To secure these rights, governments are instituted, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed.

Sec. 4. All persons have a natural and indefeasible right to worship God according to the dictates of their own consciences. No person shall be compelled to attend, erect, or support any place of worship, against his consent; and no preference shall be given by law to any religious society; nor shall any interference with the rights of conscience be permitted. No religious test shall be required as a qualification for office; nor shall any person be incompetent to be a witness on account of his opinions on matters of religion; but nothing herein shall be construed to dispense with oaths or affirmations; but the liberty of conscience hereby secured shall not be construed so as to excuse acts of licentiousness, or practices inconsistent with the peace or safety of the state.

Hereafter a grand jury shall consist of seven persons, any five of whom, concurring, may find an indictment; provided, the legislature may change, regulate, abolish or re-establish the grand jury system.

Sec.9. Every person in the state shall be entitled to a certain remedy in the law, for all wrongs and injuries which he may receive in his person, character or property; justice shall be administered to all, freely, and without purchase; completely, and without denial; promptly and without delay; and all Courts shall be open to the publics.

Sec. 21. Treason against the state shall consist only in levying war against the same, or in adhering to its enemies, giving them aid and comfort; and no person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on his own confession in open court.

The legislature shall provide by law for an enumeration of the inhabitants of the state, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, and at the end of every ten years thereafter; and at its first session after such enumeration, and after each enumeration made by authority of the United States, the legislature shall apportion and district anew the members of the Senate and House of Representatives, according to the number of inhabitants, excluding Indians not taxed and soldiers and officers of the United States army and navy.

Sec. 4. Elections for members of the legislature shall be held biennially. When vacancies occur in either house, the governor shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies.

Sec. 5. Senators shall be elected for the term of four years, and members of the House of Representatives for the term of two years, provided, that the members of both houses first elected shall hold their offices until the time fixed for the meeting of the second legislature, but no longer.

Sec. 6. Sec. 7. The first legislature shall divide the state into at least ten legislative districts, in each of which one senator and three representatives shall be elected at the general election then next ensuing; and the districts shall be of convenient contiguous territory, to be bounded by county, precinct or ward lines; and the number may be increased, but shall never exceed twenty. The legislative districts shall be numbered in regular series, and the senators chosen by odd-numbered districts shall go out of office at the expiration of the second year; and the senators chosen by the even-numbered districts shall go out of office at the expiration of the fourth year; and thereafter the senators shall be chosen for the term of four years.

Representatives shall hold their office for the term of two years. In all elections of representatives, after such division, each qualified elector may cast as many votes for one candidate as there are representatives to be elected in the district, or he may distribute the same, or equal parts thereof, among the candidates, as he shall see fit; and the candidate highest in votes shall be elected. But the legislature may at any time after the year eighteen hundred and ninety, adopt the system known as the preferential system, in the election of representatives, and enact such laws as will be necessary to carry it into effect. The terms of office of senators and representatives, elected at any time subsequent to the first election, shall commence at the end of the term of those in office at the time.

Sec. 10. Each house shall have ^{power} to determine its rules of proceeding, and punish its members or other persons, for contempt or disorderly behavior in its presence: to enforce obedience to its process; to protect its members against violence, or offers of bribes, or private solicitations, and with the concurrence of two-thirds of all the members elected, to expel a member, but not a second time for the same cause; and shall have all other powers necessary for a coordinate branch of the legislature. A member, expelled for corruption, shall not thereafter be eligible to either branch of the same legislature; and punishment for contempt or disorderly behavior shall not bar a criminal prosecution for the same offense.

Sec. 11. The senate shall, at the beginning and close of each regular session, and at such other times as may be necessary, elect one of its members as President.

Sec. 12. Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings and may, in its discretion, from time to time, publish the same. Sect. 15. No bill, except for general appropriations, shall be passed, containing more than one subject, which shall be expressed in the title; but if any subject shall be embraced in any act, which shall not be expressed in the title, such act shall be void only as to so much thereof as shall not be so expressed.

Sect. 16. Every bill (except one recommended by the governor as aforesaid, and except a general revision of the statutes) shall be read at length at least once in each house; all substantial amendments thereto shall be printed for the use of the members before final vote on the bill; and no bill shall become a law unless a majority of all the members elected to each house shall vote in its favor; nor unless, on its final passage, the vote be taken by ayes and nays, and entered on the journal.

