CAPTAIN REECE OF THE MANTEPIECE. (From the Bab Ballads).

Of all the ships upon the blue No ship contains a better crew Than that of worthy Captain Reece, Commanding of the Mantepiece.

He was adored by all his men, For worthy Captain Reece, R. N., Did all that lay within his power To promote the comfort of his crew.

If ever they were dull or sad The Captain danced to them like mad, Or told, to make the time pass by, Droll legends of his infancy.

A feather bed had every man, Brown slippers and hot water can, Brown Windsor, from the Captain's store, A valet, too, to every four.

Did they with thirst in summer burn, He sold them lemonade and beer, And on all very sultry days, Cream pies, handed round on trays.

Then currant wine and grape pops, Stood handily on all the tops; And, also, with amusement rife, A Zouprope, or Wheel of Life.

New tomes came across the sea From Master May's grocery; The Times and Saturday Review, Beguiled the leisure of the crew.

Kind-hearted Captain Reece, R. N., Was quite devoted to his men; In point of fact, good Captain Reece Beautified the Mantepiece.

One summer eve, at half-past ten, He said, addressing all his men: "Come, tell me, please, what I can do, To please and gratify my crew?"

"By any reasonable plan I'll make you happy if I can; My own convenience counts as nil, It is my duty, and I will."

Then up and answered William Lee (The kindly Captain's cockswain he, A merry, cheery, low spoken man), He cleared his throat and thus began:

"You've a daughter, Captain Reece, Ten female cousins and a sign, A ma (if what I told is true), Six sisters and an aunt or two."

"Now, somehow, sir, it seems to me, More friendly life we all should be, If you would let us have a wife, Unmarried members of the crew."

"If you'll abandon our life, Let each select from them a wife, And as for leaving me, old pal, Give me your own enchanting girl!"

Good Captain Reece, the worthy man, Debated on his cockswain's plan, "I quite agree," he said, "Oh, Bill, It is my duty, and I will."

"My daughter, that enchanting girl, Has just been married to an earl, And all my other families, To pairs of various high degree."

"But what are dukes and viscounts to The happiness of my crew? The word I gave you I'll fulfill; As you desire it shall be true, I'll be the thorough on you all, And I shall be, despite my heart, The only husband on board."

The cockswain of the Mantepiece, He blushed and spoke to Captain Reece, "I beg your Honor's leave," he said, "If you'll let me, I'll go and see, 'I have a widowed mother who, Would be the very thing for you, She long has loved you from afar-- She wishes for you, Captain R."

The Captain saw the damsel that day-- A drowsy look in the sweet way-- "Am I to be a mother?" he said, "It was a tempting lady."

"Well, well, the damsel I'll seek, We'll all be married this day week, At my dear church upon the hill; It is my duty, and I will!"

The sisters, cousins, aunts, and nieces, And widowed mother, all in a row, Attended there, as they were bid; It was their duty, and they did.

Wonderful Railroad of the World.

The Calla, Lima and Oroya railroad, generally known as the Oroya railroad, now the Trans-Andine railroad, is probably the most wonderful railroad in existence.

It was contracted for by Henry Meiggs in 1859, at a cost of $21,804,000, or $27,000,000 in bonds. Work was begun January 1870.

When commenced the English company had got the right of way from Calla to Lima, and Mr. Meiggs could get no special rates for his material.

The enormous cost for freighting everything for his road would make it ruinous to build. One day there suddenly appeared hundreds of men, evidently making a railroad from Lima to Calla.

The English company went to see about it, and then got out an injunction to stop the work. Mr. Meiggs calmly asked them whose land the workmen were on, and then they found that he had quietly bought up all that land, and was building a private road on his own ground for his own use.

Leaving Calla, the road to Lima is in the finest condition. Ballasted with cobble stones no dust arises; trains every half hour, fare forty cents; four separate depots accommodate different parts of the city.

No one makes the round trip on the road ever repeats it, and seldom desires the second. The heights and distances are so great that few heads are not effected.

From San Mateo to Anchi the road passes through the "Infernos" (Little Hell). Nearly perpendicular walls from 2000 to 3000 feet in the river Rimac, having a width of from 200 to 400 feet.

At first it was proposed to make a cut in the side of these mountains, but fearing the falling of loose rocks, it was decided to tunnel. Miners were let down with ropes, one-quarter and one-half mile long, to certain indicated points on the rocky walls every 500 feet, more or less, and after they had entered, began working to the right and left, using the entrance as a place to throw the excavated material.

About midway a bend in the river made it necessary either to make a dangerous curve or span the chasm. The latter was chosen, and now a bridge unites the tunnels about 500 feet above the river bed.

Emerging from the second of these tunnels at Anchi, the Rimac is recrossed, and the road follows up the river Blanco a few miles, which it crosses, and then enters a mountain, where it turns around in a curved tunnel, and emerging a few hundred feet above re-crosses the river returns, passes Anchi and continues up the river Rimac. At Chicha, a few miles further, the road passes the town, returns, crosses its own track and the Rimac, re-returns and again doubles on itself, having passed Chicha five times.

AN INDEPENDENT PARTY.—The Springfield (Mass.) Republican calls for an independent party. The other two or three independent orphans of the country will echo the cry. A man in Connecticut used to attend auctions, and if he could buy an old door at a bargain, he would make the purchase and then build a house to fit it. It is doubtful, though, whether the people of the United States will think it worth while to build a party to fit and support two or three papers.

General Wade Hampton.

Mr. Epes Hardy lays us under obligations to him for the following article written by a friend of his to a New Brunswick newspaper. General Wade Hampton has attained a degree of popularity rarely equaled in any country.

"Governor Hampton's career is a seeming anachronism. The events connected with it are not to be found elsewhere in the practical life of the nineteenth century. Its counterparts must be sought in those days in which knights and troubadours bounded and all christendom was swayed by sentiment.

He was the poetry of war, Hampton's history has been the poetry of politics. South Carolina has ever played a peculiar part in the government. The old spirit of chivalry which impelled men to risk reputation, property and life itself for an idea, and to scorn to consider expediency when honor was at stake, still survived in the Palmetto State and imparted distinguishing characteristics to the people and their representatives.

Here then were the theatre and the man. Governor Hampton came of historic ancestry. Before the war he distinguished himself in the arts of peace. During that struggle he achieved the highest honors as a soldier. But a nobler future was in store. In the darkest period of our state's history, he was called to put himself at the head of a forlorn hope, in a contest against overwhelming numbers, perfect organization and the undisturbed assistance of the federal government.

The campaign of 1876 was a poem, needing only a Homer to embellish it in verse, or minstrels to perpetuate it in song. By his personal magnetism, Governor Hampton organized a party out of discordant elements, revived hope in the hopeless, inflamed enthusiasm to the highest point, and after an unprecedented campaign of sixty days on which the heavens never frowned, won a peaceful, bloodless victory at the polls.

