HOW ABOUT YAKIMA?

Listen to the Story as it is Told by Careful Observers from Abroad.

(San Francisco Examiner.) The new State Capital will probably be at North Yakima.

(Spokane Falls Review.) The best and most extensive agricultural region in the Yakima Land District and in the Territory, lies about the City of North Yakima and is known as the Yakima Valley.

(Seattle Post-Intelligencer.) To-day, where four years ago were uncultivated prairies, the home of great herds of unrestrained wild cattle and vicious bands of coyote ponies who knew no halter, now stands the City of North Yakima, the Queen of Eastern Washington.

(Nor-West Magazine.) The knot of valleys which meet at the new town of North Yakima seems a bit of Southern California here in the north. Public opinion in all parts of Washington has settled upon this place as the Capital of the new State.

(Portland Oregonian.) There is no just reason why this city and county, when they shall have reached their maximum in population, should not have in the city from 15,000 to 25,000 and the county 40,000 to 50,000.

(Tacoma Ledger.) The valley in which the city of North Yakima is situated in the center of a series of very fertile valleys which open into it and have grown famous for their products.

(Spokane Falls Review.) Although less than forty miles apart the difference in climate between Yakima in Yakima county and Ellensburg in Kittitas county is almost as great as that between a northern and southern latitude.

"Seeing that the action of the Biochemic Remedies are so certain to cure, surely every medical man who desires the good of his patients will select from these for the scientific and rapid cure of the sick; and all patients will be anxious to be treated and restored to health in the new way, with safe and truly rational remedies."

"Biochemic Remedies, which act in perfect harmony with Nature's laws, have achieved such notable cures that thousands of thinking minds have already accepted this method by which health is so certain to be restored, even in almost hopeless cases, if Providence be pleased to grant ever so small an amount of vitality or powers to further the continuance of life."

Dr. Walker, Dundee, Scotland.

"The question whether this or that disease is or is not dependent on the existence of foreign germs or bacilli, is of no importance in Biochemic treatment. If the remedies are applied correctly the great aim of medical science—that of curing disease—will be gained in the only true scientific way."

W. H. Schusler, M. D., Oldenburg, Germany.

"Long standing chronic diseases, which have been brought on by excessive dosing with drugs that form no part of the human organism, such as quinine, calomel, opium, alcohol, &c., can be cured by small doses of the Inorganic Cell Salts."

Prof. Leibig.

"I use the Biochemic Remedies exclusively in my practice, with the most wonderful results. A careful study has convinced me that no so-called medicine can be a remedy that is not a constituent part of the human organism. These remedies are only found in the twelve Inorganic Cell Salts."

A further appropriation of the sum of $25 was made to Hilda Engdahl for defraying expenses of teachers' institute.

Change was made in boundaries of school district No. 26 by the school superintendent and adopted by the board.

Change in boundaries of school district No. 26, made by the superintendent, was rejected.

Hilda Engdahl's report was received showing twenty visits to the different schools in Yakima county, and 338 miles of travel in such visiting.

Ferry license was granted to H. T. Blakeney for running a ferry across the Columbia river at Wallula.

Application for lease of school land made by A. L. Fritchett for the west half of sec. 36, tp. 11, range 24 east; ordered sanctioned by the sheriff.

Petition of J. C. MacCrimmon, et al. for a county road, commencing at the south end of First street in North Yakima to J. S. Watson's; D. H. Fish and J. T. Stewart appointed viewers, to meet September 16, 1889.

E. S. Collinder, accountant, was employed by the board to make a thorough examination of the county records.

A new voting precinct was established and designated as Natchez precinct, No. 17, with the voting place at the schoolhouse near James Kincaid's, as follows: Commences at the Nelson Natchez bridge, thence east until it strikes the divide between the Natchez and Wenas and Selah valleys, thence following said summit until the summit between the Natchez and Wenas valleys is intersected at or near where road No. 3 crosses the divide between the Natchez and Wenas valleys, following the divide to the head of the Nile valley on the Natchez, and thence down the Natchez to place of beginning.

Ordered that Daniel Sinclair repair the Natchez bridge as needed.

Ordered that a new survey be made in road No. 2, commencing at the northwest corner of J. Schanno's land and running up the valley as far as Charles Carpenter's residence.

Ordered that A. J. Burge, supervisor of roads, remove all obstructions in the county road No. 3, between his place and Unapannum creek.

