United States Land Law. PRE-EMPTIONS. 41. The qualifications required of a pre-emptor are that he (or she) shall be a citizen of the United States or have declared an intention to become such, over 21 years of age or the head of a family; an actual inhabitant of the tract claimed; and not the proprietor of 320 acres of land in any State or Territory.

42. A person who has removed from land of his own to reside on public land in the same State or Territory, or has previously exercised his pre-emption right is not a qualified pre-emptor. 43. Lands included in any reservation, or within the limits of an incorporated town, or selected as the site of a city or town, or actually settled and occupied for purposes of trade and business and not for agriculture, or on which there is any known salines or minerals, are not subject to pre-emption.

44. If the land is surveyed, but has not been "offered," the declaratory statement must be filed within three months from the date of statement. If upon "offered" land, the filing must be made within thirty days. 45. If the land is unsurveyed at the time of settlement, the declaratory statement must be filed within three months after the date of filing the township plat in the local office.

46. Failure to file a declaratory statement within the time prescribed makes the land liable to the claim of an adverse settler who does file notice of his intention at the proper time. 47. The land office fee for filing a declaratory statement is $2, except in the Pacific States and Territories, where the fee is $3.

48. A pre-emption filing can be made only by an actual settler on the land. A filing without settlement is illegal, and no rights are acquired thereby. 49. The existence of a pre-emption filing on a tract of land does not prevent another filing to be made of the same land, subject to any valid rights acquired by virtue of the former filing and actual settlement, if any.

50. On offered lands proof and payment must be made within twelve months from date of settlement. 51. If the land is unoffered, proof and payment may be made within thirty-three months from the date of settlement. 52. A failure to make proof and payment as prescribed by law, renders the land subject to appropriation by the first legal applicant.

53. The requirements of actual inhabitancy and improvements must be observed and strictly under the pre-emption law as under the homestead law. 54. Failure to inhabit and improve the land in good faith, as required by law, renders the claim subject to contest and the entry to cancellation.

55. Final proof in pre-emption cases must be made to the satisfaction of the register and receiver, whose decision, as in other cases, is subject to examination and review by this office. 56. Publication of notice to make proof is required as in homestead cases. 57. The final affidavit must be made before the register or receiver, or before the clerk of a court of record in the county and State or Territory where the land is situated. If in an unorganized county the proof may be made in a similar manner in any adjacent county in the same State or Territory.

required to make oath that his entry is made for the cultivation of timber and for his own exclusive use and benefit; that he makes the application in good faith and not for the purpose of speculation, nor directly or indirectly for the use or benefit of other person or persons whomsoever, and that he intends to hold and cultivate the land and to wholly comply with the provisions of the act. 61. Claimants under the timber culture act will be held to a strict compliance with the terms and conditions of the law.

62. Not more than one-quarter of any section can be entered under this act. 63. Where 160 acres are taken, at least five acres must be plowed within one year from date of entry. The following or second year said five acres must be actually cultivated to crop or otherwise, and another five acres must be plowed. The third year the first five acres must be planted to trees, tree seeds or cuttings, and the second five acres actually cultivated to crop or otherwise. The fourth year the second five acres must be planted to trees, tree seeds or cuttings, making, at the end of the fourth year, ten acres thus planted to trees.

64. Perfect good faith must at all times be shown by claimants. Trees must not only be planted, but they must be protected and cultivated in such manner as to promote their growth. 65. Final proof may be made at the expiration of eight years from date of entry. It must be shown that for the said eight years the trees have been planted, protected and cultivated as aforesaid; that not less than 2,700 trees were planted on each of the ten acres, and that at the time of making proof there are growing at least six hundred and seventy-five living thrifty trees to each acre.

66. Where less than one quarter section of land is entered, the same proportionate amount of plowing, planting and cultivation of trees must be done as required in entries of 160 acres. 67. If the trees, seed or cuttings are destroyed in any one year they must be replanted. A party will not be released from a continued attempt to promote the actual growth of timber or forest trees. A failure in this respect will subject the entry to cancellation. 68. Only an applicant for the land under the timber culture or homestead laws can institute a contest under the third section of the act of 1878.

69. Contestants have a preference right of thirty days after cancellation in which to make entry of the land. 70. The government will at any period, upon proper application to contest, or upon its own information, investigate alleged fraudulent or illegal timber culture entries, or alleged failure to comply with the law after entry, and such entries will be cancelled upon sufficient proof either of illegality or failure to comply with the law. 71. The land office fee for an entry of more than 80 acres is $14; for 80 acres or less, $9.

CAUTION TO APPLICANTS. Persons making filings or entries under the homestead, pre-emption or timber culture acts, are cautioned that the laws authorize entries to be made only for the use and benefit of the party making the same, and that entries or filings are not allowed for others nor for speculation, but all entries must be made in good faith and the requirements of law must be honestly and faithfully complied with.

McPherson Hanged. For several days rumors have been rife of the probable lynching of J. F. McPherson if he secured a stay of proceedings from the court, but as there was so much talk we were inclined to think that it was all talk. It was noticed yesterday, however, that a great many people were on our streets who seemed to be engaged in earnest conversation wherever a squad would congregate. In the evening the streets were alive with people but very little was said in regard to the murderers. At about 10 o'clock a body of masked men, numbering about sixty persons, took possession of the public square, and placed guards around the scaffold and throughout the square to keep outsiders from interfering. A portion of the crowd then demanded admittance into the jail yard and upon refusal of the jailor to open the door a crowbar was procured and the door sprung open. The jail guard began shouting, the fire being returned by the mob who then seized the guard and held them until the work was done. George E. Church who was acting as death watch, locked the jail door at the first alarm and threw the key under the steps. As the mob entered the jail they remarked to the guard: "We are not here to break the law, but to fulfill it. That appeal don't go." The jail was then broken into and McPherson taken out and shackled upon the scaffold, his shackles still upon his feet, and the rope was placed around his neck and made fast over the beam. As he mounted the scaffold, he exclaimed: "Before God I am innocent." You are hanging an innocent man." He begged piteously for mercy and asked them to hang westwardly first.

He then offered up a prayer, when, as soon as he was through, he was pushed off the scaffold. The rope was either too long or else it slipped, McPherson striking the side of the trap as he fell, and his feet reached the ground. Strong hands grasped the rope and his ponderous body swung clear between the heavens and earth and he was literally strangled to death. By this time the streets were full of people, all eager to see the execution but the vigilantes kept them out of the yard until all signs of life were extinct. The body was then given to the jail guard and the coroner summoned. Upon his arrival the body was cut down and he summoned a jury who rendered a verdict as follows: "We the undersigned coroner's jury, summoned to inquire into the cause and circumstances attending the death of James F. McPherson, do find that the said James F. McPherson came to his death by hanging and strangulation, the person or persons causing his death being unknown to the jury. I. N. Arment, T. S. Leonard, G. J. Cameron, Louis Young, Joseph W. Smith, and S. M. Wait.