"This is not all. In securing the fruits of victory he evinced a degree of wisdom and statesmanship that bewildered even his warmest admirers, and won for himself and his state the admiration of the North, which up to that time had been bitterly hostile. In those days South Carolina was one vast asylum of emotional insanity and Hampton its keeper. One mistake would have ruined all. But he made none. Skillfully and surely he solved the problem and restored chaos to perfect order. Two years later he is re-elected governor without an opposing vote. Yet, in his moment of triumph a dreadful accident befalls him, and changes the plaudits of the people into exclamations of grief. And now when medical skill is taxed to the utmost in aiding the forces of life against the assaults of death, the summons is brought to his bedside that the state calls him to her defence in a new and larger arena. We may it be said that Governor Hampton is the central figure of a grand epic poem, having its lights and shades so strongly marked as to furnish abundant materials for some inspired son of song.

"And here let us hope that all the events of the past may merely lead to some grander culmination in the future, in which the names of Hampton and South Carolina may be forever linked together in glory."

"Such is the man, tried and true, whom Carolina delights to honor, who enjoys the fullest confidence of his late despondent—now hopeful—commonwealth, whose noble deeds in peace and war have endeared him to the sunny South, and who most worthily holds the highest position in the gift of Sovereign State."

"The applause of listening Senates so command, The thrills of danger aim to despise, To scatter plenty o'er a smiling land, And read his history in a nation's eyes."

"FIRED OUT."—George C. Gorham, of California, a man who secured office from the republican party through his sharpness as a political trickster, was "fired out" of the senate secretaryship by the new congress—at least a praiseworthy act on the part of the new legislative body. He had long fed at the public table, and with other hungry jackals had scrambled for the offal thrown to one side by the senators who fed upon richer, daintier and more costly food. The senate, however being a reformatory body according to the platforms of last year should do away with the office as they have done with Gorham. The mass of patronage bestowed upon party favorites has in the course of ninety years since the sitting of first senate, in the first year of Washington's administration, become a thing of huge proportions. It gives easy and profitable positions to 155 employees, more or less mere drones, paid for doing work done by the few who are green enough to do it. There are 21 of them who get each over $1000 a session, 2 who get $4000; 6, $2500; 14, who get each $2220; and the grand aggregate of it is $231,868 per session. This is a much money to pay for idleness on the part of party favorites.

A STEP TOWARD FORTUNE.—About forty years ago a poor woman living in Philadelphia, managed to eke out a miserable existence by selling molasses candy. One day, her candy was scorched. The woman was in despair. The loss was a serious one in a trade whose profits were counted by pennies. She was quick-witted, however, and ready with expedients. She cracked some walnuts, mixed the kernels with the candy, and wrote a placard. "The new nut candy, one cent a cake." The children dropped in on their way to school. The candy was liked. They came back for more next day. The fame of the cheap confection spread from one school to another. The maker shrewdly confined herself to making that. Presently she took a larger shop in the alley. In a year or two she moved again, but this time it was into one of the principal streets. Now, her walnut candy is sold all over the country. Some years ago, she sold out her business, and retired with a handsome fortune. Now she lives in a stately home which stands in a grove of walnut trees; the wood-work is all of carved panels representing walnut boughs decorate the dining-room; and on her carriage, instead of a coat of arms, is a bunch of walnuts just bursting from the husk.

It makes us happy to say that none of the republican voters in this district will ever be troubled with softening of the brain. They might be, perhaps, but a careful reading of their journals convinces us that the article to be softened has no existence within their craniums.

The Death of Nero.

A writer in Good Words draws this picture of the death of Nero. Nero wandered out into the streets of Rome, knocked at the doors of friends; none would answer or let him in. He came back to his bed room, called for Spiculus, the gladiator, to kill him, but Spiculus was gone. "What!" said he, and he rushed out again to throw himself into the Tiber; but his courage failing him and his reason growing clear once more in the face of appalling calamity, he wished for some quiet place where he might consider his strange and sudden position and collect his thoughts for death.

With his head muffled up and covering his face with a handkerchief, dressed only in a tunic with an old soiled cloak thrown over his shoulder, he trudged along barefoot in the gloom of the early twilight, accompanied by Phoon, Sports and Epaphroditus, his secretary, who had now joined him, "have I neither friend or foe?" and he rushed out again to throw himself into the Tiber; but his courage failing him and his reason growing clear once more in the face of appalling calamity, he wished for some quiet place where he might consider his strange and sudden position and collect his thoughts for death.

Then he ordered a grave to be dug before his eyes, for he refused to fly. He bade his attendants, revived but weeping theatrically, he prepared, surrounded by his only remaining friends, to play his last act. "What an artist is now about to perish!" he exclaimed, but ere the words left his lips a dispatch from Rome arrived, which he snatched out of Phoon's hands. He read it and shuddered. He had been condemned by the Senate to be beaten to death and dragged by the heels and flung into the Tiber. Seizing two daggers he felt their points. Greek verses occurred to him, and he began to recite. He begged Sporus to get up a wall for him—to kill him—to kill him first. At this moment the tramping of horses and clash of armed men were heard below. He broke out in a verse from Iliad: "The noise of swift heeled steeds assails my ear. In another moment he would be taken alive. "Come then; courage, man!" he cried and feebly pushed the point of a dagger into his throat. But his nerve was gone and Epaphroditus came to his help and pushed it home. The guards rushed in and would have seized him. "Is this your fidelity?" he murmured and expired, with staring eyes to the terror of all who beheld him. It was his last pose, and, as the end of such a life, it could not have been outdone. "Is this your fidelity?" "He had never made a better comic bit," writes M. Renan. Nero uttering a melancholy plaint over the wickedness of the age and the disappearance of good faith and virtue! Let us applaud! as the drama is ended and the curtain falls. Once in history, O Nature, with a thousand masks, thou hast had the wit to find an actor of such a role.

ONE SORT OR "OVERWORK."—Numberless men, alleged to be hurt by overwork, do not work half enough. Their troubles come from superabundance of leisure and activity. They yawn through three or four hours in the office or counting-room; are too indolent to walk up town; eat too heavy a rich dinner; go out after-ward to see merchants, bankers, and the like, and in the end of such a life, it could not walk around billiard tables or at cards, and keep very thirsty until the drowsy, steeple toll 2 and 3. This is overwork, but overwork in the wrong direction, and of a different kind from that supposed. Overwork covers a multitude of bad habits; it is made a speeget for countless transgressions, it is very often a shallow pretense, a miserable sham. While there are far too many who overwork, there are a great many who break down and kill themselves by laziness, self-indulgence and dissipation. Very decidedly, overwork is overdone.—N. Y. Times.

