Dear Educator,

Thank you for teaching our youngest Washingtonians their role in the electoral process. Democracy isn’t inherited — each new generation must learn their civic rights and responsibilities — and your commitment to civic education is critical to establishing voting habits early on.

Public education was established in America to prepare future citizens for their role in our democracy. It can be challenging to demonstrate to voters of any age how elections impact their daily lives, let alone a student who has just begun learning the basics of our democratic processes.

Educators need civics curriculum that informs and engages students. Teaching Elections in Washington State is written in partnership with the Office of Superintendent of Public Instruction and Washington teachers to do just that. Our hope is that students will graduate with the knowledge and enthusiasm to fully participate in our communities, and become lifelong voters.

In addition to this book, your students can get involved in other ways. Students of all ages can vote in our Student Mock Election held in October every year. The Mock Election is a nonpartisan civics education experience designed to teach kids the importance of voting, and how to become informed voters. Students can vote for the same races and measures adults see on their ballots. Materials are available at sos.wa.gov/mockelection. Students ages 16 or 17 may also sign up to be a Future Voter so they can be registered to vote when they become eligible. Also, 17-year-olds who will be 18 by the November General Election can vote in the August Primary. More information is available at sos.wa.gov/elections/future-voter-program.aspx.

We applaud your contributions to helping youth make their voices heard. With your guidance, students will be ready to take their place as our state’s future leaders and decision-makers.

Sincerely,

Washington State Elections Division

Civics Graduation Requirement

RCW 28A.230.094

High school civics course.

(1) (a) Beginning with or before the 2020-21 school year, each school district that operates a high school must provide a mandatory one-half credit stand-alone course in civics for each high school student. Except as provided by (c) of this subsection, civics content and instruction embedded in other social studies courses do not satisfy the requirements of this subsection.

(b) Credit awarded to students who complete the civics course must be applied to course credit requirements in social studies that are required for high school graduation.

(c) Civics content and instruction required by this section may be embedded in social studies courses that offer students the opportunity to earn both high school and postsecondary credit.

(2) The content of the civics course must include, but is not limited to:

(a) Federal, state, tribal, and local government organization and procedures;

(b) Rights and responsibilities of citizens addressed in the Washington state and United States Constitutions;

(c) Current issues addressed at each level of government;

(d) Electoral issues, including elections, ballot measures, initiatives, and referenda;

(e) The study and completion of the civics component of the federally administered naturalization test required of persons seeking to become naturalized United States citizens; and

(f) The importance in a free society of living the basic values and character traits specified in RCW 28A.150.211.

Considerations

As a civics instructor, you must often discuss sensitive subjects.

Here are a few ideas to consider when conducting these lessons:

• Be clear that grades are based on how well students defend their opinions. Students’ opinions are never “right” or “wrong.”

• Never share your own political views. Turn inquiries back on students. You might ask, “That’s an interesting question; what do you think?”

• For every opinion expressed, be sure a rebuttal is given. Direct the conversation with questions like, “Is there another side to that argument?”

Talking about some issues can be tough, but it’s important the next generation of voters learns to respectfully discuss the civic choices they will face as adults.

General Overview
Voting is a clear indication of a healthy democracy. This inquiry builds background knowledge on who is allowed to vote, how to register to vote, and who voted in past presidential elections. Students are asked to take a position and develop a clear argument (opinion) that answers the compelling question: What can we do to encourage people to vote in elections?

Learning Targets

- Students will know and understand the qualifications for voter registration and evaluate the ease of registration.
- Students will analyze voter statistics to make predictions about how many people vote in elections.
- Students will study various ways that people are encouraged to vote and create their own product that encourages people to vote.
- Students will craft an argument that includes a claim, evidence, and reasoning and cite specific information from sources.

Launch
Students will view a poster created by artist Melissa Chang. Share with students that the primary responsibility of a citizen is to vote! People are encouraged to vote in many ways. Ask students: What do you notice? What does the artist draw? Who is her intended audience? Is this poster designed to encourage people to vote? Does it succeed? Have a class discussion and introduce the compelling question.

Launch Handout (page 11)

Focused Inquiry
A focused inquiry is a two to three day lesson that will have students engaging in the C3 Framework’s Inquiry Arc.