The body was then taken to the undertaking establishment of Kimball & Martin and placed in a coffin. His neck was found to be not broken. The remains accompanied by the widow and children were taken to Pomeroy for interment to-day. The mob, unlike most mobs, did their work coolly and systematically, only hanging the one who was likely to escape the consequences of his great crime, leaving the others to be dealt with by the law directed.

We do not believe in lynch law, and think that it should be discouraged, but this uprising was general throughout the country, horsemen being heard to leave town in every direction until long after the execution was over, the sound of their horses' hoofs reminding one of a regular night march of cavalry. This ends another chapter in the great tragedy. The above version is as near as we can arrive at the facts by diligent inquiry and we think are correct.—Dayton Chronicle Extra, Sunday, Aug. 5th.

FRATERNAL SPARRING. J. has just returned from a little two-sided tournament with the gladiators. I have filled my nose with cotton waste—so that I shall not soak this sketch in gore as I write.

I needed a little healthful exercise and was looking for something that would be full of vigorous enthusiasm, and at the same time promote the healthful flow of blood to the muscles. This was rather difficult. I tried most everything, but failed. Being a sportsman being (Joke) I wanted other people to help me exercise, or go along with me when I exercised. Some men can go away to a desert island and have fun with dumb-bells and a horizontal bar; but to me it would seem dull and commonplace after a while, and I would yearn for more humanity.

Two of us finally concluded to play tennis, but we were only a man and the owner intimated that he would want the table for Fourth of July, so we broke off in the middle of the first game and paid for it. Then a young brother said he had a set of boxing gloves in his room; and although I was the taller and had the longest arms, he would hold up as long as he could, and I might hammer him until I gained strength and finally get (Joke) I wanted to accept this offer because I had often regretted that I had not made myself familiar with this art, and also because I knew it would create a thrill of interest and fire me with ambition, and that is what a hollow-eyed invalid needs to put him on the road to recovery.

The boxing glove is a large fat mitt with an abnormal thumb and a string at the wrist by which you tie it on, so that when you feed it to your adversary he cannot swallow it and choke himself. I never seen any boxing-gloves before, but my brother said they were soft and wouldn't hurt anybody. So we took off some of our raiment and put them on. Then we shook hands. I can remember distinctly yet that he shook hands; that was to show that we were friendly and would not slay each other.

My brother is a great deal younger than I am, and so I warned him not to get excited and come for me with anything that looked like an unbecomingly ferocious feline. I might in the heat of debate pile his jaw upon his forehead and fill his ear full of sore thumb. He said that was all right and he would try to be cool and collected.

Then we put our right toes close together and I told him to be on his guard. At that moment I dealt him a terrific blow aimed at his nose, but through a clerical error of mine it went over his shoulder and spent itself in the wall of the room, shattering a small hollowed bracket for which I paid him $3.75 afterward. I did not wish to buy the bracket, because I had two at home, but he was arbitrary about it and I bought it.

We then took another athletic posture and in two seconds the air was full of puffed thumb and backskin mittens. I soon detected a chance to put in one where my brother could smell of it, but I never knew just where it struck, for at that moment I ran up against something with the pit of my stomach that made me throw up the sponge along with some other groceries, the name of which I cannot now recall. My brother then proposed that we take off the gloves, but I thought I had not sufficiently punished him, and that another round would complete the conquest which was then almost within my grasp. I took a bismuth powder and squared myself, but in wading off a left-hander I forgot about my adversary's right, and ran my nose into the middle of his boxing-glove. Fearing that I had injured him, I retreated rapidly on my shoulder-blades to the corner of the room, thus giving him ample time to recover. By this means my brother's features were saved and are to-day as symmetrical as my own. I can still cough up pieces of boxing-gloves, and when I close my eyes I can see calcium lights and blue phosphorescent gleams across the horizon, but I am thoroughly convinced that there is no physical exercise which yields the same amount of health and elastic vigor to the puncher than the manly art does. To the puncher, also, it affords a large deal of glad surprise and nose bleed, which cannot be hurtful to those who hanker for the pleasing nervous shock, the spinal jar and the pyrotechnic concussion.

This is why I shall continue the exercise after I have practiced with a mule or a cow-sucker two or three weeks, and feel a little more confidence in myself.—Bill Nye.

The Summit of Mt. Hood. Rev. F. M. Robertson, who recently accompanied a pleasure party to the heights of Mount Hood, estimates by the aid of barometers, the elevation of the summit to be about 12,200 feet above sea level. Mount Hood, like Mount Tacoma, is a glacial formation, and its streams are described as similar to those emerging from our greater mountains.

Est. slowly, as if it were the head of the Sandy river gliding out of an immense snow drift, and in a moment plunging over a cliff a hundred feet high. It is remarkable how different the mountain appears when close at hand as seen from different standpoints. To know the beauty and grandeur as well as the variety of this great mountain, it should be studied from every point of the compass. Now returning to the eastward a few steps a new discovery is made. The glacier scooping deep into the middle of the mountain has lifted a million tons of sand, gravel and rock, and borne them half way down the mountain side. And now the water which is ever flowing beneath these glaciers is shown completing the work of its fellow-toiler, the glacier. At a distance the earth looks like the fresh embankment of a railroad, but approaching it you will find that "Pat" and "John Chinaman" have never been there, but the swift rivulets of rushing water are surely accomplishing the mighty task, and the result will be one of those long ridges which sweep away for miles toward the base of the mountain. * * * On the western slope of the mountain the glacier is engaged in a titanic task. Here are tremendous cracks, chasm and crevices of every form and in all directions. Ice bridge after ice bridge was crossed, until it was unsafe to go farther. In one place a mighty cube of ice, an acre in extent, perched on the edge of its fellow-toiler, and required to lift such a weight is appalling. Far down through the deep fissures of hard green ice could be heard the rush of waters. While I stood and wondered, again and again I heard a creaking sound beneath. It was the slow but irresistible motion of the mighty ice field down the mountain side, heaving these millions of tons of ice and snow into thousand fantastic forms, while crevice and cave, grotto and roaring stream are all around. Six gentlemen and four ladies constitute the scaling party, which is doubtless the largest number which ever stood at one time upon the lofty summit of Mount Hood. The view is described as sublime. Over the valleys hangs a thick veil of smoke; but the crests of the Cascade range rise above the mantle of smoke, like billows above a calm sea. Further to the northward tower the snow clad summits of Mount Adams, St. Helens, and Tacoma; the latter over a hundred miles away. To the southward rise Mount Washington, Jefferson, the Three Sisters, and the far away heights of southern Oregon, all snow-clad and gleaming in the summer sun, and seeming to float like great rocks in mid-heaven. The party spent over two hours on the summit, in an atmosphere at a temperature of 60 degrees, eating dinner and finding nice snow water for drinking purposes. They found boxes, bottles, flags, books, etc., left by former visitors, and after fully satisfying their curiosity the descent began. On the way down they stopped at Crater Rock to explore Pluto's cavern, an immense cave on the north side of the rock just mentioned. The cave is caused by the volcanic heat of the mountain, and is 100 feet deep, 200 feet long, and rises in a dome 100 feet high. The vast roof is arched over by immense rafters of ice in the form of five-sided crystals, three feet in diameter. The cavern is full of wonders. Sulphur, which is supposed to be one of the chief commodities of Lis satanic majesty, abounds in every form. Hot gasses and steam issue from cracks and crevices in the rocks. The place is not without its perils. Pluto, resenting the invasion of his dominions by daring mortals, hurled one stone, which struck the dean of the woman's college on the head, inflicting a slight wound, but not of a serious nature.

