IN FOR ANOTHER FIGHT.

The Capital Rivals Promise Big Surprises "Next Time."

Seattle Post-Intelligencer Oct. 4: All of the delegates from the cities which aspired to be the capital of the new state have hided themselves to their respective homes. A search yesterday among the haunts of these late inhabitants of the city failed to discover a single one. It is supposed by some that the boomers of the capital aspirants have found rest and peace in the blue waters of Puget sound, but these surmises are only whispered around and as yet have gained no general circulation. At any rate, whatever has become of them, they surely needed and are probably taking the rest they so badly needed, for they were the hardest working individuals in the campaign. But, unlike the county and state officers, whose fate are settled for "better or for worse," the capital aspirants are in for another fight in two years, which will doubtless be as spirited as the one just closed.

One of the hard workers for Olympia, a man who was "thick" with the delegates from that city, said yesterday:

"Yes, we are sure of the first place for capital, but have given up the hope of a majority. Next time we will have a sure thing, for the result attained was really better than we expected."

"Did Olympia spend much money here?"

"No; there wasn't any to spend to speak of. What was spent was private money."

A North Yakima man, speaking about the capital matter, said:

"We have given up the race for first place at this election, and are now anxious to know whether Yakima will stand second or third. We made square, honest fight and gained lots of friends. Unlike the other capital aspirants, we did not make a personal fight. North Yakima was handicapped by the report circulated all around that the Northern Pacific railroad was pushing that place for the capital. It is needless to say that there is no truth to the report."

"North Yakima will make a renewed effort next election, and will surely crowd Olympia pretty hard, even if she don't succeed in changing the capital."

A friend of Ellensburg said: "We will come in second when the count is finished. The result has been a surprise to many, and next time we will give them another surprise. Ellensburg is in the race till we get the capital."

He Got It at Last.

Among the passengers on the St. Louis express yesterday, says an exchange, was a woman very much over-dressed, accompanied by a bright looking nurse-girl and a self-willed, tyrannical boy of about 3 years.

The boy aroused the indignation of the passengers by his continued shrieks and kicks and screams, and his viciousness towards his patient nurse. He tore her bonnet, scratched her hands, and finally spat in her face, without a word of remorse from the mother.

Whenever the nurse manifested any firmness the mother chided her sharply. Finally the mother composed herself for a nap, and about the time the boy had slapped the nurse for the fifth time, a wasp came sailing in and flew on the window of the nurse's seat. The boy at once tried to catch it.

The nurse caught his hand and said coaxingly:

"Harry musn't touch. Bug will bite Harry."

Harry screamed savagely and began to kick and pound the nurse.

The mother, without opening her eyes or lifting her head, cried out sharply:

"Why do you tease that child so, Mary? Let him have what he wants at once."

"But ma'am, it's—"

"Let him have it, I say!"

Thus encouraged, Harry clutched at the wasp and caught it. The scream that followed brought tears of joy to the passengers' eyes.

The mother arose again.

"Mary!" she cried, "let him have it." Mary turned in her seat and said, confusedly:

"He's got it, ma'am!"

The Australian Ballot System.

The Australian ballot system has been tried in Montana and found eminently practical. Its adoption all through the states is a mere matter of time and we sincerely hope that the first session of Washington's legislature will be memorable by its adoption. By this system all candidate names are printed on the same ticket, which is marked by the voter in a private box, erected for that purpose in the polling booth. The voter is forced to record his choice apart from the prying eyes of bull-dozing politicians, and when his ballot is dropped into the box, no man knows for whom the vote has been cast. This Australian ballot system is fast becoming the electoral system of all countries and it is extraordinary that it has not been adopted in the United States before this. Like Civil Service Reform, however, the wire pullers do not like it, but it is bound to win all the same.

THE QUEEN'S REGIMENT.

History of the Famous German Command of Which Victoria Has Been Made Colonel.