Compelling Question
What can we do to encourage people to vote in elections?

Focused Inquiry (pages 9–21)
In this focused inquiry, students will consider the most powerful voice that every citizen has in our democracy: voting. Students will learn who gets to vote, how people register to vote, and the outcomes: who actually winds up voting. Students will finally study some of the ways that people are encouraged to vote. Using all of this learning, students will create a piece that encourages people to vote.

Learning Goals

1. Students will know and understand voter eligibility and registration in Washington state.
2. Students will analyze data on past presidential election voter turnout to make connections between the number of registered voters and actual voter turnout.
3. Students will study various ways that people are encouraged to vote and create their own product that encourages people to vote.

Compelling question:
What can we do to encourage people to vote in elections?

Staging the question:

Students will view a poster created by artist Melissa Chang. Share with students that the primary responsibility of a citizen is to vote! People are encouraged to vote in many ways. Ask students: What do you notice? What does the artist draw? Who is her intended audience? Is this poster designed to encourage people to vote? Does it succeed? Have a class discussion and introduce the compelling question.

Supporting question 1:
Who gets to vote?

Formative Performance Task
Complete Appendix A (page 12 and 13)

Notes to teacher:
- Students will read the requirements for voter eligibility (abbreviated from the Secretary of State’s website) and complete the “You Try” portion of Appendix A to test whether the descriptions would allow people to register to vote. (Answers: 1. Y, 2. N, 3. Y, 4. Y, 5. N, 6. Y)
- Print or digitally post copies of the voter registration form using the link. Ask: what information on this form are people required to provide? Is it easy to register to vote? Turn and talk, and then add your thinking to the bottom of Appendix A.

Supporting question 2:
How many people vote in presidential elections?

Formative Performance Task
Complete Appendix B (page 14)
Students will compare two charts: the percentage of Washington state voters in presidential elections and the percentage of Washington state voters in presidential primary elections. Students will answer: What is the difference between the numbers of people who vote in each type of election?

Notes to teacher:
• These statistics were taken from the most recent elections. Elections are ever changing, so you may need to access the site to update the data.

Featured source:

Supporting question 3:
How are people encouraged to vote?

Formative Performance Task
Complete Appendix C (pages 15–21)
Students will view a number of sources and analyze each source by describing what it says (the message) and reflecting on how it could encourage someone to vote.

Featured sources:
• Source D: Voting Buttons, Smithsonian Museum. All rights reserved. Used pursuant to fair use.
• Source E: Bumper Sticker Collection, Smithsonian Museum. All rights reserved. Used pursuant to fair use.
• Source F: Posters, Office of the Secretary of State, various artists, rights as noted.

Argument
After students analyze various sources to answer the supporting question and discuss their thinking with the class, they will write a brief response to the compelling question, What can we do to encourage people to vote? Responses should include a claim, evidence, and reasoning and cite specific information from sources, including a connection to a key idea (power of government resides within the people; democracy).

Taking Informed Action:
Students will create an item of their choice (bumper sticker, poster, buttons, stickers, PSA, etc.) to encourage people to vote. Students should consider using any of the data and information learned in the lessons to create their items. These can be posted around the school to encourage awareness of voting. Additionally, student created items can be shared with local officials to develop deeper civic partnerships within the community.

Informational pages from the statewide Voters’ Pamphlet are available at the end of this book should you wish to use them to supplement lessons.
Look at this poster. It was created in 2016 before a presidential election.

Think: What do you notice? What does the artist draw? Who is her intended audience? Is this poster designed to encourage people to vote? Does it succeed?

Pair: Discuss your answers with a partner.

Share: Share your new thinking with the class.
Who gets to vote?

General Overview
If Washingtonians are dissatisfied with certain laws or feel new laws are needed, they can petition to place proposed legislation on the ballot. The process is termed "initiative" because the people can initiate new laws. Any registered voter, acting individually or on behalf of an organization, may propose legislation to create a new state law (initiative) or revise an existing state law (referendum).

Learning Targets

- Explain how voting happens in Washington and compare that process with other states.
- Explain ballot measures (questions on the ballot), the voters’ pamphlet, and how types of propaganda are used to influence voters to support or oppose measures.
- Use argumentation and the initiative process to exercise political power to change or create laws.

