THE N. P. INVADING CANADA.

A Quebec special despatch to the Tacoma Globe of the 16th inst. says: "The recent visit here of Oakes, of the Northern Pacific and Senior Council and President McNaught, of the Northern Pacific & Manitoba, was in connection with a proposed railway scheme which will be the summation of the season in American railway circles, and is to have Canada as its base of operations. There was a report that the Northern Pacific was looking for a short route to the sea, finding that its eastern connections swallowed up too large a portion of the profits on its through rates to the Atlantic seaboard. The new scheme of a Canadian route to the Atlantic seaboard includes the construction of new lines from Sault Ste Marie to Quebec through the interior of the Province of Ontario and Quebec, with the exception of some sixty miles of the Lake St. John railway running almost due west from Quebec, which being in a direct line with the railway will be utilized as one of its lines. It is proposed to build an air line between Quebec and Sault Ste Marie, which, after making all necessary allowance for curvature, will be shorter between these points than the Canadian Pacific by 160 miles. It will penetrate the rich pine forests of the upper Ottawa river, whose course it will follow for 150 miles, will develop lumbering operations in the St. Maurice district and a rich agricultural country around Lake Temiscamiquine, to which point, 350 miles from here, local capitalists, believed to be acting in conjunction with the Northern Pacific, are preparing to at once commence the construction of a railroad. From the federal authorities, who are the authors and protectors of the Canadian Pacific, the Northern Pacific expects nothing, but will have the active sympathy and support of the principal governments of Ontario and Quebec, both of which are hostile to Sir John McDonald, and who will justify their assistance of the project by pointing to the new territory that it will open and to the necessity for a railway between the east and west that will not discriminate in rates of freight against Canadian produce and Canadian ports. The provincial legislature of Ontario and Quebec may be counted on to grant the company any additional charter that it may be necessary to have. There is no occasion to go to the dominion parliament. Nothing is known of the assistance that will be given the new road by the Ontario government, but on the part of Quebec, Mr. Mercer, who entertained President Oakes and party during the visit is understood to have under consideration the laying out of crown lands on either side in blocks ten miles square, every alternate block to be handed over to the company as a government subsidy. Other considerations here will doubtless operate to induce Oakes to decide upon a Canadian route to the sea.

The Ellensburg relief committee has made its report. The receipts amounted to $10,813.13 in cash, of which about half was paid to the fire sufferers. Of the balance $714.75 was applied on street work; $1000 sent to Spokane Falls; $600 appropriated for the purchase of a new safe for Ellensburg, and $1900 for fire apparatus. The HERALD made a report to this effect sometime ago and immediately the Register and a number of citizens got very wrathful and called THE HERALD all sorts of horrid names, but the only error of THE HERALD, which was but an omission, was the neglect to state that part of funds subscribed for the relief of the needy fire sufferers were devoted to the purchase of a safe for the city.

An editorial letter in the Pasco Pilot from North Yakima, has this to say of the editor of a paper formerly published in this city: "Arrangements have nearly been perfected in which the anniversary of the departure of the Washington Farmer from this city is to be set apart as a holiday and general thanksgiving. We have no doubt the demonstrations on this day will rival those made on the regular national thanksgiving day, as the editor of that paper is one of the greatest heroes we ever had the misfortune to meet."

ELLENBURGH'S vote at the last city election was less than 800. At the October election she polled over 1200, which shows a falling off of 400 votes. Her population, however, has not in all probability decreased to the extent evidenced by the vote, but the difference is that the vote claimed for the city in October was a precinct vote, which not only included the city but a portion of the rural districts, and it was on this false basis that the town made its claims to population.

At last the bill to abolish the office of lieutenant-governor has made its appearance in the state senate. It was introduced by Rhinehart and will probably be championed by Long and Kinnear. The constitution provides that this office can be abolished at the will of the legislature, but friends of Loughton insist that his opponents have not the strength to carry the measure through.

At last the famous Cronin trial is ended. The jury found John Kunes guilty of manslaughter and sentenced him to three years' imprisonment, and Patrick O'Sullivan, Daniel Coughlin and Martin Durke were convicted of murder and given life sentences. John T. Eggs was found not guilty.

YOUNG OLNEY'S VIEWS.

What He Thinks About the Division of Reservations—A Difference Between Government and Indian Reserves.