How to be Happy and Long Lived. First study to acquire a composure of mind and body. Avoid agitation of one or the other, especially before and after meals, or while the process of digestion is going on. To this end govern your temper; endeavor to keep on the bright side of things; keep down, as much as possible, the unruly passions; discard envy, hatred and malice, and lay your head upon the pillow of charity with all mankind. Let not your wants outrun your means. Whatever difficulties you have to encounter, be not perplexed, but only think what is right to do in the sight of him who seeth all things, and bear without pining the results. When your meals are solitary, let your thoughts be cheerful; when you are social, which is better, avoid disputes, or serious arguments, or unpleasant topics. "Inquiet meals," says Shakespeare, "make ill digestions;" and the contrary is produced by easy conversation, a pleasant project, welcome news, or a lively companion. I advise wives not to entertain their husband with domestic grievances about children or servants, nor ask for money, or proposal of marriage, or provoking questions, and advise husbands to keep the care and vexations of the world to themselves, but to be communicative of what ever is comforting, cheerful and amusing. Self-government is the best step to health and happiness.

In this connection the following suggestions are proposed: Eat slowly, as if it were a pleasure you desired to prolong, rather than a duty to be performed as soon as possible. Don't bring your prejudices, your dislikes, your annoyances, your past misfortunes, or future forebodings to the table. They will spoil the bon dinner. Respect the hours of meals; you have no right to injure the temper of the cook, destroy the flavor of the viands, and the comfort of the family by your want of punctuality.

Have as much variety in your food as possible, but not many dishes served at one time. Find as little fault as possible with the food prepared, and praise when you can.

Finally, be thankful, if you have no meat, that you have, at least, an appetite, and hope for something better in the future. Keep the Stables Light. Dark stables are an abomination and should not be tolerated. There is no necessity to sacrifice comfort, either in winter or summer, to secure enough light. A horse's eyes are enlarged—the pupil of the eye is—by being kept in a dark stable; he has the harness put on him and suddenly brought out into the bright, glaring sunlight which contracts the pupil so suddenly as to cause extreme pain. By persevering in this very foolish and injudicious as well as cruel practice, the nerves of the eyes become impaired, and if continued long enough, loss of sight will ensue. To see how very painful it is to face a bright light after having been in the dark, take a walk some dark night for a short time, till the eye becomes accustomed to the darkness, then drop in, suddenly, some well-lighted room and you will be severely punished. Three Mysterious Wells. About eight miles from Kingston, Ont., and 400 yards from the river St. Lawrence, rises a lofty granite ridge, on which are three well-circled out of the solid rock, which have defied the queries of the oldest inhabitants as their intended use. These cylinders, only four feet deep, and a foot or more in diameter, were hewn out of rocks which the keenest tempered tools of modern times would scarcely chip, and from top to bottom they are as smooth as the finest polished Scotch granite. They always contain a copious supply of pure water, which must be supplied by rains, as no surface water can penetrate them. The popular idea is that therein former savages pouched their corn, but the disproportionate depth renders that impossible.

Stepping-stones to Success. Learn your own business. Keep at one thing—in no wise change.

Observe system and order in all you do and undertake. Be self-reliant; do not take too much advice but rather depend upon yourself.

Never fail to keep your appointments or to be punctual to the minute. Never be idle, but keep your hands or mind usefully employed except when sleeping.

Use charity with all; be generous in thought and deed—help others along life's thorny pathway. Make no haste to be rich, remembering that small and steady gains give competency with tranquillity of mind.

Do not put off till to-morrow what you can do to-day, and never trouble others to do what you can perform yourself. Accustom yourself to think and act vigorously and to be prompt and decided for the right against the wrong.

Earn money before you spend it; never buy what you do not want—adopt the pay-as-you-go principle, and never devote from it. Make few promises. Always speak the truth and nothing but the truth; and in all your business relations be guided by strict integrity and unflinching honesty.

Buy, subscribe to and read all that is necessary to fully inform yourself on the doings, discoveries and reforms of the age in which you live. Develop a wealth of character by personal courage. Possess the courage to speak your mind when it is necessary you should do so, and to hold your tongue when it is prudent you should do so; to acknowledge your ignorance rather than seek credit under false pretenses.

Finally, in all you do and say, think and act out and so live that your daily growth of soul and body be ever upward in the direction of perfection. Oldest City in the World.

Damas is the oldest city in the world. Tyre and Sidon have crumbled on the shore; Babylon is a ruin; Palmyra is buried in a desert; Nineveh and Babylon have disappeared from the face of the globe. Damascus remains what it was before the days of Abraham—a center of trade and travel—an isle of verdure in the desert, a presidential capital, with martial and sacred associations extending through thirty centuries.

The city which Mohammed surveyed from a neighboring height, and was afraid to enter, which was given to have but one paradise, and for his part he was resolved not to have it in this world, is to-day what Julian calls the "Eye of the East," as it was in the time of Isiah, "The Head of Syria." From Damasus came the damson, our blue plum, and the delicious apricot of Portugal called damasco; damask, our beautiful fabric of cotton and silk, and vines and flowers raised upon a smooth bright ground, the damask rose introduced into England in the time of Henry VIII, the Damascus blade, so famous the world over for its keen edge and wonderful elasticity, the secret of whose manufacture was lost when Tamerlane carried the artist into Persia, and that beautiful art of inlaying wood and steel with gold and silver, a kind of mosaic, introduced into England by the artist, the late Emperor Nicholas.

