. J. Lowe and Walter Bates have been spending the past week in the mountains hunting and hunting.

A. C. Walker has been among the Yakimites who have registered at the Tacoma exposition during the past week.

E. M. Reed, editor of THE HERALD, spent several days of the past week in Tacoma, visiting his parents and taking in the exposition.

Howard Lewis and W. A. Hardy returned from the upper Natchez on Friday last. They report splendid fishing, but a scarcity of birds.

One hundred mammoth watermelons from Yakima were cut and served at the Tacoma exposition on Saturday last, the occasion being Children's day.

Joseph M. Baxter accompanied his daughter to Tacoma, last week, where the young lady will attend the Annie Wright seminary for the coming year.

George Weikel has purchased the Reynolds "Ironclad" building on Yakima avenue, and will open a meat market therein during the month of October.

J. H. Bradford, Jr., of the Moxee, leaves tomorrow for Tacoma and thence for Boston, where his parents reside. He expects to be absent about two months.

Subscription blanks have been printed and are in the hands of solicitors for the purpose of raising funds to properly entertain the Grand Lodge, Knights of Pythias, in this city in May next.

The Portland Oregonian's weather record and crop report for Washington is very unreliable. For instance, it gives the hop yield of the state at a one-half average, taking figures, no doubt, from some of the yards along the Columbia.

Mr. and Mrs. Granger returned from Tacoma, Friday, and Mr. Granger again went over on the following day. He is giving much attention to the Yakima exhibit at the exposition, and in fact laboring constantly to advance the interests of this section.

Henry Villard, financial agent of the Northern Pacific, and J. L. Williams, vice president of the same company, are probably now enjoying the luxury of Yakima peaches, as W. N. Granger expressed two boxes of Ricketts's best to each last week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Chapman spent a number of days at Tacoma this week, in attendance at the exposition. Much of the credit of the admirable arrangement of the Yakima exhibit is due to Mr. Chapman's decorative skill, and he is receiving innumerable compliments on this head.

The oldest Sitwah on the Tulalip reservation is 90 years old, and answers to the name of John the Baptist. He deeply regrets the absence of the Hudson Bay company, as in the days when the King George men claimed the land whisky was plenty and easily obtained by the Indians.

At least the depot facilities at North Yakima are to be increased and improved. Work will begin next month on alterations, the estimated cost of which will be $4,000. The warehouse is to be lengthened 100 feet, the waiting-room doubled in size, the office room increased and the platform widened.

Daniel Bondman, the actor, is again in trouble by being forced to recognize that he has a multiplicity of wives. Before Bondman married Louise Bandet he abandoned Wells Walls by going in bathing with her, in Mill creek, in that condition of nakedness in which they made their debut on the world's stage.

James J. Hill, of St. Paul, president of the Great Northern railroad, while in New York last week secured the largest life insurance policy which it is possible to obtain on a single human life from one company—$100,000. He has policies in many companies, and his life is insured in all for $1,000,000. He pays about $45,000 a year in premiums, and regards life insurance as the best of all his many investments.

THE STATE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM.

Declares for Free Silver and Commends the Course of our Senators and Representatives.

The representatives of the democratic party of the state of Washington, in convention assembled, do adopt the following platform and resolutions:

We endorse the platform of the democratic party adopted at the national convention in Chicago and its nominees, Grover Cleveland and Adlai Stevenson, and pledge them our hearty support.

We pledge ourselves to advance by every exertion within our power the reform of the existing tariff and the imposition of taxes upon luxuries instead of necessities, to the end that the burden laid upon the many by the privileged few be lightened as fully as possible.

We strenuously oppose that latest invention of the republican party, the federal election law, commonly known as the force bill.

We favor the free and unlimited coinage of American silver.

We favor the immediate opening to settlement, under just guaranty to the Indians, of all the Indian reservations of this state.

We favor and recommend such just and liberal appropriations for coast protection and general improvements as shall be for the benefit of the state.

We condemn the course of Senators Allen and Squire and of Representative Wilson in their advocacy of the Lake Washington ship canal to the exclusion of needed appropriations for the necessary improvement of our rivers and harbors.

We demand the immediate survey of all unsurveyed lands within the state, that they may be thrown open to actual settlers.

We condemn as criminal the policy which has marked the land administration under which many thousands of acres of lands have fallen into the hands of speculators and incorporations.

We favor the establishment of a United States assay office in this state.

We favor the election of the president, vice president and United States senators by a direct vote of the people.

We pledge our every effort, as well as the efforts of all the nonessies in this convention, to do all in our or their power to secure the speedy completion of the Nicaragua canal, under such proper restraint and regulations as will be consonant with the well established principles of international law and the international policy of this government.

Upon the present republican administration in this state we call down the indignation of an outraged people. In its executive branch it has been weak, negligent, profligate, without capacity and without patriotic spirit. In its legislative department it has defied the wishes of the people, acted with total disregard to the public good and squandered the people's money in idle and extravagant schemes, while the state went without a capital building and the patriotic members of the national guard went unpaid.

We denounce the action of Charles E. Laughton, acting governor, in vetoing the Wasson bill reducing freight rates and the law requiring railroad companies to fence their track; the bill preventing armed bodies of men to come into the state of Washington, otherwise known as the anti-Pinkerton bill; the section of the revenue law taxing coal companies; the bill requiring railroads to make connections with other railroads at suitable points, and other measures for the relief of the people; and we charge the republican governor, Elisha P. Ferry, and the republican party, with full responsibility for these vetoes in allowing the said Laughton to act as governor, as we believe for the conceived purpose of giving him the opportunity of serving some of the pets and allies of the republican party; and we charge Governor Ferry with complicity in killing said bills and legislation by failing to reconvene the legislature to reenact said bills or act on said vetoes.