Contract for painting the five county bridges—the two Natchez bridges, the Moxee bridge, the Union Gap bridge and the Prosser bridge—was awarded to J. W. Sadler, of Ellensburg, for the sum of $1625, and he filed a bond in the sum of $2500 with S. R. Geddis, C. S. Planer and H. H. Allen as sureties, providing for faithful performance of contract.

Jessiah Wiley having failed to qualify as supervisor of road district No. 9, J. C. Reed was appointed in his stead.

Petition of R. R. Kinne et al. for a road up Coyyhee canon; John Stephenson and R. B. Kinne appointed viewers and James Hall surveyor; to meet August 28, 1889.

Ordered that the county auditor furnish each road supervisor in county with a list of railroad property in their districts.

Ordered that the district attorney examine the contract existing between Yakima county and Thomas Corlett in regard to the arduous work in the Horse Heaven country and take steps to enforce compliance of contract.

Robert Dunn's resignation as supervisor of district No. 6 was accepted and W. W. McCarty was appointed.

Ordered that all road supervisors in Yakima county be notified not to hire any road labor to be performed in their respective districts and to purchase no material for roads over and above the amount of money they have now on hand to pay for the same.

Chas. O. Rodman and S. Lauber were appointed viewers to assess damages claimed by Robert Dunn by reason of location of county road surveyed and viewed through his premises; to meet September 2, 1889.

V. D. Ritter, road supervisor of district No. 17, was instructed to remove all obstructions in the county roads in his district, and if any road should be indefinitely located can call county survey to relocate any portion of such indefinite road. Petitions filed and presented to the board for bridges across the Yakima river at Kiona and Parker Bottom. The board after discussing and considering the matter ordered the same to be laid over until the November term of this court.

It appearing that an assessment was made by school district No. 29 against John Jackson, incurring to $29 and the said Bouman Jackson not living in district No. 26, and he having paid the same under protest, it was ordered that the clerk of school district No. 26 draw a warrant payable to said Bouman Jackson for said amount, and that he be notified of the order of court.

G. W. Cary, county treasurer, made a settlement with the county, showing balance on hand of $19,702.73 on hand and the said amount was found to be the First National bank to his credit.

D. E. Lesh, sheriff, made his quarterly report and the same showed the amount collected in taxes during quarter ending August 1 to be $634,48, and vouchers from the treasurer for said amount were on file.

Ordered that the auditor employ a carpenter to construct a box for water deposit in the ditch in front of the court house from protection from fire, also to have ladders built to extend from the ground to the roof of the court house and along the roof, and to let the contract for painting the roof of the court house with two coats of fireproof paint.

The amount of the levy of taxes for the year 1889 on the assessable and taxable property in Yakima county, the same as appears from the assessment roll, being the total amount of $2,830,000 and the amount of levy on each $1 being as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Tax type and Amount. Total $0.147.

A petition from R. Strobach and others for an appropriation of $300 for the purpose of boring or drilling in the earth for coalsupposed to exist in sufficient quantities to justify boring therefor in certain locations in Yakima county, and at least twenty of said persons residing in said county paying taxes on over $150 for the year 1889. And it appearing that there were strong reasons to suppose coal existed in sufficient quantities to justify boring therefor in township 14, north of ranges 17 and 18 east, and the probability of boring a well 50 feet in depth estimated to be about $300, it was ordered that a special election be held in said Yakima county on the 8th day of October, the same being the day for the general October election, under an act of congress of the United States; said special election to be held to determine the sense of the voters of the county upon the proposition as to whether or not they are in favor of levying a tax of one and one-half mills on each dollar of property in said county according to the assessment of 1889, by the same officers as are appointed to carry on the general election. The auditor is ordered to post notices of said election to raise the sum of $425, which sum is to be expended or so much thereof as is necessary in boring for coal in accordance with the provisions of an act entitled, "An act for developing the latent resources of the earth in Washington territory," passed by the legislative assembly of Washington territory and approved February 2, 1889, at such a point in township 14, ranges 17 and 18 east, in said Yakima county, which includes the upper Natchez valley and vicinity, as may be selected hereafter by the board of county commissioners near the center or not less than ten acres of land to be owned by the said county in said locality.

L. J. Shriver was appointed inspector to inspect the painting and material used in the painting of the five county bridges by contract with J. W. Sadler.

Order was made to notify the county treasurer to refuse payment on all county warrants unless indorsed by the person to whom the same is made payable, or by their legal attorney.

