paper. I'll be back in a very short time.

Following the custom established by his predecessor, Capt. Lane had always kept the recruiting funds in the First National bank. His own private funds he preferred to keep in an entirely different establishment—the Merchants' Exchange.

The cab whirled him rapidly to the building indicated, and, although it lacked half an hour of the time of opening, he made his way into the office and asked to see the paying teller.

"Will you kindly tell me if any checks on the recruiting fund have lately been presented for payment?" he eagerly asked.

The captain was referred to the bookkeeper, and that official called him without in the least hesitating.

"No less than four checks were brought here yesterday for payment, and they came between half past 3 and 3 o'clock in the afternoon," was the bookkeeper's report. "There seemed to us something wrong in the simultaneous presentation of the four, and I was on the point of addressing a note to you this morning to ask you to come down to the bank. Everything about it appears in proper shape and form, except that three of the checks have been indorsed payable to your clerk, William Taintor, who came in person and drew the money."

"Let me see the checks, if you please," said the captain.

They were speedily produced. Lane took them to the window and closely examined them.

"I could not tell them," he said, "from my own handwriting; and yet those three checks are forgeries. I believe that the indorser on the first check is equally forgerous. Now, can I take these with me to the office of the chief of police, or do you desire that the detectives should be sent here? Taintor deserted last night, and all traces have been lost."

"What is the amount that he has drawn?"

"The check, payable to the order of William Taintor himself, is for $45.50. The second, payable to James Freeman, and indorsed by him to William Taintor, as was the first, is for the rent of the building occupied by the recruiting rendezvous, precisely similar in form and amount to the previous checks, for the sum of $50. The third check is payable to William Taintor himself, marked for extra duty pay as clerk at the recruiting office for the past six months." The fourth is made payable to the order of Sergt. James Burns, "extra duty pay as non-commissioned officer in charge of the party for the six months beginning Jan. 1 and ending June 30."

"The check too, had been indorsed payable to the order of William Taintor. All four checks, amounting in all to the sum of about an hundred and sixty dollars, had been paid to the deserting clerk during the afternoon of the previous day."

"Had you no suspicion of anything wrong?" said Lane.

"I knew nothing about it," said the bookkeeper. "They were presented to the paying teller at the desk, and it was not until after bank was closed, when we came to balance up cash, that the matter excited comment and then suspicion. Taintor has frequently come here before with drafts and checks, and if you remember, sir, on one or two occasions he has been sent for new check books when the old ones had run down."

"That's very true," said Lane. "He has been employed here in this rendezvous for the last ten years, and has borne up to within my knowledge of him, an unimpeachable character. If any more checks come in stop payment on them until you see me, and, if possible, detain the person who presents them."

"Half an hour afterwards the captain was back in his office, and there, true to his appointment, was Lieutenant Noel."

"I have had a strange and unpleasant experience, Noel," said Lane. "Most of my papers have been tampered with. My clerk deserted last night and has turned out to be a most expert forger. He has stolen here a dozen checks from my book, made them out to the order of various parties, forged the indorsements himself, got the money yesterday afternoon, and cleared out, no one knows where."

"Great Scott, old man! that is hard luck! How much has he let you in for?" asked Noel, in the slang of the period.

"Only a hundred and sixty dollars, unfortunately; and I have made that good this morning—placed my own check to the credit of the recruiting fund in the First National bank, so that in turning over the funds to you there will be no loss. We have to make new papers for the clothing account; and as quickly as possible I will have them ready for your signature and mine."

"There is no hurry whatever, old fellow," answered Noel, cheerily. "I've come back from the regiment a little short of money, and I want to have a nest egg in the bank to begin with. It's a good thing to have a fat cousin, isn't it? He has always been very liberal and kind to me, and, luckily, I've only drawn on him twice. So I'll hurry along."

Five minutes after Noel left, a district messenger entered with a note for Capt. Lane. It was addressed to him in the handwriting of Mr. Vincent. He opened it with a trembling hand. It contained merely these words:

"I am obliged to leave for New York this afternoon. Can you come to my office at 1 o'clock? We can then talk without interruption; and I much desire to see you."

"Mr. Vincent," he cried, almost imploringly, "I cannot tell you how utterly my sympathy is with you in your anxiety and distress. I beg you not to give way—not to abandon hope. I—I think it may be in my power to help a little; only—it must be a secret between us. She—Mabel must never know."