Toronto Mail: Kaiser William's recent appointment of his grandmother, Queen Victoria, to the chief command of one of his cavalry regiments has been ridiculed in some quarters, but those who know the standing of that regiment in the German army can well understand how high a compliment was thus paid her majesty. A sketch of the history of the First Guard Dragoons is given in the September number of the Nineteenth Century by Colonel Londale Hale. The regiment, together with two others of a similar character, was formed in 1815 by King Frederick William the Third from the three national cavalry regiments in place of the existing light cavalry regiments. In order, as the king said, "not only to give to the provinces to which these regiments belong, and to which they owe their origin, a fresh proof of my kindly feelings toward them, and which they deserve, but also to testify my satisfaction with the spirit shown by the Light Guard Cavalry regiments during the war." The three regiments thus formed were the Guard Lancers, the Guard Dragoons, and the Guard Hussars. The men and horses were selected with special care, those of the former who had received the Iron Cross being first chosen, and the preference then given to any who had served during the war. The Dragoon regiment did not fighting until 1868, but from the first it was always regarded as an admirable school for soldiering, and was a special favorite with the sovereign.

For two years it was commanded by the late Prince Frederick Charles, in 1847 by Prince Waldemar of Prussia, and in 1864 the late emperor was attached to it for the purpose of receiving training in cavalry duties. At the time of the reorganization of the German army in 1860 a second guard dragoon regiment was formed, the old one being given the title of First Guard Dragoons. The latter received its baptism of fire at Konigsberg, where it distinguished itself by furiously charging the Austrian lancer regiment of the Emperor Alexander.

But the fame of the First Guard Dragoon regiment rests chiefly upon its brilliant achievement at Mars-la-Tour in 1870. At one stage of the great battle at that point, on August 16, the fate of the right wing of Prince Frederick Charles' army hung for a time in the balance. The Fourth French corps had driven back with terrible slaughter, that portion of the German line opposed to it, and two infantry regiments following up the attack, were forcing the Germans pell-mell into the valley from which they had issued during the day. The situation was most critical when, as a last resort, word was sent to Count von Brandenburg II, who was in command of the guard cavalry division, to charge the French with his brigade. He answered that the First guard dragoon regiment was the only part of his brigade with him, and that he could not hope to succeed against the unbroken masses of the French infantry unless left to choose the moment for the charge. The reply of the general was, "Your regiment may, it is true, not succeed, but if it delays the enemy for ten minutes, and falls even to the last man, it will have fulfilled its task and duty." The count thereupon gave the order and the regiment, after galloping a short distance parallel to the enemy's line, turned sharply and under a heavy fire of infantry from the front and of mitrailleuses from the left flank, threw itself headlong upon the advancing masses. It penetrated the hostile line, throwing it into confusion with the result that it retired to its old position, and the day was saved. But of the First dragoons five-sixths of the officers, a third of the men, and half of the horses were killed and wounded. Of the former the only unharmed survivors were three second lieutenants. The colonel was mortally wounded, and the second in command and the three squadron leaders killed. As the survivors gathered together after the charge the colonel, greeting them with a cheer for the king, sank from his horse and in a few hours later was dead. In 1872 the emperor, when inspecting the regiment, said: "If this attack had not been made who knows whether we might have been here." It was a brilliant feat, worthy to be classed with the famous charge of the light brigade at Balaklava, and in making her majesty chief of the First guard dragoons the Emperor William has done her as great honor as he has the regiment.

Washington's Insane.

The annual report of Dr. John W. Waughop, superintendent of the insane asylum at Steilacoom, has been prepared. There are 243 patients in the asylum, of which 243 are males and 80 females. Of this number 214 are from western Washington, and 100 from eastern Washington. The new asylum at Medical Lake is being constructed and will be completed in the spring. It is a frame building of four stories, which will cost over $100,000. If the population of Washington is 250,000, the ratio of insane patients would be one to every 795.17.

HOW A STATE IS MADE.

The Official Act Now Necessary to Admit Washington.

When President Harrison is Satisfied the Constitution is Legally Adopted He Will Issue a Proclamation.

"Now that the constitution is adopted, how will the fact that Washington is a state be recognized by the general government?" was a question put to Supreme Justice-elect John P. Hoyt by a Seattle Press reporter.