Sect. 17. No law shall be revised or amended by reference to its title alone, but as much thereof as is revised or extended shall be re-enacted and published at length as amended. Sec.18. The presiding officer of each house shall, in the presence of the house over which he presides, sign all bills and joint resolutions passed by the legislature, the title of which shall be publicly read immediately before signing; and the fact of signing shall be entered on the journal.

Sec.19. The legislature shall prescribe by law the number, duties and compensation of the officers and employees of each house, and no payment shall be made to any officer or employee, who does not discharge his duties in person.

Sec.20. The legislature shall provide by law that all stationery required for the use of the state; and all printing and binding authorized and required by them to be done for their use or for the state, shall be let by contract to the lowest bidder; but the legislature may establish a maximum price. No member or officer of any department of the government shall be in any way interested in any such contract.

Sec. 28. Every order, resolution or vote, to which the concurrence of both houses may be necessary, except on the question of adjournment, or relative solely to the transaction of the business of the two houses, shall be presented to the governor for his approval; if he disapprove, he shall return it with his objections, to the house in which it originated, when it shall take the course prescribed in case of a bill

Sec. 29. A member who has a private interest in any bill proposed or pending before the legislature shall disclose the fact to the house of which he is a member, and shall not vote thereon.

Sec. 30. The legislature shall direct by law in what manner and in what courts suits may be brought against the state.

Article VII Executive

Section 1. The supreme executive power of the state shall be vested in a governor, who shall hold his office for four years, and shall not be eligible to the office for the next succeeding term.

Sec. 2. No person shall be eligible to the office of governor unless he is a citizen of the United States, and shall have attained the age of thirty years, and has been for three years next preceding his election an inhabitant of the state.

Sect. 3. The governor shall be elected by the qualified electors of the state, at the general election next preceding the expiration of an executive term. The returns of every election for governor shall be sealed up and transmitted to the secretary of state, directed to the speaker of the House of Representatives, who shall, immediately upon the organization of the house, and before proceeding to other business, open and publish the same, in the presence of a majority of both houses of the legislature, who shall, for that purpose, assemble in the House of Representatives. The person having the highest number of votes for said office shall be declared duly elected. But if two or more have an equal and the highest number of votes for the same office, one of them shall immediately be chosen thereto by the two houses on joint ballot, and shall be declared duly elected governor.

Contested elections for governor shall be determined by the two houses of the legislature, on joint ballot, in such manner as shall be prescribed by law.

Sect. 4. The governor shall be commander-in-chief of the military and naval forces of the state. He shall have power to convene the legislature on extraordinary occasions, by proclamation, stating the purposes for which it is assembled. But at such session, no business shall be transacted other than that specially named in the proclamation; and in case of invasion, or insurrection, or danger from the prevalence of contagious disease at the seat of government, he may convene it at any other place in the state. He shall transact all necessary business - civil and military. He shall expedite all such measures as shall be resolved upon by the legislature, and shall see that the laws are faithfully executed.

Sec. 5. The governor shall have power to grant reprieves, commutations and pardons after conviction, for all offenses except treason, upon such conditions, and with such ^{restrictions} and limitations, as may be provided by law. Upon conviction of any person for treason, he shall have power to suspend the execution of the sentence until the case shall be reported to the legislature at its next meeting, when the legislature shall either pardon, or commute the sentence, direct its execution, or grant a further reprieve. The governor shall communicate to the legislature, at each regular session, every case of reprieve, commutation or pardon granted, stating the name of the convict, the crime of which he was convicted, the sentence and its date, and the date of the commutation, pardon or reprieve with his reasons for granting the same.

Sec. 6. In case of the failure to qualify, removal from office, death, resignation, absence from the state, or other disability of the governor, the powers, duties and emoluments of the office, for the residue of the term, or until the disability be removed, shall devolve upon the president of the senate; and if there be no president of the senate, or if, for any of the above-named cause, he shall become incapable of performing the duties of governor, the office shall devolve upon the speaker of the house of representatives, with like powers, duties and emoluments, for the residue of the term, or until the disability shall be removed.