Ordered that the auditor be and hereby is instructed to allow no one except the probate judge, clerk of district court and the auditor's deputies to have access to auditor's vault and to permit no one to take any county records from the office.

Following persons are appointed as inspectors and judges of election to be held October 8, 1889:

Horn precinct—J. M. Baxter, inspector; F. C. Sharkey and Geo. Bowers, judges.

SUPPLEMENT.

WE'VE BUNCOED OLD NICK.

Mohammed Ben Ali Meets the Bunco Men of New York.

They Played Three-Card Monte and the Bunco Men Were His—He Tells His Friends His Experience.

Behold, the wisdom of the land of sand and pomegranates hath stood me in great stead this day; whereof, I now sit me down to write unto you a true and touching story. To-day I was walking in the street called Broadway, because it is so narrow and overcrowded, near the street called Canal, because it hath no canal near it, when a benevolent looking stranger, with a long, white beard, accosted me, saying:

"Hello! Sheikh Abdallah, how are you?"

"I am not the Sheikh Abdallah," said I, "and I marvel that thou dost ever hear of him. I am simply Mohammed Ben Ali, a merchant of Bagdad."

"I beg your pardon," said he, "but you look just like the Sheikh Abdallah, who used to travel with Barnum."

I passed on, and had gone but a few yards when another benevolent looking stranger, wearing a large, black moustache and a large diamond, accosted me, saying:

"Why, I am sure this must be Mohammed Ben Ali of Bagdad."

"That is true," said I, "but how didst thou know it?"

"My friend, Boswell Poor, traveled in the east, and met you in Bagdad. If you will come around to my office, I will send for him."

Now, Son of the Nightingale, my memory recalled no such man, but I thought it best to go. He took me through many streets, and at last to a small, poorly lighted room, where we found another man sitting.

"Where's Boswell?" asked this man.

"I do not know," said my new friend.

"Let us send for him."

So saying, he went to the door and called into the hallway:

"Go and tell Mr. Poor to come around here."

I saw no boy in the hall as we entered, and when he had called he shut the door and locked it. I was now suspicious, and I obtained possession of the key by means which thou knowest. My new friend sat down and whistled. Suddenly he said to the man at the table:

"Say, Jim, what's the matter with having a little game while we wait for Boswell?"

"I'll go you," said the other.

Then he produced some cards, and, selecting three, one of which was an ace, by a dexterous movement of the hands spread them out, face downward, on the table. My friend bet a dollar he could pick out the ace, and he promptly did so.

This was repeated several times, and then, seeing that it was what they desired, I offered to bet. The man with the cards distributed them clumsily, so that I could easily see which was the ace, and I won. This was repeated thrice. Then the man with the cards appeared to lose his temper, and bet me $5 that I could not do it next time. Now, O Nephew of the Pomegranate! did I, as we were in the habit of saying in the mosque, scent the rodent; but knowing that I possessed all the magic of our people, I smiled and took up the bet. This time the man distributed the cards very skillfully. Truly, he must have studied this foolish art with long labor. I permitted him to win. Then I bet him that I could do it the next time. And I did. He seemed a trifle disconcerted, and he laughed with difficulty. I was still $4 ahead of the game. Once more I bet him, and this time I permitted him to win. The next time I won. This went on for a quarter of an hour, and I was still $4 ahead. The man with the cards began to perspire. We tried to once more. I pointed out the card at the left as the ace.

"Wrong," said the man; "it's here."

And he turned up the card at the right. But it was a king. Then he turned up the one at the left, and it was the ace. I see thee smile, as thou recedest of my doing this old, old trick. But the man did not smile.

"There's some trick here," he said.

"Surely," said I, with great innocence, "no one could suspect trickery in this place."

I was now ahead, but my manner reassured my friend, and we went at it again. This time—I see thee smile again—no ace could be found at all.

"You duffer," said the man who took me there, "you've dropped it."

They searched on the floor, but could not find it. When they lifted their heads again they beheld the ace standing on end on the table and dancing. Brother of the Pyramids, I blush to tell thee that I practiced this aged trick on these unsuspecting strangers; but I was anxious to measure their ignorance. They sprang to their feet and turned pale.

"What alarms you, friends?" I said; "there is a draught from the window, which blows the cards about. Let us close it." That reassured them, and they looked the window. Then we began again. Once more the ace was missing. When they searched the floor again, I determined now to bring to my aid our true art. The room began to

The Alaskans are Firm Believers in All Sorts of Sorcery and Witchcraft.