Launch
Begin this unit with a Think-Pair-Share that draws on student interest and prior knowledge about problems in society that they’d like to solve.

Launch Introductory Activity (page 26)

Focused Inquiry
A focused inquiry is a one- to two-day lesson that will have students engaging in the C3 Framework’s Inquiry Arc.

Compelling Question
How do Washingtonians exercise their political power?

Focused Inquiry (pages 23–39)
In this focused inquiry, students consider how Washingtonians can impact government and laws through initiatives, referenda, and voting. They learn that access to all three is facilitated by a vote-by-mail system and information provided through a voters’ pamphlet. Using these understandings, students draft an initiative of their choosing that includes arguments for and against the initiative for inclusion in a voters’ pamphlet.

Standards

SSS1.6–8.1 Analyze positions and evidence supporting an issue or an event.

C2.6–8.2 Distinguish the structure, organization, powers, and limits of government at the local, state, and tribal levels.

C4.6–8.3 Employ strategies for civic involvement that address a state or local issue.

Learning Goals

1. Students will learn how voting happens in Washington and compare that process with other states.

2. Explain ballot measures (questions on the ballot), the voters’ pamphlet, and how types of propaganda are used to influence voters to support or oppose measures.

3. Use argumentation and the initiative process to exercise political power to change or create laws.

Compelling question:

How do Washingtonians exercise their political power?

Staging the question:

Use Appendix A (page 27) for student notes.

Produce copies of the Vocabulary Share, Share, Trade handout (page 28) on cardstock, cut along horizontal lines, and hand each student one term.

Step 1: Vocabulary focused share, share, trade

- Each student gets one term, reviews and notes, pairs and teaches other student, trades terms, finds new partner and repeats. Do five to seven rounds (depending on how much time you spend at it), then students get into groups for Step 2.

Step 2: Concept Sort/Question Generation activity

- Sort terms into two categories (small groups).
- Draft one question you wonder for each category.
- Share out questions with class.

Focused Inquiry, cont’d

Argument
After students analyze various sources to answer the supporting questions and discuss their thinking with the class, they get to design an initiative and draft arguments for and arguments against for the voters' pamphlet. Responses should include a claim, evidence, and reasoning for each side as seen in the grocery tax example (students may use the template provided on page 39).

Note to teacher:
This could be extended into a full simulation in which students draft an initiative, collect signatures from peers who support it being on the ballot (how many needed could be based on the percentage of students in the school. Initiatives require 8% the number of votes cast in the last governor’s election), create the arguments as assigned, and then carry out a vote.

Taking Informed Action:
Option 1: Analyze current initiative proposals, have a conversation with parents or other voting adult about their opinions and reasons for them. Interview and report back to class.
Option 2: Participate in the Secretary of State’s Student Mock Election. Content available at sos.wa.gov/mockelection.

Informational pages from the statewide Voters’ Pamphlet are available at the end of this book should you wish to use them to supplement lessons.
Launch: Introductory Activity

Begin this unit with a Think-Pair-Share that draws on student interest and prior knowledge related to content.

Think: (Ask students) What problem would you like to solve in our community, city, or state? What do you know about the problem and possible ways it could be solved?

Students may need prompting with possible examples: pollution, homelessness, plastic pollution, big class sizes, cost of medical care, family problems, etc.

Pair: (Instruct students) Talk about the problem you have chosen and what you know about it with a partner. Be encouraging and attentive as your partner shares. Ask questions or offer ideas. Each partner gets two minutes.

Share: (For teacher) Elicit volunteers to share problems they’d like to solve or that they heard from partners. List on board and discuss for up to 15 minutes if student interest is piqued. Remember to keep discussions from being politically driven. When appropriate, transition to an intro to this unit: We will learn and then exercise some powers Washingtonians have for using government as a tool to solve problems.

Over the last few decades, utilization and preference for Vote-By-Mail (VBM) elections has substantially increased to the point where in 2018 general elections across the country, over 31 million voters, or 25.8% of participants, cast their ballots by mail. Four states in addition to Washington have VBM as their primary method of voting, with more bipartisan interest growing every day.

