Thank you for visiting the Puyallup School District's Karshner Museum and Center for Culture and Arts.

Please visit us again.

1:00pm - 4:00pm Monday - Friday (When school is in session.) September 8, 2015 - June 23, 2016

Please connect to the Karshner Museum website to continue to explore images and information from our galleries for extended learning.

You can find us at www.puyallup.k12.wa.us Look for us under "programs." With your smart phone, use the QR to go directly to our site.

Office of the Secretary of State & Legacy Washington Present at the

Ν	lame)
1)	anic	i

The Legacy of the People who Made Washington State

After suffering failed crops in Sweden. I left my homeland in the mass exodu	s of 1877.	Who am I?	,

I am one of	the only white	e men to eve	r be
What living I	egacy did I le	eave behind?
deal to docu		n life along tl	c after clinching a he the route of the
What work a	ınd living lega	acy did I leav	e behind?

I believed in the people of the Washington Territory stating, "These active pushing immigrants, the best blood of the older states, are leveling the forests, they are delving in the mines, tunneling the mountains, they are toiling in the grain fields, they are building cities, towns and villages, filling the heavens with the 'shining towers of religion and civilization."

Who am I? _

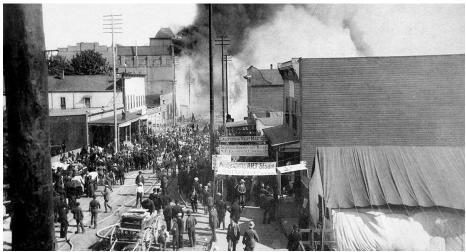

Photograph courtesy Washington State Library.

How does this photograph confirm information you already knew?

What new ideas did you get from this photograph that extended your thinking in a new direction?

Primary Sources -

Photograph courtesy of Museum of History and Industry.

What are the facts/events?	What might the people be feeling / thinking?
Write a headline for this photo	ograph.

I later wrote a letter to delegates demanding that I be exempt from taxes. What was my rationale and do you agree with me Why or why not?
I was a delegate at the Washington Constitutional Convention where I chaired the Judiciary Committee, penned the judiciar article and drew a hardline with railroads regarding tidelands? Who am I?
In 1904, in defense of Filipinos, I stated, "Liberty knows no clime, no color, no race, no creed." Do you think this stateme is consistent with the actions I took in 1888 when I authored Harland v. Territory, the decision that struck down a law giving women the right to vote? Why or why not?

I advocated delaying Washington statehood until woman were granted equal voting rights. Who am I?

At the age of 31, I was the only delegate who participated in the Washington Constitutional Convention who was born in Washington Territory. The other delegates came from California, the Midwest, Canada, Scotland and Germany. Who am I?

Finding Clues to the Past

Using Photographs & Artifacts to Discover History

When examining a photograph consider:

- 1. What is happening in the picture? What is the subject?
- 2. Who took the photo and why? Where do you think the photographer is standing?
- 3. What is the setting?
- 4. Who are the people in the picture? What are they wearing? What are they doing? What are they feeling?
- 5. Based on your analysis of the people pictured, is there anything you can guess about their lives?
- 6. Are there machines or tools pictured? If so, what kind?
- 7. What might have happened just before and just after this picture was taken?

Tips:

- •Be sure you look at all four corners of the photograph.
- •Look at both the background and the foreground.
- •Describe the photograph by starting with the general and then get more specifc.

Questions courtesy of the Museum of History and Industry - Seattle, Washington

Looking at Artifacts

Look at the artifacts in the display case. Use the questions on page two to help you become familiar with the artifact and determine it's purpose. Do you see these artifacts being used in any of the exhibit panels?

Sketch at least two artifacts and make notes regarding how it was made, what it was made from and it's purpose.

Vocabulary

Determine the meaning of the following words based on their usage in the exhibit text. Later include the dictionary definition.

Ratify:
Definition:
Referendum:
Definition:
Populists:
Definition:
Convention:
Definition:
Lobbyist:
Definition:

When examining an artifact as a primary source think about:

- 1. What materials is it made out of?
- 2. What color is it?
- 3. What is it's shape and size?
- 4. Describe any moving parts.
- 5. Describe any word, symbols or other markings.
- 6. Is there anything else you noticed?