We favor the passage of a mechanic's lien law that will secure to every man who labors, his wages under all circumstances, and which will give to every laborer a first lien upon the subject of his labor for his wages, to take the place of the present lien law, which the present republican supreme court has about constructed out of existence.

We pledge ourselves to favor reasonable legislation reducing freight rates and fares charged by transportation companies in this state.

We denounce as an infringement upon the rights of the American people guaranteed by our constitution the employment of Pinkertons, and demand of our state legislature such laws as will protect our people against the armed interference of such agencies.

We demand the creation of the office of public printer, that his office may be made a salaried one, and that the state own its own printing establishment.

We believe that eight hours should constitute a day's labor on all public work.

We favor the abolition of the poll tax.

We denounce the present revenue law in regard to the collection of delinquent taxes, which confiscates the property of our people.

We demand the immediate repeal and the adoption of a more simple law whereby the right of the state and coun-

LAST DEBT OF GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS.

His Death Recalls Some of the Incidents of His Life—Conkling's Harsh Criticism.

When George William Curtis found himself free from the debt which he voluntarily incurred at the time of the failure of Putnam's Magazine he had earned from $8,000 to $10,000 a year for fifteen years, but had lived on less than $4.00, his creditors getting the rest. When, about 1871, he had the sum of money required to pay off the last of the notes, he hunted in vain for the holder of the note. He sent letters here and there, but could find no trace either of the man or of his family or heirs. It worried Mr. Curtis a great deal. He had been looking forward for fifteen years to the day when he could say he owed no man anything, and to be thus huffed in his last payment because he could not find his creditor, seemed to him like the misery of having incurred a new obligation.

In some way he heard that Thomas L. James, then a deputy in the custom house, had some acquaintance with his creditors, and, going to Mr. James to ask about this man, he seemed more like one who was about to receive instead of pay money. General James set him on the track of relatives of the man and Mr. Curtis finally found heirs who could repay for the money. Meeting General James afterward he said that when he paid that money he felt as though he had come into a fortune, and justly, because for the first time in fifteen years no man in the world had any claim on him.

Mr. Curtis was connected by marriage and blood with a number of persons who achieved intellectual prominence. He was a cousin of ex-Judge Noah Davis, although very few persons were aware of that fact. The lines of life of these two men were widely separated except at such time as both were prominent in republican politics. He was also a brother-in-law of Colonel Robert G. Shaw, who, although of genuine aristocratic blood and the heir to great wealth, led a colored regiment to the front at the time of the civil war, and fell fighting at the head of the black soldiers. He was also a brother-in-law of Colonel Lowell, who was also killed in battle. This relationship brought Mr. Curtis very close to Russell Lowell.

Mr. Curtis was a man whom Boreve Conkling could not understand, and who he could never speak of without admiration. Conkling's Rochester speech of 1877 was aimed at Curtis, who listened to it, not with any sense of personal indignation, but with a full appreciation of Conkling's power of biting yet parliamentary sarcasm. Mr. Curtis occasionally was in the habit of turning to that speech and reading it, not with vindictive feelings, but because he regarded it as a masterpiece of that sort of oratory—a kind of oratory which Mr. Curtis would never have ventured to indulge in himself. No man ever gave greater praise to Conkling's oratorical powers or his wonderful command of English than Mr. Curtis, although he was himself the object of the bitterest attack that Conkling ever made, excepting the one he made upon Charles Sumner in the senate.

People with hair that is continually falling out, or those that are bald, can stop the falling and get a good growth of hair by using Hall's Hair Renewer.

No person should travel without a box of Ayer's pills. As a safe and speedy remedy for constipation and all irregularities of the stomach and bowels, they have no equal, and being skillfully sugar-coated are pleasant to take, and long retain their virtues.

You cannot be too particular about the medicines you use. When you need a blood purifier be sure you get Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and so other. It will mingle with, purify, and vitalize every drop of blood in your body. It makes the weak strong.

All those indebted to me, either by note or book accounts, will please call at once and settle.

We denounce the action of Charles E. Laughton, acting governor, in vetoing the Wasson bill reducing freight rates and the law requiring railroad companies to fence their track; the bill preventing armed bodies of men to come into the state of Washington, otherwise known as the anti-Pinkerton bill; the section of the revenue law taxing coal companies; the bill requiring railroads to make connections with other railroads at suitable points, and other measures for the relief of the people; and we charge the republican governor, Elisha P. Ferry, and the republican party, with full responsibility for these vetoes in allowing the said Laughton to act as governor, as we believe for the conceived purpose of giving him the opportunity of serving some of the pets and allies of the republican party; and we charge Governor Ferry with complicity in killing said bills and legislation by failing to reconvene the legislature to reenact said bills or act on said vetoes.

We favor the passage of a mechanic's lien law that will secure to every man who labors, his wages under all circumstances, and which will give to every laborer a first lien upon the subject of his labor for his wages, to take the place of the present lien law, which the present republican supreme court has about constructed out of existence.

We pledge ourselves to favor reasonable legislation reducing freight rates and fares charged by transportation companies in this state.

We denounce as an infringement upon the rights of the American people guaranteed by our constitution the employment of Pinkertons, and demand of our state legislature such laws as will protect our people against the armed interference of such agencies.

We demand the creation of the office of public printer, that his office may be made a salaried one, and that the state own its own printing establishment.

We believe that eight hours should constitute a day's labor on all public work.

We favor the abolition of the poll tax.