The republicans are rubbing his forehead very assiduously to get some stiffening into his back so that he will veto the repeal of the election laws. How well they may succeed, is yet to be seen. Democrats are becoming more and more confident and outspoken. If he vetoes the bill, it is certain he gets no money to carry on the government. That I believe is a settled fact as any can be. Democrats say the session will be short; republicans say it will be long. I have not much doubt but upon the issue to be determined the issue of the next election. Supervisors, deputy marshals and money is all the republicans want, and democrats are determined they shall have neither, and they have the say.—Washington Letter to the Standard.

LADIES buying black silks are often at a loss for some test which will secure them from being deceived in the quality. In such a dilemma let them pinch the specimen "on the cross," and then pull it in a contrary direction. If the crease looks like a similar crease in a piece of paper, reject that piece unhesitatingly. But if it smooths out entirely, the crease disappearing it is safe to purchase. Also see that the color is a glossy blue-black. Blacks with a tinge of dun or green are unsafe.

The recent Mandalay massacre by order of the King of Burma must have been a fearful affair. Forty persons were slain and their bodies thrown into old wells. The women were treated with the utmost brutality, and the princes were reserved to the last in order that they might witness the death agonies of their families.

A Connecticut man died last week, leaving half a million dollars for the conversion of the fold in his cradle. Now, if some healthful will die and leave two, or three times as much for the conversion of Connecticut, the world will be happy.

The Egyptians badly whipped the slave trader Suleiman and his 7,000 Arabs. They found 10,000 women ready for shipment into Egypt. Suleiman owns twenty-five slave depots.

TO THE PATRONS OF THE STATESMAN. Being desirous to pay the debts against the estate of Wm. H. Newell, deceased, I respectfully ask an early settlement.

THE AMOUNT OF IT.—Missie Myrtle Logan, ex-wife of Joaquin Miller, reads him a severe lecture in a California paper for his defense of the Chinese. Joaquin's morals and those of the Chinese are so near on a par that he is bound to recognize the rights of Confucius as his peers, and they are, too.

THE INDIANS under the management of that "editorial scoundrel" and our old friend J. B. Foster, is now the leading democratic newspaper of Idaho Territory. It is universally supported by the territorial and deserves the liberal patronage they extend toward it.

AN ORIGINAL EXPLANATION.—Did you ever notice the poor chap that stands in the first position in the almanac with the fish and sheep and scorpions and bulls and twins etc., around him? Did you ever notice that he was asked and had nothing in his stomach? Well, that poor fellow used to edit a country paper and take his pay in "I'll pay my subscription next week."

BIRDS OF A FEATHER OR ALL IN YOUR TEEN.—The three principal men who have been the head and front of the circulation of petitions for the removal of Gen. Howard have recently had their positions accurately defined. One was a dishonest Indian agent placed under arrest by Gen Howard for good cause. Another was a democratic editor now under indictment for defaming the county by over issue of orders. The other was a local writer on a newspaper, now under arrest as a deserter from the army. What a brilliant array of talent!

A YOUNG MAN named J. B. Laddy was arrested at Boise City on the 11th ult., by U. S. Marshal Chase, charged with being a deserter from the U. S. army. Laddy was some time since commissioned captain of the Union county militia and also employed as the Mountain Sentinel. The fact of his being a deserter was generally known. In December last he generally known. In December last he generally known. In December last he generally known.

CONSISTENCY'S A JEWEL.—People are oftentimes blamed for not being consistent. Consistency in the minds of the shallow is looked upon as one of the great virtues, when in fact it is one of the greatest faults. The old adage that "times change and men change with them," will to a great extent bear us out in our assertion. There may be exceptions, but they only serve to prove the rule. Consistency is the bias and spiritual imitation of jewelry that ornaments common minds. It evidences the lowest order of talent, and the most cowardly of mental and moral organizations. A consistent christian is bigoted, and stupid. A consistent politician is an old party, brass bound bottom, covered with barnacles. A consistent editor is one of those double humped demagogues of the press that thinks he must always remain a donkey because his father was an ass. Consistency is impossible to the man possessing a progressive, thinking, self-reliant, original mind. Conditions are always changing, new facts are presented, new ideas are formed, and new conclusions arrived at. The man who will not admit this fact is dishonest. We never see a consistent man that does not desire to kick him because he is always h. d. up to us as a pattern. There are thousands upon thousands of republicans in the United States who will very soon think as we do. They see that times are changing, and that the power wielded by their party for so many years is nearly gone. Already the little cloud that will cause them to trim their sails to meet the coming storm appears looming up in the political horizon.

EMIGRATION PROSPECTS.—Numerous letters from California predict a large emigration thence to this country the coming summer; already the wave has risen and in the opinion of our correspondents, it has only just started. So far this year we have received very few new settlers, why this is so is entirely the fault of the people of our section. Every where else there is an unbridled land fever, and the result is a population that grows. If anything has been done outside the newspapers of late to follow that example, we have yet to learn it. Before us is a letter written from Kansas City, it states that emigration is going west at a greater rate than ever before known. When the immigrants arrive at the depots, there are agents from the numerous small towns in Kansas and Nebraska there to meet them, to attend to their comforts, and post them thoroughly on the country they are destined for. Why should not Walla Walla follow the example of older states, and take the lead in this great unsettled north west. We possess twenty fold the advantages of the western plains, as we can raise larger crops, have a finer climate, better water privileges, and none of those pestiferous plagues, grasshoppers. We must look to California for a large portion of our new immigration, they are leaving by thousands, and when they arrive at Portland they know but little and can find out less from business men there respecting this fine country of ours at the same time they are beset with information respecting the valleys which is more immediately tributary to Portland. These people come to stay, and it would be to the interest of every man, woman and child in the Walla Walla country to have them head our way. We know that our citizens are emigrating in everything looking to the welfare of the country at large, and we suggest the advisability of having printed a second edition of the pamphlet descriptive of the vast and varied resources of this upper country, worked off, and scattered broadcast throughout the lower country, at the hotels, and especially on the steamers leaving San Francisco, and on the O. S. N. boats, and by this means the natural riches of our soil, and the abundant crops it produces, can only be made known. The prospects were never brighter or more encouraging than at present. It is estimated that we shall have a surplus of one million five hundred thousand bushels of grain for exportation the coming harvest, and orchards give evidence of a vast surplus of fruit, and every season increases the productivity of our fields and orchards. We have too long depended upon outsiders for receiving information about our country any way they could obtain it. What we have to do now—and it can be easily done—is to plant the country before them as it is, with no exaggeration, for the first principle in doing this is to be true. We have good properties, as represented by the good old proverb "God helps those who help themselves," and "If you wish a thing well done, do it yourself." To depend upon those in the lower country sending us the population our country needs is placing ourselves in the hands of an enemy, who will show us no mercy.