In 1991, the permanent absentee law was expanded to allow any voter to join the list by request. Once on the list, they would receive mailed ballots for every election. Absentee ballots grew popular because of their convenience and the opportunity they afforded voters to educate themselves on candidates and issues before marking their ballot. Over half of Washington’s voters signed up.

...in 2011, with 38 of 39 counties moved to VBM, the Washington State Legislature enacted VBM for all elections statewide with Governor Gregoire’s signing of Senate Bill 5124, making Washington the nation's second all VBM state behind Oregon.

Some voters miss the camaraderie and receipt of an “I Voted” sticker, but more voters appreciate being able to vote on their own schedule with the option of voting in person should they want or need assistance.
Washington State Vote-By-Mail (VBM) Fact Sheet

Timeline

Pre-1983: Washington Legislature authorized “permanent absentee” ballots for voters with disabilities and those age 65+, other voters to request absentee ballot for each election in writing.

1983: Special elections allowed to be conducted by mail ballot.

1991: Permanent absentee law expanded to allow any voter to join the list by request; once on the list they receive ballots for every election.

1993: Small precinct VBM law expanded to precincts with under 200 voters, some counties begin splitting precincts and moving to all VBM elections.

2005: Washington Legislature establishes VBM as a permanent option of the election process for all elections, allowing counties to choose.

How does VBM work?

All eligible voters are sent a ballot at least 18 days before election, military and overseas up to 90 days. Mailing address can be anywhere in the world.

Marked ballot is put in a security envelope/sleeve.

The security envelope/sleeve is put in a return envelope, which the voter signs.

Ballots have pre-paid postage and are returned through the mail or at ballot drop boxes. If mailed, must be postmarked by election day. Drop boxes open until 8 p.m. on election day.

Voters can check ballot status online. Updates may take 3–4 days.

New ballots can be requested or printed, but will suspend any previously issued ballot and still need to be signature verified.

Benefits

- Fewer pollworkers/sites to coordinate
- Auditable paper trail
- Every eligible registered voter receives a ballot
- Ample time to research and vote
- Higher turnout

Challenges

- Material prep time for printing and mailing
- Requires high levels of staff expertise
- Vendor and equipment coordination (e.g., mailing houses, sorters, scanners, etc.)
- Length of time to report final results

How does a VBM ballot get processed?

Envelope is scanned and marked as “Received” in the VoteWA system, then sorted into batches.

Signature is checked against voter registration records. Voter is contacted before processing if signature is missing or doesn’t match voter registration record.

Return envelope is opened and security envelope/sleeve is removed.

Security envelope/sleeve is opened and ballot is removed for processing, resulting in secrecy of the vote.

Ballot is reviewed for potential scanning issues like torn corners, then scanned and securely stored.

Scanners are not connected to any form of network or internet.

Ballots continue to be processed, cured, and tabulated until certification.

Referendum
Referendum Bills are proposed laws the Legislature has referred to voters.

Referendum Measures are laws recently passed by the Legislature that voters have petitioned be referred to the ballot.

Argument for

Yes on I-1634 protects working families, farmers, and local businesses.
I-1634 would ensure that our groceries — foods and beverages that we consume every day — are protected from any new or increased local tax, fee, or assessment.

Help keep groceries affordable.
The rising cost of living makes it harder for families to afford the basics. Special interest groups across the country, and here in Washington, are proposing taxes on groceries like meats, dairy and juices — basic necessities for all families. I-1634 would prevent local governments from enacting new taxes on groceries. Higher grocery prices don’t hurt the wealthy elites but crush the middle class and those on fixed incomes, including the elderly.

Take a stand for fairness.
Washington has the most regressive tax system in the country and places a larger tax burden on the backs of middle and fixed-income families than the wealthy. Taxes on groceries make our current tax structure even more unfair for those struggling to make ends meet.

Bipartisan and diverse support for I-1634 from citizens, farmers, local businesses, and community organizations. Organizations that represent Washington farmers (Washington Farm Bureau, Tree Fruit Association, State Dairy Federation), labor (Joint Council of Teamsters, International Association of Machinists, Seattle Building Trades), and business (Washington Beverage Association, Washington Food Industry Association, Washington Retail Association, Korean American Grocers Association) are united in supporting I-1634 to keep our groceries affordable.