We denounce the present revenue law in regard to the collection of delinquent taxes, which confiscates the property of our people.

We demand the immediate repeal and the adoption of a more simple law whereby the right of the state and coun-

John McInaw's tour through eastern Washington was a most dismal failure...

The Snohomish Democrat has this to say of Hon. H. J. Sively: "No better man could have been selected, and it elected, will make one of the best governors that Washington ever had."

The same old gang of republican political adventurers, who looted the state treasury and brought disgrace on the name of Washington in the first state legislature, is vigorously working to be retained in power.

The democratic central committee held its first regular meeting at Tacoma Tuesday. Hon. Henry Drum was elected chairman and Charles DeFrance, of South Bend, secretary.

There are grave fears that the world's fair will not be held next year. As in the story of the wandering Jew the whippersnappers of the approaching century grow stronger with every passing day...

On Thursday afternoon a convention of the democratic delegates from Kittitas and Yakima counties was held in this city for the purpose of placing in nomination a candidate for the office of superior judge.

There is any office in the gift of the people where political affiliation should have little weight it is that of the judiciary, and THE HERALD desires to especially urge upon the members of the People's party to weight everything well before casting their votes for L. A. Vincent.

The Maine election held on Monday. In 1884 it gave a republican plurality of over 20,000; in 1888, 23,358; and in the election just held even republican sources claim no more than 10,000 to 12,000.

If Yakima county does its duty on the 8th of November it will roll up a majority of four hundred for H. J. Sively. No less number than this will be creditable to a community whose favored son has always had the welfare of Yakima at heart in his political and professional life.

THE COST OF WAR.

In connection with the peace congress now in session at Bern, Switzerland, it is of interest to note the attention given by French writers of the present day to the cost of war in men and money.

RACING RECORDS BROKEN.

This is a year of record breaking, especially on the turf. Hardly a day goes by but the record in some class is lowered, and so used are we getting to this state of affairs that a broken record results in little comment.

It is very evident that the limit of trotting speed has not yet been reached. Mr. Bonner, expert though he be, must revise his opinion that the limit will be found at 2:00.

For ten years Ten Brock's 1:39 3/4 stood as the highest attainable speed for a mile; but within three years that time has been beaten by several different horses, and no one would be astonished to see the figure reduced to 1:35 on an elliptical track before the century ends.

The Maine election held on Monday. In 1884 it gave a republican plurality of over 20,000; in 1888, 23,358; and in the election just held even republican sources claim no more than 10,000 to 12,000.

Republicans have received their campaign outfit in full, hats made out of shoddy, and oilcloth capes. They will probably look very pretty and somewhat silly when decked out in this kind of rig.

Delinquents Must Settle.

This is the time of year when newspapers need money, and subscribers should not forget that the times pass more rapidly with the reader than they do with the publisher who has to pay the bills. "The Herald" has been inclined to be lenient with those who are in arrears, but now pressing creditors force us to make a demand for settlement. Those who are indebted to this office, whether for subscriptions, job work or advertising, will please give this immediate attention. THE HERALD.

HERALDINGS.

D. A. Clement, of Spokane, is in the city.
Fred Blazien, of Ellensburg, was in the city Monday.
Born, Sunday, September 11, to the wife of J. E. Coe, a daughter.
Mr. George Livesley and family will soon return to Yakima to reside.
Mrs. Ed Whitson, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Thomas Clancy, at Tacoma.
Dell Hiseck, left on Wednesday for Tacoma for a visit of a few weeks.
E. Gutzman, of Tacoma, is among the latest purchasers of Yakima realty.
George Guillard, of Wenatchee, spent several days in the city this week.
John A. Stone was among the Yakima visitors at the Tacoma exposition this week.
George Vanderbilt and party passed through Yakima, Wednesday, bound for Tacoma.
Dr. W. Ross, of the N. P., Yakima & K. I. company, spent several days in Tacoma during the past week.
Mrs. J. P. Mattoon and Miss Anna Mattoon are among the Yakima visitors at the Tacoma exposition this week.
John A. Todd, deputy U. S. internal revenue collector, was in Yakima Monday, looking after Uncle Sam's interests.
Dr. Cloud Eshelman, of The Dalles, arrived here Wednesday, with his bride, for a visit with his brothers, J. T. and Dudley Eshelman.
C. S. Powell, F. A. Williams and D. H. Carey, of Ellensburg, and W. H. Hare, of this city, spent Sunday on the reservation, chicken shooting.
The Herald has issued the first 10,000 of a 50,000 order of a descriptive folder of Yakima, to be circulated at the Tacoma exposition and in the east.
The commissioner of the interior department has rendered a decision in the Lindsay Maupin-Moses T. Ward timber culture contest, favoring Mr. Ward's claim.
Col. E. M. Carr, J. W. George, E. M. Dindinger and James A. Campbell, of Seattle, were in the city Tuesday making their annual desert proof before the land officers.
The Electric Light company has arranged for an engine, so that in case of a hard freeze up this winter and a blockade of ice there will be no stoppage of the light power.
Mrs. W. H. Chapman returned from Tacoma, Wednesday. Mr. Chapman has been persuaded to remain through the exposition, as his services have been found indispensable.
No services will be held at the Presbyterian church next Sunday except Sunday school at 10:30 a. m. The pastor will remain at Seattle over Sunday in attendance upon the state synod.
Died, at Tacoma, September 11, Francis Bradley, aged 80 years. Deceased was a uncle of R. J. Frazier, of this city, and father-in-law of Hon. Thomas Carroll, democratic nominee for congress.
Spokane Review: Among the display of Yakima county fruits at the Tacoma exposition are ten large peaches growing on a branch just a foot in length. Yakima is full of surprises for even her most ardent admirers.
The county bond election, which was held on Tuesday, did not draw out a very large vote. Some of the leaders of the people's party fought the proposition, but it was carried, the dissenting vote practically cutting no figure.
Capt. Thomas has received word from the creamery people at Portland that the list of 1,000 cows, necessary to secure the establishment of the plant here, is short 214 cows, which they ask the farmers to make up immediately, as they are anxious to erect buildings this fall.
The ladies of the Christian church will give a supper at Mason's opera-house next Wednesday evening, September 21, from 6 to 10 p. m. Chicken and the best of everything the market affords will be served, and the literary and musical exercises promise to be unusually entertaining.
Two trains bearing big timbers for the Washington World's fair buildings passed through town Saturday morning of last week. There were seven pieces to the train, and each stick was 124 feet in length. These trains travel only by daylight, in order to advertise the wonderful timber resources of our state.
Mr. A. Arendt, of "The Ellis," will leave for San Francisco, on Monday, to personally make a selection of holiday goods. Mr. Arendt intends to place his orders for a larger and finer stock of these goods than has ever been brought to central Washington. He will be absent about three weeks, and on his return will enlarge and make alterations in his store that will make it the most attractive confectionery, cigar and notion establishment between Spokane and the coast cities.

