

Washington Reads, Fall 2010

Memorable Reads: A final chapter from
Jan Walsh, Washington State Librarian

As I close my chapter as State Librarian, and create this final installment of Washington Reads, I wanted to highlight the best selections from a truly remarkable body of literature. These wonderful books made a lasting impression on me and the state. Let us continue celebrating this state's remarkable reads by seeking out books that tell exceptional stories about Washington's people and places.

Jan Walsh, State Librarian, August 2010

Where Do I Sleep?: A Pacific Northwest Lullaby

by Jennifer Blomgren (Children)

Seaman's Journal: On the Trail with Lewis and Clark

by Patti Reeder Eubank (Children)

The Absolutely True Diary of a Part-Time Indian

by Sherman Alexie (Young Adult)

Twilight

by Stephenie Meyer (Young Adult)

The Highest Tide: A Novel

by Jim Lynch (Young Adult)

Snow Falling on Cedars

by David Guterson (Adult)

Hotel on the Corner of Bitter and Sweet

by Jamie Ford (Adult)

Folly

by Laurie King (Adult)

Mary Randlett Landscapes

by Mary Randlett (Adult)

In Full View

by Rex Ziak (Adult)

Mount Baker overlooking the Puget Sound

Washington Reads, Fall 2010

Memorable Reads: A final chapter from
Jan Walsh, Washington State Librarian

As I close my chapter as State Librarian, and create this final installment of Washington Reads, I wanted to highlight the best selections from a truly remarkable body of literature. These wonderful books made a lasting impression on me and the state. Let us continue celebrating this state's remarkable reads by seeking out books that tell exceptional stories about Washington's people and places.

Jan Walsh, State Librarian, August 2010

Where Do I Sleep?: A Pacific Northwest Lullaby

by Jennifer Blomgren (Children)

Seaman's Journal: On the Trail with Lewis and Clark

by Patti Reeder Eubank (Children)

The Absolutely True Diary of a Part-Time Indian

by Sherman Alexie (Young Adult)

Twilight

by Stephenie Meyer (Young Adult)

The Highest Tide: A Novel

by Jim Lynch (Young Adult)

Snow Falling on Cedars

by David Guterson (Adult)

Hotel on the Corner of Bitter and Sweet

by Jamie Ford (Adult)

Folly

by Laurie King (Adult)

Mary Randlett Landscapes

by Mary Randlett (Adult)

In Full View

by Rex Ziak (Adult)

Mount Baker overlooking the Puget Sound

Washington Reads, Fall 2010

Memorable Reads: A final chapter from
Jan Walsh, Washington State Librarian

As I close my chapter as State Librarian, and create this final installment of Washington Reads, I wanted to highlight the best selections from a truly remarkable body of literature. These wonderful books made a lasting impression on me and the state. Let us continue celebrating this state's remarkable reads by seeking out books that tell exceptional stories about Washington's people and places.

Jan Walsh, State Librarian, August 2010

Where Do I Sleep?: A Pacific Northwest Lullaby

by Jennifer Blomgren (Children)

Seaman's Journal: On the Trail with Lewis and Clark

by Patti Reeder Eubank (Children)

The Absolutely True Diary of a Part-Time Indian

by Sherman Alexie (Young Adult)

Twilight

by Stephenie Meyer (Young Adult)

The Highest Tide: A Novel

by Jim Lynch (Young Adult)

Snow Falling on Cedars

by David Guterson (Adult)

Hotel on the Corner of Bitter and Sweet

by Jamie Ford (Adult)

Folly

by Laurie King (Adult)

Mary Randlett Landscapes

by Mary Randlett (Adult)

In Full View

by Rex Ziak (Adult)

Mount Baker overlooking the Puget Sound

Washington Reads, Fall 2010

Memorable Reads: A final chapter from
Jan Walsh, Washington State Librarian

As I close my chapter as State Librarian, and create this final installment of Washington Reads, I wanted to highlight the best selections from a truly remarkable body of literature. These wonderful books made a lasting impression on me and the state. Let us continue celebrating this state's remarkable reads by seeking out books that tell exceptional stories about Washington's people and places.

Jan Walsh, State Librarian, August 2010

Where Do I Sleep?: A Pacific Northwest Lullaby

by Jennifer Blomgren (Children)

Seaman's Journal: On the Trail with Lewis and Clark

by Patti Reeder Eubank (Children)

The Absolutely True Diary of a Part-Time Indian

by Sherman Alexie (Young Adult)

Twilight

by Stephenie Meyer (Young Adult)

The Highest Tide: A Novel

by Jim Lynch (Young Adult)

Snow Falling on Cedars

by David Guterson (Adult)

Hotel on the Corner of Bitter and Sweet

by Jamie Ford (Adult)

Folly

by Laurie King (Adult)

Mary Randlett Landscapes

by Mary Randlett (Adult)

In Full View

by Rex Ziak (Adult)

Mount Baker overlooking the Puget Sound