2016 Year-in-Review:
• Philip handed out the 2016 Annual Giving Campaign statistics and 2016 expense report.
• Washington State is now the 3rd highest giving program in the United States, moving up from number four.
• Philip pointed out the following pages in particular:
  o Page 5-6: The agency statistics.
  o Page 8: Volunteer hours doubled this year for the first week to give campaign.
  o Page 13: The actual disbursed amounts to charities for the year.
  o Page 29: The expense report, administrative costs for the year are 7.8%.
• Jim Cooper had a question about the return on investment for the Every Monday Matters campaign, below are the result that Philip saw:
  o It made for a personal campaign, a lot of people felt an emotional tie to it.
  o The Monday tasks were a HUGE hit, volunteers looked forward to getting the emails.
  o The You Matter grams were also popular, an easy way to show people that they are cared about.
2017 Year-to-Come:

- Philip handed out the 2017 Annual Plan.
- We have hired a new person for the marketing and development position, Jerika Ferguson.
- The two areas of concentration this year will be retiree giving and higher education outreach.

  o Retiree giving:
    - CFD is working with Department of Retirement Systems to have contributions automatically roll over into retirement – making it an opt out instead of opt in transaction. A July 1, 2017 start date is anticipated.
    - Donors will be isolated in the system that are 60 years or older that have gone inactive in the system. A retiree donor profile will then be created for them and a report sent to DRS. If they are in the retiree system, they will continue to give – if they are not, they will just become an inactive donor.
    - CFD will be sending out letters, emails, posting information on the website, in the DRS newsletter and other sources that are available to retirees.

  o Higher education outreach:
    - University of Washington, Central Washington University and Western Washington University all have great campaigns.
    - Eastern Washington University and Washington State University have the lowest campaigns.
    - Meetings with the new Presidents need to be set up to introduce the CFD to them.
    - Show the universities the local impact the CFD has, not only on charities but also on their foundations.
    - Build and train teams at the colleges with workshops for the school leaders.
    - Collaborate with the foundations, show them how it is a good partnership and not competition.

Discussion: Millennial Focus Group results:

- Philip handed out a packet with the focus group results along with the questions and answers of each individual group.
- A discussion was opened up for ideas on how to get more support for CFD volunteers.
  - Try to get more middle management support, maybe contact the volunteer’s supervisors directly with information on the CFD.
  - Provide verbiage for Campaign Leaders to give to their managers with information on the CFD.
  - Have Leadership get a message out to managers showing their support of the CFD.
  - Have CFD put into ethics trainings.
  - Livestream the Leadership breakfast for those that cannot make it.