Amusing Very.—To those acquainted with political matters in the United States for the past few years, and who recollect the tone of the radical press as law after law was enacted by the party in power calculated to lengthen out the stay in office if not perpetuate the hold of such party on the reins of government, and now witness the howl set up all over the land by this self same radical press at what they flippantly call the revolutionary attitude of the present majority, the sudden change must appear intensely amusing. And be it understood at the same time that the said radical press out of the plenitude of their wisdom, and the goodness of their hearts, offer without fee or reward to the democracy the advice following, to wit: "You are endangering your prospects of success in 1880." This is also amusing. Now what are the facts. To an army appropriation bill the democratic majority in congress proposed to append a provision calculated to prevent military interference at the polls and thus secure a fair expression of the popular will.

To this very just desire—nay we may say demand—the republicans of the 45th congress refused to yield and the congress closed without the passage of the usual appropriation bills.

Here an extra session of congress was called. And now that it is fairly at work what is the issue? Please note, we do not ask what may be the issue as made out by the associated press dispatches flashed across the continent for partizan objects and to accomplish partizan purposes, but what is the real point in issue as deduced from the law as it stands and the amendment proposed. Sections 2002 and 2025 of the revised Statutes are proposed to be amended by leaving out after the words "to repel armed enemies of the United States," the following: "Or to keep the peace at the polls."

To retain those words on the statute book for any emergency which may arise in future political campaigns, and especially for the results that may be attained on election occasions, the present republican fire in congress is kindled. It will be noted by all that these provisions were incorporated into the statute as war measures or rather as a necessity growing out of the war to protect every elector in the exercise of his right to the ballot. This question necessarily arises in the mind of every fair man why should they be retained now that universal peace reigns throughout the land. Can any emergency possibly arise in any state of the Union for which local law will prove inadequate? This is not for a moment considered. But the ghost of the defunct confederacy seems to dance before the fevered vision of the leaders of the radical party, and disturb both their waking and sleeping hours. For fifteen years they have attempted to frighten the people with this cry, and now in their insane efforts are trying to infuse new life into a rotten carcass. The people fully understand that the war is over and peace prevails. The insane fanatic by radical leaders thundered from the capital will fall upon leaden ears. The issue is sharply drawn. Shall we have fair and free elections in these United States or beyond rule. Can any honest man have a doubt as to how the people of the country think and feel on this question. For one, we say it is a principle for which the present majority in congress ought to contend to the bitter end, and in so noble a cause they will be sustained by the good people throughout this broad land. Then let the radical press keep their advice to themselves until the democracy shall have need of the same. They may as well understand at once that the Florida, South Carolina and Louisiana frauds are not to be repeated and another presidential stolen. Thus a free fair and honest expression of the popular voice must and shall be had at the next presidential election. The present majority in congress are therefore contending for a principle that they, in the interest of a free people, cannot yield and ought not, though in attempting to establish the same they should bankrupt the nation. If the army was to be used at the polls by the democratic party or a democratic president, the present bitter contest in congress would not last a minute, if, indeed, it had occurred at all. But when it is understood that the army is under republican control we can plainly see the reason for holding on to the words named above with death like tenacity. In the end honesty will prevail and the nation saved from a repeated infamy. So note it be.

WISDOM SAYS IT.—The STATESMAN says that "it is very probable that the mischief (meaning the murder of the Chinese at Leon Creek) was done by that party of Indians who were dubbed Dan Crooks, Monday, Halley and others on the Payette last summer. You must have forgotten that that party were surprised, killed and buried weeks before the Chinese were molested. The Chinese murderers were the sheep-sheep who roam along Salmon river between the mouth of South Fork and the mouth of Lemhi.—Teller.

Our reasons for thinking that the Indians who killed the Chinamen are the same band that killed Crooks et al are founded on the fact that they roam around that country which is their natural stamping ground. As for our knowing they have been killed, we know nothing of the kind. We read an account of the killing of a lot of Indians by another lot of mythical Weiser warriors in the Teller, but we are ready to bet $500 that there has been no surprise, no murder and burying of those Indians as related by the Teller. We always thought the news too good to be true, and as we have letters from men in that very section who would have been the first to exult in relating such a circumstance had it ever transpired, we feel right in contradicting it. Another thing, the sheep-catchers are on the Lemhi agency and are now being fed. As no one saw the Indians except the escaped scoundrel Chinaman, what authority we ask, has the World correspondent to specify the exact tribe of Indians as he has done!

WHEN a Bodie girl receives attentions from a gentleman she inquires with absorbing interest how many men he has killed.—Exchange. An Elko girl under the same circumstances wants to know how many mustangs he has broken.—Times Review. A Boise City girl would inquire how many quarter sections of fine gold placer he owns on Snake river.—Boise Statesman. And a Portland girl wants to know whether he works on a morning newspaper. She wants her nights uninterfered with.—Portland Standard.

And Walla Walla girls discount the whole lot. When one of our girls meet a "masher" they first inquire if he drinks. If he responds in the affirmative they mix him a cocktail, but are never after anything more than a sister to him. Next!

MR. WILEY, in a letter to the Boise Statesman, says that the killing of 35 hostile Indians in the Weiser mountains last January by a party of Weiserites was wholly ignorant on the part of the Teller's informant. "Hold you so."—Idahoan. But we "told you so first" old man.

Our Washington Letter. WASHINGTON, April 2, 1879. The legislative appropriation bill was yesterday presented to the house. It has the amendment as to juries repealing the last oath provision, and has also the modified superior repeal section. There is little probability of debate on this bill at present, as all of this week, and perhaps much more, will be taken up in discussion of the army appropriation bill. On this last named bill, or rather, on the amendment forbidding the use of troops at the polls, there is now going on in the house a highly interesting debate. Yesterday Representative Belford, of (Col.) made a long and bitter speech. There were also speeches from Messrs. Chalmers and Muldrow, of Mississippi, Mr. Hurd, of Ohio, and Mr. Frye, of Maine, and some 70 members have notified the speaker of their wish to address the house on the subject. On Saturday Mr. Garfield used all his ingenuity and disingenuousness in attempting to show that a proposition to attach to an appropriation bill any general legislation was revolutionary. Of course he knew better, and he had many times with his party associates, done exactly what he now denounced, but of all our public men few have a greater reputation for sincerity than Mr. Garfield.

The senate yesterday did well in passing a bill appropriating a small sum of money for the purchase of a schooner or building a vessel for the purpose of disinfecting vessels coming from parts believed to be infected with yellow fever or other contagious diseases. The bill first drawn to direct a contract with Prof. Gage before mentioned in this correspondence, but was so modified as to open the lists to all. It has long been felt that congress should take some action on the subject of this fever, and the provision now provided for will save a great expense for "cure."