By voting yes on I-1634, you can take a stand for affordability and fairness for Washington’s working families.

Rebuttal of argument against

I-1634 prohibits new, local taxes on groceries, period. It does not prevent voters from raising taxes on anything else to meet local needs. This is necessary to close a loophole allowing municipalities to tax groceries, even though the state does not. That’s why thousands of Washington workers, farmers, small businesses, and consumers support I-1634. It protects us from taxation of everyday foods and beverages which raises prices, costs jobs and hurts working families.

Argument against

Initiative 1634 takes away local control and gives it to the state
This confusing measure imposes a one-size-fits-all state law that takes power away from voters and hands it to the state, silencing our voice in local decision-making. Different communities have unique needs and local voters deserve a say in how revenue decisions are made. This initiative is a slippery slope toward greater state control at the expense of our cities, towns, and local communities.

Corporate special interests are spending millions to strip away voter choices and protect profits
I-1634 has nothing to do with keeping our food affordable. In fact, tax prohibitions on everyday food items — from fruits and vegetables to milk and bread — are already reflected in voter approved state law. Instead, this measure is funded almost exclusively by the multi-billion-dollar soda industry. They are only concerned with their profits and are spending millions on this initiative — and misleading advertisements — that would undermine local control.

Reject Initiative 1634 to prevent future erosion of local powers by special interests
I-1634 sets a dangerous precedent — any special interest could spend millions on a misleading initiative to limit our rights as voters and our local autonomy. Voting no sends a clear message that we value local control and will not be fooled by the political agenda of wealthy industries or outside groups.

Rebuttal of argument for

State law already precludes taxes on groceries. Initiative 1634 is funded by the soda industry to take away local choices from our cities and towns. This confusing measure reduces local options while increasing state control at a time when we are struggling to fund important community programs. Stand with doctors, teachers and community advocates in saying no to this blatant corporate power grab.

High School Lesson
Representation/Responsibility

Total time required: Three to four days

General Overview
Americans, at birth, are granted unalienable rights while at the same time they are charged with maintaining certain civic responsibilities. Rights are outlined in such documents as the United States Constitution. In the United States, we have a system of government called a “representative democracy” meaning we choose leaders to make decisions on our behalf. The people’s responsibilities include staying informed, analyzing information, voting in elections, and participating in resolving issues at the local, state, tribal, and national level.

Focused Inquiry
A focused inquiry is a two- to three-day lesson that will have students engaging in the C3 Framework’s Inquiry Arc.

Focused Inquiry (pages 42–56)

Compelling Question
Which of your elected officials has the most impact on your day-to-day life?
In this focused inquiry, the compelling and supporting questions are designed to lead the students on a journey toward understanding the responsibilities of being an informed citizen, registering and voting in elections, knowing who their elected officials are and their positions on current issues, and how decisions made by elected representatives impact us on a daily basis.

Standards

- C2.9-10.1 Explain how citizens and institutions address social and political problems at the local, state, tribal, national, and international level.
- C4.11-12.2 Analyze and evaluate ways of influencing local, state, and national governments and international organizations to establish or preserve individual rights and/or promote the common good.
- SSS4.9-12.1 Evaluate multiple reasons or factors to develop a position paper or presentation.
- SSS2.9-12.2 Evaluate the validity, reliability, and credibility of sources when researching an issue or event.

Learning Goals

- Identify who are our current elected officials and their positions on current issues.
- Evaluate ways to use media literacy strategies when assessing credibility and reliability of media sources.
- Explain the requirements and process of Future Voter sign up and the registration process to vote in elections.
- Analyze and evaluate how decisions made by our elected representatives impact us daily.
- Explain the responsibilities of being an informed citizen.
- Use argumentation, reasoning, and evidence to defend a claim.
Compelling question: Which of your elected officials has the most impact on your day-to-day life?

Staging the question:
1. Drawing on student’s prior knowledge, pose the following questions to the class to introduce the components of the lesson.
   - What is the definition for a representative form of government?
   - What does it mean to be an informed citizen?
   - In order to be an informed voter, how does one know what information is real and true?
   - As a future voter, how does one register to vote in Washington state?
   - What issues do you think voters in Washington state are concerned about?