Seattle Post-Intelligencer: W. A. Hardy and Howard H. Lewis returned yesterday from a week's hunting and fishing trip in the Natchees and Wenatchee valleys. They report sport to be unexcelled and the scenery grand. Mr. Hardy said the trip was one continual round of pleasure. The trout were plentiful and took the gray hackle and professor in a manner that was refreshing to the sportsman. Mr. Lewis had some of his largest photographed so that his statements as to their size cannot be impeached, and will have the pictures placed on exhibition when mounted. Grouse were not over abundant, but those bagged were splendid eating and made camp life very enjoyable. The trip from North Yakima to the camp on the Natchees river was made by wagon and at many places was dangerous and looked down into ravines or gulches many hundred feet deep. Once the wagon slewed over the edge and it was only by a vigorous application of the whip that the horses were made to pull it back on the trail and save the hunters and themselves from a fall to death.

The ninth annual convention of the Young Men's Christian Association of the Pacific Northwest, comprising Washington, Oregon, Idaho and British Columbia, will be held in Tacoma, September 21st to 28th inclusive. Able talent from abroad will be present, besides whom there will be the secretaries of associations, pastors and representative business men from all parts of the Pacific coast. The citizens of Tacoma, will entertain the guests. In towns where no association exists pastors and Christian young men are invited to attend the convention as corresponding delegates. These will be admitted as such delegates on presentation of certificate from pastor of their evangelical church. It is hoped that there will be representatives from the churches and young people's societies of this place. The Tacoma association desires that those who will attend the convention should send in their names to M. M. Meyers, general secretary of the Tacoma association, not later than Saturday, September 17.

Mrs. Mackison, sister of Mrs. John G. Boyle, who has a wonderful soprano voice, will visit Yakima for a couple of days next month while on her way from Tacoma to Chicago, and an effort will be made by our music-loving people to have her favor us in a couple of concerts. While in Tacoma the other day, Cappa, of the Seventh Regiment band, informed the editor of THE HERALD that Mrs. Mackison had a great future before her, and was certain to be acknowledged as one of the leading sopranos of the country. Prof. Flanagan was enraptured with the voice of the little lady, and could not say enough complimentary things in her behalf.

George S. Courter received a telegram, Thursday morning, that a special train of seven cars of delegates to the Sovereign Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows, which convenes at Portland, would pass through Yakima that evening, and that one hundred of Mr. Courter's friends from New Jersey were of the party. Mr. Courter thereupon obtained permission to take his summer vacation and accompanied his friends on the trip.

Hop picking is now general throughout the county, and many of the school children, lads and lassies, are engaged in the picking. Many of the yards are turning out better than was anticipated. The yard of Charles Carpenter, from which he did not expect over 1,800 pounds to the acre, is yielding 2,000 pounds, while the yield from another yard is averaging 2,300 pounds.

Wm. Ham Hall, of the N. P., Y. & K. I. company, arrived here on Saturday last to remain a few days, when he will leave for the east via. San Francisco to complete final arrangements for building a line of railroad from North Yakima to the Sunnyside country. Mr. Hall informs THE HERALD that he is in hopes of starting construction work this fall.

The city council has passed a resolution to compel the owners of lots on the north side of Yakima avenue, between First and Second streets, to build sidewalks to correspond in grade, width and material with those in front of the Allen, Eshelman, McEwen and Ward buildings.

W. H. Steele will begin the picking of his hops on Friday. Many persons have pronounced Mr. Steele's yard the best of the new yards, and Sam Chappell estimates the yield at 1,200 pounds per acre, although he says he would not be surprised if it would go much more.

Rev. T. S. Dulin, of Colorado, will hold services at the Baptist church Sunday morning and evening at the usual hours. Mr. Dulin is said to be a bright and entertaining talker, and the request is made that he be greeted by a large congregation.

The democratic nomination for superior judge, to succeed C. B. Graves, will be made in this city on Saturday, when delegates from Kittitas and Yakima counties will decide upon the nominee. The indications are that F. H. Radkin will be nominated.

J. H. Stout has located a number of mineral claims on a ledge in the Tietan that promise to prove of wonderful value. From a specimen of the rock weighing 300 grains, 33 grains of quicksilver was extracted.