To-day, on the steamer Elder, there departed from Juneau for Sitka a notorious character called Mrs. Tom, or more commonly the Indian Princess, not that she is a princess of any sort, even among the Indians, but that she is rich, having managed to make money in more ways than one, but in none that is respectable. She laid the foundations of her fortune in the most disreputable of callings, and added to her gains in any sort of trade that left the profits all on her side. Mrs. Tom is not a millionaire in the Tlinket sense of the word. Mrs. Tom has been visiting her Tlinket friends at Juneau, and although she is no princess, she holds her head very much higher than any such women could outside of Alaska. When we saw her yesterday her arms were covered with bracelets, which she was ready to sell for a good cash consideration. Tourists find such princely consideration attractive, and in her assumed character as the "Indian Princess," Mrs. Tom drives some very good bargains. When she reaches Sitka she will probably encounter that Raymond party of tourists and enrich herself with their spoils.

The poor Tlinkets throughout the territory still believe in witchcraft, and many a poor wretch is miserably punished for acts of sorcery which he has never committed. The punishment inflicted upon supposed witches and sorcerers is that of "tying," and two men are now in jail at Sitka for tying a witch.

An Indian at Sitka who goes by the name of Dr. Peate has an accomplice in his business of detecting witches, and when found, do the business of tying them. When the relatives of a sick Tlinket come to believe he is bewitched, they send for Dr. Peate. After receiving his fee in blankets, which is cheerfully handed over by the patient's friends, the doctor sets to work. Doctors' bills are not booked in Alaska, or at least by Tlinket M. D.'s. The payment of the fee is essential to the success of the physician. That point, therefore, being duly attended to, Dr. Peate appears at the patient's dwelling accompanied by a member of the family bearing a tom-tom. Then he enters in fantastic attire or rather almost without attire, since his dress consists only of a short garment of hide and the gaw-zaws and masks used in his exercises. Among his paraphernalia are masks, wands and a quantity of swan's down or other flowy material. The doctor leans over the patient, puts his hand upon the seat of pain, covers his face with the mask which he thinks appropriate to his disease, and begins a wild chant to his totem. Presently he marches round and round the patient, chanting more and more loudly while his assistant thunders away on the tom-tom. The march quickens to a dance, and tufts of swan's down which have been impaled on the horns of the doctor's mask, detach themselves and float over the patient and the performer. As he dances, the medicine man grows frenzied and exhibits his excitement by leaping wildly into the air, until at length he falls down into a sort of fit while his body quivers with muscular excitement. Some hours of this work he departs to his own house and there makes known the name of the witch or sorcerer. When he has done so, his work for the time is ended.

The relatives of the patient have now the duty of catching the guilty party, which they generally accomplish by lying in ambush and leaping upon him unawares. The victim seldom knows beforehand that he has been accused. When he is captured the doctor's assistance is called in to tie the prisoner's head back. His hands are also tied behind him. Then the doctor himself appears and exhorts the culprit to confess his crime. If he does, he is asked why he bewitched the patient, and if he gives an answer and promises repentance he is often suffered to go free.

If he does not confess, or if he is not at once released after confession, he is secluded and starved, while he continues tied in the same cruel position, and is constantly guarded to prevent his escape or relief. Often he is tortured in a very brutal fashion.

In the end the victim is pretty sure to confess, and if he does, the doctor, whose skill the confession proves, is pretty sure to let him off on proper conditions. He is required, of course, to pay a fine in blankets, and generally, also, to go through certain ceremonies by which the effect of his sorcery is averted. He is sent to the grave of some celebrated Indian medicine man to fetch a trinket previously deposited there. With that and a bunch of swan's down he goes to the seashore and blows away bits of the down with his breath to signify the dissipation of his previous charms against the patient. That done, he is purged of his offense (whether he has committed any or not), and the doctor retires covered with hon-

QUEEN VICTORIA'S GREAT DAY.

"Mr. Harrison—"

"Oh, call me Rus. Pop always does and I like it better, you know, anyhow."

"Well, Rus, then—"

That's right. What's the use in being formal at a little family party like this? I hate formality, at any rate. I often tell pop that he's too formal. (Walter bring me a little more of that soup, will you?) But, as I was about to say, he doesn't let any of the starch drop out, even when I tell him he's overdoing it. Between you and me, queen, he's scared half out of his wits for fear he'll not say just the right thing or slip up somehow and hurt his dig. Now, out in Helena, we don't have any nonsense of that sort. The boys just wait in and do as they please, dig or no dig. But you were going to say something. What was it?"