2. Next, in a whole class discussion ask students to brainstorm ways voters can find out about an elected official or candidate’s position on key issues.

3. Group the students in small groups for the next steps.

Supporting question 1: What key issues are most important to our state’s current elected officials?

Formative Performance Task
Complete Appendix A (page 52)

Notes to teacher:
- Help direct students to the websites for the state’s elected officials listed on the handout or candidate’s websites. Have them research key issues that the elected official has listed as important. For local government positions, have students do an online search for their local representatives. Students may need to first determine their legislative district, which is based on their residential address, by visiting https://app.leg.wa.gov/DistrictFinder/.

Featured sources:
- Washington State Governor’s webpage: https://www.governor.wa.gov/
- Washington State Attorney General’s webpage: https://www.atg.wa.gov/
Supporting question 2:
How do informed voters determine the credibility and accuracy of information from media sources that pertain to key issues in our state?

Formative Performance Task
Complete Appendix B (pages 53 and 54)

Notes to Teacher:
1. Ask students if they've heard of "Deepfake" videos. What might be the purpose of creating a Deepfake video? Share with them that Deepfake videos are known more formally as a type of "synthetic media." These altered videos usually show real people doing and saying things they never actually did or said.

Student Task:
1. After watching the video, have students capture their learning using Appendix B. Have students answer: What did you see that stuck out to you? What did it make you think about? What advice was given?

Notes to Teacher:
1. Next, ask students what is "confirmation bias"? Share with them that confirmation bias is our brain's tendency to seek out information that confirms things we already think we know.

Student Task:
1. After watching, have students capture their learning using Appendix B. Have students answer: Why does confirmation bias make us more likely to be fooled by “fake” news?

Notes to Teacher:
1. Next, display to the class the poster titled Fearless Fact-Finding.

Student Task:
1. Have students explore on the internet at least three of the Fearless Fact-Finding resources listed on the poster.
2. Using Appendix B, have students capture which of the listed Fearless Fact-Finding resources they think will be most useful for voters.

Focused Inquiry, cont’d

Supporting question 3:
In a representative democracy, what are a citizen’s responsibilities before and after elections?

Formative Performance Task
Complete Appendix C (pages 55 and 56)

Notes to teacher:
1. Have students read the article What Does "Informed Citizen" Mean Right Now
2. As they read, ask students to find the missing part of each sentence from the article.
   A. Research has shown that those who are exposed to engaging civic education are more likely ____________?
   B. Voting responsibly requires that young people _______________ about the candidates and the issues.
3. Have a class discussion about how voters can hold their elected officials accountable for their campaign promises and decisions while in office.
4. Have students share with three classmates why they think it is important to vote and what are possible consequences to not voting?
5. Remember to keep discussions from being politically driven.

Student Task:
1. Watch the video #FutureVoter | VoteWA.gov | Register to Vote
   https://youtu.be/Ax29EBqeg2Y
2. Using the following websites, have students research how future voters sign up early to vote in Washington state.
3. Using the websites above, have students answer the common questions about registering to vote in Washington state in Appendix C.

Featured sources:

Focused Inquiry, cont’d

Argument
After analyzing various sources to answer the supporting questions and discussing their thinking with the class, students will write a brief response to the compelling question.

Drawing from their research on the elected officials who represent them and what their positions are on key issues, students will write a brief response to the compelling question, Which of your elected officials has the most impact on your day-to-day life? Student responses should include a claim, evidence, reasoning, and cite specific information from sources, including a connection to a key ideal.

Taking Informed Action:
Option 1: Have each student write a letter to an elected official about a key issue that they have researched and are passionate about. Students should include what action they would like their representative to take on the issue. Students should include supporting evidence, reasoning, and cite specific information from sources.

Option 2: Students host a registration drive for future voters at their school and or local community.

Option 3: Create a Storyboard to serve as a Public Service Announcement about the importance of being an informed voter, knowing who your elected officials are and their stances on key issues, and early sign up for future voters.

