Recognition.

There comes a wanderer, staff in hand,

Homeward returning from distant land;

His beard is tangled, his face is brown;

Will they know him again in his native town?

Enraptured, he hears the city gate,

Where the toller of yore is standing in wait.

'Twas a youthful comrade, true and fast;

Once many a wine-cup between them passed.

Yet strange—the toll-gatherer knew him not!

Do beard and sunshine his features blot?

He shakes the dust from his trodden boot;

She knows not the voice of her once beloved.

Behold—his true love stands at the door!

'Thou blooming fair one, we come once more!

But the maid, unconscious, remains unmoved!

She knows not the voice of her once beloved.

He bends his steps toward his childhood's home;

To his cheeks so brown the tear-drops come.

Near the cot his mother is wending her way;

'God bless thee, beloved!' 'I'll be can say.

The mother she turns and shouts with joy;

In her arms she is clasping her true boy.

Though the sun may swart, and the beard may grow,

The mother, the mother her son doth know.

BISMARCK AND POLAND.—Count de Bismarck, in repudiating in the Parliament of Northern Germany the pretensions of the Polish deputies, expressed himself as follows: "The re-establishment of the Polish Republic on the limits of 1772 is only a fantastical dream of the nobility of that country. The thing is impossible, for there are not Poles enough in the world to accomplish it. Amongst the twenty-four millions of inhabitants of that territory, there are only seven and one-half of Poles, and of that number one million is dispersed in various countries. They, therefore, demand that six millions and a half of their countrymen should rule over eighteen millions of inhabitants, non-Polish. But the state of affairs in Galicia shows the state of feeling entertained by the latter towards the Polish domination. Nor is it even certain that the six and a half millions desire the supremacy in question. I have no desire to extol the rule of Russia, but the people of the country districts in Poland have still more confidence in the Russians than in their own nobility. Renounce, therefore, gentlemen deputies of Poland, the idea of keeping Europe in commotion, for you are deceiving yourselves as to your own strength. Unite with us and with the majority of your fellow-countrymen, the peasants, to enjoy the benefits of civilization, to which the confederation of the North is about to give fresh securities. But to the Reichstag I hold up the example of the Poles as a warning, showing the condition to which a powerful empire may be reduced, when directed by a warlike nobility, preferring liberty to security. The whole energy of that nobility is at this day insufficient to reestablish that empire. As the poet says: 'What thou hast at one moment renounced, eternity will not bring thee back.'

ODD FELLOWSHIP.—Next to the Masonic institution there has probably never existed a secret society which has been productive of so much good or done so many charitable deeds as Odd Fellowship. Its members may be found in almost every community and are almost universally men of character and standing, thus giving a respectability to the Order without which it would fall to the ground. The Order in this country received its first charter from the Manchester Union of England, in the year 1819. Efforts had been made at an earlier date, but from some cause or other, proved abortive until the time above mentioned, when Thomas Wildey, of Baltimore, inserted a call in the papers for a meeting of all the Odd Fellows resident in the Order, and after many trials and great labor, he succeeded in organizing Washington Lodge, No. 1, which afterwards obtained a charter from the Duke of York's Lodge, Preston, Manchester Union, by which it was constituted the Grand Lodge of Maryland and of the United States. From that time Odd Fellowship advanced, spread itself over every State in the Union, and, at the last report made to the Grand Lodge of the United States it appears that the jurisdiction of that body extends over Grand Lodges in every State and Territory of the Union, in Canada, in the Lower Provinces of British North America, and even over Lodges in the Sandwich Islands and Australia, containing near 3,000 Subordinate Lodges, numbering of active and efficient members near 200,000, and also 587 Encampments, with 27,593 members, and showing an amount of relief expended to brothers widows and orphans of over $600,000, and an annual revenue of over $1,800,000.