Queen Victoria seemed a little bit annoyed and for a moment did not answer. Then she said:

"Why, I was about to remark that—"

"Excuse me, but do you know that at times you remind me of me! Yes, you do. Just now, for instance, you had an expression that I've often noticed on her face when she's been talking to me."

"Ahem!" said the Prince of Wales.

"Oh, it's a fact, Bert," said Russell, turning quickly to the prince, who sat on his left. "The resemblance is positively striking. Well, I don't know but what it's natural. You know, prince, both you and I come of old families. We naturally have a sort of aristocratic air in common. There's nothing like blood, after all."

"Your father's premier, Secretary Blaine—"

"Oh, Jim!" exclaimed the lineal descendant of Pocahontas, "he's a lollah, he is. But pop's onto him. He's got to do as pop says, and don't you forget it. There are no lies on our administration."

"Ahem!" said the Prince of Wales.

"Anything the matter with your throat, Wales?" kindly inquired Russell. "If there is, I've got the dandy stuff to cure it. Sure cure, and no nonsense about it. Uncle Jerry gave it to me before I started across the pond. Uncle Jerry's our secretary of agriculture, you know, ma'am. He's a good natured old granger, if he does talk too much to suit pop. I guess we'll keep him."

Again there was a painful silence of several minutes, during which Russell devoted himself to some roasted pheasant. After a hunting in America he said:

"The hunting in America is—"

"Oh, I know what you are going to say," exclaimed Russell, "but you are wrong—des-I wrong. All you Brits have an idea that buffaloes and grizzly bears run wild in the streets of New York, and that wild Indians keep the citizens of Chicago awake every night with their war whoops. That's all a fake, and if anyone tells you such stories you just tell them that you've cut your eye teeth. They'll try to work the matter on you if you'll let 'em, but you must just tell them it's a chestnut, my boy, and that I said so."

Once more that painful silence began and was going on in the even tenor of its way when Russell suddenly looked at his watch and said, as he rose hurriedly from the table:

"By Jove! I'd no idea it was so late. That only goes to show how time flies when persons are engaged in pleasant conversation. I must ask you to excuse me, as I have a positive engagement with a man at 9 o'clock sharp. Too bad, too, because I hate to break up the party. Oh, never mind about my dessert, queen; I really have eaten all I want now, and I seldom take dessert anyhow. Now don't get up. I can find my way out of the palace all right alone. Don't bother to come to the poor, Bertie. See you tomorrow, old man. Ta, ta! Good night, queen; I've enjoyed myself immensely. Good night."

When Russell had gone there was another interval of silence. Then the queen said:

"Mr. Harrison seems to be a thorough American, Albert."

"Yes'm," said the Prince of Wales, and he added in a stage whisper:

"Ahem!"—Ultramarine cable to N. Y. Evening Sun.

Northern Pacific Finance.

On Tuesday the New York World printed the following: "The finance committee of the Northern Pacific railway was to have acted to-day on the $15,000,000 collateral trust loan plan and they were generally thought to be favorably inclined toward it. Henry Villard yesterday surprised everybody by sending to all directors a detailed financial plan by which it is proposed that the company shall issue a grand consolidated mortgage of $100,000,000 for the purpose of retiring the whole of the outstanding bonds of the company. The grand total of the Northern Pacific preferred bonded indebtedness is $120,000,000. The excess of $40,000,000 in the proposed new issue would presumably be used in paying premiums to holders of the present bonds, so that they would surrender them for the new issue, which would bear a lower rate of interest."

Something About the Days That the Jews Celebrate—Rabbi Haskama and Tom Kipper.

The Jewish New Year's day begins on the evening of the seventh month of the Hebrew year of the world, 4755. Their seventh month is called Tishri (tish-re), and it begins on the 24th of September, A. D. 1899.

This New Year's or Holy day commences on the evening of the preceding day, and varies a few days every year. This year it begins on the evening of the 23d, and lasts through the 24th and 25th. Considerable worship is kept up during that time, but also the finest kind of feasting and the choicest wines are indulged in.

From the evening of September 25th, to the 2nd of October this year, will be a period of eating shew-bread and fasting. It is their repentant period, and the day following is their Day of Atonement, on which they fast from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. Then sounded the horn of warning, the "shofar," as a signal to all Jewish people for the last time in that new year. Just before it sounds, the Rabbi, or leading Israelite in charge states that the book of sins is to close in heaven and if they have repented, their prayers accepted and they are forgiven when the shofar sounds, then they will live through that year until the next one, and if not they will die. The horn is then blown for the last time and the season is closed. This ceremony is conducted by one of the most worthy of the congregation in the synagogue.