Informational pages from the statewide Voters’ Pamphlet are available at the end of this book should you wish to use them to supplement lessons.
Launch: Elected Offices

For each task and question, write down all your ideas. Be prepared to share and discuss with a partner.

1. Review the Elected Offices handouts. Work in pairs to find the qualifications listed for the federal and state elected offices as stated in the U.S. Constitution and the Washington State Constitution. For local elected offices, search online for your county’s Candidate Guide or Candidate Manual.

2. Select from the list on the handout and answer the following question. If you could run for any public office, which would you run for and why? Select one for each level of government: Federal, State, and Local.
   A. Federal:
   B. State:
   C. Local (county, city, town, or school board):

3. With your partner, take turns sharing and discussing your answers to each question above. Next, brainstorm and share with your partner three current issues impacting Washingtonians today that you think are important. What actions do you want your elected representative to take? Make sure to capture below answers from your partner:

Use it when: You need an in-depth article related to American politics.

These ad-free, nonpartisan articles address current political issues. But watch out! The articles aren’t written for kids, and the site gets really in depth! But they’re really clear about the truth (or falsehood) of what people are saying.

PolitiFact  http://www.politifact.com

Use it when: You need a quick look at a political story, quote, or claim.

The Truth-O-Meter gives a quick look at the truth (or falsehood) of claims from politicians and media outlets. The scale goes from True to Pants-on-Fire, with the option to read more.

Snopes  http://www.snopes.com

OpenSecrets.org  http://www.opensecrets.org

Use it when: You feel like the phrase "follow the money" seems like a good idea.

This site tracks the influence of money in politics. It’s definitely aimed at advanced readers, but there’s lots of interesting info about who’s spending money to influence politicians and voters.

Internet Archive: Wayback Machine  https://archive.org

Use it when: You wish you could turn back the clock on the internet.

This one isn’t actually a fact-checking site. Instead, it’s a tool you can use yourself, to fact-check things you find online. Like an internet time machine, this site lets you see how a website looked, and what it said, at different points in the past. You won’t find everything here, but there’s still a lot to discover.

Program Eligibility

Participants must meet all of the following requirements in order to register to vote:

- Be at least 16 years old
- A U.S. Citizen
- Legal resident of Washington state

How To

Online

Scan the QR code or visit VoteWA.gov. Registrants will need a current Washington state driver’s license or ID card. If they do not have state-issued identification, registration can be made using a paper form.

Completed Registration Forms

Paper registration forms must be returned to an elections office at least eight (8) days prior to election day, and no later than five (5) business days after completion. Paper forms submitted after the eight-day deadline will not take effect until the next election.

Note: Rewards such as class credit, prizes, or gifts may not be offered in exchange for registering to vote.

August Primary

November General

A 17-year-old who will be 18 by the November General Election can vote in the August Primary.

Vote By Mail in Washington state

All eligible voters are sent a ballot at least 18 days before election.

Ballot has pre-paid postage and can be returned by U.S. mail or placed in an official ballot drop box. If mailed, must be postmarked by election day. Drop boxes are open until 8 p.m. on election day.

The security envelope or sleeve is put in a return envelope and signed. Voter may add email or phone number in case county needs to contact them.

Voter places marked ballot into a security envelope or sleeve.

Drop boxes are regularly emptied by teams of trained election staff. Ballots are tracked from collection through processing.

At processing facility ballots are sorted into batches. An image of the voter’s signature is captured for verification.

Signature is checked against voter registration record. Voter is contacted by available means before processing to “cure” signature if it is missing or doesn’t match the voter registration record.

Return envelope is opened and security envelope or sleeve is removed.

Voters can check their ballot status online. Allow 3–4 days for the system to post status updates.

When signature is verified, ballot is marked as “Accepted” in the VoteWA system and the voter is credited for participating, ensuring that if more than one ballot is returned, only one is counted.

Security envelope or sleeve is opened and ballot is removed for processing, resulting in secrecy of the vote.

Ballot is reviewed for potential scanning issues like torn corners, then scanned and securely stored.

Scanners are not connected to any form of network or internet.

Ballots continue to be processed, cured, and tabulated until certification.

At 8 p.m. on election night, ballots that have already been scanned are tabulated and results reported.

The election is complete, and preparations for the next election cycle begin.