Mrs. C. A. Snowden, of Tacoma, and Miss True, of Chicago, are the guests of Col. Howlett and family. They will remain until Sunday, when Mr. Snowden will arrive to accompany them to the Sound.

Receiver Hughes, of the U. S. land office, Spokane, and Special Agent McCormack spent Monday and Tuesday in Yakima, visiting the various orchards and other points of interest.

Dr. E. E. Heg returned on Tuesday from a trip through Whitman county and the Palouse country. He says the reports from that section appear to have lost all heart.

YAKIMA AT THE EXPOSITION.

Our Exhibit Attracts Wide Attention—It Is Unrivalled—The Department Full of Admirers.

"Yakima is strictly in it this year," said Allen C. Mason, as he shook the hand of THE HERALD editor, at Tacoma, the other day. "It is a great country that can make an exhibit such as Yakima has at the exposition, and it will do a world of good. Yakima is in everybody's mouth, not only in Tacoma but throughout the state, and our expectations of seeing it the richest agricultural section of Washington, and North Yakima a city of from twelve to fifteen thousand inhabitants cannot be long delayed." Thus Mr. Mason cheerily chatted during the intermissions in the program of Cappa's Seventh Regiment band at the exposition, and his sentiments and enthusiasm seemed to be the echoing sound of a multitude's great voice. Everybody had a good word for Yakima, and so much so that it talked about that many people who have not been here think North Yakima already a great city. The display is one we can all be proud of, for it is not only creditable in its material make up but the arrangement is most excellent, and Messrs. Chapman and Rose have reason to grow vain over the repeated compliments showered upon them for their skill and taste. "One has to go away from home to see what Yakima really can produce," said Mr. Rose to THE HERALD man, and it would be money well invested if Yakima county would take up a public subscription and send some of her people over here to see how Yakima is appreciated abroad." Mr. Rose did not mean by this that we are a race of moneymen, but that there were a few here who would be brightened up by contact with the outside world.

Yakima has no competitor in the way of exhibit. The various counties including Yakima have very good fruit displays in jars for the world's fair, but no sections approach this in the way of fresh fruits and produce. Puyallup has a very good display of vegetables, and Walla Walla has a table devoted to fresh fruits, but the Yakima exhibit captures all eyes, as it justly deserves to for there is no other agricultural or horticultural exhibit that approaches it in merit.

The exposition this year is a greater financial success than last, judging from receipts up to the present time, but the expenses are also heavier, $17,000 being paid for Cappa's band, whereas $12,000 was the amount paid to Innes. The crowds have not been notably large except on one or two nights, the largest being on Monday last when the band rendered the Battle of Gettysburg before about 10,000 people. The displays, especially in the mechanical department, are very good. There the hop-drying process is shown, nails are made, cloth woven, stockings knitted by machinery and in fact it is a veritable hive of industry, and full of interest.

For Yakima, Sept. 24th, a big and enjoyable program has been mapped out, at which time Cappa will dedicate his new piece of music to Yakima.

Percy W. Rochester, a well known attorney and democratic politician of Seattle is a guest of the Hotel Yakima.

Mr. and Mrs. George Ker have returned from Tacoma, where they have been selecting furniture for their new residence.

Henry B. Scudder received a dispatch Thursday conveying the sad intelligence of the death of his mother at her home in Boston.

John Mabry received a telegram from his parents in Kansas, Wednesday, summoning him home, and he left on the following day.

Fred R. Reed returned from the Sound, Wednesday, and on the following day filed with the auditor articles of incorporation of the Prosser Falls Land company.

C. R. Martin, editor of the Cle-Elum Tribune, was in the city Thursday taking part in the convention of delegates that nominated F. H. Radkin for supreme judge of this district.

W. E. Spangler, a nephew of R. J. Frazier, arrived here from Butte, Mont., on Monday. Mr. Spangler recently made a trip to logs, and says Weaver will not receive the vote of his home county.

L. H. Flattor, a prominent democrat of Spokane county, and nominee for lieutenant governor against Laughton in 1909, is in the city. Mr. Flattor is on the democratic ticket for presidential elector, and an excellent man he is.

Isaac Pincus, the well known hop factor of Tacoma, arrived here Thursday morning and is going through the various hop yards, with a view to future dealings. He says Yakima has the best of the Sound, as they have less than half a crop there this year.

A street argument on Thursday led to arrangements for a discussion, on Saturday afternoon next, between R. B. Milroy, republican, and John G. Boyle, representing the people's party, on financial issues. The contest between these operators will take place at Mason's opera-house immediately upon the adjournment of the mass meeting to arrange for the excursion to Tacoma on Yakima day. The preliminaries provide for Mr. Boyle to open the discussion with a speech of three-quarters of an hour, to be followed by Mr. Milroy, who will then set the subtleties of his wit to the test in an hour, and then Mr. Boyle will have a quarter of an hour to close during which time he will probably scatter gold pieces, demoralized silver and shinplasters all over the hall. The entertainment will be free as it is especially provided that no collection shall be taken up.

A TEMPTING RAILROAD RATE.

The Northern Pacific Offers a $5.00 Round Trip Rate to Tacoma for "Yakima" Day

Through the efforts of Paul Schulte and Walter N. Granger the Northern Pacific has arranged to give a round trip rate to Tacoma, good on the 24th of September for going and four days for returning, provided that not less than 300 tickets are sold. This is a large number, but from present indications they can readily be disposed of. A meeting of citizens was held at the Club, Wednesday, and the project was generally discussed.