If he approve, he shall sign it; ^{to the house in which it originated which house shall enter the objections} but, if not, he shall return the same, with his objections, at large upon its journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of the members elected to that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall also be reconsidered; and, if approved by two-thirds of the members elected to that house, it shall become a law. In all such cases, the vote of each house shall be determined by ayes and noes, to be entered on their respective journals. If any bill shall not be returned by the governor within five days (Sundays excepted), after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall become a law, unless the legislature, by its adjournment, prevent its return, in which case it shall be filed, with his objections, in the office of the secretary of state, within ten days after such adjournment, or else become a law.

Sec. 8. The governor may require information in writing, from the officers of the administrative and military departments of the state, upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices; which information shall be given upon oath whenever so required. He may also require information in writing at any time, under oath from all officers and managers of state institutions. The governor shall, at the commencement of each session, and from time to time, by message, give to the legislature, information of the condition of the state; and shall recommend such measures as he shall deem expedient. He shall also send to the legislature, at the beginning of each session, a statement of all moneys of the state, expended by him or under his direction; and, at the same time, present estimates of the amount of monies required to be raised by taxation for all State expenditures.

Article VIII Judicial

No judicial officer shall exercise his office after he shall be impeached until his acquittal. Before the trial of an impeachment, the members of the court shall take an oath or affirmation, truly and impartially to try the impeachment according to the evidence; and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members elected.

Judgement, in cases of impeachment, shall not extend further than removal from office, or removal from office and disqualification to hold any office of honor, profit or trust under the state; but this shall not prevent the officer from being prosecuted and punished in the courts according to law.

Sect. 2. The judicial power of the state, both as to matters of law and equity, shall be vested in a supreme court; circuit courts; probate courts; justices of the peace, and such inferior municipal courts as may be provided by law.

Sect. 3. The supreme court, except in cases otherwise provided in this constitution, shall have appellate jurisdiction in all chancery causes, and jurisdiction in all actions at law, civil and criminal, upon writs of error, which shall be co-extensive with the state; but in no case removed to the supreme court, shall a trial by jury be allowed. The supreme court shall have a general superintending control over all inferior courts, under such regulations and limitations as may be prescribed by law; it shall have power to issue writs of habeas corpus, mandamus, injunction, quo warranto, certiorari, and other original and remedial writs, and to hear and determine the same.

Sect. 4. For the term of four years and thereafter, until the legislature shall otherwise provide, the judges of the several circuit courts shall be ex officio judges of the supreme court, a majority of whom shall constitute a quorum; and a concurrence of a majority of the judges present shall be necessary to a decision; provided, that in the event the court shall be equally divided in opinion, the cause shall be continued for re-argument; and if upon reargument, the court shall again be equally divided in opinion the judgement below shall be affirmed. The legislature shall have power, after the expiration of said term, to provide by law for the organization of a separate supreme court, with the jurisdiction and powers prescribed by this constitution, to consist of one chief justice and two associate justices to be appointed by the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the senate. The supreme court, when so organized, shall not be changed or discontinued by the legislature; the judges thereof shall be so classified that but one of them shall go out of office at the same time; and their terms of office shall be the same as is provided for judges of the circuit courts.

Sec. 5. The state shall be divided into three judicial circuits, to be composed as follows: The first circuit shall comprise all that portion of the state lying east of the summit of the cascade mountains, except the county of Klickitat. The second circuit shall comprise the counties of Chehalis, Clark, Cowlitz, Klickitat, Lewis, Mason, Pacific, Skamania, Thurston and Wahkiakum. The third circuit shall comprise the counties of Clallam, Island, Jefferson, King, Kitsap, Pierce, San Juan, Snohomish and Whatcom.

Sec. 6. The legislature may alter the limits, or increase the number, of circuits, making them as convenient and compact as practicable, and bounding them thereby county lines; but no such alteration or increase shall have the effect to remove a judge from office.

In case of an increase of circuits, the judge or judges shall be elected, as provided in this constitution, and receive a salary not less than that provided for judges of the circuit court.

Sec. 7. For each circuit there shall be a judge chosen by the qualified electors therein, who shall hold his office as is provided in this constitution. One of the judges shall be designated as chief justice, by the governor by and with the advice and consent of the senate. The judge first chosen under this constitution, shall be elected at the first general election provided herein for members of the legislature; and shall hold their office for the term of four years. The legislature shall, at its first session, provide by law, as well for the election of, as for classifying, the judges to be thereafter elected in such manner that one of said judges shall go out of office in two years, one in four years, and the remaining judge or judges in six years; and thereafter the judge or judges elected to fill the office shall hold the same for six years.

Sec. 8.