RAISING COLTS.—Never expect to have a good horse if you cram your colt; it can not be done. The old adage in Vermont, "A ragged colt makes the best horse," means everything. Your colt, then, should run with its dam until it has reached that condition of the stomach which will enable it to digest solid food. Then take your colt and let it have abundance of free cold air to begin with, and in addition to that, avoid the feeding of grain until it is three years old, as you would avoid feeding brandy and water to your children when they are little. It is astonishing how many nice colts are ruined by the excessive use of stimulating grain food in their infancy, so to speak. Let your colt mature slowly, its bone grow properly, its digestive functions be properly organized, its flesh in the proper condition—never fat, horse fat is the poorest fat in the world—keep it upon the best hay in winter, and good, sweet pasture in the summer, and you will make the best possible horse of that colt.—Dr. Loring, in Massachusetts Agriculturalist.

General Hancock's Indian Expedition.

BURNING OF A CHEYENNE VILLAGE.

A correspondent of the Missouri Democrat, writes from Fort Larned, Kansas, April 28, giving account of the destruction of a camp or village of the Cheyennes at that point by Gen. Hancock. It had been mostly deserted by the Indians, on the approach of our forces. The situation was a handsome one, in a grove of elms, on the Pawnee. The letter says: "This morning Gen. Hancock ordered the Cheyenne and Sioux lodges to be burnt. He was compelled to adopt this course, because, after the delivery of his speech to the fifteen chiefs, they went and burned three stations on the Smoky Hill route, and scalped, disembowelled and burnt three men employed at Fossil Creek Station; and ran off several miles and horses on that route, and gave a good account generally to traders. According to Gustar's official report to Gen. Hancock, 242 station hands are leaving for 'America,' and the men of the ranches are barricading their places and preparing for a desperate resistance. At a council of war held it was deemed advisable to retaliate immediately by burning the Indian village. The following is a true list of the goods burnt this morning: 251 lodges, 942 bed robes, 436 horse saddles, 435 travesties, 287 bed mats, 191 axes, 190 kettles, 77 frying pans, 350 tin cups, 30 whetstones, 212 large sacks of paint, 98 water kegs, 7 ovens, 41 grubbing hoes, 28 coffee mills, 144 lariol ropes, 129 chairs, 303 paraffins, 15 curry combs, 67 coffee pots, 46 tin kettles, 112 tin spoons, 27 crow-bars, 73 brass kettles, 17 hammers, 8 stew pans, 15 drawing knives, 26 spades, 4 scythes, 8 files, 19 bridles, 8 pitchforks, 10 tea kettles, 90 spoons, 15 knives, 10 pickaxes, 1 sword, 1 bayonet, 1 U. S. Mail bag, 74 stone mallets, 1 lance, 33 wooden spoons, 251 door mats, 48 raw hide ropes, 22 axes of every kind, six different stacks of effects taken from the village, everything being judiciously thrown in and set fire to them all at the same moment. The dry poles of the wigwags caught fire like tinder, and as the fire spread out the sight approached sublimity. The forked flames leaped into the air, eddying and whirling about, making the whole sky black with smoke, a terrible warning to the surrounding bands, and fresh from the council, committed the diabolical action on the Smoky Hill route. Now the fire roared and surged onward with the wind, as if eager to swallow all at once the vast piles. Again would it retreat, to shoot upward into the air, devouring everything that it had but previously scorched, and then it would surge onward, melting into seething masses of blackish fatty substances with the white heat. Flakes of fire were borne on the breeze to different parts of the prairie, setting the prairie grass on fire. With lightning speed the fire rolled on in crimson waves, consuming everything, while the black smoke of every six different stacks of effects taken from the village, rose upward, forming a cloudy marky pall overhead. Every good thing, and every dead thing that reared its head above the earth was consumed, while the buffalo, the antelope and the wolf fled in wild dismay from the swift coming destructive agent. All around the huge bonfires made out of the Indian village, the gray smoke turned into a surging lake of fire, and the Indian paradise was transformed into a roaring 'hell.' The Indians have deceived Gen. Hancock, and, as the means of effecting a result that will cancel their turpitude, he was compelled to burn their villages and order Gustar, with his full force of cavalry, to march and surround the village of Larned for the chiefs to come to the council. They came in groups of twos and threes, five days after the day set for it, to the number of fifteen, thus involving him in endless embarrassment. Gustar is still in hot pursuit on their trails."