September 24 will be Yakima day at the exposition, and it is proposed to make this a gala occasion. The concession is readily made at Tacoma that Yakima has by far the finest agricultural and horticultural exhibit at the exposition; in fact there is nothing to compare with it, and the management of the exposition desires that Yakima shall be properly recognized for her worth and enterprise, and it is proposed to meet the Yakima excursionists with band, the mayor and city council, the Commercial club and members of the Chamber of Commerce, and to show them every consideration, including a boat ride on the Sound.

Mr. Granger set forth the attractions, as outlined to him, and after a general discussion a committee consisting of John Reed, Capt. J. H. Thomas, A. B. Weed, G. W. Hodson and James Greer was appointed to make arrangements for a mass meeting to be held at Mason's opera-house, Saturday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, when it is proposed to perfect the guarantee for the 300 tickets if possible, and it is desired that everyone may be present fully prepared to definitely state the number of tickets they will take.

Mrs. G. W. Cary desires to inform the ladies of Yakima that she has purchased a large and splendid line of cloaks; also of New York trimmed pattern hats, which are expected to arrive here within a day or two. Do not send away for your cloaks and hats until you have seen Mrs. Cary's new stock.

J. B. Cornett and wife are visiting in Tacoma.

The first of the series of firemen's dances will be held Saturday evening at Mason's opera-house.

PROTECT OUR BREAD.

The machinery of the law has not been put to work too speedily against the fraudulent use of ammonia and alum in Baking Powders. Both health and the pocket of the people are demanding protection. The legislatures of New York, Illinois and Minnesota have taken this matter of adulteration up, and especially that of Baking Powders. It will be in the interest of public health when their sale is made a misdemeanor in every State in the UNION, and the penalties of the law are rigidly enforced. There is no article of human food more wickedly adulterated than that of Baking Powder.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder is the only pure cream of tartar powder having a general sale that is free from ammonia, alum or taint of any kind of impurity. It makes the sweetest and lightest bread, biscuit and cake that are perfectly digestible whether hot or cold. It costs more to manufacture Dr. Price's than any other baking powder. It is superior to every other known and the standard for forty years.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder is reported by all authorities as free from Ammonia, Alum, or any other adulterant. In fact, the purity of this ideal powder has never been questioned.

CHAPTER I.

"Pike, every hour in the day I'll pray God to damn the Confederacy."

At the beginning of the war the Widow Hurd and her family lived up in the mountains about twenty miles southeast of Jackboro and on a little branch of Clinch river, which flows through the Cumberland range on a horse's march away. The Widow Hurd was a woman of marked character. When a child she had lived for some years at Tanawee, where she learned to read and write, accomplishments which in themselves were sufficient to distinguish her among her unlettered neighbors. Twenty years before the war, her husband had been killed in an election quarrel at Jackboro, leaving her three children—two boys and a girl, the latter being the youngest and at this time in her twenty-first year. Mrs. Hurd, thrown on her own resources, cultivated her hilly farm with more success than her husband had ever done. Her property was in marked contrast with that of her neighbors, and she was the only one of her class in the neighborhood. When she was asked by the young men of the town where she had received her limited education, Minny Hurd was the belle of the mountains, and she was the only one of that region led to more than an encounter. Jack Hurd and his brother, Pike, were as near an age as brothers well could be who were not twins, and the resemblance was quite as striking as if they had been twins. They were tall, athletic young fellows with the keen gray eyes and thick dark hair so characteristic of the pure blooded mountain men. It was through their mother's influence and the memory of their father's sad ending that they avoided drink.

These brothers had slept together since childhood, played together and worked together, and so it came about that they not only looked alike, but they thought alike, and the neighbors often jokingly said that "the Hurd boys were too doggone fond of each other ever to get married." But when the first rumblings of the war were heard, the mountain change came between the brothers. Wiser men than the young Hurd boys were puzzled to give a good reason for their sympathies and prejudices, but the widow noticed that Pike, her youngest boy, was away at Williams' store a great deal, where a Knoxville paper that favored the Union was taken and read by the proprietor to the crowds of mountain men who now made that place a rendezvous.

Mrs. Hurd also noticed that there was a cloud between the boys. They began to work apart, and their relations became more and more strained, though never from first to last did a harsh word pass, nor was an angry look given. Mrs. Hurd, from whose lips I learned most of this story, was a strong Union woman, but she avoided as much as possible the discussion of the all absorbing question then agitating the land and dividing her household.

Pike grows more and more in temper like his poor father that day and night, she said Mrs. Hurd one day to her daughter, "and I'm powerfully s'p'rit, Minny, that he'll start off first thing we know and become a soldier."

"He told me," said Minny, "that he thought he felt 'bigger,' that he last night he cleaned up his rifle and fixed his saddle, and I noticed that he set the traps away when Jack, he showed up. His mighty hard to think that them two boys that's allus been so lovin' is now set agin each other. The war ain't a comin' har no more, and I can't see that we uns is called on to bother."

Minny Hurd had good reason for this belief. As yet the war was far off. A great battle had been fought in Virginia, and stories of skirmishes in the mountains away to the north were told to the mountain boys that now daily assembled at Williams' store and often remained till late in the night discussing the situation. But there was no elevation or valley of the Cumberland range that was to escape the contest, no family among the scattered settlements that was not to be drawn into the struggle.

Jack Hurd was a quiet, unobtrusive man, but like all such natures he had strong feelings, and once he had made up his mind it was impossible to change him. It was known to his family and friends that "Jack Hurd was powerfully set agin the Confederacy," and equally well known that "Pike was set agin the Union," but this difference between brothers with so common as to excite no comment.

One moonlight night late in October, Jack Hurd was coming home from the store, where he had been to listen, when on the narrow trail leading down to his mother's farm he came face to face with Pike, who had his rifle on his shoulder and was leading his saddled horse.