"It is an interesting question, and the mode of procedure is as follows," replied Justice Hoyt. "The returns of the various counties, as soon as they are all in, are canvassed by the county auditor, probate judge and another county officer, and if found to be correct are forwarded to the territorial secretary."

"When all the returns are in, the secretary of the territory, the governor and chief justice, or any two of them, will proceed to canvass the returns, together with a statement of the votes cast for the constitution, and upon the separate articles thereof. Then it shall be forwarded to Washington to the president."

"Will it be forwarded by messenger or by mail?"

"As there is no provision providing for the payment of a messenger, I presume that our constitution will be confided to the care of Uncle Sam's mails under the protection of a registered package. The president will examine the organic law of the state of Washington, and if it is republican in form and if the provisions of the enabling act have been complied with in the formation, the president will issue a proclamation announcing the result. Thereupon the state of Washington shall be declared admitted into the Union by congress under virtue of the enabling act. It shall stand on an equal footing with the original states from and after the date of the issuance of the proclamation."

"How soon do you think it will be, judge, before the president will issue his proclamation?"

"It is possible it may be issued in a month, but it may take longer."

Commissioner of Public Lands Forrest will have charge of a small empire of land, as the donations of the general government to the state of Washington have been very liberal. The donations are as follows:

For the establishment and maintenance of a scientific school, 100,000 acres; for state normal schools, 100,000 acres; for public buildings at the state capital, in addition to that already granted, 100,000 acres; for state, charitable, educational, penal and reformatory institutions, 200,000 acres; total, 500,000 acres.

A paragraph in section 14 of the enabling act, says: "And such quantity of the lands authorized by the fourth section of the act of July 17, 1854, to be reserved for university purposes in the territory of Washington, as, together with lands confirmed to the vendors of the territory by the act of March 14, 1865, will make the full quantity of 72 entire sections, are hereby granted in like manner to the state of Washington for the purpose of a university in said state. None of the land granted in this section shall be sold for less than $10 an acre, but may be leased."

All the lands granted are to be selected under the direction of the secretary of the interior from surveyed, unsurveyed and unappropriated public lands of the United States.

Prohibition.

Seattle Press: South Dakota has adopted the constitutional prohibition clause by a majority of about 6000. This great preponderance of sentiment will certainly exert a powerful influence in the strict enforcement of the law. The friends of prohibition there have a good opportunity to prove whether or not they can enforce prohibition more successfully than is done in the other prohibition states. The result will be of especial interest in the state of Washington, and the success or substantial failure of prohibition in South Dakota will not have a remote effect upon the cause here.

The experience of many of the great states of the Union that decline to adopt prohibition is that former regulations of the liquor traffic led to abuses which demanded correction, the only difference of opinion between the prohibitionists and anti-prohibitionists being the character of this correction.

In Washington the same abuses exist, and unquestionably the preponderance of public sentiment is in favor of some more stringent regulations than are now enforced. The republican party must face this condition of affairs, and prove that it is able to correct existing abuses by a method other than by prohibition.

LAUGHTON'S FIDDLE.

It Carried Nevada—The Violin a Vote-Winner—Bourbonism Went Down Before Him.

Carson Appeal: In 1882 Charley Laughton was nominated for lieutenant-governor by the Reno state convention. Laughton was a young man without any special experience in the affairs of state, and the point was made that he lacked the age and gravity. It was predicted that he would be beaten. He immediately went to work on his own hook and made his campaign after the most original methods.

Charley was a phenomenal violinist, and could do more tricks on the fiddle than anybody else in the diggin', and putting his fiddle under his arm started off one morning, telling his wife he would not be back until he was certain that he had closed up his fight.

Not much more was heard of Laughton for some time. He did not haunt the beaten paths frequented by the campaigners, but took to the little logging and mining camps. He would scatter a few hand-bills announcing that he would speak at the red schoolhouse from 8 to 9 and play the fiddle for the girls to dance from 10 to 12, admission free.