For this great occasion all the Israelites will begin to get in readiness about the first of the coming month. All the Jewish months contain from 29 to 30 days according to the changes of the moon.

The names of their months, corresponding to those in use by the Christian world, are as follows: January is Nisan; February, Efar; March, Sivan; April, Tammuz; May, Av; June, Allul; July, Tishri; August, Cheshvan; September, Kislur; October, Tavis; November, Shavot; and December is Ader.

When leap year comes, the additional month is prolonged to Ader and called its second half. Their months are the actual lunar months, and therefore their New Year's day varies and sometimes comes in their month of Cheshvan, or August.

Spasmodic Advertising.

Speaking of the uselessness of spasmodic and irregular advertising, the Clothes and Furnisher, of New York, says: "If you want to be healthy you must eat regularly, as meat to-day will not serve you for to-morrow. To be well and hearty eat at every meal time. To be prosperous in business advertise regularly. Stop one and you starve and die. Stop the other and your business takes consumption and dies also. Spasmodic advertising is like having a 'feast of a famine'—more famine than feast as a general rule—and is never satisfactory. To take out your card in dull times is like killing your horse because he is a little lame. In dull times advertising is the most effective, as more notice is taken of printer's ink than any other time."

Early Western Journalist.

When William N. Byers, the Colorado pioneer of journalism, first started to print the Rocky Mountain News he had a pretty tough time of it and experiences lively enough to suit a Ute Indian agent, says the New York Graphic.

News was plenty enough, and it was not generally supposed that the press would make any editorial attacks upon the citizens of Auraria, as Denver was then called; so one day when Byers found fault editorially with the killing of a Mexican by Charles Harrison a gambler, the latter's friends made an attack upon the log house occupied by the News. The editor and his reporters and typewriters were so surprised at the suddenness of the attack that they did not have time to make any resistance.

Editor Byers was taken a prisoner to Harrison's saloon, called the "Criterion." The crowd wanted to kill him on the spot and knives and pistols were flourished in his face. Harrison had once been a Mason, and knew that Byers was a member of that fraternity, so, under the pretense of taking him into a side room to talk, he got him out of the place altogether.

Byers was plucky enough, for he ran for his office, and arming all hands, laid low for the enemy, who came fast enough and a lively combat took place and one man was killed.

It was just about this time that the Hon. Joseph Wolf, of Boulder, Col., who was a good printer and a handy man about an office, arrived in town from Omaha via a freight train.

He was dead broke, and he made at once for the News office, and asked for the boss. Byers, seated on a barrel, was pointed out to him.

"Want any hands?" asked Joe, leaning against the door.

"That depends," said Byers, without looking up.

"Depends on what?"

"Can you shoot?"

"You bet."

"Will you?"

"Of course."

"Well then," said the editor, getting off the barrel, "here's a rifle and there's a case—go to work."

"What'll I do first," asked Wolf, "kill somebody, or throw in a case?"

Byers went to the window, leaned well out, looked up and down carefully, and then turning back, said:

"I guess you'll have time to throw in a handful."

Just about this time the office was in a state of siege, and to write and print what Byers wrote and printed at that time, requires a greater amount of moral courage, or what is commonly called nerve, than is possessed by journalists of the present day.

Many threats were made and more than one combat took place, but the editor came out ahead, and always stuck to the paragraph in his salutatory, which read: Our course is marked out. We will adhere to it with steadfast and fixed determination to speak, write and publish the truth, and nothing but the truth, let it work us weal or woe."

What is Thought of Yakima.

Vancouver Independent: From the Yakima district we learn that a large number of rich quartz and placer claims have been recently staked out and many coal claims taken, and that it gives promise of becoming one of the richest mining districts of the new state. The coal of this district is anthracite and of the very finest quality, comparing most favorably with that of Pennsylvania and Ohio. Locators of the new coal fields are endeavoring to keep their discoveries a secret, being anxious to keep all the ground possible. But capital is needed to develop the mines. As Yakima is also one of the finest agricultural countries it will doubtless become one of the most densely populated and wealthiest sections of Washington.

Their Business Booming.

WEALTHY WOMEN.

Wealthy Women With Fads—The Cattle Queens Who Have Piles of Money.