"Pars like's of yo' was agwine to ride," said Jack.

"'Yes: see agwine fo' torids," coughed Pike.

"'Which way?"

"'Knoxville way."

"'Fo' shuah, Pike?"

stidder, and that of so he'd didn't never come back, yo'd be home to keef fo' the place. Yo've got home at 'it better head's me, Jack, and though I know yer heart's set onto the Union, yo'll not leave the folks at home. A-ud, ole feller, I don't want yo' to feel hard agin me: I'm powerfull' sad cut up, but I'm pleagd' to go."

Pike drew his coat sleeve across his eyes and reached out his hand and laid it in his own strong grasp Jack said: "Pike, every hour in the day I'll pray God to damn the Confederacy, but to save yo' and to send yo' back safe. Hit may be that I'll have to take sides, but if I do and we uns should meet in the battle, I'll not raise my hand agin my brother, and I know, Pike, yo'll not dr-w-a fead on a man that yo' think is me."

More demonstrative men would have shed tears and perhaps have embraced at this sad parting, but the brothers simply withdrew their hands and Jack stepped to one side. Pike, flung himself into the saddle and rode down the trail leading to the south.

After waiting till the rider was swallowed up in the shadows and the tramping of the horse died out, Jack went on to the house, where he found his mother and his sister Minny. He tried to cheer them up by telling them that Pike would soon return, for it was not in his nature to submit to discipline such as he understood the officers required of their men.

"Pike will tick his captain and the he'll come back home," said Jack; but though he hoped for this his heart told him that shadow had fallen on the little family that would never again be lifted.

Jack Hurd kept on with his work, affecting to pay no heed to the battle echoes ringing through the Cumberland valleys or to the rumors that the Confederate authorities were about to begin conscriptions. But Jack Hurd cleaned his rifle and oiled his revolver and loaded bullets—not an unusual thing at this season, when the farm work was over and game was fat and abundant in the hills. But the mother and sister, watching his serious face as he made these preparations, knew that he was not preparing to hunt.

One day in late November Jack, who was cutting wood up the mountain side, heard his sister's hallo and saw her signaling from the knoll above the house for him to come home. When he joined Minny she said: "There's two sojer uns down to the house, and one of 'em's tiverted all to 'nith with gold lace and sic' fixins. They see us how they've come to talk w-a' we uns and to see yo'."

Jack Hurd entered the house and was confronted by a man in a gray uniform and with a sword hooked to his belt.

"My name is Captain Field, and I am a mustering officer," said the man.

"W-a-l, I ain't got no objections," said Jack.

"Will you please to answer me a few questions?" said the officer.

"Let's hear 'em."

"What is your full name?" and Captain Field took out a memorandum book and prepared to write.

"Jack Hurd."

"How old are you?"

"Twenty-five."

"How tall?"

"'Bout six feet, I reckon."

"How is your health?"

"'Tollable, thank yo'."

"Quite strong, eh?"

"Well—fa'r."

"Eyesight good?"

"I reckon so. But what in blazes do yo' want to know them things fo'?" demanded Jack.

"Well," responded the officer, as he put away the book, "we are sent into these mountains by General Ledbetter to find out what men are fit for duty in the army. You are just the man for a soldier. Mr. Hurd, and I propose to send you on to Knoxville."

"Whether I'm willin' or no?"

"You certainly must be willing."

"But I'm not!"

The preparations for Jack's fight were as sudden as the act that made it a necessity.

"Let that stranger loose after I've had a good start," he said.

Mrs. Hurd sobbed and clung to him. She loved Pike as much as she did her brother, but Jack had become more essential to her. Ever since reaching manhood he had taken from her should the burden that had borne so long and so uncomplainingly. "They mustn't leave me one! Oh, God! they mustn't leave me one!" sobbed the poor woman.

Jack kissed his mother and sister and there were rings of moisture about his gray eyes as he turned away from the house and set his face to the hills sweeping off in rugged ridges to the north.

After he had been gone an hour or more Mrs. Hurd released the prisoner who at once made his way to the rendezvous at Williams' store. Here there were forty Confederate soldiers guarding about the same number of Union soldiers who had been conscripted that day.

The news of the killing of Captain Field created a great sensation at the store and forced on the people a realization of the fact that the war had actually come to these mountains.

A detail was dispatched by Mrs. Hurd to bring back the body, and every guard that could be well spared was sent into the mountains to capture Jack Hurd and Williams, the storekeeper, who had strong southern sympathies, declared that they'd "have to kill Jack to bring him back without danger."

Mr. Williams and two bloodhounds, and at his suggestion these creatures were taken down to the Widow Hurd's and placed on the trail of the fugitive.

"The hounds may come up with my Jack," said the widow when the dogs started off, "but they won't make nothing by it, nor will they eat f'ollers the trail."

If Jack had had time to advise with his Union neighbors, he might have had his safety depended on his getting off the state as soon as possible. Like all a detail man, he was a fast and a tireless walker, and he had the advantage of knowing all the trails up to the Kentucky line, and even as far north as Cumberland.

For forty-eight hours he kept on, halting now and then at some spring to quench his thirst and to eat sparingly of the mountain berries and nuts he sister had thoughtfully placed in his haversack. But there is a limit to the endurance of even so strong and resolute a man as Jack Hurd. It was near sunset when he left home, and the third sun was setting to the left when he lay down to rest, with a lowering rack at his back and a clear space in front.

He slept long and soundly, for when he awoke the light of another day was turning to opal the clouds resting on the higher peaks. Indeed, he might have slept still longer had he not been rudely disturbed by the whistling of the leashed hounds and the loud voices of men.