FORT SIMCOX, YAKIMA RESERVATION, WASHINGTON.

EDITORS HERALD: It is probably a great mistake to regard all reservations alike, and to apply rules and regulations to them alike. By saying all, I mean two kinds. There are two kinds of reservations. A government reservation is land owned by the government specially set aside for the use of Indians or for some other special government business. A reservation of this kind is totally under the control of the government and subject to change at any time in the future, no matter if two-thirds of the reservation is populated by the Indians. Lands can be divided to the Indians in severalty, and after all have been settled thereon, the surplus can be sold to the highest cash bidder for just whatever the government intends to get for it and apply the proceeds at its own will.

The Indian reservation is in quite another shape. It is to be understood that the lands were the choice of the Indians, which they set aside for themselves of their own free and voluntary choice, undictated by any one, and all other lands outside of the described limits being ceded to the government of the United States. By the act of the Indians' choice, the Indian reservation becomes a reservation subject to the will of the majority of the Indians, and all that the government can do is only to protect the Indians in their possession of such reservation, and to allow the Indians a voice in the management of their own reservation. They cannot be denied their rights as long as they exist on a reservation of their own, and the laws in settling Indians on lands in severalty and disposing of the surplus cannot be enforced except in part, but selling the surplus of lands (after allotment to Indians in severalty) cannot be done on an Indian reservation as it could be done on a government reservation. Neither can lands be allotted to children whose ages range all the way from six years and upwards, as it would work a hardship to the children after they had arrived to manhood and womanhood. A child over six years of age is allotted forty acres; a child eighteen years and over, eighty acres, and so on. Now, a boy six years of age would soon be a man of twenty or twenty-five years and become the head of a family and would naturally be entitled to 160 acres, the same as his father. It takes some years to elapse before he would arrive at twenty years of age. By this time the surplus would be sold and there would be no more land around for him to add to his forty acres to make him 160 acres.

Now, this is all wrong, and certainly can be of no benefit to the Indians, even if this law could apply to an Indian reservation like the Yakima reservation. Hence laws that will apply in full to a government reserve certainly cannot apply to an Indian reservation, as the two reservations are not of the same standing; therefore, I consider it a great mistake for outside people to regard both kinds of reservations alike.

Yours truly, FRANKLIN P. OLNEY.

NEWS NOTES.

Smallpox has made its appearance in Tacoma. It is said to have emanated from Montana.

Jake Kilrain was fined $300 and sentenced to two months in jail for his fight with Sullivan.

Hon. Elwood Evans of Tacoma was elected to succeed Mr. Hewitt in the legislature, defeating Dolph Hanna, also of Tacoma.

Horace E. Gibbs has been convicted of murder in the second degree for the killing of young McDevitt at Portland, and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Lawrence Barrett has cancelled all of his engagements and it is said he has retired permanently from the stage owing to a disease of the neck which causes his throat to swell to abnormal proportions.

The supreme court of Oregon has reversed the decision of the lower court and granted a new trial to "Sandy" Olds, who is charged with the murder of Emil Weber at Portland last spring. Olds has already had two trials, and expects to get free on the third one.

Just before Thanksgiving day Dr. Thos. T. Minor, George Morris Haller and Edmond L. Cox, all of whom are prominent citizens of Seattle and the two first are known throughout the north-west, left in canoes for a few days hunting in the neighborhood of Whidby Island. The time at which they were to return passed by and fear and doubt gave way to conviction that they had been drowned when the canoe of Mr. Cox was found floating in the sound bottom side up. Searching parties were sent out which only resulted in further evidence that the missing men had perished. The canoe used by Dr. Minor and Mr. Haller was also found together with clothing belonging to members of the party. Seattle is in mourning over her great loss and Sunday was universally given up to memorial services. Dr. Minor was a leading member of the constitutional convention.

LEGEND OF ST. NIC.

A Beautiful Story of How His Love for Children Gave Him a Perpetual Lease on Life.