The reported public debt was increased nearly $1,000,000 in March. This was less than Secretary Sherman had expected. Of the amount $550,000 went to Captain Eads for jetty work at the mouth of the Mississippi. In about a month payment under the arrears of pension act will commence, and will be made, it is thought, at the rate of $1,500,000 per month. Even if there should be—as has been expected, but is not now likely—an increase for the year in custom receipts, it is not likely that there will be during the time any decrease in the public debt. People generally will be glad of the confirmation of Francis A. Walker as superintendent of the census. Mr. Walker is a republican, but does not allow his politics to interfere with the discharge of his public duties. He was among the first and most earnest civil service reformers, and to his credit it should be remembered that while in office here he did not permit his civil service ideas to be the mere jest that Mr. Hayes and his officers make of them, besides, he has shown himself to have peculiar qualifications for this particular office.

The now celebrated breach of promise case, of Oliver against Cameron, was concluded yesterday, with a verdict for the defendant. This means either that the jury did not believe that the defendant promised marriage, or that his character was so notoriously bad that the woman who believed him was not of sound mind, and was therefore incapable of being a party to a contract.

Meetings are being held here by colored men for the furtherance of Senator Windom's plan of negro colonization in the northwest. Last evening the senator was made president of an organization formed here for that purpose. If one may judge from what intelligence colored men here say, Senator Windom is rapidly stealing away General Grant's southern strength as a presidential candidate. The southern republicans are not very formidable at elections, but they have influence in nominating conventions, and General Grant "don't you forget it."

Editorial Correspondence.

WALLA WALLA, April 12, 1879. After a slight circus performance, we managed to get our horses in the mood to travel, and left Walla Walla at a 2-45 p.m. The wind was a too bad all day for good humor, and none of our crowd has a particle of snarling left. We overtook Sheriff Schenely at the foot of a small mountain, to the summit of which he and George Goodwin were packing the contents of the overland wagon. By the way, they left their Indian prisoner to guard them. Charley Schenely and myself assisted by looking on intently used with audible comments on the hard work it must have been. After everything was straightened out, and we (wagon and all) made the top of the hill, we charged our positions George riding my horse and us taking his place in the wagon for the purpose of resting more bones in our anatomy than we ever had an idea could exist; we feel them everywhere and as we write the cry is "Still they come." The bridge over the Walla Walla river is partially washed away, and a very risky temporary arrangement, at an angle of 45 deg. is the approach and egress of the traveler. We considered it good policy to lead the horses over first and then I assisted the Sheriff in taking the wagon over. There were probably a dozen dead Cayuses around that particular spot for the most abominable smell we ever experienced greeted our olfactory while at work. Even our prisoner whom we left in charge of the horses held his nose with one hand and the horses with the other; by this way this Indian chews tobacco. We arrived here ahead of the train after all, but it had to speak, and we only got ten hours the start of it, this in a distance of 32 miles is worthy of record. The great want of this great city of the future is a steam ferry. Perkins of the Roseport Hotel, and I have been figuring up on it, and find quite a fortune going begging. The present arrangement is miserable for the amount of work that would be done here with better ferry facilities. There are 2300 head of cattle to be crossed next week, and a steamboat was sent to employ. It will cost 25 cents per head to bring them over, which is more than half enough to put our steam ferry into operation, but it is hardly likely we shall undertake it while there are so many poor men around. There are several men here who have been prospecting up above for farms. They say they never saw such a wonderfully fertile country. Some are returning to California for their families and are in a hurry to get there in order to vote against the new constitution. Strange indeed, when we take into consideration that they belong to the class of small farmers it was intended to especially benefit.

EXPRESS CHARGES REDUCED.—Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express Company has issued a new tariff of charges, by which their carrying rates on both money and packages are largely reduced, in most instances fully one-half. Small parcels can now be sent to any office in California from here for 25 cents, or to any place in the upper country for the same price. It will pay every body to send their parcels by express now, instead of by mail, as being just as cheap and more safe from accident or damage.

Dis-solution Notice. THE CO-PARTNERSHIP OF BLALOCK & CROPP is this day dissolved by mutual consent. Blalock & Cropp from practice except as consulting physician. Dr. Cropp assuming the entire practice. All persons indebted to the firm of Blalock & Cropp will call at once and make settlement by cash or note. BLALOCK & CROPP. 15-1m. Administrator's Sale. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That in pursuance of an order of sale made by the Probate Court of Walla Walla county, in and for the State of Washington, the 25th day of March, 1879, in the matter of the Estate of FRANCIS B. ENOADES, deceased, the undersigned, Administrator of said Estate, will sell at Public Auction, to the highest bidder for cash, and subject to contribution by said Probate Court, on MONDAY, the 21st day of April, 1879, at the hour of one o'clock, P. M., of that day, on the premises, situate, situate, situate and also all the right, title, interest and estate, which said estate has by operation of law or otherwise acquired, other than in addition to that of said deceased at the time of his death, in and to the following real estate, situated, lying and being in the County of Walla Walla, Territory of Washington, and described as follows, to-wit: The West half of the West half of the Southwest quarter of Section 31, in Township 19, North of Range 35, East, containing 40 acres, whereon is a dwelling house and barn. Also, the Southeast quarter of Section 35, Township 19, North of Range 35, East. About all of said real estate is under fence, about 40 acres thereof under cultivation and about 30 acres are timbered land.

JAMES E. BERRYMAN, Administrator. Dated March 27th, 1879. 13-3w

Administrator's Sale. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That by virtue of an order of sale made by the Probate Court of Walla Walla county, W. T., in the matter of the estate of FRANCIS B. ENOADES, deceased, I will, on MONDAY, April 15th, 1879, at the hour of 2 o'clock, P. M., sell, for cash, at Public Auction, on the premises of said deceased, situated on the Tondet River, in said county, 2 plows, 1 Set of Old Harness, 1 Grind Stone and about 80 cords of Wood. JAMES E. BERRYMAN, Administrator. Walla Walla, April 31, 1879. 14-3w

Wy-eime-cott Captured. The following letter addressed to the editor of this paper was received during his absence, and as it contains some important information it is laid before our readers: COLVILLE, W. T., April 7th, 1879. The deputy sheriff, William Grainger, and one Mr. Johnson from Okanagan, have just arrived, having in charge Wy-eime-cott. This Indian was the principal instigator in the Perkins murder. He looks every inch what he is, a downright scoundrel. Mr. Thorp, from Yakima, made the arrest of two other Indians who were with Wy-eime-cott. They have been taken below. Tea-as-kitt, chief of the Okanagan, assisted the sheriff in making the arrest of Wy-eime-cott. It was made at night. It appears that a band of seven were camped about fifteen miles from Smith's place. A family quarrel arose among them, and while this state of feeling existed one of the parties told the locality and character of the camp. It was the custom of Wy-eime-cott to lay out in the mountains during the day and come down to the camp at night. This fellow completed the band of seven engaged in the Perkins murder and are all now in the hands of the civil authorities. Wy-eime-cott claims to be a Unatilla subject. He made several attempts to escape after his capture, but Mr. Grainger's vigilance was too great for him. Mrs. Perkins was the sister to Mrs. Grainger, hence there is some slight satisfaction to Mr. Grainger in making the arrest of this vagabond. "Oh for one the rose fall." (Chick another for Okanagan. Everything is reported quiet on the Okanagan and Similkameen So-o-p-kill has been very quiet as well as somewhat frightened since Col. Parrell's trip across the mountains and no trouble in that quarter need be apprehended. COLVILLE.