He sprang to his feet and reached for his rifle, which he had left resting against the rock at his back, but it was in the hands of another man, and its muzzle was pointed at his heart. He threw back his hand to his pistol belt, but a stern voice called out:

"'Ha, drop that 'ar pistol, Jack Hurd, or yer a dead man!"

members had already made up their minds to make an example of the prisoner, an example that would strike terror to the hearts of the Union men, who were far more numerous than the southern sympathizers in East Tennessee. The next morning Jack Hurd, with handcuffs on his wrists and a strong guard about him, was marched into the room where the court, composed of uniformed officers, was assembled.

As soon as Jack was seated, a woman broke through the line of guards, and up she threw her arms about him and called out:

"My soul my soul! I'll die with yo' fo' yo'!"

The officers were for putting the poor heartbroken woman out, but they were changed by the appearance of Pike Hurd, who advanced, and laying his hand on his mother's shoulder said, with a fierce oath:

"This woman is my mother and I'm a Confederate sojer. Let any man dar to lay his hand on her, and by G-d I'll strike him dead har or outside!"

The officers whispered together, and they decided to let Mrs. Hurd remain, but Pike was excluded from the court.

The only witness for the prosecution was the man who was present when Captain Field was killed. He told his story forcibly and with a great attention to effective detail. The finding of the court was a foregone conclusion, as was the sentence, but as a matter of form Jack was asked if he had any evidence to offer in his own behalf.

"'Yes!" shrieked the mother. "I'm his evidence, and you uns has got to har me!"

The officers whispered together and decided to let her speak. No oath was administered, nor was there any attempt to cross question her after she had concluded.

With an awful if not convincing earnestness, she felt that she was fighting for the life of her husband, Mrs. Hurd told the story from beginning to end. With much force she dwelt on the fact that she was a widow, and that one of her sons had already enlisted in the Confederate army.

"Jack Hurd would 'a' been no son of mine if he let them sojers take him off—tote him off from his home and his home without a fight. He hit for his liberty, fo' that ain't no coward blood in his veins. His heart was set onto the Union, but fo' my sake and the sister's sake he allowed to stay home, so let him go back with me and that won't be no moah trouble from Jack Hurd, fo' so yo' uns stay away. Ain't that 'ar?"

Jack told his own story, and he ended by asking the officers if each of them would not have done as he did under the same circumstances.

They consented again. Then the president of the court said that Jack Hurd, of Campbell county, Tennessee, was found guilty as charged, and that in accordance with this verdict the court had decided that he be hanged before high noon of the morrow in the jailyard in the city of Knoxville. And the poor woman cried out when she heard the sentence and threw her arms about her son.

She would have fallen to the floor had he not clasped her in his arms.

Business cannot be cured by heat or beatings, as they cannot reach the deep portions of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the ear-drum. When this tube gets inflamed you have muffled sound or imperfect hearing. It is entirely closed deafness. It is not a brain disease, and it is not a nervous disease. It is a local disease, and it is cured by the use of our medicine. We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by H. H. Ayer's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

HENRY DITZEL.

At the time Jack Hurd was taken to Knoxville and tried there, I have been told, fully a thousand Union men in the camp about the city who had been torn from their homes and forced into the Confederate service. Conscription was not enforced so thoroughly and with so much harshness in districts where a majority of the people were strongly in favor of secession. The first Confederate congress that met in Richmond passed a conscription act that exempted a majority of the rich and provided that the last son of a widow or the sole support of a poor family might be drafted for home guard duty, but could not be taken beyond the reach of those dependent on him.

But East Tennessee was an exception to the rule that prevailed in the rest of the seceded states and in the rest of Tennessee. It was believed, and with some reason, that if the Confederates did not conscript, imprison or kill the East Tennesseans at once they would make their way through to the Union lines and don the blue. The enforcement of the conscription act in the mountains of East Tennessee, western North Carolina and western Virginia was not intended so much to recruit the ranks of the southern army—for the Confederates had more troops than could be equipped and properly organized at this time—as to crush out the Union sentiment with a stunning blow.

No matter who were the men exempted in other places the mountaineers were regarded as an exception, and so in the mountains of the southern army—for the Confederates had more troops than could be equipped and properly organized at this time—as to crush out the Union sentiment with a stunning blow.

Many of the friends and relatives of the conscripted men had been shot down lawless desperadoes—and others had been thrown into the county jails or carried to Knoxville, where at this time they were packed like fish in a basket. These acts intensified the hate for the Confederacy, and kindled a fire in every Union heart that only blood could quench.

The fact that Jack Hurd had killed a conscripting officer was known in all the camps before that young man was brought a prisoner to Knoxville, and the verdict of the mountain men was "Bully for Jack!"

The court martial was very properly regarded as a needless farce and the verdict as a declaration of murder. The

Ayer's Sarsaparilla stands at the head of all blood medicines. This position it has secured by its intrinsic merit, sustained by the opinion of leading physicians, and by the certificates of thousands who have successfully tested its medicinal worth. No other medicine is so effectually

CURES scrofula, boils, pimples, rheumatism, eczema, and all other blood diseases.

There can be no question as to the superiority of Ayer's Sarsaparilla over all other blood-purifiers. If it was not the case, the demand for it, instead of increasing year by year, would have ceased long ago. Like so many other blood medicines I could name, it is a perfect cure for all blood diseases.

Two years ago I was troubled with scrofula. It was all over my body, and nothing the doctors did would cure it. I was advised to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and I took a number of bottles, and was cured. I have never since that time had a recurrence of the complaint. J. C. Thompson, Lowell, Mass.