Many, many years ago, so long in fact that the date cannot be approximated, there lived in the south part of Germany, near the village of Claughta—which has long since disappeared—an old bachelor by the name of Nicholas Christian Kringle. His history exists only in the legendary traditions among the peasants of south Germany, and is as follows: Being of a devout disposition and vowed to celibacy, he constructed a small hut just within the edge of a thick wood, furnished it with the rudiments of a cellmate's home and for occupation cultivated a small garden in the summer, and in the winter he gave his time to the children of the neighborhood. He acknowledged but one purpose in life, and that was in securing the happiness of the little ones. Everyone within a great circuit knew him familiarly, and the children loved him with a devotion only born of the tenderest care and attention to their wants. Every year the attachment between Uncle Nic—as he was called—and the children grew stronger and his love, which he reverently regarded as duty, became so strong that when death came to summon him he appealed to the gods to grant him a new lease on life. His entreaties delayed the impending stroke of death, and finally brought to him a celestial messenger to whom he related his story of love for children and begged that he might be allowed to live blessing them until all the little ones of the world were grown to full estate.

So pure and devout had been the life of Uncle Nic that his entreaties were considered by the court of heaven, and death was ordered to pass over the house of the good cellmate; but, as the law was inexorable that all souls shall return to Him who gave them, he was carried up in a whirlwind of flame to the great white throne. The Lord made him a saint without submitting him to the crucible of death, and as a reward for his pious life he gave him a commission to visit the earth once every year, on the evening preceding the anniversary of Christ's birth, that he might again carry joy to the hearts of all children, and in the continued manifestation of his loving care remind them of his existence and home behind the stars. During the winter season in south Germany red shadows are often seen against the sky, showing which the little ones run to their parents exclaiming: "Der peis-nickel koomt, dem ich sehe das licht waches von Siemen grossen rock der flammen sheint." (Uncle Nick is coming, for I see the light which shines from his great coat of flame.) The origin of the different appellations by which Uncle Nic is known is readily seen in the story: St. Nicholas, Santa Claus or the saint of Claughta and Christian Kringle or Chris Crinkle—all derived from his saintship's real name and town near which he lived.

FECHTER & LAW,

OVER YAKIMA NATIONAL BANK,

Yakima Avenue, North Yakima, Washington.

HOW ABOUT YAKIMA?

Listen to the Story as it is Told by Careful Observers from Abroad.

(San Francisco Examiner.) The new State Capital will probably be at North Yakima.

(Spokane Falls Review.) The best and most extensive agricultural region in the Yakima Land District, and in the Territory, lies about the City of North Yakima and is known as the Yakima Valley.

(Seattle Post-Intelligencer.) To-day, where four years ago were uncultivated prairies, the home of great herds of unrestrained wild cattle and vicious bands of cayuse ponies who knew no halter, now stands the City of North Yakima, the Queen of Eastern Washington.

(Northwest Magazine.) The knot of valleys which meet at the new town of North Yakima seems a bit of Southern California here in the north. Public opinion in all parts of Washington has settled upon this place as the Capital of the new State.

(Tacoma Ledger.) There is no just reason why this city and county, when they shall have reached their maximum in population, should not have in the city from 15,000 to 25,000, and the county 40,000 to 50,000. Neither is there any good reason why they should not be eventually among the very wealthiest towns and counties in Washington Territory. All the material elements that go to make a big and prosperous city are here. The total taxation of the county is only 1 1/2 mills which includes the total tax, territorial added. There is not a pauper in the county. The taxation is heralded to the world as the lowest known from and including Minnesota to and including California. If there is another county in a new country that can show as low a taxation the public would like to know it.

(Spokane Falls Review.) The valley in which the city of North Yakima is situated in the center of a series of very fertile valleys which open into it and have grown famous for their products. With a splendid agricultural country surrounding it and the peculiar advantages of its location for railroad approaches North Yakima cannot but figure in the future brilliantly.

Although less than forty miles apart the difference in climate between Yakima in Yakima county and Ellensburg in Kittitas county is almost as great as that between a northern and southern latitude. The valley surrounding Ellensburg is excellent for producing grain, while in the valleys near Yakima the farmers are devoting more attention to fruits, vegetables, hops, tobacco and similar crops, which can only be grown in a warm climate.

Interview with Judge J. R. Lewis on his return from attending the Mechanics Fair in California, Published in the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

It was a great exhibition of the wealth of California, but I found no better specimens of vegetables and many varieties of fruit than Washington Territory products. I can go over into the Yakima country and in two days collect finer products in those lines than I saw in California. The Yakima peaches are of better quality and flavor than any raised in California, the apples are superior and the prunes are away ahead of anything I ever saw. Then, too, they raise finer melons, squashes and all kinds of vegetables in the Yakima country than any produced in California.