Viewing the situation in Tulare county in the most favorable light it will admit of the outlook must be admitted to be unpromising. Since the 14th of February last, we have had but 1 of an inch of rain, not enough to have any perceptible effect upon growing crops, which are already beginning to feel and succumb to the destroying drought. The hopes, until recently entertained, of producing fair crops in this region is we think delusive. What the result of another dry season will be to a people already poor, we scarcely have the heart to surmise; but that it will affect our country very seriously is beyond doubt. If the present blazing year had been preceded by two or three years of good crops its effects would not have been so disastrous, if felt at all; but coming as it does upon a people engaged in opening up a new country, and involved in almost countless lawsuits for the protection of their homes, with only one crop year intervening between it and a past dry season it must fall with a crushing weight upon our country.

The above from the Harbored Public Good tells its own story, and a fearful one it is. All the great immigration respecting California has been brought there by glowing, deceitful pamphlets crying up the "natural resources." With a hundred times the advantages possessed by California we have not the population in proportion. While the soil is possessed of all the chemical properties that are necessary to fertility, the want of rain two seasons out of three is ruinous to the unfortunate settler. In the meantime, no matter how dry the seasons are the taxes must be paid, and the visits of the assessors is one of the few things in California that can be depended upon for reliability. Here our crops never fail, and land can be had even now at government prices.

STREETS.—Schwabacher Bros have a immense amount of new spring and summer goods now on route from San Francisco.

PARISH.—Baptist services will be held next Sunday, April 20, in the school house on Market No. 1, at 11 A. M., and 7:30 P. M.

WEATHER.—The weather for the past two weeks has been a very busy harvest and overhanging granaries.

JUST THE PLACE TO GO.—Wheeler as usual is in the front with a new "cat." His skillful and harness will repay the closest inspection.

HOME PRODUCE.—Some of the finest blankets we have seen for a long time are to be found at Dancyour Bros. They are manufactured from combing wool by the Dayton women mills.

NEW TRUCK.—The new truck that is seen on our streets, is driven by Joe Sherr, Jr. He also hauls for himself, and as cheap as any one, being a steady, accommodating, strong man, he deserves encouragement.

NEW STEAMBOAT.—The new steamboat that was begun at Celilo some months ago, was launched last Wednesday, and was named the D. S. Barber. She resembles the other boats, and will carry as much freight as any boat west.

LETTERS.—We learn from a telegram to George E. Thomas that the editor of the Idaho Eagle, Thomas B. Merry, Esq., will deliver a lecture next Tuesday evening at the City Hall. Subject "Broderick's Life." From the known ability of Mr. Merry a literary treat may be expected by our people. Those that fail to attend will be a treat.

THE MERRY SPRINGS.—There is no prettier country than the Walla Walla valley on the Pacific slope; the hills and valleys are now full in the deepest verdure; flowers are all blossoming in the gardens and the orchards full like so many huge bonnets, they please the sight with their beauty and the sweet smell by their fragrance. Our city is now a perfect "Garden of Eden."

OFFICIAL REPORT.—The following officers were elected at the last regular meeting of Washington Engine Company, No. 1, for the ensuing year: Charles F. Craft, Chief Engineer; W. H. Bandler, Foreman; W. Kohlman, 1st Assistant; C. Schumaker, 2nd Assistant; Oscar Holt, Recording Secretary; W. P. Horton, Financial Secretary; J. N. Hall, President; W. G. Langford, Vice President; C. A. Adams, Treasurer.

PERMITS LIST.—In this week's issue of the STATESMAN will be found a supplement, containing the permits list of our county for work to be held from September 16th, to the 20th, together with a number of advertisements from our most reliable business men. The object in publishing the supplement, is to enable every man interested in the welfare of our county, to carry it in his pocket without depriving the rest of the county of the regular issue of the STATESMAN.

PRISONERS.—This latest prisoner, in charge of Sheriff Schindler and his deputy, A. W. Meade, arrived in town from Colville on Monday last. The vessel will be taken to Yakima City and have a preliminary examination before being allowed to enter into the city with the other prisoners who are committed with him. He persists in his charges against Chief Meade and is louder than ever in his denunciations respecting his imprisonment. The warden thinks there is a prospect of a successful trial, but this is a matter for the Indian rangers along the C. & N. P. are very sunny and authoritative to the warden and travelers.

A FIGHT.—The fighting editor of the Statesman had a few words with a farmer from the outside, and from words came to blows. While we exult in the fact that the editor "got away" with his man and kept up the reputation of his glorious profession, we sorrow at the idea that fighting is necessary to uphold dignity. "A soft answer turneth away wrath," and editors ought to be best to carry out the principles inculcated in that proverb. If there is anything we dislike it is fighting, and would rather apologize any time than do such things when we are in the wrong. We believe all other editors have the same feeling. The only difficulty is to make them believe they ever did any wrong.

SUNDAY SERVICES.—The services at the different churches last Sunday were particularly good. We visited the Episcopal church, and were much pleased with the beauty and extreme elegance of the floral decorations. The singing was perfection and very interesting. This is due to a great extent to the exertions of the pastor, Rev. J. D. McConkey. The choir was supplied with the exquisite singing of Mrs. Col. Perry and Mrs. Manney. Precious to the service which was particularly good, the youngest child of Captain and Mrs. Harris was baptized. The church was crowded to its utmost capacity, and we wonder with its great attractions it is not filled every Sunday.

SHOOTING.—On Sunday last Fred Lance, a sporting character, hired a horse from Tom Torrey's livery stable, and rode to Dayton. Before leaving he was noticed to be in a state of great excitement, the perspiration rolled down his face, and he literally trembled with suppressed feeling. It was thought at the time he was bound to kill either himself or some one else before he could recover from his excitement. On Monday morning Mr. Torrey's most anticipations were released, for he received a dispatch from Jones stating that the man had killed himself on his arrival at Dayton the same night of his leaving Walla Walla. From what we can gather the small trouble of "a woman in the case," accounts for it.