This sort of announcement always drew a crowd, and Charley would open his speech something like this:

Ladies and gentlemen: About a week ago I ascertained that the regular campaign speakers of both parties, as well as the candidates, had decided to give this place the go-by, because it was a small place and a few miles off the regular highway of campaign.

Mr. Chairman, no place is small in my eyes where the hearts of its people beat in sympathy for the prosperity and advancement of Nevada, where a woman reaches her loveliest perfection (applause), where men are natural born thoroughbreds (cheers), and where every intelligent voter deposits his ballot on election day for the safety of the battle-born state (cheers) and the regular republican ticket. (Tumultuous applause.)

Charley was a graceful talker, and he soon had his audience. He knew when to talk and when to quit, and never bored his crowd, and when 9 o'clock came and he laid aside campaign talk and began to tune his violin no one wanted to leave.

He would tell the boys to clear away the benches, and write my name down so he was giving his audience the melting strains of "Trovatore" in a style that they had seldom heard before, and every sweep of his bow, as the boys used to say, "hit them where they lived."

By the time the floor was cleared the audience knew that the man at the bow was no "slootch," and when the strains of the miserie died away and the applause that followed it, he would call out:

"Partners for the basket quadrille," and in a few moments more he would be fiddling a merry tune, while the floor below him was all action and gaiety. Above the shuffle of the feet and the lively jump of the music his voice would sound clear and loud: "Slide couples forward," "Gents circle to the left, etc., etc., until midnight. Then the boys and girls would beg him to run the dance "one hour more."

"Do you guarantee me a republican majority in this town?" he would ask, as he tuned the E string.

"We'll carry 'er for you two to one, would be the response, and the dance would go on until about daylight.

He went into every democratic camp in the state with his fiddle and conquered bourbonism with music.

"The democratic party has more guts than brains," he said one day to the writer, and then tapping the cat-gut signficantly added: "I'll fight 'em with fire."

He wound up in the big towns on the eve of election, laid aside his fiddle, made a few good speeches and was elected by a handsome majority.

As president of the senate he made a remarkably quick and fair presiding officer, and proved a master of parliamentary rule.

His experience here ought to prove very valuable to him for the office he now aspires to, and which he will capture to a certainty.

DISTRIBUTION OF WEALTH.

Some Statistics That Are Interesting Whether True or Not.

One of those curious statistical articles designed to show that the rich are growing richer and the poor poorer appears in the Forum. It was written by Thomas G. Shearman in support, it is to be presumed, of what are called single-tax theories. To show how all the wealth of this country is falling into the hands of only a few persons, it contains the following table:

	$20,000,000	$4,000,000,000
200 persons at	$20,000,000	$4,000,000,000
400 persons at	10,000,000	4,000,000,000
1,000 persons at	5,000,000	5,000,000,000
2,000 persons at	2,500,000	5,000,000,000
5,000 persons at	1,000,000	5,000,000,000
10,000 persons at	500,000	5,000,000,000
Total		$1,000,000,000

It will be seen that, according to Mr. Shearman, more than half the wealth of the country is in the hands of only about 25,000 persons. This seems startling, though the calculation is no doubt somewhat exaggerated. Most very rich men are credited by common report with at least twice as much as they possess; and Mr. Shearman appears to be sufficiently endowed with the imaginative faculty to make the most of his opportunity; but reduce his calculation by one-half, and say that half the wealth of the country is in the hands of 50,000 persons, the declaration will still sound startling, but let us see if it really has any significance. It is a common error to make estimates on accumulated wealth and not upon incomes. Grant that half the wealth of the country is in the hands of 25,000 persons, and then see what follows: The interest on $1,000,000,000 at 6 per cent would be $60,000,000; but what is the total of incomes in the country? On the foundation of the last census report we may estimate at 20,000,000 the number of persons engaged in gainful occupations at this time. Place the average earnings of all these persons at only $10 a week, or $500 a year, and what kind of a sum do we have to figure out? Their total earnings will be $10,000,000,000 at the end of the year. It will be seen in this calculation that the importance of the millionaires shrinks away. But the total of incomes in the United States is more nearly twenty thousand millions than ten millions a year. Again, what would it avail the 20,000,000 persons engaged in gainful occupations could they divide up among themselves the seemingly large total of $1,000,000,000 drawn by the 25,000 rich men? It would give them $40 additional apiece—that is to say, instead of having to be content with $500 a year, they would have $950 a year, a sum suggestive of at least a slow progress out of their poverty. They would learn to expend the additional $400 as they expended the original $500, and they would remain as poor as ever. Here is the trouble with almost all our social reformers. They do not seem to comprehend that income is the basis of all wealth, and that the man with the largest income is potentially the richest man. In their conception