New York World: Wealthy women can afford fads. Most of them have fads and their fads are apt to be described in print and make their possessors and promoters famous. Mrs. Mary J. Morgan had just as many millions before the sale of her orchids and porcelain several years ago as her estate was worth afterward. But the orchid sale was telegraphed and wondered at all over the country. There's Mrs. Mark Hopkins, of Nob Hill, San Francisco, and Great Barrington, Mass. Her estate of $30,000,000 is said to show signs of able management. She has the building fund and is constantly putting up palaces.

Miss St. Pierre—how many of the World's readers ever heard of her?—is a million-heiress, and a modest and pretty one too, down in Tennessee. There she owns several hundred thousand acres of mining lands, and has business enterprises in the vicinity of Chattanooga, which, it is said, have cost $1,300,000 to organize. Miss Elizabeth Garrett inherited one-third of John W. Garrett's $37,000,000, was her father's confidential secretary while he was president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad and advised him on many occasions. She has been at the head of the family since Robert Garrett's decline. Her fortune is said to be unimpaired, although her brother's has been sadly depleted.

Miss Gwendoline Caldwell is one of the famous Caldwell sisters, whose pet projects have mostly had relation to the Catholic church, which they so love. The Caldwell girls have long been known as million-heiresses in Baltimore and New York. The announcement of the forthcoming marriage of Miss Gwendoline to Prince Murat is the latest news from the market of American millions in foreign courts. Miss Linda Caldwell, her sister, remains a disengaged prize, living with her sister at present for the most part at her Newport villa. Wealthy women have for years been more common than beautiful women at the aristocratic seaside resort of Little Rhody. It was at Newport that Miss Catherine Lorillard Wolfe, the million-heiress, lived and died.

It is Mme. Barrios, who is a property owner and resident of New York, and a citizen of the world, is seen to the best advantage. She has the godlike gifts of both beauty and millions. Mme. Barrios the dashing young widow of the Dictator of Guatemala, is worth not less than four or five millions, which, before the climax of his turbulent career, her husband had the good sense to invest securely for her in Paris and New York. A South American, who has been for several years contemplating, like Mme. Barrios, a removal of her residence to New York, is Dona Isadora Cousino, who bears off, even above "Hetty" Green's head, the palm of being "the richest woman in the world." Dona Isadora isn't as young by half as Mme. Barrios, and while she may in her time have been as beautiful, she hasn't, even now, as many pretty daughters to plead her cause. Dona Isadora's agents here began repairing a "palace" for her on Fifth Avenue as long as eighteen months ago. But the fickle and fascinating salt-coal-gold-ranch-and-cattle queen seems to have changed her mind. She has not yet deprived Child of the golden splendor of her presence.

Mrs. Maurice B. Flynn, who was Miss Moss, is no doubt worth a million, or almost that sum, since her husband left his entire estate to her. It is more and more customary for rich men in this country to leave their property to their wives. San Francisco, Chicago, St. Louis, Denver, Philadelphia, Boston and Pittsburgh have plenty of wealthy women whose millions come in this way.

Senator Palmer's wife was a million-heiress. As wife of the minister to Spain she has a chance to regild the faded romance of the banks of the Guadalquivir. Millionaires are not plentiful in Spain, and especially not female millionaires. The wife of Congressman and Editor Tom Bayne, of Pittsburg, who was Miss Smith, the daughter of the partner of the famous Hoosier, of bittern and almanac fame, brought him a million and consequent influence. So to Congressman Hitt, of Illinois, did his wife. So did Senator Hale's wife to him, from Zach Chandler. It is simply astounding how many men have climbed the political and social ladder by the aid of the fortune of their better halves.

Mrs. Alexander Ray is one of Washington's millionaire widows. Her husband was a well known miller. Miss Jennie Riggs is said to be one of the richest single women at the national capital. She inherited a million or two from her father to guard zealously from fortune hunters.

Mrs. Rogers, one of the Texas cattle queens, became, by her husband's will, owner of a herd of 40,000 cattle. She married a preacher twenty years younger than herself. He had seven children, and she took care of her cattle business, with which the young husband is not permitted to interfere. Texas, however, is full of cattle queens. Colorado has several said to be worth their millions.