GOING TO YAKIMA.—We have for some time past projected a short trip to some interesting portion of our territory—the Yakima country—we have visited and know nearly every other section of Washington Territory but this. We have but a little time to spare, but every hour that little time will be devoted in gathering information that will rebound to the interests of the whole country. We believe that men holding the post on of the month piece of the people, as editors most decidedly do, ought to be well informed respecting their constituents, and the resources of the country they inhabit. We shall write up in these columns everything of interest to the people both at home and abroad, and the facilities for immigrants will receive special attention. We should make an apology to our numerous readers for our short absence, but it is not that the Hon. N. T. Eaton has kindly offered to conduct the paper until we return. By the next issue we shall be again at our post of duty.

NEW BUILDING.—The Rev. J. D. McConkey, key, the Episcopal clergyman, we understand intends shortly to commence the erection of a brick building somewhere on Roberts addition to this city. The object and purpose of the building as we learn is to open therein an advanced school for boys. This we are glad to hear, and in fact any effort or project having for its object the advancement of the cause of education in the community. From a conversation with the Reverend gentleman had subsequently to writing the above, we learn that the foundation has already been laid, and that carpenters are engaged for the rapid construction of the building. It is expected to have the same completed at an early day. The course of study proposed is to be so thorough, that when completed young gentlemen can enter at once upon their college course.

MADE IT RIGHT.—This is how it happened. We were in search of locals and we stepped into Charles Davis', we mean "Happy Charley," and called for a green seal. Charley has the best in town. Shelling out a dollar of late coinage to pay for the same while we were admiring the improvement going on in the back room—that of laying down a new floor without removing two that were already there, on turning around to receive our change we were astonished to find that a quarter was all that was offered us. While we do not doubt that two green seals were well worth six bits, we were not inclined to aid in the speculation. Charley knowing the terms of the law made the correction, and we walked off with two green seals, costing one bit a piece. You need not fear to try him out.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.—Before J. M. Hunt, J. P. at Dayton, an examination was had in a case where a man was charged with cruelty to animal. The animal—a horse—belonged to Small Brothers of this city. The accused was bound over to await the action of the grand jury of Columbia county. The details are unfit for these columns. We do not wish to say anything that would in the least interfere with a fair trial, but can conscientiously say that if the accused in this case is guilty and possessed a sound mind at the time, the penalty of the law as now stands is inadequate to so flagrant an outrage.

DEATH OF JAMES GRAHAM.—From the Boise Statesman we take the following: Mr. C. W. Moore received a dispatch from Silver, saying that James Graham died in San Francisco. It was probably telegraphed to Winnemucca and came from there by letter, as the line is down. Mr. Graham was an old citizen of Idaho and a prominent merchant of Silver City, but his health has been poor nearly all winter though able to be around and to attend to business, his demise is very unexpected.

COURT PROCEEDINGS.—Criminal, City of Walla Walla vs. H. P. Hatlett, drunk; fine $5 00 and costs. City of Walla Walla vs. C. Emis, fast driving over Main street bridge; fine $5 00 and costs. City of Walla Walla vs. C. H. Kilbourne, assault and battery; fine $15 00 and costs. Territory vs. O. P. Howard, assault and battery; dismissed.

BUSINESS LOCALS. FINE DRESSERS. No matter how great the tempter is blowing out of doors, you will always find in every man in Tennesse's saloon, to say nothing of the magnificent drinks you can always get.

JUST THE PLACE. If you happen to feel dry while passing down the street, just step in at Williams's saloon; he can give you any thing you call for.

LATEST STYLES. New goods and the latest styles in ladies' and misses' hats and bonnets, also fashionable fashions and novelties, and fancy notions to be found at Mrs. Leonard's.

C. O. S. OFFICE. To be sure, and don't you forget it, you can get 3 pounds of Golden C. sugar or 3 pounds of Costa Rica coffee for one dollar at the C. O. S. store next door to Chris Emis' butcher shop.

CONTRACTS FOR. House painting, mowing and building. Any contractor who is entrusted to me will be done with neatness and dispatch. Apply to ALEX M. YOUNG, Residence on Cherry Street, between 2d and 3d.

PHOTOGRAPHS. Persons who contemplate purchasing Photos or Negatives, will do well to call and see Stanley Hess, at the furniture store above the bridge, as they have a good stock of instruments, and sell at reasonable prices. They are agents for the Eney Organ at 111 Market Street.

TO THE WORKING CLASS. We give the poor a chance as well as the rich. Poor people can wear good fitting, and well made pantaloons as well as the rich, simply because they can go to Meade & Bach's and get a pair of the pants for $7 69 and a pair suit for $30 49. Call and examine our fine stock, and be convinced. 144.

LIST OF LETTERS. Remaining in the Post Office, at Walla Walla, W. T., Saturday, April 18th, 1879: Bain, Alexander; Blanchard, H. H.; Clark, Y. M.; Cardwell, A. B.; Cressy, Martin; Eaton, James M.; Eaton, Miss Katie; Farrell, Thos. J.; Gunning, David; Gunnison, Mrs. J. W.; Grow, John E. Persons calling for the letters will please say "Advertised." Wm. VAWTER, P. M.

PERSONAL. J. H. Lister of Pomeroy gave this office a call.

Mrs. Wm. Phillips and family are expected home next Sunday.

Our friend Black, editor and proprietor of the Weston Leader, dropped in on us during the week.

Prof. Louis Bracht, leader of 1st cavalry band, has received his discharge from the army.

Mr. C. D. Warner, U. S. Indian agent to replace Monteith, arrived in town en route for Lapwai on Wednesday. He was accompanied by Mr. B. D. Crocker. We wish them a pleasant time in their new place.

J. E. Eastham, editor of the Columbia Chronicle, lighted up our sanctum with his smiling countenance on Wednesday last. In the absence of the editor the ad interim and the foreman did their best to entertain the gentleman. Mr. Eastham is a young man of fair ability and pleasing address. Call again.

John A. Simms, Indian agent at Fort Colville, has been in town for some days. Mr. Simms is an old settler in eastern Washington Territory. His management of the Indians under his control has elicited the commendation of all. Mr. Simms is a gentleman of culture and one of the right kind for the position he occupies. The government does well to retain all such.

SCIENCE MEETING.—The association held their regular meeting on the 3rd, and elected the following officers: John E. Bingham, President; Rev. E. J. Galvin, Vice President; H. E. Holmes, Librarian and Treasurer; William G. Callen, Secretary.

[The types of this office were not forgotten. The happy couple can rest assured the best wishes of this office go with them on the journey they have commenced, and sincerely hope that happiness and sunshine may follow them to the close.]

PARRIS-COX.—Also in this city on the 15, 1879, by the Rev. H. W. Egan, Mr. Taylor Parris, to Miss Huldah A. Cox.