The late Emperor Nicholas happened one day to be engaged in inspecting a state penitentiary in one of the provincial seats of government, and took it into his head to question some of the convicts respecting the nature of the offenses for which they were suffering punishment. "What are you here for?" he asked of one. "I am innocent, your Imperial Majesty," replied the prisoner, falling on his knees. "A church was robbed; a leadle was knocked on the head; the peasants caught hold of me, and I knew nothing about it." Similar replies were given by other prisoners. The Emperor, obviously bored by these successive protestations of guiltlessness, cast a glance along the line of prisoners, until his eye fell upon a ragged, wretched-looking fellow, with the words: "Of course, you, too, are here on a false charge." "Not a bit of it, your Majesty," replied the fellow. "It is all fair and square as far as I am concerned. I stole a pony from a tradesman, 'stole a pony from you?' said the Emperor with a laugh; and then addressing the governor of the prison, with well-assumed earnestness: "Turn that fool-forswearing rascal instantly out of doors. I cannot allow him to remain a minute longer in such honorable and virtuous company, lest he pervert all these good, innocent people."

SATURDAY, AUGUST 11, 1883.

While there is nothing particularly striking in the circumstance yet upon considering the development we feel as though it becomes necessary to say something, to reveal in a little blow-your-own-horn language, as it were, upon the present occasion. Our readers will bear us out when we say that we commenced publishing the Review without ostentation or wild wide promises. There was no announcement to the effect that we would issue the "best paper on the coast," nor that we intended to revolutionize the style in which former journalistic ventures had been conducted in this city. We quietly set to work without promise, and often without hopes of a reasonably generous support. We had looked upon the rapid strides that Spokane Falls was making, and readily realized that if the smallest and briefest glimpse could be had of hereafter that one would be able to see laid out on the land right here a large, handsome, thriving city inhabited by a busy and wealthy community. We felt satisfied that there was room for a second paper at the Falls, and realized that if we did not step in some one else would walk into the opening. Not that there was any expectation of immediately securing a large and liberal patronage, but cheered ourselves with the prospects of the future, that was then bright and now much brighter. The first number of the Review was issued with a great many misgivings as to the possibility of its success, and by the regular process of the daily rotation of the earth upon its axis, which measures the lapse of time, we have continued to issue every Saturday until this number records No. 13, figures that indicate an existence of three months. There is nothing that can really be considered ancient, and decrepit, and antediluvian at that age but eggs, and therefore we are not in a position to indulge in any vast amount of congratulations, yet it is generally conceded that if a weekly manages to weather the rude storms that beset the path of the first few months of life, and at the end of that time shows symptoms of having so far pleased the community in which it is published as to have secured even a living support, the chances of its continued existence are favorable. The Review, as stated, has reached that vital point in its existence when the proprietor is able to figure up whether or no he will be justified in continuing its publication, and it is gratifying to us to state that while the patronage extended has not been such as to awaken any wild hope of eventually accumulating a fund equal to the reserve capital of a Vanderbilt, yet it is sufficient to insure us a living, and as long as that continues we feel that we are safe in promising that the Review will remain with, and be a factor in the development of the Falls. It has, and will be, our aim to give the people a live, entertaining, and interesting paper, with the one object always in view of unceasingly working for the city and county of Spokane. We will, as we have done, endeavor to point out its advantages without undue exaggeration, and if we are instrumental in any degree in furthering the growth of the place we will consider our labor rewarded amply, and while we desire to please all the chances are a million to one that we may be called upon at any time to say something that will stick in the craw of a few, but such things are bound to happen, no matter how well they may be guarded against. To those who have shown a kindly disposition to contribute a fair share of their patronage to the Review we extend our sincere thanks. That is all we desire and all we ask. We did not come here to block out any person in the same business, and while succeeding ourselves have only a kindly feeling toward our contemporary. And right here we desire to kindly mention the neighborly feeling at all times shown by the Chronicle, a disposition that is more praiseworthy on account of its rarity. We have no grand promises to make as to the future course of the Review. Our aim has been to publish a neat, newsy paper, and we will not have succeeded we are willing to leave to the decision of the public. Personally we are more than pleased with the city (and no one could live here, unless he might be a chronic crank, and feel otherwise), and hope to see grow up around the site a second Minneapolis. Spokane Falls is just as certain a grand and wonderful growth as the march of time, and nothing will prevent it increase in size but the trumpet notes of Gabriel announcing the crack of doom, an event that we have no expectations of ever living long enough to report through the medium of an extra. The Review speaks of the removal of the U. S. Land Office to Spokane Falls as the result of the enterprise of the citizens of the Falls. The "enterprise" of these land speculators would not have required so much effort and silent work behind the scenes, with such care not to let the people of the district know anything about the move, had the place been the choice of the people of the district and the most central for business. As the location of the Land Office is made to suit the majority of the people of the district and not to assist speculators in town sites and real estate, the authorities at Washington must make some change in their order when they have heard the wishes of the majority, and that Spokane Falls does not comprise the majority of the district for whose benefit the office is instituted. The above delectable extract is from the Herald, a paper published at Sprague, in this county, and shows the drift of the feeling existing in certain localities against Spokane Falls. We have noticed in our brief existence that times if there is one man in a community who has met with success, through a freak of fortune or his own exertions, there always a crowd of envious, jealous, vicious excoerceses yelping at his heels, ready to say the meanest of mean things about him, and by innumerable endeavors to work some injury to him. As it is with the individual, so, we repeat to say, it is frequently the case with cities, towns and villages when situated near together. Let one of the places show evidence of growth and prosperity and the others band together, as never how their interests may differ, to work some impediment in the way of its growth. Local papers, the month pieces and organs of their communities, take up the cudgel, as a rule, and neglect no opportunity to say malicious things about sister towns. Truth is banished, fairness forgotten, honor lost sight of. The object is to endeavor to make the outside world believe the very worst of a place, and if any harm can be accomplished thereby, if ever so small, the perpetrators glory in their malicious work and redouble their exertions. It is evident that the upper country is banded together against Spokane Falls, and while the pack is in full voice after this little city, she moves majestically along, turning neither to the right or left. It is obvious that the prospects of the Falls is creating an illness in some quarters, and they think their puny efforts will stay that progress that is as unmanageable as the ocean's tide. Why do ye not rail at the Creator, who made the town site? An hundred years ago a man with a particle of perception about him would have, standing on the shores of the magnificent river, predicted just what is now