THE OLD STORY.

J. L. R. B. IN "THE."

"I've been thus from childhood's hour. I've seen my fondness hopes decay. I never held an axe or hammer. But some one would the 'joker' play."

About Men.

A man's smile is either his conviction or acquittal. A man who attempts to flatter you takes you for a fool. Man, like the fire, is apt to torment woman by going out at night. If you want to flatter a man talk to him about his great reserve force.

A good many men are unable to prove that the world owes them a living. No boy believes that the oil that calmed the troubled waters was castor oil. Somehow we never like a man whose ambition is satisfied with the fact that he writes a good "hand."

You can't depend upon a man. The best of them will chew plug tobacco when they get away from home. A lucky man: A man who marries a widow whose first husband was mean to her.

Even though a man does not deserve assistance, he feels the need of it just the same. The poorer a man is the more apt he is to refuse the pennies you give him in change. There is always something for a man to do; when everything else fails he can worry.

It is the man who orders a room on the top floor who takes up the most room in writing his name on the hotel register. Some men enjoy the habit so much that they would pick their teeth carefully if they had nothing but soap for dinner.

About Women. When a woman gets cross she gets cross at everybody. Smile at some women and they will tell you all the troubles they ever had. That for which a woman should be consoled she is most often ridiculed—her homeliness.

When a woman can wash flannels so they will not shrink she knows enough to get married. A woman is never so badly in love that she does not try to find out the cost of her engagement ring. As soon as a man gets the fire built and the room warm his wife comes along and wants to "air the house."

One of your delicate women will never admit that she is hungry; she will say that she is feeling a little faint. The devil has a particularly hot fire for the mother who wants to send her daughter husband hunting at sixteen. You occasionally find a woman who thinks she is intellectual because she has a large number of correspondents.

There is only one thing that pleases women more than to be referred to as a dove, and that is to hear a man referred to as the hawk. A woman never becomes so intelligent that she learns that it is no pleasure to others to hear her coax her children to speak a piece. The question with the woman: Is it better to marry a man who is thoughtless, and leaves the door open behind him, or to marry a man who thinks to close the door, but forgets to leave out the steam?

The Language of the Stage. "The stage has a language of its own," said a stage carpenter to a New York Sun reporter. "Each of the various pieces of scenery has a distinct name. The back scene, when made in two pieces, rolled on from either side, is called the 'flats'; when it is one and raised or lowered from above it is called a 'trap.' The narrow side-scenes are called 'wings.' Inclined platforms are called 'rungs'; these are used in mountain scenes and for the horses in 'Maseppa' and similar purposes. Small painted frames to hide the 'rungs' are known as 'masking pieces.' When a room is set with solid walls instead of wings, it is a 'box scene.' Those arched pieces of canvas over your head are 'sky borders.' The space over the stage is known as the 'rigging aloft,' though in England it is more generally termed 'girdron.' The gallery running around the stage, whence all the ropes are worked, is named the 'flies.' That continuation of it there where the artist is at work is called the 'paint bridge.' These holes in the stage are 'traps,' and the space underneath is a 'trap caller.' Some of the traps are made with springs to shoot a person up quickly in pantomime or spectacular pieces; they are then called 'star' or 'rampire traps.' Those strips of wood below the flies into which the scenes slide are called 'grooves' and each division of a groove is a 'cut.' The space between each set of grooves is an 'entrance.' These two handsomely painted wings near the proscenium arch and which usually remain on the stage no matter what the scene, are called 'tom-toms'; why, I don't know, except it may be that the audience gets wearied of always seeing them. Observe these narrow grooves in the stage, down which scenes may be made to disappear. They are 'sinks,' and the boards that cover them are 'siders.' To hold up pieces of scenery, we use these poles with angle irons, called 'beams.' To fasten them to the stage are these cork-screw-like things termed 'screw-eyes.' This is the 'prompt side,' or where the prompter stands, and the other is the 'o. p.' or 'opposite prompt.' Here is a 'moon box,' which moves up and down with the calcium light representing that luminary. This sheet of iron is termed the 'thunder drum.' Pull that string, and you shake up a barrel of peas which make the sound of rain, and which is called the 'rain box.' Turn that handle, and this gigantic rattle makes a noise like breaking wood. It is a crash, and is used to make the sound of bursting doors or falling buildings. Against the wall is a 'call box,' where the 'calls' or notices of rehearsals are posted. That piece of canvas painted like water, and which, while laying on the stage, is shaken from the entrances, is a 'sea-cloth.' Those painted strips of muslin are 'gauze waters'; they were used in the cave scene of the 'Colleen Bawn.' To put a play on is to 'mount' it. To mount it cheaply is to 'fake' it. A 'full set' is a scene occupying all the stage. A 'carpenter's scene' is set in the first grooves to fill time while other scenes are being set. To 'strike' is to move a scene from the stage. A stage hand is a 'grip.' This wheel covered with foil working behind slats in the scene is a 'ripple barrel.' It gives the effect of moonlight on the water. These wings cut in fancy shapes on the edge are 'profiled.' This mass of gas-burners is a 'bunch light'; it can be moved to any part of the stage. The curtain is called the 'rag,' and the handsome one used between the acts is the 'act drop.' My instructions from the author are called a 'scene plot,' and where I store my scenes is a 'dock.'