LISTER-GORDON.—At the residence of the bride's parents, on the 17th, 1879, by the Rev. T. M. Boyd, Mr. Joseph B. Lister, of Portland, Oregon, to Miss Sallie V. Gordon, step daughter of Andrew McCallie.

ABLE MANNER.—From the Lafayette (Ind.) Sunday Leader, we clip the following article. The De Witt Wallace Esq., a student in a brother of our enterprising fellow townsman, Wallace, of the firm of J. H. Day & Co. The able manner in which De Witt Wallace Esq., acquitted himself in his speech before the jury in Warren county, in the celebrated Downs vs. Esauinger case, was the theme, not only in legal circles, but among our leading professional business men. By those who heard it, his speech is pronounced as grand an effort as was ever made before any jury in the state of Indiana. Our informant, a gentleman highly competent to criticize, whose political proclivities compel an occasional antagonism with Mr. Wallace, intimated to the entire two hours delivery, and magnanimously forgetting past contentions, unhesitatingly pronounced it the grandest argument he ever heard. The case is a peculiar one, and so much discussed as to be familiar to our newspaper readers. In the original suit the plaintiff claimed $10,000, which was awarded her by a Tippecanoe county jury. By some technicality a new trial was granted. This time the plaintiff instituted $60,000, but the jury failing to agree, necessitated a third trial. A change of venue being asked by the defendant, the case was transferred to the court of Warren county, where the examination has been progressing some days. The jury after retiring but three hours returned a verdict of $90,000 for the plaintiff, being the largest award ever made by any jury in this agricultural district. The attorney for the plaintiff were Messrs. Meade, Miller, Wallace and Rice. Those for the defendant were Messrs. LaRue and Everett, Robert and Daniel Voorhees. As in all cases, the verdict is much discussed, by some approval of, and by others regarded as much too large.

WAR CLAIMS.—A great deal is being said by the press upon the subject of southern claims. As we recollect it, this question has been a more than hinted at in many of the states north pending congressional elections. No one so far to have been troubled about the matter. Now however, that both houses in congress have passed into the control of the democracy we are treated daily to a dish of fear, served in true partisan style. All of a sudden the old debt of the defunct confederacy, and all claims of southerners growing out of the same is to be assumed by the United States, and fully paid. This is a foregone conclusion, is by our radical friends kept ringing in the ears of the people. When we think of the laws as they stand, the binding effect of obligations taken, the solemn pledges made, we have no fear whatever on the subject. We know our men, and we know our party. The proofs which are submitted as the basis for such an apprehension are without any force whatever. Let us look at a few of them. It is claimed that the southern states have more claimants on the committees as now constituted than the north. Of course we understand that the radicals must try to keep up this sectional strife, or their stock in trade is gone forever. But is it a fact? Thirty five committees, as we count them, have been constituted, of these representatives from the south are placed as chairmen on thirteen; the other twenty-two are from the north. Besides this the committee before which these claims if ever presented would have to pass the committee on war claims has for its chairman Bragg, of Wisconsin, who is known to be in open hostility to these claims; let then assume whatever shape they may, let no one lose any sleep on this subject, it is all for political effect. To all intelligent people it must be patent that no such unjust legislation will disgrace the country while controlled by the only party that can successfully administer a republican form of government.

TROTTING STALLIONS

SAN FRANCISCO PATCHEN! AND ROBERT E. LEE!

THE HORSEMEN OF WALLA WALLA valley now have the opportunity to breed from two of the finest Stallions on the Pacific coast. These horses were brought from California last year, and are widely known among leading horsemen as animals of superior qualities in every particular.

SAN FRANCISCO PATCHEN is a beautiful dark bay; stands sixteen hands high, and for bone and muscle we doubt whether he can be excelled by any horse in America. He was sired by Geo. M. Patchen Jr.; he by the celebrated trotting stallion Geo. M. Patchen; dam by Toy Bellionier, a well known mare for speed and docility; g. d. by Messenger Eclipse; he by Messenger; g. g. dam by Old Eclipse. This horse comes of the best stock in the world, and is a worthy representative of his ancestry. His owner may be justly proud of so noble an animal. San Francisco Patchen is ten years old, and is therefore just in his prime.

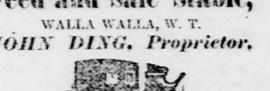

GEN. R. E. LEE is a chestnut sorrel; four years old; stands fifteen hands two inches; and is a marvel of horse flesh. For style and action he cannot be excelled by any colt of his age. The owner refused twenty-five hundred dollars for this colt when he was in his three-year form. Gen. Lee was sired by San Francisco Patchen; dam by the thoroughbred mare Fietta; she by Belmont; dam by Lady Charners; she by Leviathan and Eclipse. No mare ranks higher in this country than Lady Charners. The need of thoroughbred stock has been long felt in Walla Walla, and it is fortunate that we have so noble an animal. San Francisco Patchen and Gen. R. E. Lee are therefore just in their prime. These horses are permanently located at the Walla Walla Driving Park, where they will both make the season. They can be seen every Saturday at Mr. Tom Torrey's livery stable, where horsemen are invited to call. Those who are breeding horses will do well to examine these horses and their colts. Patchen has proved himself a sure foal getter in this place. Some of his colts can be seen next month. Will commence their season on April 1st.

As it has been reported by enemies of these horses that they are going to leave Walla Walla at the close of the season, the owner wishes to contradict that statement, as it is his intention to make this the permanent home of Patchen and Lee. For further particulars, apply to W. G. REYNOLDS, Agent and Groom. 14-1f

M., to answer the complaint of Plaintiff, filed in Walla Walla County within twenty days after the service of this summons, exclusive of the day of service, if served in said County. If not served in said County but in said District, in thirty days. If served in any other Judicial District in the Territory, in forty days. If served by publication, within sixty days after the date of this summons, or the said Plaintiff will take judgment against you by default, according to the prayer of the complaint.
Said action is brought to obtain a divorce from the bonds of matrimony existing between Plaintiff and Defendant, on the grounds of abandonment of Plaintiff by Defendant for over one year.
Witness the Hon. S. C. WINGARD, Judge of the District Court of the First Judicial District of Washington Territory, and the Seal of said Court affixed, this 20th day of April, A. D. 1879.

MAGIC PUMPS!
OVER FOUR HUNDRED OF THE
Magic Pumps have stood the winter of 1878 and 1879, and twenty five of these have been in wells from twelve to sixteen months, and ninety nine out of each hundred is in good working order now, while 75 per cent. of all other Pumps have frozen up during the winter and many of them worthless and of no account.
WALLA WALLA, March 1st, 1879.
We, the undersigned, have used the Magic Pump over one year, and believe them to be superior to any pumps we have ever seen or used and are satisfied that the water is made better in any well where the Magic Pump is used.
