WORDS OF WISDOM

Whatever you dislike in another person, take care to correct in yourself by the gentle reproof.

The memory is a treasure, to whom we must give tidals if we would draw the assistance we need.

Those who without knowing us, think or speak evil of us, do us no harm; it is not us they attack, but the phantom of their own imagination.

Mental pleasures never come, unlike those of the body, they are increased by repetition, approved by reflection, and strengthened by enjoyment.

The only gratification a covetous man gives his neighbors is, to let them see that he himself is as little better for what he has as they are.

Pastime is a word that should never be used but in a bad sense; it is vile to say a thing is agreeable because it helps to pass the time away.

There is little pleasure in the world that is true and sincere beside the pleasure of doing our duty and doing good; I am sure no other is comparable to this.

He seldom lives frugally, who lives by chance. Hope is always liberal, and little that trust her promises make little scruple of revealing to-day on the profits of to-morrow.

Men of noble birth, are noted to be envious towards new men that rise; for the distance is altered and it is like a deceit of the eye, that when others come on they think themselves go back.

Pride, ill-nature and want of sense are the three great sources of ill-nature; without some one of these defects, no man will behave himself ill for want of experience, or what, in the language of fools, is called knowing the world.

One watch set right will do to try many; but, on the other hand, one that goes wrong may be the means of misleading a whole neighborhood; and the same may be said of the example we individually set to those around us.

A faithful and true friend is a living treasure, inestimable in possession and deeply to be lamented when gone. Nothing is more common than to talk of a friend; nothing more difficult than to find one; nothing more rare than to improve by one as we ought.

Such is the encouragement given to flattery, in the present times, that it is made to sit in the parlor, while honesty is turned out of doors. Flattery is never so agreeable as to our blind side; commend a fool for his wit, or a knave for his honesty, and they will receive you into their bosom.

HE FIXED HIM WITH HIS GLITTERING EYE.

It was in a Madison street car, and every seat was occupied, when a sickly-looking woman entered with her babe.

"Room for the lady; make way there, please," said the conductor, and the crowded passengers pulled backward on the straps to let her into the aisle.

Only one man was sitting, and all the other men, and the ladies, too, looked as if they expected him to rise. But he didn't—not just then. He was a big, stout fellow, in a great, heavy coat, and he had a good-natured snub nose and a dimple in his fat chin, and all the other passengers voted him a very selfish fellow, not half so good-natured as he looked.

After a while they began making uncomplimentary remarks, but he didn't appear to notice them, and he continued to take as much comfort as circumstances would permit. Just as the men on the platform had grown so indignant that one or two advised the conductor to "throw him out," a cheery, little, nervous man, with a long black mustache, and a Bon-Brother eye, jumped on the car. "What's the matter?"

"What's the matter?" he briskly inquired. And then, on being informed, he slapped his hand on a school-boy's shoulder and triumphantly exclaimed: "Gentlemen, I'll fix him. Let me set my eye on him and if he stands it he's more than mortal. It's a glass eye and its too big for the place it's in, but I won't have no other, not me. Many's the time I got a seat in a railroad train all on account of this eye, and if you just watch me you'll see how I do it."

He crowded in until he got beside the fat man. These he fixed his awful eye. It was enough to make an ordinary man nervous, so big and staring and glassy was it. But the fat man didn't move. He winked regularly and smiled serenely, and, indeed, seemed to enjoy returning the dead eye's stare.

The glass-eyed man tried numerous dodges. He closed his good eye and opened the other very wide. He poked his head down to within a few inches of the nose of the fat man while pretending to pick up an advertising card. He got red in the face and excited, and made some of the more recent additions to the passenger list think him an escaped lunatic, but without effect upon the dimpled personation of selfishness. Some of the spectators laughed, and then the glass-eyed man got mad. "By the great high jinks!" he began, but he stopped, for he noticed a laughing lady pull the fat man's sleeve. The fat man arose and followed her out as if in need of help. "He's my husband," said the lady, as she passed the astonished friend, "and he's a little deaf and entirely blind." "I'll never do it no more," said the friend. Then he swore he'd buy a green shade.—[Chicago Times.

To Sir Moses Montefiore the Hebrews of England owe more than they owe to Beconsfield. He will, if he lives, be 100 years old next year October 24th. His face has a look of great benevolence. He was knighted when he was Sheriff of London, in 1837, and was raised to the Baronetcy in 1846. It was he who was selected to secure the rights and lives of the Jews in Damascus in 1840, and he has undertaken several missions to other countries for the same purpose.

THE BAD BOY.

He wants to be a Millionaire or work Miracles. He don't care which.