Philadelphia is said to have women millionaires as follows: Mrs. J. Campbell Harris, said to be worth $5,000,000; Mrs. Thomas A. Scott, $3,000,000; her daughter, Mrs. Howell Bickley, $3,000,000; Mrs. Joseph Harrison, $2,000,000; Mrs. M. W. Baldwin, $2,000,000; Mrs. Bloomfield Moore, $2,000,000; Mrs. J. Edgar Thompson, $1,500,000; Mrs. H. S. Benson, $1,500,000; Mrs. Richard Townsend, one of the prospective heirs to an estate of $15,000,000; the three daughters of Mr. F. A. Drexel, each worth several millions and one of them now married; Miss Helen Erben, worth $1,000,000; the Misses Pugh, $500,000; Mrs. Thomas Clyde, more than $1,000,000; Mrs. John Bohlen, $500,000; Mrs. St. George Tucker Campbell, $500,000; Mrs. William Wiltach, $2,000,000, and Mrs. Thomas Balch and her daughter, $500,000.

The richest widow on the Pacific coast is Mrs. Mark Hopkins, the widow of one of the Central Pacific syndicate. Her husband's estate proved up to $25,000,000, and the only two men in California who could justify on the widow's bond as executors were Leland Stanford and Charles Crocker. They were compelled to justify in twice the amount of the estate, and each swore he was worth $40,000,000. Mrs. Hopkins is an elderly woman. The Hopkinses had no children, but had adopted a son, whom Mrs. Hopkins married to a Miss Crittenden, a protegee of her's, providing her with the dot of a princess.

The richest young and unmarried woman on the Pacific coast is said to be Miss Jennie Flood, the only daughter of the bonanza king. The richest prospective heiress in California is Miss Hattie Crocker, the only daughter of Charles Crocker, another of the railroad syndicate. She also is, like Miss Flood, rather plain in appearance. She is noted for her charities and domestic virtues. The whole value of "Billy" O'Brien's estate was a little over $9,000,000. After the legacies were paid the residue was turned over to Mr. O'Brien's two sisters, Mrs. Coleman and Mrs. Joseph McDonough. These two ladies inherited $3,500,000 each.

Having suffered with my kidneys I was induced to try Oregon Kidney Tea, which relieved me in a short time. I take pleasure in recommending it to the public as a safe remedy for kidney difficulties. GEORGE W. BAILEY, County Judge of Umatilla. Sold by Allen & Chapman.

A good digestion waits on appetite and a good appetite is one of the surest signs of perfect health. If you are irregular, irritable, bilious, or have an irregular appetite, then we advise you by all means to take Dr. Henley's Dandelion Tonic. It will make a new man of you. Sold by Allen & Chapman.

Chilblains, unpleasant odors from the feet and other parts of the body, nasal catarrh, ringworm, poison oak, sty on the eye, granulated eyelids, eruptive diseases of the skin, all disappear after using Dutard's Specific. Warranted to effect a radical cure in every instance. Sold by Allen & Chapman.

Few children can be induced to take physic without a struggle, and no wonder—most drugs are extremely nauseating. Ayer's Pills, on the contrary, being sugar-coated, are eagerly swallowed by the little ones, and are, therefore, the favorite family medicine.

A perfect complexion, free from pimple or blemish, is very rarely seen, because few people have perfectly pure blood. And yet, all disgusting eruptions are easily removed by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Try it, and surprise your friends with the result.

Beauty

Is desired and admired by all. Among the things which may be done to enhance personal beauty is the daily use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. No matter what the color of the hair, this preparation gives it a lustre and pliancy that adds greatly to its charm. Should the hair be thin, harsh, dry, or turning gray, Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore the color, bring out a new growth, and render the old soft and shiny. For keeping the scalp cool, healthy, and free from dandruff, there is no better preparation in the market.

"I am free to continue to use of Ayer's Hair Vigor has convinced me that it is a genuine article. Its use has not only caused the hair of my wife and daughter to be Abundant and Glossy, but it has given my rather stunted mustache a respectable length and appearance."—B. Britton, Oakland, Ohio.

"My hair was coming out (without any assistance from my wife, either). I tried Ayer's Hair Vigor, using only one bottle, and I now have as fine a head of hair as any one could wish for."—E. T. Schmittson, Dickson, Tenn.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor in my family for a number of years, and regard it as the best hair preparation I know of. It keeps the scalp clean, the hair soft and lively, and preserves the original color. My wife has used it for a long time with most satisfactory results."—Benjamin M. Johnson, M. D., Thomas Hill, Mo.

"My hair was becoming hard and dry, but after using half a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor it grew black and glossy, and I cannot suppress the joy and gratitude I feel."—Mabel C. Harly, Delavan, Ill.