"Take this chair, captain," he continued, as he returned to his desk. "I have much to say to you," he added, with a sigh. "Let me say at once that from what I know and have heard of you there is no man of my acquaintance to whom I could intrust my daughter's future with more implicit confidence. It is true that both her mother and I had at one time other hopes and views for her, and that with your profession was not that of arms; and now I beg you to be patient with me, and to pardon my alluding to matters which you yourself broach in this—this most painful letter. You tell me that you are not dependent on your pay alone, but that from investments in real estate in growing cities in the west and in mines in New Mexico you present income to some five thousand dollars. As I understand you, the property is steadily increasing in value."

"It has steadily increased thus far, sir, and I think it will continue to do so for several years to come—in real estate investments at least."

"I am glad of this, on your account as well as hers, for Mabel has been reared in comparative luxury. She has never known what it was to want anything very much or very long. She has been educated on the supposition that her whole life would be equally free from care or stint; and if I were to die tomorrow, sir, she would be a beggar."

And here, in great agitation, the old gentleman rose from his chair and began nervously pacing up and down the little room, wringing his white, tremulous hands and turning his face away from the silent soldier that he might not see the tears that hung to the lashes or the piteous quivering of the sensitive lips. For a moment or two nothing more was said. Then, as though in surprise, Mr. Vincent said:

"Did you understand me, Capt. Lane? I do not exaggerate the situation in the least. I do not know how soon the ax will fall. We are safe for today, but I don't know what the morrow may bring forth. I may be met en route by telegrams saying that the journey is useless; that we are refused, and the money I hope to get in New York to tide us over would come only too late. Next month at this time the house in which Mabel was born and reared may be sold over her head, with every scrap and atom of its furniture, and she be driven out to sea. Do you realize that?"

"You have been speaking to me and all who are dear to you in your distress and anxiety, but I am almost glad to hear that she is not the heiress people said she was. It is Mabel I want,"—and here his voice trembled almost as much as the old man's, and his honest gray eyes filled up with tears he could not down—"and with her for my own I could ask nothing of any man. I have no consent to see her, then, at once if need be? You know I am relieved from duty here and must rejoin my regiment within ten days."

"My full consent, and my best wishes, captain," said Mr. Vincent, grasping the outstretched hand in both his own. CHAPTER VI.

Miss Mabel says please excuse pencil, sir.

In the three days that followed the transfer of funds and property at the recruiting rendezvous took place, and Mr. Noel stopped in, vice Lane, relieved and ordered to join his regiment. The former was having a delightful time. A guest of the wealthy Witherses could not long be a stranger within their gates to the Queen citizens, and every afternoon and evening found him enjoying hospitalities of the most cordial character. At the club he had already become half-fellow with all the younger element, and had made himself decidedly popular among the elders, and every man who had not met that jolly Capt. Noel was eager to be presented to him. He was ready for pool, billiards, bowling or a drink the moment he got within the stately doorway; and, as he sang, whistled, laughed, chatted and cracked innumerable jokes during the various games, was a capital mimic, and could personate Pat, Hans or Crapaud with telling effect. His presence was pronounced by every one as better than a solid wedge of sunshine—something the Queen City rarely, if ever, experienced.

Poor Lane, on the contrary, was nearly wringing his hair out. He had gone to the Vincent's the very evening on which he had seen the father of the family off for New York, and had never himself to put his fortune to the test—to tell her of his deep and devoted love and to ask her to be his wife. That she well knew he loved her, without being told, he felt sure must be the case; but, beyond a belief that she liked and respected him, the captain had not the faintest idea as to the nature of her feelings towards him. He was a modest fellow, as has been said. His glass told him that, despite a pair of clear gray eyes and a decidedly soldierly cut to his features, he was not what women called a handsome man; and, what was more, there were little strands of gray just beginning to show about his broad forehead and in the heavy moustache that shaded his mouth. Lane sighed as he remembered that he was in his 36th year. How could

THE GREAT NORTHERN.

Jim Hill has been visiting Seattle, Tacoma, Portland and other points in the northwest and, as a result, the people and the press have become inflamed over the projected extension to the coast of the great railroad system of which he is the head.

There are elements of romance in the history of the railroad system, which began as the St. Paul & Pacific and ended as the Great Northern, but which has been better known through all its metamorphoses as 'Jim Hill's road' than by any formal title.

In this second stage of its entire, and first of its independent existence, it was a wheel road, and carried the bulk of the grain of the northwest to the Minneapolis mills, fattening on the wisely-adjusted difference between the cost of economical construction and thrifty management and the returns of ample business.