Wife Kissing in Public. Has a man a right to kiss his wife in a theater? That is the burning question of the hour in Kansas City, where the authorities have decided in the negative. Dr. A. M. Goldstein and his wife prepared a test case, and after some controversy were escorted outside by a policeman. The subject is a delicate one, but we are inclined to think the Kansas City decision is right. It is in line with that great tendency of modern progress which is steadily differentiating the fields of domestic life and public recreation. When Mrs. Trollope inspected this country fifty years ago she saw mothers nursing their babies in the theater, and fathers sitting on the edges of the boxes in their shirtsleeves, enjoying the homely comfort of the family hearth. The crying infant a few years ago was a feature of every dramatic entertainment; but now, although it is not entirely extinct, it is greatly mitigated by the new canon of good form, which dictates that children shall be left at home until they have passed the ordeal of teething.

The practice of kissing one's wife in the theater cannot be justified on the ground of necessity. Suppose the performance to last two hours and a half, and half an hour to be consumed in going and returning. Dr. Goldstein had twenty-one hours in the day which he could have devoted to that agreeable ceremony. That ought to be enough for any man after the honeymoon, during which time he ought not to be at the theater at all. If he had been kissing another man's wife, the case would have been different; but to kiss one's own wife on such an occasion is an obnoxious display of good fortune for the mere sake of ostentation, like wearing diamonds at breakfast. It ought to be suppressed in the interest of the peace of mind of the unmarried.—San Francisco Examiner.

Pat's Nery. He matched the oft told story of how one of his countrymen broke the news of a comrade's death to the bereaved wife by asking her if the widow Maloney was in, by another which I suspect he evolved out of his inner consciousness, and which was briefly as follows: Pat called at the house of his brother, having been warned by his comrades to do his work delicately, and to prepare the widow's mind for what was to come before he acquainted her with her bereavement.

"Top o' th' marnin' to ye, Missus McCarthy," he began. "Same to ye, Missus McCarthy." "It's sorry O' an' far ye, Missus McCarthy." "An' for why, O' d' know?" "Th' rooster's did."

"Ye don't mane it? Well, O' t'ert' lolkely he'd doy." "Ah, but it was'at th' rooster that doied at all, at all." "The pig, is it? An' whayre's th' body?" "Theyre ain't no body, because it wasn't th' pig, but the oild cow that doid."

"Ah, go 'long wid ye, Paddy McCarthy. Phwat's thot but th' cow-a-grain on th' grass out thayre? Th' oild boss is live as ony av thayre." "O' know thot well, Missus McCarthy, because thot cow's outlived yer husband Moike, whot's lyn' did below, forinst Denny Burke's."

"Ah, Paddy, but yer'e a drolfelly to be lyn' lolk to that to me. Moike did? O' guish not. No sooch lolk!"

Perfectly Natural. New York Sun: Mrs. Brown—What prompted that bold young man to kiss you at the door last night? Cora—Why, ma, I don't think he needed any prompting.

"I call you darling," she said, as she leaned her head on his cool collar. "Show your hand," he returned, mechanically. The young miss, not understanding his answer, continued to pucker her forehead against his chin, and he gave up with relief at her unconsciousness of his mistake.