taking place. It is a natural site for a city, and all the howl, and persevering lying will not detract from the place one iota. Kick, and snarl, and vituperate ye hinders to your heart's content. It shows that the iron has entered your souls, and instead of giving even a modicum of credit to the city you attempt to make your readers believe that the growth of the Falls is abortive and short lived. The attacks have no other effect than to make our people increase their exertions, and thus spurred on will hasten that which ye so much dread. As to the remarks of the Herald above we can only say it shows the cloven foot. We did state that the removal of the Land Office to this city was the result of the labors of our enterprising citizens to a certain extent, and when the Herald openly charges the citizens with being "land speculators," it perpetrates a fabrication both silly and foundationless. All the trash about the "silent work behind the scenes" and the ignorance of the people as to the movement is mere twaddle, and so nonsensical that we are surprised that the Herald would belittle itself by resorting to such absurdities. It is a matter of general knowledge, and hardly necessary to repeat, that petitions were circulated a few months ago among the people of this and Stevens counties by persons representing different towns in this county soliciting the authorities for the Land Office. The Herald knows this, and knowing it we cannot account for so bold an assertion as made above, unless the editor stretched his conscience for the mere pleasure of rapping the Review on the knuckles. Under the cloak of righteous indignation the Herald takes particular pains to go after the scalps of town site speculators. There are a few men in our city who have invested in land for the purpose of speculation. We are acquainted with the gentlemen and know them to be fair and square in all their dealings. Now what under heaven the Herald finds in them to raise its bile, we are at a loss to see. Did the Herald man ever in his life invest a dollar but that he expected sooner or later to realize some advance on the outlay? It might with as good grace denounce a man for building a house to sell, buying a horse, wagon, grain or anything else in the market for the purpose of barter. My dear Christian friend, when you denounce speculation take off your glasses and gaze about your own town. No where on the line, last winter, was there more outrageous speculations, or attempts, than right in Sprague. Nurse your wrath, neighbor. Feed upon the hopes of the success of your petition forwarded in the heat of disappointment against the change of the Land Office to Spokane Falls, but you will never fill out and grow fat on the provender. It is worn-wood to you, ain't it, to read of the official order directing the location of the Federal office in this city. You, my friend, don't you, because town that has never put a straw in your path has succeeded when others have failed. You may succeed even now in changing the location of that office, for all things terrestrial are uncertain, but if you do secure the office you will have no mean, contemptible charges against your people from the papers here, and Spokane Falls will grow to be a great city without a halt, while your place will retain its present beautiful insignificance. Our townsmen and Councilman elect, Dr. L. E. Whitehouse, comes in for a dig from the Cheney Tribune. It accuses him of exerting his influence for a division of this county, and upon the hypothesis that the Doctor is not capable of laying out the papers here, and Spokane Falls will grow to be a great city without a halt, while your place will retain its present beautiful insignificance. Our townsmen and Councilman elect, Dr. L. E. Whitehouse, comes in for a dig from the Cheney Tribune. It accuses him of exerting his influence for a division of this county, and upon the hypothesis that the Doctor is not capable of laying out the papers here, and Spokane Falls will grow to be a great city without a halt, while your place will retain its present beautiful insignificance. Now we know Dr. Whitehouse to be a gentleman of more than ordinary good judgment, sense and capability, and consider that he is just as able to take care of himself as is the Tribune. We do not know whether or not he has in any manner expressed himself upon the subject, or used his influence to bring about that which every sensible man knows is bound to take place sooner or later, but if he has he knows what he is doing and asks no counsel from that great distributor of news, the Tribune. No doubt he will feel under many obligations to that sheet for so minutely pointing out his duties, a species of gratuitous generosity that the county seat organ has a monopoly of. The Cheney Tribune devotes an extraordinary amount of space this week to a promiscuous attack upon Spokane Falls. It thinks it has made a wonderful discovery, and is working the lead for all that it is worth. It hints how blindly stumbled into the notion that the woods are full of Spokaneites trying to steal the county seat from Cheney, or that the people are making a desperate effort to have the unwieldy territory embraced in Spokane county divided. Judging from the labored production and heavy arguments, we are considering four or five articles in the Tribune office that something of the kind will happen. We do not propose to argue the necessity of a division of the county at present, and are willing that the Tribune shall waste all of its ammunition on that subject in the shape of blank cartridges, but we do most emphatically protest against the system of abuse, both personal and general, so much in vogue with the Tribune. Kellogg, don't you know how to advocate or oppose a measure without resorting to scurrility? LOCAL. Caught his Man. Friday morning a very young man came up from Sprague, armed with a warrant, in search of an Indian who had been stealing horses. The young officer found his game and Marshal Hyde locked him up until the evening train. At 6 o'clock the plucky youth marched off with his prisoner manacled and took him to Sprague for examination. Coming. Geo. T. Crane, of the firm of Geo. T. Crane & Co., is now East arranging to put in the finest stock of stoves and hardware ever brought into the territory. They will handle nothing but the very best in their line, and buying direct from the factories they will be prepared to revolutionize prices. The new firm is to occupy Dr. Burch's brick, on Howard street, and expect to open out on the first of October. Look out for them. Services. Rev. H. D. Lathrop, D. D., will conduct services in the Episcopal church of this city, to-morrow morning and evening at the usual hours. A cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend. We are requested to announce that in the absence of the pastor there will be no services in the M. E. Church to-morrow, but class meeting and Sunday school at the usual hours. Lively Racket. The other night some of the boys rubbed their heads together and put up a job on an unsuspecting merchant, on Howard street, who was the drowsy god in a room connected with the rear of his store. At a late hour they collected in the flower garden of the said trader, where empty tin cans, boxes and rubbish bloom in all their loveliness, and attached a cow bell to the side of the house and moving to a healthy distance beyond the reach of old boots and other missiles, proceeded to play a lively solo. Directly the ghostly habit of the victim appeared in the door way, swinging an empty bottle and parading a bowl of vengeance, while in the most pathetically persuasive voice he checked off such remarks as "Oush, you brute," "git out, you beast," and similar coaxing expressions, all the while standing where the soft zephyrs played about his exposed limbs, and woefully flapped his thin raiment, in an attitude ready to make an attack as soon as the surprise animal got up sufficient courage to make a movement and exposed her whereabouts. Tiring of his vigils he again retired, but before he had fairly settled in his nest that bloody bell commenced its intonations, more energetically than before. He popped out so suddenly that the boys failed to close down on the music in time, and he at once got on to the racket. He spoiled further proceedings by tossing the bell so far that the crowd was not able to find it when they returned from the lively trip they made down the street under the discovery. If this practical joking does not cease it will be under the painful necessity of writing up an obituary notice for some one before long.