This is the present state of the Great Northern system. On the east it touches Lake Superior with one fork and St. Paul and Minneapolis with the other.

The next and last stage in the history of this magically expanding system trends close upon the heels of the present. It took about five years to make it the dominant wheat-carrying road of the northwest.

THE SEER OF YAKIMA.

The defeat of Holton at the local and the state conventions has made that exponent of "republicanism" most miserable. Disappointment has given a firm impetus to dyspepsia which gnaws at his vitals and makes him hate himself and the balance of the world.

Was the vision true? Has this good but morose man—this deacon in the church—the power of second sight? THE HERALD will test him—will throw out a few pointers to lead his mind back but a short span of time to a certain variety theatre in Tacoma.

STANDARD BEARERS COMPARED.

THOMAS CARROLL. JOHN L. WILSON. Hon. Thomas Carroll, John L. Wilson has the democratic soul been recommended for the nomination of the party of Washington.

LUCIEN E. KELLOGG, of the Big Bend Empire, published at Waterville, asks: "What can be a plainer proposition than that it is to our pecuniary advantage to support Olympia for the capital?"

CHINAMEN are greatly perturbed in mind for fear that the coming Chinese calendar year is going to be an unfortunate one. The Yuch Bing, or moon festival, was celebrated by them without any moon, and the wise men who know all about the signs say that means but luck for an entire year.

ALASKAN DEWS come from Japan of the ravages of cholera. It is reported that out of 1732 cases in one district there were 1133 deaths, and in another 961 cases and 573 deaths.

LEGENDS OF PILLAR ROCK.

Old Chief Skamokawa started a CHIEF at a Canoe, Rowing in the Monument Near the Mouth of the Columbia.

All travelers on the river are familiar with Pillar rock, fourteen miles from Astoria, on the Washington shore, says the Astoria Pioneer. A pillar-shaped rock, several hundred yards from the shore, rising upwards of twenty-five feet above the water, gives the name to the place.

G. W. Nutter, an old resident of this county, told the story of how, according to the Indian theory, the rock originated. It is firmly believed by old Indians.

Many years ago, long before John Jacob Astor's expedition sailed into the Columbia, old Chief Skamokawa, then a mighty chieftain, and known as a magician with wonderful powers, inhabited the north shore of the Columbia. He had a son, a stalwart young fellow whose prowess with the canoe and spear was the envy of the tribes on both sides of the big river.

It was of no avail, however, and mindful of the wrath of the old man, he hid himself to the side of his inamorata and the old man's wrath by bringing his bride home, and set out in his canoe to cross to his native beach. They proceeded to within a few hundred yards of shore when the mighty Skamokawa caught sight of them, and, in his anger, he called upon his magician's skill, and seizing the cliff on which he stood, tore from it a huge shaft and hurled it upon the canoe and its two occupants, empling the young man and his bride beneath the mass, where to this day it is supposed they lie. Pillar rock is thus believed to have been created.

We would like to see— Each member handle his gun as well as Private Coombe.

Sergeant Lovell stand straight and get the wrinkles out of his uniform. Private Lawrence on the line, just once.

The commissioned officers take more interest in the company. The non-coms. have a school.

The members thoroughly drilled in squads, until they could show in better form in the company. Everybody take as much interest in it as does Sergeant Lippincott.

Some of the members who have drilled before, admit that they do not know all of it. The captain say "right" when he means it, and not "left." Carric.

Olympia Verging on Bankruptcy.

Olympia Tribune: It will not hurt the capital question a particle to expose fraud in the city government. It will help it. If Olympia expects to be the state capital it must conduct its business on business principles, and not go into bankruptcy through loose business methods.

A NEW counterfeit two-dollar bill has made its appearance in Indiana, and fears are expressed that it will complicate the political situation in that state.

Spokane Globe: The Yakima exhibit is attracting much attention. It is a handsome one, and visitors to the fair that fall to see it will miss a rare treat.

George Washington Hunt is evidently in a hard row of stumps. All of his property in Walla Walla and Umatilla counties has been attached and liens have been filed on the Oregon & Washington railroad.

Asotin Sentinel: Yakima melons go chiefly to the Sound, and by their disturbing qualities they serve as a reminder that eastern Washington still holds a grip on the destinies of that large and would-be independent part of the state.

The Olympia Tribune charges bad financing to the city officials, and says that not only the $115,000 limit of indebtedness has been reached, but that $77,000 of unpaid warrants are outstanding and $40,000 more is required to meet unpaid contracts.