Taylor, has been refitted and equipped without regard to expense and with the latest improved machinery and the flour which the mill turns out is without question as fine as the finest and the price at which it is sold is as low as the lowest.

We beg to announce to our patrons that we have not spared ourselves in purchasing our goods for the holidays, but have used our best endeavors to get the latest designs in everything by purchasing direct from the east and at cash prices. Our line of toilet articles, plush cases for ladies and gentlemen, manicure sets of every design, smokers' sets, collar and cuff boxes in leather and plush, fancy oild cases with rarest perfumes. Our toilet cases are fitted in rylonite, oxidized silver and tulle, being the choicest lot of goods that ever graced any store, and know we can please the tastes of every one. Before purchasing, would desire that all should come in and look at them. We also have a large and well selected stock of fine books and poems of the best authors. ALLEN & CHAPMAN.

Henry Ditter is the sole agent for Yakima of the celebrated Broadhead dress goods. They are warranted made from the best material by skilled workmen, do not cockle or shrink, and can be worn in damp weather without the least injury to the fabric.

I buy my underwear direct from the factories, and am now offering it at prices which were never before heard of in North Yakima. Call and examine goods and prices, and see for yourself. MYRON H. ELLIS.

Dr. Savage will be found always ready to attend calls day or night. Office over postoffice; residence on Second street, two doors south U. S. Land Office.

Call and examine my samples for fall and winter clothing. I guarantee a good fit and will give you prices that defy competition. MYRON H. ELLIS.

C. E. McEwen takes a pride in turning out good work. This is the reason his harness, saddles, bridles, etc., give such satisfaction and outlast all others.

Persons desiring transportation about the city or vicinity can be accommodated by leaving orders at Allen & Chapman's for Stanton's hack line.

C. E. McEwen is now offering saddles, bridles, harness and everything in his line at prices not to be duplicated this side of Portland.

For a nobby suit, made to order, do not fail to call on our popular merchant tailor, M. Probach, on Yakima avenue.

John, when you go to town, just step in at Bartholot's and get me some of that elegant salt pork. It is delicious.

Every garment made by M. Probach is warranted a good fit, good workmanship and to give satisfaction.

Call on Myron H. Ellis and examine his fine line of wister underwear; one door south of opera house.

A nasal injector free with each bottle of Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. For sale at Janek's Pharmacy.

Bartholot Bros. will not be undersold in anything—dry goods, clothing, furnishing goods, books and shoes, hats and caps, crockery, groceries, and in fact everything kept in a first-class store.

Goodwin & Pugsley's fire insurance companies do not cancel their policies. Give us a call.

THE STORY OF A YEAR. PHOTOGRAPH FROM LIFE TAKEN ONE YEAR AGO.

Look on this picture and then on that." The above faces are exact reproductions of photographs taken from Mrs. Morton D. Harlan, who resides at No. 35 West 24th Street, New York City. The first one was taken in November, 1901, while in the last stages of consumption, abandoned by physicians and incurable by friends. The other was taken in December, 1902, when, complete her recovery and entirely through the use of Dr. Ayer's English Remedy for Consumption. The above pictures are wood cuts, but they are true to life and the original photographs, taken from life, can be seen at all the drug stores. Mrs. Harlan's consumption began in the morning, raising of phlegm, tired and depressed feelings, a lack of appetite, the loss of flesh and pains throughout the body. She did not realize her extreme danger until it became almost too late, but she is in perfect health today. Dr. Ayer's English Remedy for Consumption is sold by all reputable druggists. You can't afford to be without it.

To the Public. On and after this date I will be prepared to serve the people of North Yakima with everything in the way of FRESH CANDIES, FRUITS of all kinds, CIGARS and TOBACCOS.

THE DIGNITY OF DEATH.

Bishop Gallagher's Address at the Funeral of the Late Jefferson Davis.

The end of a long and lofty life has come and a moving volume of human history has been closed and clasped.

"I am not here to stir, by breath, the embers of the settled strife; to speak one word unworthy of him and of the hour; what is written in words of memory and in the books of God; but I am here to say for our health and inspiration that this man, as a christian and a churchman, was the lover of all high and righteous things; as a citizen was fashioned in the old, faithful type.

Neckties in Jewelry.

Pocket books encased entirely in this silver are cropping up.

Link cuff-buttons devised as diminutive bananas are an innovation.

Twisted glass ink-bottles with etched and engraved tops are selling well.