A Painful Topic. There is a party by the name of Payne who eats air and grows exceedingly important on the diet over near Medical Lake. To take his word for it he is a very owl on wisdom, and knoweth more than a great many people have forgotten. He becomes exceedingly malicious and frightfully denunciatory because the editors of Spokane county have seen fit to repeat the reports brought to them that the crops in some portions of the county are far better than could be expected, considering the unfavorable season. So worked up is he that he penned a weighty communication to the Oregonian, in which he pronounces the crops a failure, and gives some reasons for the shortage, and snatches in a few shots at the county papers. We feel bruised in spots from the attack, and great big tears hop down from our starboard eye when we think how sad it is that after providence in its mysterious workings had nursed into existence and piloted through the whirlpools and snags of life a man of such a ponderous collection of brains it should then spew him out into this far away land to go to seed and lose his identity. It is supposed by a certain class of individuals who think they were created especially to regulate the internal arrangement of the universe, that country editors are legitimate prey, and that they are delegated to "stare 'em alive" whenever the spirit moves. Take the editors of this county—excepting ourself—and we believe that they will compare in point of "intelligence" with the same number of country editors anywhere. We do not pretend that they possess the intellect, and brains and wisdom of this man Payne. No doubt intelligence sticks out from him like the pegs of a hat rack, brains ooze from under his hat perpetually, and wisdom is spread over him so thick that it can be scraped off with a stick. So far as the crops are concerned we know of no paper that has stated that the yield in this part of the territory would be large. Perhaps others rely, as we have done, upon the statements of old farmers, which, his statement to the contrary notwithstanding, we do not believe this man Payne is. There are places in the territory where the crop will be very light, and others where the yield is good, but it is to be regretted that it is not better, but the elements are to blame for that, not the agriculturist. We apologize to our readers for occupying so much space on so small a subject, but it is somewhat galling to have a bilious party, "wise in his own conceit," and suffering for no-toriety, jump into the country editors with both feet and for us to remain silent under the punishment. CORRESPONDENCE. HERON RIDING, Aug. 7, 1883.—We had a first-class sensation here a day or so ago. A bad man from the front entered the tent of J. A. Zangrell, one of our business men. Mr. Zangrell being absent the fellow found Mrs. Z. alone with a 6-year old child, and snatching up a six-shooter with one hand and a big raw hide in the other she snatched the blackguard over the head with both feet and for us to remain silent under the punishment. The animal was landed in 111, 151, 74. A LIBERAL REWARD Will be paid on any information that will lead to their recovery. WILSON & TURNER. AUG. 11, 1883. Spokane Falls SODA WORKS. SCRAPINGS.

August 11th. And still the city spreads. Episcopal services to-morrow. The Post-street bridge is a settled fact.

Hot weather has good staying qualities. The Review is three months old with this issue.

That school building looks like something now. The days have drifted along pretty quietly this week.

The skeleton of the big mill is about entirely boarded over. A heavy shower fell out toward the Big Bend last Friday night.

The Commissioners are wrestling with county matters this week. Burck's new building for Wendell's agricultural stock is under way.

Webster Bros. will get into their new quarters the latter end of next week. The real estate market is easy just now, but prices show no signs of a release.

Instead of one there are now half a dozen cows running around with bell on. Workmen on the Central block put up the timbers for the second floor Thursday.

The dry weather is having a demoralizing effect on wells in some portions of the city. A full report of the last meeting of the City Council is published on the fourth page.

Barnwell & Davis will be prepared to drill in ample season for this year's crop. Clark & Marvin have decorated the ridge pole of their carriage factory with the best of materials.

Benham has commenced work in earnest on Rima's new building adjoining Union block. I. S. Kaufman, the Howard-street Real Estate man, will take pleasure in showing you bargains.

The plaster and calceining work on Glover's building is being done in an artistic manner. Commence with the new quarter and enroll your name on the Review subscription list.

The rush of travel took a fresh start this week and the hotels were taxed to their utmost capacity. Chas. Boyer tried the fishing at Trent Tuesday, with a party of friends. He reports a good catch.

Harry Hayward is building a veranda to the front of his residence and otherwise improving the place. A fence was built that was amputated last week, satisfied with the trip even if they did not strike quartz running a million dollars to the ton.

We see that our friend H. W. Fairweather has been appointed Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue for Eastern Washington, and will have his office at Sprague. The appointment is a most excellent one.

The party of young men who started on an exploring expedition into the Okanogan country some days ago, returned last week, satisfied with the trip even if they did not strike quartz running a million dollars to the ton.

The Local Land Agent for the railroad, agency, advertises more land for sale than ever. The company's property is being grabbed up fast and if you want a slice you will have to stir your stumps and catch on at once.

Surveyor Maxwell is engaged plotting a 70-acre tract of land adjoining the city to the south. The company's property is being grabbed up fast and if you want a slice you will have to stir your stumps and catch on at once.

Forest fires must be kept in a fresh place Thursday, as the air was so thick with smoke that one could taste it. The first street improvements will not take shape very soon, judging from the expressions of the Street and Alley Committee.

The formation of a Post of the Grand Army of the Republic at this place is bound to be consummated. The idea is a very good one. Al Jones will occupy the lower floor of Hyde's new building on Howard street. He is to have the first wine rooms in the territory.

Cardmy, the mason who was so seriously injured by the fall from a scaffold last week, has so far recovered as to be able to about. McElroy will have to learn his home how to stand up. The critter deliberately fell down Friday and mashed the shafts of that new vehicle.

It is rumored that the railroad has not only withdrawn its town lots but all lands in this township out of the market. Looks as though something's up. We see that Henry Ward Beecher is to lecture in Portland this month. A strong desire exists to have the man of varied notoriety lecture in this city.

People have become so used to it that the idea prevails that they can live without rain. The clerk of the weather seems to entertain the same opinion. Station Agent McElroy airs his features in a handsome new light spring wagon, and to see him rattling along the road one has a view of supreme happiness.

A few drops of water were sifted about this vicinity Thursday. They were so few that they might have been counted if some one had gone to that trouble. If that proposed new Opera House is to be built before cold weather there should be no procrastination. Take hold at once and avoid the project right through.

Ben Bravinder purchased the stage line to Farmington last week, but sold out again in a few days as his business interests here would not justify his hanging on. Some very heavy blizzards have been let off on the side of the hill south of town this week. They seemed as though the operators were bound that the stone must come.