The Conley City News says Olympia stands as the only candidate for capital honors. The News must have been bought with one of those lots located several feet under water which Olympia capital boosters are now giving away so freely.

All kind of grain bought and sold at the North Yakima Roller Mill.

The editor of the South Bend Journal is in a peck of trouble, through no fault of his own, so it happens, but solely because of the marvelous fertility of the soil of western Washington. He has been receiving garden "truck" on subscriptions, and his complaint is that almost none of the potatoes that the cashier takes in are under ten inches in diameter, while his cooking, for reasons unnecessary to mention, is done in "an old tin dipper, suspended gypsy-fashion to a tripod, on the tide flat" under the composing room, and of a size that will not hold anything over nine inches.

The republican central committee has nominated Nelson Rich, of Prosser, for county commissioner from the third district. The republican convention failed to make a nomination for this district, the impression prevailing at the time that the present commissioner, Mr. Brown, would hold over.

Society a Business Matter.

Goldendale Sentinel: One of North Yakima's energetic milk men drove up to Elder J. T. Ebelman's residence one day last week, and alighting from among the milk cans lifted out a petite little woman and together they went into the house. Jake is said to have been slightly abashed at first, as he supposed they had come to make a contract to supply him with milk, but he was set to rights and was not long in making them one.

Is On to Olympia's Carves.

Adams County Times: The Times is in favor of Olympia as the permanent seat of government of this great and glorious state. We have been in this mind since early Wednesday morning, when Mr. McDonald came in and presented us with a town lot in that dear old town. Our property is not in the dress circle of business lots, but in an addition and is claimed by the donors the addition is in Thurston county. He was a modest, mild-mannered person, capable of doing no injury to his town and out of respect for his breath, which had been in an all night wake at the Cascade tunnel, his magnanimous offer was accepted.

SHE WAS POISONED!

Not by anything she drank or took, but by bad blood. Is it any wonder she feels "blue"? In most cases blues are only another name for bad blood. A man or woman feels unhappy. Life seems dark. The heart is heavy. Bad blood carrying its poison all over the body, and we call it "blues."

Read these experiences: Mrs. C. G. Hutchinson, of Pittston, Pa., says: "I consider Dr. Acker's English Blood Elixir the best medicine in the world, not only for blood troubles, but also for dyspepsia, with which I have been afflicted."

Both my wife and myself firmly believe that Dr. Acker's English Blood Elixir is the best of all blood medicines, and will remove all impurities of the blood."

INDIAN CHILDREN IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—The following excerpt is from a letter sent out by the interior department at Washington, and is a practical method of educating Indian children, and at the same time materially swelling the school fund so that weaker districts may be enabled to hold longer terms than they could otherwise do: "In order, especially, that the Indians who break up their tribal relations and settle upon allotted lands may have opportunities of educating their children, and as an inducement to white settlers to invite Indian children to their schools and assist them to acquire the rudiments of an English education, I would be pleased to have you inform officers and others interested that the Indian office is ready to enter into contract with the school district officers or other properly qualified representatives of school districts for the tuition of Indian children at rate of $10 per quarter, based upon the average attendance of Indian children during the quarter. Out of this $10 per quarter the school districts will be expected to supply necessary text-books to the Indian children. The school district will contract distinctly to give to each Indian child all the opportunities and attention which are given to the white children attending the school, and so far as possible prevent their white playmates from ridiculing them or in any way discouraging them or preventing their progress."

STATE MILITIA ELECTION.—The field and line officers of the National Guards of Washington met in this city on Monday for the purpose of electing a brigadier general and an adjutant general. The freedom of the Yakima club rooms was extended the visitors and there they held their executive sessions and election. For brigadier general, Captain James M. Ashton, of Tacoma, and General A. P. Curry, of Spokane Falls, were placed in nomination. Captain Ashton was not an aspirant for the position, and so declared himself; but, notwithstanding this, he received twenty votes to General Curry's twenty-five. There was more of a contest for the adjutant generalship, R. G. O'Brien, of Olympia, E. H. Fox, of Dayton, and C. B. Johnson, of Spokane Falls, being nominated. Three ballots were required to settle the contest, when General O'Brien was re-elected. Both of the successful candidates made excellent speeches in response to the calls of the electors. In the evening our guests were entertained by company E, at the opera house, with a pork and bean supper, to which hearty justice was done.