Yakima Guards, Attention.—All members of Yakima Guards are requested to report at the Court House, Monday evening, Oct. 14th.

—Capt. Thomas Priestley has purchased L. K. Arnold's new residence and will make his home here.

LOCAL NEWS.

—The third story of the Syndicate brick building will be finished within a week.

—The instruments for the martial band of the Yakima Guards have been received.

—There is not only a Yakima avenue at Tacoma, but a North Yakima avenue as well.

—A splendid rain Monday night settled the dust and cleared up the atmosphere.

—The three story brick buildings of Lewis and Engle, and John Bartholet are being enclosed.

—Wm. Chearer had a good day's sport on the Moxee, Sunday, returning with sixteen ducks and chickens.

—Sterling, of the Ellensburg Register, was arrested Tuesday and is under $500 bonds for libeling Mr. Estelle.

—Vining Bros. have completed the removal of their stock to the elegant new brick next to the Hotel Yakima.

—Mrs. Courter makes a splendid representative of a lady of 1776. See her among Mrs. Jarley's wax figures.

—A young man named Harrison, who was taken sick while working in the Cle-Elum mines, died at Yakima City, Monday.

—The tax for the purpose of raising a fund for the development of coal lands in this county was defeated by a vote of 455 to 150.

—See Will Hubbard and Miss Wiswell in the figures of "the man who went to Pasco to get himself a wife," Tuesday evening.

—S. C. Henton was elected justice of the peace for this precinct by a majority of four, the vote standing Henton 205, Beck 201.

—Remember Mrs. Jarley's wonderful wax figures will be on exhibition at Mason's opera house, Tuesday evening, without fail.

—The brick work of the Cadwell-Lloyd building will be commenced next week. The excavating for the basement is nearly finished.

—Mrs. Jarley announces positively that her celebrated wax figures will be on exhibition at the opera house, Tuesday evening.

—Let everybody attend the Old Folks concert at the opera house, Tuesday night, at early candle light. Some of the tunes we fancy so much, will be sung.

—The Moxee cigar factory turned out 1200 cigars Tuesday and 18,000 for the month. From a start with one cigar-maker, five are now employed.

—The nippers, balls and chains, whistles and billies for the use of the police force have been received, and evil doers had better be cautious or they will be doing penance on the public streets.

—The typical Brother Jonathan will be portrayed by Geo. Courter, in Mrs. Jarley's Wax Figures Tuesday evening. He can whistle more wood, when wound up, than any living Yankee.

—There will be the finest assortment of wax figures at Mrs. Jarley's entertainment, Tuesday evening, ever brought from England or any other country. No one should fail to be there.

—Al Churchill shipped 72 bales of hops to the Weinhart brewery, Portland, Tuesday. He received eleven cents per pound for them, while eastern buyers are only offering seven cents.

—Jos. M. Baxter is exhibiting this week some very handsome specimens of anthracite coal. He says he has three claims, any one of which is a fortune to the owner.

—Douglas county went republican by from 75 to 100 majority, except on pro-representative, E. D. Nash, democrat, being elected over A. E. McDonald and Frank Day. On the capital question North Yakima had a majority.

—The town of Orondo, on the bank of the Columbia river, in Douglas county, is the scene of a glorification over the arrival of its first female inhabitant. Another is expected in a few weeks, when all business will be suspended and a week devoted to festivities.