Braided silver umbrella handles terminating in heavy knobs are all the go.

Silver deposit and mother-of-pearl is the combination used in many cane handles.

There is no diminution in the sale of bangle bracelets, the ladies affecting them as much as ever.

A silver owl, looking down with calm serenity upon a toad, forms a match box in this season's batch.

Another new paper weight device is an imitation rug, upon which kneels a Turk, evidently in prayer.

Cloak buckles, in various sizes, of the most exquisite pierced work in silver, are a fad among the ladies.

A novel item in card receivers is a gilt bronze heart resting upon three darts and containing at one end a tiny cupid.

Pretty little scarf pins come as silver-gold circles, edged with gold and filled half way through, forming a railing around.

A hairpin top recently seen took the form of a tiny tree presented by floss, sparkling with tiny stones scattered all over it.

The fancy of the hour is a pair of earrings, fashioned as plates in the old time willow pattern in enamel, with diamond borders.

A dull gold nail, twisted and re-twisted through a diamond and sapphire horse-shoe, composes a brooch that is receiving praise.

A miniature gold drum, with crystal top, ornamented with gold wires crossing in every direction, comprises a charming queen chain pendant.

Delightful to the eye is a brooch formed by an increased gold-curved bar, across the center of which are two vertical strips inclosing a row of three diamonds.

North Yakima.

West Coast Trade: We visited North Yakima, recently, in our wanderings, and found there a city of 3,000 inhabitants, situated in nearly the geographical center of this great state.

A novel conception in scarf pins is a gold anvil, in front of which is sunk a perpendicular line of diamonds.

—Can you imagine any ailment that will make a good natured person so peevish, dissatisfied, ill tempered and cranky as biliousness? There is no reason, whatever, why any one should suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia, torpid liver and loss of appetite, when Dr. Henley's Dandruff Tonic, which every one knows is a certain cure, can be so easily obtained.

Opera glass holders in chased gold and in stained ivory and silver deposit are conspicuous in jewelers' displays.

—Ladies, do not ruin your complexion by the use of poisonous cosmetics and face powders. If your face is red or sunburned, if you are so unfortunate as to have pimples or blotches on the neck and face, Dutard's Specific will not cover them like a coat of paint but will most effectively remove all blemishes from the skin and restore it to its natural youthful bloom.

Bric-a-brac novelties include a terracotta heart with a cupid's head and shoulders smiling through the center.

PORTLAND, Ogn., July 29. My kidneys were in a very bad condition. The urine was like brick dust, and I suffered a great deal with my back. All remedies were unavailing until I tried the Oregon Kidney Tea, which gave me almost immediate relief.

are the best. There are five churches, and, besides the regular schools, fine brick academies for both boys and girls are located in the city. She has a $10,000 opera house, good hotels and excellent business blocks, while before January 1st the people will be rejoiced by being accommodated with a good electric light system and water works.

Four or five new railroad lines are now being agitated to be constructed through the city in the near future, with prospects that work will soon be commenced on some of them.

Advertised Letter Lists.

The following letters remain unclaimed in the postoffice at North Yakima, Washington, Dec. 7, 1906. In calling for the same please say "advertised."

Remarkable Recovery.

Mrs. Michael Curtin, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her that she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her.

Little bronze troughs with members of the feathered tribes perched upon the sides constitute something new in ash trays.

Happy Hoosiers.

Wm. Timmons, postmaster at Idaville, Ind., writes: "Electric Bitters has done more for me than all other medicines combined, for that had feelings arising from kidney and liver trouble."

—The stock of harness, saddles, &c., at C. E. McEwen's is the best in the city, and his prices are the lowest.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve

Is the best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale at Janek's Pharmacy.

Numbered among the fanciful hairpin devices is a blue tinted moonstone, set in a diamond shaped frame of rubies.

—Man was made to mourn, but need he suffer unnecessarily? For every poison there is an antidote and happily Blood-bioider is the antidote to many evils that poison man's existence.

A rival to the expensive garter clasp is the new silver and gold stocking supporters now in the market.

—Why people will continue to suffer from day to day, constantly complaining to their friends of pain in the back and loins, and with every symptom of that terrible scourge, Bright's disease, staring them in the face, is certainly a mystery, when they might be made strong, healthy and happy by using Oregon Kidney Tea.