WILL BORE FOR COAL.—A company is being organized in this city for the purpose of boring for coal on the land between the Natchez and the Wenas. Several sections of land have been secured by a local syndicate, and recently coal experts, in the employ of railroad companies who are closely watching this country, have made examinations and favor the belief that coal will be found in paying quantity. There are coal croppings in plenty and the formation of the land shows the required slate and sandstone. If the coal is there, it will be of an unbroken character, as the land is just as the receding waters left it. It is proposed to advertise at once for proposals for boring to a depth of 1200 feet, if the vein is not encountered sooner. Dr. W. F. Morrison, who is an enthusiast on this subject, is of the belief that this entire Yakima country is underlain with coal, and his theory is not without foundation, as coal croppings are found in the Selah, Altamun, Moxee and at several points on the reservation.

SUCKERS RISE TO THE FLY.—The street fakirs have again been taking in the gullees. It is strange that some people will allow these smooth-tongued rascals to take their good silver and give nothing of any value in return. When it comes to the sale of stationary or novelties, the same article or a better one can be bought in one store for less money, and if it is a so-called medicine, the chances are one hundred to one that it is absolutely worthless and will be thrown away after a trial that will prove its valueless character. Only a few nights ago a fakir sold dozens of a combination corkscow and glass cutter at twenty-five cents each, while the same article is a drug in a local store at just one-half the price. The article has no value, and that is the reason it has no sale from the merchant's counter, but in the hands of a glib-talking peddler the number sold can almost be gauged by the number he has on hand.

DIRECTORY OF TWO COUNTIES.—Mr. W. D. Newcomb, representing R. L. Polk & Co., the leading directory publishers, is in the city engaged in the work of compilation of a directory of Yakima and Kittitas counties. Mr. Newcomb was here in the spring, is familiar with the situation of the two counties, and is qualified by his long experience in the business to get up a directory that will be of practical value to everyone. He proposes to make it complete in every detail, and will have the postoffice address of every man and child of school age in the two counties.

YAKIMA AT THE EXPOSITION.—H. B. Scudder and J. M. Stout returned from Spokane Falls on Saturday last, where they have been looking after the Yakima exhibit at the exposition. This issue of THE HERALD is a sectional view of the pavilion, and the Yakima display has been given the post of honor, being in the main hall and the first exhibit to be seen on entering the building. Visitors state that this honor we are entitled to by the merit of our exhibit, for no county represented there can compete with Yakima in the display of fruits and vegetables.

RABBIT DRIVE.—Arrangements are being made for a rabbit drive on Thanksgiving day. Those who remember the amusing incidents of the last drive will not fail to be present on this occasion.

LOCAL BRIEVITIES.

—Another train load of 16 cars of sheep will be shipped from Yakima to Chicago on the 25th inst.

—Seven carloads of hops have been shipped from Yakima this week. Hops are strong at 33 1/2 cents.

—The school desks and other furniture for the west side and Nob Hill school houses have been received.

—Have you registered yet? Time is fleeting, and the registration books will not remain open for the slugging.

—A special car containing the Mason Rifles of Tacoma passed through Yakima Wednesday bound for the exposition at Spokane.

—Superintendent Woodward is of the opinion that the waterworks and electric lights will be in operation by the 25th of the month.

—There will be union services at the Christian church Sunday evening, conducted by L. F. West, of the American Bible society.

—Sheriff Lesh took the two prisoners charged with selling liquor to Indians to the Sound on Saturday last. He was arrested by Officer Ed Kremer.

—While it was snowing in Spokane county on Thursday last week ripe strawberries were being gathered on the Moxee plantation, Yakima county.

—The aggregate business of the local Northern Pacific office for September amounted to $22,700, an increase of a thousand dollars over the same month in 1901.

—Judge F. B. Rudkin, the legal associate of S. O. Morford, has decided to change his location, and will remove from Ellensburg to North Yakima within a few days.

—A Kansas editor announces that ten pumpkins will pay a year's subscription to his paper. They're short of bread in Kansas this year, and, evidently, intend to stagger along with pies.

—S. T. Sterling, of Ellensburg, has retired from the newspaper business, having leased the State Register to Baterson & Reeves, who will hereafter conduct it as a democratic paper.

—There have been 319 votes registered at the city clerk's office up to date and still they are coming in. This indicates a much larger population than the census gives North Yakima credit for.

—The young ladies of the city will soon entertain their gentlemen friends with a party. They propose to take upon themselves the labors of arrangement, act as escorts, and pay all expenses.