—F. Wheeler has been appointed city scavenger. The ordinance regarding vaults is to be enforced and Mr. Wheeler is to give it his undivided attention. If this work had been done long ago the public health would undoubtedly have been better during the summer.

—F. A. S. Kraglund, of Spokane Falls, recently bought two lots on Second street, opposite the Court House, and now has lumber on the ground for a two-story building, 25 by 80 feet. The upper story will be used as a lodging house and the ground floor as a restaurant.

—The ladies of the Methodist church will give a supper at the church rooms on First street every Friday, from 5 to 7 o'clock, p. m., commencing Friday, Oct. 18th. As a tempting meal will be served and as the price is only 25 cents it is hoped that the tables will be well patronized.

—C. J. Kershaw, one of the leading grain merchants of Tacoma, was in the city Monday. Mr. Kershaw will be remembered as the Chicago operator of Harper of the Fidelity bank of Cincinnati, in the great grain corner of several years ago which resulted in the failure of the Fidelity bank, the imprisonment of Harper and the financial ruin of a host of grain speculators.

—W. B. Wilcoxson, wife and daughter, are here from Tacoma and will make their home with us. The report that Mr. Wilcoxson had purchased an interest in the Republic is erroneous, but he has taken the business and editorial charge of that paper and as he has had considerable newspaper experience, notably on the St. Louis Globe-Democrat and Tacoma Ledger, the interests of the Republic will probably not languish in his hands.

PINK COMPLEXION.
They Are Only to Be Had by Proper Perspiration Daily.

By bathing and exercise the pores of the skin must be kept open if a good complexion is desired. For health's sake, as well as her complexion, every woman should do something that will put her into a profuse perspiration at least once a day, and so give the skin opportunity to throw off the impurities that would otherwise clog the pores and make her sallow and ugly.

Paint should never be used under any circumstances. If the woman who uses it knew how the very sight of it repels the very man or men whom they wish to please, they would abjure it forever. No man likes it, nor will he allow his wife, sister or daughter to use it if he can help it. If he becomes fond of a woman who uses it, it is in spite of the paint, not because of it, to be very sure. A "painted Jasebel" has been a by-word since the days of King Ahab; and very few there are who look upon a painted woman without disgust.

Powder is another matter entirely, and in warm weather, especially, is considered by some to be absolutely necessary to check the troublesome perspiration, and soothe and refresh the heated skin. There is never any secrecy about the use of it, the powder-rag or puff being used as openly as one's handkerchief. After washing the face with soap it is used to remove the shine, and a good powder leaves a little soft bloom that is really an improvement. Great care must be taken to select a good powder, and to use but one when one is found that is agreeable to the skin.

One authority declares that the raw potato is more effectual in beautifying the complexion than cosmetics. The face should be rubbed with the vegetable, then washed and then subjected to a gentle friction. Ladies are advised to keep a raw potato on the toilet table at all times. It is not only good for the complexion, but for the hands also, as it removes fruit and ink stains.

After the hot bath and vigorous use of the flesh brush for health, a barley bath may be taken for beauty. This is a little troublesome, but may be managed. Boil six pounds of barley until it becomes of the consistency of very thick cream. While still warm press it thickly over the entire body; wrap up in two or three blankets, and lie on a couch by the fire for an hour; then take a warm bath. This, repeated every other day for two or three weeks, is said to make the skin as soft and velvety, as white and rosy, as that of a child in long clothes. The proper frequency of this process must be decided by individual experience, as the barley soak may relax the skin too much if taken too often.

The starchy substance which arises from pouring boiling water on a handful of oatmeal, if used on the face and hands, arms and neck, will soften and make them smooth.

C. E. McEwen takes a ride in turning out good work. This is the reason his harness, saddles, bridles, etc., give such satisfaction and outlast all others.

—Disease is caused by a lack of some constituent part of the human organism at the part affected. Biochemic Remedies supply the deficiency and thus restore the normal condition. 281f.

—When you need a good safe laxative, ask your druggist for a box of Ayer's Pills, and you will find that they give perfect satisfaction. For indigestion, torpid liver, and sick headache there is nothing superior. Leading physicians recommend them.