Draw conclusions:

- 1. How might this artifact have been created?
- 2. Why was this artifact created? What was it designed to do?
- 3. Who might have used this artifact?
- 4. When and where might this artifact have been used?
- 5. Is this artifact still used today? If not, what has replaced it?
- 6. What does this artifact tell us about life in Washington at the time it was created?

Photograph courtesy of Museum of History and Industry

Finding Clues to the Past

Using Artifacts to Discover History

When examining an artifact as a primary source think about:

- 1. What materials is it made out of?
- 2. What color is it?
- 3. What is it's shape and size?
- 4. Describe any moving parts.
- 5. Describe any word, symbols or other markings.
- 6. Is there anything else you noticed?

Draw conclusions:

- 1. How might this artifact have been created?
- 2. Why was this artifact created? What was it designed to do?
- 3. Who might have used this artifact?
- 4. When and where might this artifact have been used?
- 5. Is this artifact still used today? If not, what has replaced it?
- 6. What does this artifact tell us about life in Washington at the time it was created?

Photograph courtesy of Museum of History and Industry

Finding Clues to the Past

Using Artifacts to Discover History

When examining an artifact as a primary source think about:

- 1. What materials is it made out of?
- 2. What color is it?
- 3. What is it's shape and size?
- 4. Describe any moving parts.
- 5. Describe any word, symbols or other markings.
- 6. Is there anything else you noticed?

Draw conclusions:

- 1. How might this artifact have been created?
- 2. Why was this artifact created? What was it designed to do?
- 3. Who might have used this artifact?
- 4. When and where might this artifact have been used?
- 5. Is this artifact still used today? If not, what has replaced it?
- 6. What does this artifact tell us about life in Washington at the time it was created?

Photograph courtesy of Museum of History and Industry

When examining an artifact as a primary source think about:

- 1. What materials is it made out of?
- 2. What color is it?
- 3. What is it's shape and size?
- 4. Describe any moving parts.
- 5. Describe any word, symbols or other markings.
- 6. Is there anything else you noticed?

Draw conclusions:

- 1. How might this artifact have been created?
- 2. Why was this artifact created? What was it designed to do?
- 3. Who might have used this artifact?
- 4. When and where might this artifact have been used?
- 5. Is this artifact still used today? If not, what has replaced it?
- 6. What does this artifact tell us about life in Washington at the time it was created?

Photograph courtesy of Museum of History and Industry

Finding Clues to the Past

Using Photographs & Artifacts to Discover History

When examining a photograph consider:

- 1. What is happening in the picture? What is the subject?
- 2. Who took the photo and why? Where do you think the photographer is standing?
- 3. What is the setting?
- 4. Who are the people in the picture? What are they wearing? What are they doing? What are they feeling?
- 5. Based on your analysis of the people pictured, is there anything you can guess about their lives?
- 6. Are there machines or tools pictured? If so, what kind?
- 7. What might have happened just before and just after this picture was taken?

Tips:

- •Be sure you look at all four corners of the photograph.
- •Look at both the background and the foreground.
- •Describe the photograph by starting with the general and then get more specifc.

Questions courtesy of the Museum of History and Industry - Seattle, Washington

Pg. 1

Historical Poetry

THEY ARE COMING. More Truth Than Poetry on a Sensible Subject.

The Home-Seekers and Their Flight to the Laud of Promise in the Far Pacific Northwest.

They are coming from the deserts of the dim and dusty east, where to raise a stunted turnip gives the prospect of a feast; where the farms are made of gravel and they plow with dynamite; where the festive chattel mortgage sings its dirges day and night. They are coming on their wagens; they are coming on the train; they are coming from the regions where they've struggled long in vain. They are coming from the cabin; they are coming from the hall; they are coming out to Washington, where there's plenty for them all.

They are coming from the southland; they are coming from the north—from the valleys and the mountains they in droves are coming forth; they are coming with with their husbands; they are coming with their wives; they are coming with their hammers, with their needles and their knives; with their harrows and their planters, and their pencils and their guns; they are coming with their fathers, and their mothers and their sons. They are coming stout and alender; they are coming short and tall; they are coming out to Washington, where there's plenty for them all.

This poem, which speaks of the rapid population growth in Washington Territory, was published in the Yakima Herald on April 4, 1889.

Do you think that poetry is an effective way to describe historical events? Why or why not?

Think of a current event that's taking place today either in your hometown, in Washington state or in our country that you could best describe with poetry? What would it be?

Compose a short poem to describe your current event.