—The county commissioners have decided to continue the boring for artesian water in the Horse Heaven country. The well is down 500 feet and contains water, but has not reached the flowing stage.

—Thomas M. Vance, of the U. S. land office, has been invited to deliver the address at the Spokane Falls exposition on Yakima day. An effort is being made to have a large attendance from here at that time.

—The house of a woman known as Bertha was entered by burglars in broad day light Thursday. A silver watch was the only thing taken, although everything was turned up-side-down in the search for plunder.

—The heaviest bale of hops of which there is record was baled by O. V. Carpenter at his hop yard, one and a half miles east of North Yakima, Tuesday. It weighs 288 lbs. and at 30 cents a pound is worth $86.40.

—The wind on Monday last was a terror and made one feel that this world is not all it is cracked up to be. The storm was general throughout the northwest, and some Yakima people may take consolation in that.

—Ella Dawson, a cardinal woman of Ellensburg, was arrested Wednesday, on complaint of Al Keran, charged with using obscene language. The frail Ella was fined $35, and then entered complaint against Keran on a similar charge.

—J. A. Whitten, of Kittitas county, was thrown from his horse October 1st while on his way home from Ellensburg, and as a result of the fall died a few hours thereafter. Whitten was carrying a gigantic load of tangefoot at the time.

—Expert accountants are engaged in checking up the books of the county officials. Up to date the discrepancies have been trifling, the greatest variation found being where Treasurer Cary was entitled to $27.31 more than he had laid claim to.

—A letter from Pasco says that melons weighing from thirty-seven to thirty-nine pounds have been sent from that place to the Spokane exposition. They will look like mere pygmies beside the Yakima melons, which weigh from fifty to sixty-seven pounds.

—S. J. Lowe and Dr. C. J. Taft left for Walla Walla Monday to attend the races there. Mr. Lowe has his horse "Jack Lowe" and Dr. Taft has "Zeke" in training at Walla Walla, where they have been for the past three weeks under the care of Crowl.

—B. F. Young, the republican nominee for representative, is a printer by trade, and worked on the Gazette, the first paper ever printed in Seattle, in 1864. Previous to coming to Yakima Mr. Young was a resident of Sumner, where he owns a farm and hop yard.

—It is reported here that Cale Reinheart has sold his interest in the Goldendale Sentinel to W. R. Dunbar and that he is negotiating for the purchase of the Yakima Republic. C. M. Holton, when questioned regarding this matter, said that he had no knowledge of it.

—J. T. Ebelman left Wednesday morning for Klickitat county to look after his political fences in that quarter. Mr. Ebelman will from now on until election day spend most of his time down there, his friends promising to see that his interests here are well attended to.

PERSONAL.

J. F. Kinney, of Prosser, is in the city. O. A. Fechter leaves for Tacoma Monday on business of importance.

Fred Janek left last week for Portland to enter the school of pharmacy.

Henry Teal returned last week from a long vacation spent with his family at Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Pugsley left Wednesday for Spokane Falls to attend the exposition.

Fred Sharkey, of San Francisco, a brother of Frank Sharkey, spent Sunday in the city.

A. C. Walker returned from Hot Springs Wednesday entirely relieved of his rheumatic troubles.

Mrs. F. M. Spain left for Spokane Falls Wednesday to visit friends and attend the exposition.

R. Strobach returned Thursday from a trip to Walla Walla, Dayton, Pomeroy and Lewiston.

Mrs. John Thompson, of Ellensburg, and Mrs. M. Gilliam, of Seattle, are in the city visiting relatives.

J. W. Downer and family have moved here from Goldendale and are occupying Henry Stone's residence.

Mayor R. K. Nichols has been at Olympia this week attending the meeting of the republican central committee.

Wm. Ker left for the Sound country, Tuesday, on a mission calculated to advance the material interests of Yakima.

Superintendent F. S. Woodward, of the waterworks, returned from Tacoma Thursday, where he was called on business.

George Gardner, who is now in the employ of the N. P. Co., came over from the Sound, Tuesday, on business and pleasure intent.

A. Hartung, manager of Fawcett Bros.' agricultural implement house, left for Tacoma Thursday, being subpoenaed as a witness in a lawsuit.

Mrs. J. M. Adams left on Thursday evening for a few weeks' visit to Spokane Falls. Mr. Adams will join her there along about Yakima day.

Dr. Joseph Chapman and family will move to Seattle this week, the doctor having arranged to go into partnership with his father in the practice of medicine.