Sunday Olaf Windstad, who was up to this city hunting fish, killed a rattlesnake on the north side of the river. He says it is the first he has ever seen in these diggings. The criminal trial before Judge Whitman Tuesday was a drawing card. The crowd patiently awaited and listened to a vast amount of testimony relevant and irrelevant.

G. Palmato, one of the jury proprietors of the California Brewery, is building an attractive, neat and comfortable residence on Sprague street, which he will occupy before fall. The Sprague Herald is just awakening to the realization that it is an awful mistake to locate the Land Office at Spokane Falls. Sorry that there is so much snoring over the bone.

A few watermelons have made their appearance in the market, but the coin required to purchase them weighs about as much as the fruit they have not come in use as regular diet. Charley Carson had a couple of 'ooms on exhibition in front of his restaurant Thursday. The same spirit of pugacity characteristic of the race was well developed in these fellows.

By card it will be seen that Col. C. G. Bradshaw has opened a law office in the building adjoining Kosta's store. He has his rooms neatly fitted up and is gradually spreading his practice. P. D. Sardan has a fresh inducement to buckle into labor, as his family was increased by the addition of a wee stanger in the shape of a girl Monday. Mother and child doing nicely.

It is understood that the fare for Spokane during the convalescence will be reduced to half the regular rates between this place and Portland. From what we can pick up we are led to believe that the building epidemic has not been broken. A number of new buildings are contemplated and will be constructed before cold weather sets in.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. E. J. Webster is rapidly recovering from the Post-street bridge collapse and is in the office of Harrison & Townsend Monday, Aug. 6th, at 7 o'clock, p. m. A. M. Cannon in the chair.

The committee on subscriptions reported the amount subscribed to be a little over five thousand two hundred dollars ($5,200).

It was voted to accept the plans and specifications of Mr. J. L. Bayley and to award the contract to him as the lowest bidder. Mr. Bayley's bid was five thousand two hundred and fifty dollars ($5,250), less fifty per cent reduction in freight of all material shipped from Portland.

Voted to appoint a building committee of three having full power in the premises: 1. To enter into contract with J. L. Bayley for the construction of the bridge.

2. To collect all subscriptions and pay all bills as they become due. 3. To accept or reject the work on the bridge when completed.

Mr. Post, Mr. Townsend and A. M. Cannon were constituted such committee. Voted to adjourn the meeting subject to the call of the building committee. F. T. CLARKE, Sec.

No Let Up. It was the general supposition outside of this city that the building improvements of Spokane this fall will be confined to the brick blocks already in process of construction, and the very anxious expressed an idea that those contemplated would never be completed.

How far they are mistaken in the latter conclusion can be seen in the solid walls of masonry creeping up on Howard street and Riverside avenue. Several other enterprising residents with means contemplate putting up more business houses yet this year, proves that the faith in the Falls remains unshaken and that the present is but the beginning of future greatness.

Outside of substantial blocks in the center of the city the outskirts of the place have been and are now filling up with a better class of residences, and these additions have been so numerous as to make it almost impossible to keep run of them. But to return to the commercial houses. Although getting late to commence any new buildings with sure prospects of completing the same before the arrival of frost, several parties are figuring on making the attempt.

The District Attorney S. C. Hyde has the plans and specifications drawn for a handsome one-story brick to fit in the vacant lot that adjoins Mr. Rima's new brick on the east side of Howard street, between First and Main. Judging from the plans, this edifice, while it may be somewhat curtailed in height in comparison with its more pretentious neighbors, will in no respect be behind them in point of finish both inside and out, and will in no manner detract from the imposing appearance that thoroughfare will present upon the completion of the blocks under way.

Contractor Benham has been figuring on the work, and as he knows how to do it the probabilities are good by a big majority that he will superintend the labor of putting the house together. This week, Charley Carson, our well-known restaurateur, purchased from Messrs. Cannon, Browne and Glover a lot on Riverside avenue and Post street, which he proposes to immediately cover with a brick building 42x84. His plan is to run the block up three stories and will introduce the hotel system run on the European plan. The upper stories will be arranged and fitted up as sleeping and living apartments, while on the ground floor he will put in a restaurant that promises to surpass in equipments and finish anything of the kind in the upper country, not excepting even Portland. There is some difficulty experienced in securing the necessary building material, but as Charley is one of the kind that predict that his proposed building will shortly be under way. Messrs. France & Ketchum, the well-known gentlemen who recently landed in Spokane Falls with an intention to stay right here, have purchased a lot on Riverside avenue, opposite the REVIEW office, and are now contracting for the lumber to put up a substantial, grand warehouse 24x48. The building will be ready for occupancy about October 1st, and supplies a depot for much of the grain that will be hauled into this city this fall.

It will be seen by the proceedings of the bridge committee that all the necessary arrangements have been completed for the building of the proposed bridge across Spokane river at the foot of Post street. For this purpose something over $5,000 have been contributed, showing the willingness of the citizens to aid any enterprise aiming to benefit our city. The bridge is to be 525 feet in length, 22 in width and 36 feet above the river, supported by two piers. It will be wide enough for a double drive way, with foot walks on each side. J. L. Bayley, an experienced bridge builder, has been awarded the contract, and from all we can learn of his work we feel satisfied that the job has fallen to a person who understands thoroughly what he is about, and that he will make of it a sound and safe connecting link between the two shores. Already has been commenced operations, and as the contract requires the bridge to be opened for travel by the first of October, he will keep thumping away pretty lively. The bridge crosses the river at its most attractive point, and from it one can obtain the very best view of the upper and lower falls. As a point of observation it will at once become a popular resort, to say nothing of its giving any means of reaching the city from one side and the country from the other. This project will detract in no sense from any other part of the city, and is only the beginning of a series of bridges that will at an early day span the river. The time will be when there will be a bridge at the foot of every street running north and south in the city, and they will be made to do yeoman service by the swarms of people that will be crossing and recrossing at all hours of the day.

Several of our citizens contemplate putting up summer residences on Lake Ceur d'Alene, near the Fort, where they can retire for a few days, and be heated and enjoy the lazy life of it. When we started the Review a large number of people subscribed for three months. Time's up with this issue. If you like it renew, if you pay up and call it square. But pay up anyhow if convenient.