CHEMICAL TOYS.—Dr. Edward Divers, lecturer on natural philosophy, at Ocharing Cross Hospital, in London, writes to the London Times a caution against the dangers of chemical toys. Some of the toys named are sold here, and the warning will apply: "Phosphorus Serpents," composed of sulpho-cyanide of mercury, are highly poisonous, and during combustion evolve most noxious vapors. "Larnes du Diable," formed of metallic sodium, burn with great violence if they are either heated or moistened with water—in this respect exceeding phosphorus in danger—and scatter caustic alkali about the place when they are used as directed. "Sunshine" in "Winter Evenings" are apt, in the hands of children, to cause burns through the rapidity of their combustion and the molten and white-hot particles they cast off. "Sensation Cigarettes," charged with gun-cotton, project, when fired, very noxious vapors into the mouth; "Will-o'-the-Wisp paper," "Parlor Lightning," "Fire-flies," "Aerial Glow-worms," etc., all formed of pyroxilin, or paper rendered explosive by the action of concentrated nitric and sulphuric acids, are highly inflammable and dangerous. I have myself known bad injuries caused by experimenting with sodium and water, and also with flowers of sulphur and chlorate of potassium, the rubbing together of which in small quantities is so often commended in books on "Parlor Magic," etc., as an amusing experiment quite free from danger."

A "CELLED" WITNESS.—The Baton Rouge (La.) Advocate gives the following extract from the testimony of a witness examined about the participation of one Sam Bowman in a late robbery. When asked if he knew Sam Bowman, he said: "Oh, yes; I bought ice cream from him often."

"What is his name?"

"That is none of my business; got something else to do 'sides follerin' people 'bout to find out dar names."

"How do you know that he is the same man?"

"Don't I tell you, boss, Ise bought ice cream from him lots of time? Ob course he's de man. Don't reck'lec' his painted wagon and his sasers, and de way he lollered ice cream? Ob course he's de same man."

"What was you doing when the robbers came to Mrs. Clark's?"

"Nuffin, I was asleep."

"How did you know they were on the place?"

"Ain't I got ears?"

"How long did you stand out in the yard listening?"

"Till my feet got cold."

DISTRICT ATTORNEY.—F. P. Dugan, democratic candidate for Prosecuting Attorney, having received a majority of all the votes cast in the First Judicial District, will discharge the duties of the office for the next two years.

QUICK TIME.—Frank P. Dugan and Captain Shulock, arrived here Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock, having made the trip through from Colville with one span of horses, a distance of two hundred and twenty miles, in less than three days. They left Colville at 12 o'clock on Monday last.

HOUSE STOLEN.—On Sunday night last, the stable of J. A. Perkins, living on the Upper Touchet, was entered, and a valuable horse stolen therefrom. The thief is believed to have been a man who had been in Mr. Perkins' employ. Pursuit was made, and at last account there was a fair prospect of capturing the thief.

FROM COLVILLE.—Judge Wyche and party returned on yesterday from holding court at Colville, and we learn from the Judge that the amount of business in court was larger than any previous term. Some fourteen of the soldiers were indicted for killing Judge Stewart, and James Riley, the man who did the shooting, was put on his trial, convicted of murder in the second degree, and sentenced to twenty years imprisonment in the penitentiary. Owing to the danger of his release by the soldiers there, he was ordered to the Pierce county jail for imprisonment. Owing to the impracticability of getting a jury, and trying the other parties to the killing, a nolle prosequi was entered against them. The Judge informs us that, from conversations with different persons who had been to "43" and the French creek mines, he was of the opinion that the crops in the mines were doing better this season than last. The crops are represented as very promising in the valley. Captain White has made four trips with his boat to the mines, and the party who went up to Colville were invited to take a trip on the Captain's boat, but for want of time had to decline. All who went up, with whom we have conversed, represent Colville valley as the most inviting spot for emigrants on the upper coast. The report of the Grand Jury of Stevens county has been handed us for publication and will appear in our next issue.