Frank M. Sullivan, the representative of the Seattle Telegraph, was in the city Thursday intent on swelling the subscription list of that excellent democratic paper.

Fred R. Reed arrived in the city on Thursday from South Bend, to remain but a couple of days. Mr. Reed reports that his wife is still very ill, but slowly improving.

Gen. Heath, a special agent of the interior department, has been visiting the Indian reservation during the past week. Gen. Heath served under Lee, and it was he that opened the battle of Gettysburg.

Gen. S. M. Strickler, a banker of Albuquerque, New Mexico, arrived from Hot Springs Wednesday in company with A. C. Walker. Gen. Strickler is looking about the state with a view to locating and engaging in the banking business.

Judge I. A. Navarre spent a few hours in Yakima Sunday. He had just come from Tacoma, where he said he had positive assurances that the work of construction on the road from North Yakima to Cheshala would be actively pushed in the spring as early a day as the weather would permit. J. M. Ashton, the attorney for the Northern Pacific, corroborated Judge Navarre's statement in a talk with THE HERALD representative a day or two later.

A very enjoyable hop was given by the young people at the Hotel Yakima Tuesday evening. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Vance, Miss Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. S. Courter, Dr. and Mrs. O. M. Graves, Miss Annie Sheffield, Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Fechter, Mrs. Ogden, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Pugsley, the Misses Dunning, Miss Jessie Bailey, Miss Fulkerson, Miss Cornett, H. C. Humphrey, A. P. Fulkerson, E. M. Reed, C. W. Hastings, Henry Teal, Frank Bartholet, E. T. Wilson, G. S. Vance and W. Wallace Atherton.

Pasco is jubilant. Herman Russell, of New York, has agreed to take the irrigation bonds, and the news was received with bonfires, speeches and firing of anvils.

W. Z. York now has in his cabinet the task of a mastodon. It was found thirty-five miles down the Yakima river. The entire skeleton of a mastodon was discovered in the river some years ago, and Mr. York put men to work getting it out, but as soon as it was exposed to the air it quickly crumbled away.

Potatoes are now selling at 40¢45 cents per bushel, and the indications are that they will reach a much higher figure. Yakima will have an immense quantity for shipment, while the crop generally throughout the United States is a short one. Arrangements have been made to ship to Chicago in carload lots.

The Northern Pacific experienced another collision on Friday last. The east bound passenger collided with a hog engine twelve miles this side of Helena. Engineer Frank Mace was killed and Fireman Chislett dangerously injured. The accident was caused by an open switch and was another case of pure carelessness.

Company E was inspected by Adjutant General Ross G. O'Brien on Monday and found to be in excellent condition both as to the bearing of the men and the condition in which they maintained their arms and other equipments. There is a lack of belts and a few other things, for which General O'Brien will see that provision is made.

MANY MILITARY MEN.—Upwards of fifty of the field and line officers of the national guard spent Sunday and Monday in this city, and a fine appearing body of men they were. THE HERALD found it impossible to get the complete roll of those who were here, but the following list embraces the majority of them: J. M. Dayton, W. S. Shank, Jas. H. Barny, J. M. Ashton, C. M. Reddell, W. J. Fife, I. M. Howell, Jas. Ross, Tacoma; W. O. Robb, R. G. O'Brien, Olympia; C. R. Dorr, John Carr, C. A. Booker, Dayton; E. S. Isaac, Walla Walla; E. R. Brady, J. M. Murphy, Harry St. George, Pomeroy; H. G. Streetam, D. N. Smith, Walla Walla; B. B. Hlascock, A. W. Lindsey, Sprague; J. P. Leghorn, W. G. Wadham, L. E. Brigham, A. P. Curry, G. Green, Chas. S. Johnson, Spokane Falls; J. C. Haines, S. W. Scott, L. E. Dawson, E. M. Carr, Seattle; J. C. Westhoff, F. Morris, Vancouver; Herbert K. Reif, South Bend; Geo. H. Jones, C. B. Wood, N. S. Snyder, Port Townsend.

THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH CONVENTION.—In the neighborhood of fifty delegates from all parts of the state attended the Christian church convention in this city last week. Many matters were taken up and acted upon, including the establishing of a church newspaper in Portland, but the most important proposition under discussion was the location of the Christian college. Tacoma submitted two propositions, and representatives from Seattle and Spokane Falls were here in the interest of their respective places, but no definite action was taken by the convention. The final action was left to a committee consisting of F. Walden, of Walla Walla, E. C. Saunders, of Ellensburg, F. Cowden, of Tacoma, J. T. Eshelun, of Yakima, Rev. McCallum, of Seattle, C. L. Moody, of Spokane Falls, and Rev. Neil Chestnut, of Dayton. Young has arranged to submit a very liberal proposition to this committee, which it is hoped will result in the location of the college at this point.

THE MENDELSSOHN QUINETTE CLUB.—Yakima is to be honored Oct. 22nd by the genuine Mendelssohn Quintette Club, of Boston, consisting of Isidor Schmitzer, violin virtuoso and concert master; Samuel W. Jennings, violin; Thomas Ryan, solo clarinette and viola; Paul Henneberg, solo flute and viola; Paul Jennison, solo violoncellist, and Miss Marie Barnard, prima donna. The Mendelssohn club is one of the famous musical organizations of the country. Founded in 1840, it has been at the head of companies of its class for over forty seasons. Although the performers change from year to year, the high standard is constantly maintained while the venerable organizer, Mr. Thomas Ryan, remains at the head. Miss Barnard is a California girl, who is said to have a beautiful voice, melodious, clear and true—and magnetically attractive.

FATHER AND SON BOTH DISAPPEAR.—George De Graf, a dry goods merchant, has as mysteriously disappeared from Tacoma as did his father from Yakima three years previous. De Graf was buying goods when all track of him was suddenly lost. His mother has telegraphed everywhere in vain, and as the young man had considerable money with him she fears he has been foully dealt with. George De Graf was over here frequently while the search was being made for his father, and was an attendant on court during the trial of Geo. W. Gibbs on the charge of murdering the old man. The elder De Graf has never been heard of since his disappearance.

CARROLL AND NASH WILL SPEAK AT YAKIMA.—George Hazzard, of Tacoma, the secretary of the state central democratic club, spent several hours in the city Wednesday arranging for the reception of Hon. Thomas Carroll and Judge L. B. Nash, who will speak at Yakima City, Thursday, Oct. 16th, at 3 o'clock p. m., and at the opera house, North Yakima, that same evening at 7 o'clock sharp. The time of these gentlemen is limited and the early hour is named to permit them to make the east bound train. There should be a big turnout to this meeting, as the opportunity of hearing these gifted speakers will not come again in this campaign.

COLLISION OF LOCOMOTIVES.—Another railroad accident occurred in the canyon about five or six miles from North Yakima, on Sunday. A freight had pulled onto the side track to give the right-of-way to the east-bound passenger, but the engineer neglected to get his engine entirely free from the main track and as a result there was a collision and the freight engine was tumbled into the ditch, while the passenger engine was badly crippled.

DEMOCRATIC TORCH LIGHT PROCESSION.—At the last meeting of the democratic club it was decided to hold a torch light procession on the occasion of the speaking of Hon. Thomas Carroll and Judge L. B. Nash Thursday evening, Oct. 16th. It is intended to make the night one of grand glorification in honor of our distinguished guests, and music, bonfires and the firing of anvils will be included in the program. There should be a big turnout from both town and country.

The council met on Monday evening last with Councilman W. A. Cox in the chair. Petitions for grading Yakima avenue between First and Front streets and First street between Yakima avenue and Walnut street were read and referred to the committee on streets and ditches, with instructions to confer with the city attorney and report at the next meeting.

Waterville Immigrant.—There is complaint of young cattle dying of blackleg in the ranges beyond Moses Coulee. Vaccination is being resorted to, and the method adopted proves an unfailing remedy. A piece of garlic and saffordis, each the size of a hazelnut, are placed in an incision in the fore leg or shoulder. It has cured when the animals were previously unable to arise from the effects of the disease.

Millions of Dead Letters.

Superintendent D. P. Leiboldt, of the dead letter office at Washington, has issued a circular which gives a report of all the mail matter reaching his office, and contains many suggestions to the public.

He says that more than six million pieces of mail matter are sent annually to the dead letter office by reason of incorrect, illegible or deficient address, insufficient postage or insecure closing.

Don't Forget The Fig Leaf.

Queen Victoria always insists on "full dress," which is the term that has singularly come into use in describing the low-neck dress. The old lady sees no impropriety in the custom. In this country many people do.

Raising an African King.

Advises from South Africa say that the natives are making elaborate preparations for the crowning of the 15-year-old king of Swaziland, the ceremony being fixed for October 3.