The Marshal had three prisoners on a string at one time Saturday, and he realized the fact that supporting Spokane several ladies, bent on the mission of visiting the last resting place of friends, drove out to the new cemetery, situated about a mile south of the city, and while engaged in their work of love had their attention attracted to A. M. Cannon's lot, where the remains of Mr. C's stepson, Geo. Clark, had been buried last April, and were horrified to discover that the earth had been removed from the grave. Without stopping to investigate the ladies returned to the city, but it was late at night before Mr. Cannon received word of the circumstances. That gentleman, in company with Dr. C. S. Penfield, immediately proceeded to the cemetery. On examination with a lantern it was found that the dirt had been entirely removed from the grave, a portion of the lid of the case removed, the oval plate of the casket torn off and a round hole about the size of a man's fist broken in the glass, exposing the features to view, but further than that the body was not disturbed. It is utterly impossible to understand the motives that would lead men to commit such a deed. The cemetery is remote from any habitation and seldom visited, and it is hardly probable that the perpetrators could have been frightened from their work. It is further impossible to say when the excavation was made, although the probabilities are that it was very recent. It is not likely that men were looking for a "subject" for dissection, for the body was next to an impossibility to ship to any point where it could be used, besides, if that was their object, there was nothing to prevent them from carrying it out, as the remains were accessible and as well preserved as a fresh corpse. An idea is entertained that the grave robbers started in with the intention of carrying off the body and then awaiting a reward for its return. This may have been the case, and when almost completely buried the dark angel settled every body entertained for the moment by the sight of the remains, and when they had passed away so universally regretted. With a bright, sunny disposition, a warm heart, a kindly word for everyone, he had so ingrained himself into the hearts of those who knew him that the dark angel settled every body entertained for the moment by the sight of the remains, and when they had passed away so universally regretted. LOCAL. COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

The City Council of Spokane Falls held a regular monthly meeting Monday evening, August 6, 1884.

Under "unfinished business" the clerk stated that the bill of I. Ziegler & Son had never been acted upon.

Mr. Gray moved that the bill of Messrs. Ziegler & Son, amounting to $15.75, be allowed, supplanting the motion by the statement that the account had been permitted to go too long unpaid already.

The minutes of the bill reviewed discussions similar to others that have occurred every time the bill has been brought up.

It was moved and seconded that 50 per cent. of the bill be allowed. There being no second to Mr. Gray's motion the last motion was voted upon and carried.

The report of the Finance Committee on the report of the City Treasurer was called for, but not being prepared the matter was laid over until next meeting.

Mr. Gray, as Chairman of the Street and Alley Committee, stated that he was not prepared to report on the grading of First street as the work was impracticable at the present time on account of the scarcity of labor.

The following petition asking for the vacation of Fall street was read: To the Honorable City Council of Spokane Falls.

The undersigned residents and property owners in the City of Spokane Falls, W. T., would respectfully represent:

1st. That the undersigned J. N. Glover, J. J. Browne, A. M. Cannon and H. W. Fairweather are the sole and only property owners in block one (1) and two (2) in the town of Spokane Falls, W. T.

2d. That a certain strip or alley of land generally known as Fall street, about thirty-one (31) feet in width, situated between blocks one (1) and two (2) in the town of Spokane Falls, is not and never has been used by the public, or any portion thereof as a public highway or thoroughfare.

3d. That the interest of said petitioners would be much enhanced if said Fall street would be vacated.

4th. That the vacation of said street would be no injury or inconvenience to the public or to any individual.

Wherefore, we petition your honorable body that said Fall street, to-wit: a strip of land about thirty-one (31) feet in width, situated between blocks one (1) and two (2), in the town of Spokane Falls, be vacated.

J. N. GLOVER, J. J. BROWNE, A. M. CANNON, H. W. FAIRWEATHER. By J. N. Glover.

On motion the bill was laid on the table, the Marshal being instructed to explain the matter to the gentleman.

The bill of Chas. Knox for labor, $23.35, was read.

F. M. Thompson's bill for $3 for special police duty elicited some discussion. The Marshal stated that Mr. Thompson had been paid for day work out of the 4th of July fund, but he was on duty at night, and therefore had omitted putting the bill in with the others.

On motion the bill was allowed.

Mr. Gray called the attention of the Council to the imperative necessity of drafting a new and thorough charter for the city, one that would meet all requirements for years to come.

On motion the bill was allowed.

Mr. Gray moved that a committee of three be appointed with power to employ necessary counsel, be appointed to have a charter drafted.

It was stated that District Attorney Hyde had made the subject a great deal of study lately. He had gone to the expense and trouble of procuring a great many works and authorities upon city charters and was able to draft a good one.

The motion presented by Mr. Gray was carried and the Mayor stated that he would call a special meeting of the Board as soon as the Committee was prepared to report.

On motion the following Committee on drafting a new charter was appointed: A. M. Cannon, Jas. N. Glover, and Dr. B. F. Dorch.

Marshal Hyde reported that Mayor Glover had advanced $157.50 toward the street work recently completed, and that the Council should reimburse the gentleman.

The matter was discussed at considerable length. Mr. Gray explained the reason of the large deficiency in the amount of assessment levied against property owners in order to meet the expense of the work. No mistake had been made by the Committee empowered to estimate the cost.

After the assessment had been made and partially collected the cost had been increased by the employment of an extra man and a large amount of stone work.

Property owners had been taxed 75 cents per foot, and it had been collected all but $90, and that sum was due from non-resident property owners. He objected to all of the road moneys being expended on highways out of town.

Last year all of the money was used that way, and he thought some of it should be expended in the city this year.

The receipts from individuals and property road tax amounts to some $1,000, and that sum, judiciously used, would do a vast amount of work on our avenues.

Mayor Glover said that there were some $80 that would soon be in the hands of the Treasurer, and that the increased receipts of the growing city would be such as to put it in a position to meet all bills promptly and enable it to enjoy a few of the necessary luxuries of a city which it is now deprived of.

On motion the Board adjourned.

Smell of Paint. To get rid of this objectionable odor in a chamber or a living room, slice a few onions and put them in a pail of water in the center of the room; close the doors, leave the window open a little, and in a few hours the disagreeable smell will have almost gone.

Another method is to plunge a handful of hay into a pail of water, and let it stand over a night; this plan is also effective. The foregoing have the important advantage of being simple remedies, as the necessary materials are always easily obtainable.

Yet another plan, but it is more complicated. Place a grate of lighted charcoal on a piece of flag or slate in the center of the room, and throw on it a handful or two of juniper berries; shut out all ventilation from the room for twenty-four hours. The doors and windows can then be opened, when it will be found that the nasty, sticky smell of paint has entirely gone.

The furniture may be left in the room during the process, and none of it will be injured. But the best way to avoid the smell of paint is by not having the painters in the house.
