

RENEW Washington: Camas

Resources at the Camas Library to help you find a job from the Washington State Library funded by the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation and the Institute of Museum and Library Services.

Job Searching & Employment Ads

Online:

Below is a list of job searching sites, all of which are free to the public. Most will require you to create an account. Once you have done so, you can post resumes, receive emails about job opportunities and search thousands of job listings. There are many articles on careers, job outlooks in lots of industries, links to upcoming career fairs in your area, and much more! The following list includes the biggest general all-purpose national job search sites plus some regional and other specialty sites:

CareerBuilder at www.careerbuilder.com is the biggest of the national job search sites

CareerCast at www.careercast.com is another of the big sites, which derives its listings from newspapers, magazines, TV stations. Etc, across the US and Canada

Career One-Stop at www.careeronestop.org is a large mega site sponsored by the US Dept. of Labor.

GovtJobs at www.govtjobs.com is a mega search site to help find municipal jobs at every level (state, county, city, etc).

Job-Hunt at www.job-hunt.org another large site along the lines of CareerBuilder.

Jobdango at www.jobdango.com is specifically for searching jobs in the Pacific Northwest.

JobWeb at www.jobweb.com is geared toward recent college graduates.

Monster.com www.monster.com is probably the most well-known of the big job search sites.

SnagAJob at www.snagajob.com is geared toward people seeking hourly and part-time work.

State Government Jobs at www.50statejobs.com/gov.html links to the personnel departments of all 50 state governments.

USAJobs at www.usajobs.gov is the official site for finding federal government jobs.

Washington Employment Web Pages at www.washjob.com is strictly for Washington jobs, though more heavily oriented toward the Seattle area.

Workforce50 at www.workforce50.com is a job search and recruitment site for people age 50 and up.

Want even more ideas? Quintcareers website has a list of the top 50 job search sites at http://www.quintcareers.com/top\_50\_sites.html .

The Old-Fashioned Newspapers

At the reference desk you can also find the weekly want ads from:

The Columbian

The Oregonian (also found online at www.oregonlive.com/jobs )

The Seattle Times (also online through <http://marketplace.nwsourc.com/jobs/> )

The Employment Guide (also online at www.portland.employmentguide.com )

Books

351.7302 GUIDE 2009 Guide to America's Federal Jobs: a Complete Directory of U.S. Government Career Opportunities.