"Well, I never see a boy change as you have," said the grocery man to the bad boy, as he came in with a poor dirty looking tramp, and bought him a pound of crackers and a big piece of cheese, and as the tramp sat down on a soap box and began to go through the folder as though it was a banquet, and the boy looked out of the window at the rain that was falling, the grocery man added, "What has got into you? You haven't got religion have you?"

"Naw, I guess not," said the boy, as he eyed a pickle out of a barrel to the tramp. "That is, I haven't got it by any regular rule, but maybe it is in my system. I tell you, old oleomargarine, I have always been in for fun, and I haven't cared much how I had it, but lately I have had more fun making people lumpy than I ever had making pa jump around. Don't you know if you see a person who is in hard luck, and thinks the world is all a fraud, and who almost wants to be run over by a freight train, and you go to work and surprise that person with a bit of kindness, smuggle a warm meal down him before he knows it, it makes your heart feel as though you had to loosen your belt? I never know there was so much suffering in the world until that humane society fellow hired me to go around with him to hold his horse while he relieved distress, but the woods are full of people who have no drawers to wear in winter, and who would faint away at sight of a roast of beef. Gosh, I wish I had a million dollars!"

"O, what would you do with a million dollars?" asked the grocery man, as he watched the tramp pick his teeth with a silver shill of the soap-box. "If you had a million dollars you would buy a dude suit of clothes, and a trotting wagon with red wheels, and a horse that could trot in two. And you would part your hair in the middle and wear yellow gloves and say 'g-lang.' That's the kind of a millionaire you would be."

"No, sir! You are no guesser," said the boy, as he gave the tramp a glass of cider. "I would buy out a bakery and a meat market, and when poor people hadn't anything to eat, I would invite them to call on Ikenry. Then I would take a hundred thousand dollars and go around paying a month's rent in advance for people. If some people knew they would not be bothered about paying rent for a month, they would be so happy they would ache. Then I would buy ten thousand pairs of red flannel drawers, regular old thick ones, all sizes, and sell them to poor people and take their notes for the pay. You see some people wouldn't like to have drawers given to them, but if you took their notes they would feel as though they bought the drawers, and then you could have a bonfire and burn up the notes. I had rather be able to work miracles

RHEUMATISM

Immediate Relief in All Cases by DR. RUSH'S BLOOD ROOT OIL!

CURED OF RHEUMATISM IN TWO HOURS. BUFFALO, N. Y., May 2, 1882. Dr. Rush's Medical Association:

Gentlemen - I have been troubled with rheumatism for two years. I have tried every advertised oil and liniment, and many first-class physicians without relief. The last doctor I consulted recommended Dr. Rush's Blood Root Oil. I purchased a large bottle for fifty cents and applied it in the manner directed. It relieved, and now I am entirely well. Its effects are wonderful, and I believe it the only thing in the world which will cure Rheumatism. Truly yours, JOHN HUTCHINSON, 50 Erie St., Buffalo, N. Y.

DR. RUSH'S BLOOD ROOT OIL. Has no equal in the world as a liniment or oil. It is a cheap, safe, simple and sure external remedy for rheumatism. It never fails to cure.

RHEUMATISM,

Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Backache, Spasms of the Gluteal Muscles, Gout, Rheumatism, Swellings and Sprains, Burns and Scalds, General Debility, Pains, Tooth, Ear and Headache, Frosted Feet and Aches. It is put up in two sizes. Price, 25 and 50 cents. Sold by druggists, or sent direct by Dr. Rush's Medical Association, Summit, N. Y., U. S. A.

HEART DISEASE

DR. RUSH'S REGULATOR FOR HEART TROUBLES.

Wm. G. Osgoodby, the well known safe manufacturer of Buffalo, Philadelphia, Pittsburg and Atlanta, Ga., says: (OFFICE OF OSGOODBY'S PATENT SAFES, 17 S. Broad St., Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 17, 1881.)

Dear Doctors - The three bottles of "Dr. Rush's Regulator" I ordered were received by express last week. I have taken about one bottle and am thoroughly satisfied with the result. For over two years I have been troubled with sharp pain at my heart, and have been unable to do any work. I have not been able to get any relief, and I have been advised to take a rest. I have taken the "Regulator" and I feel much better. I have not been able to get any relief, and I have been advised to take a rest. I have taken the "Regulator" and I feel much better. I have not been able to get any relief, and I have been advised to take a rest. I have taken the "Regulator" and I feel much better.

I am, gentlemen, very respectfully, W. M. G. OSGOODBY.

DR. RUSH'S REGULATOR

Has never failed to give relief. It has been used successfully for years in subduing the most stubborn cases of heart difficulties.
