Negotiable Instruments.

Chicago Legal News.

Judge Jones of the Court of Common Pleas at Cleveland, has recently decided a novel and interesting point of law respecting negotiable instruments. The suit was by the holder against the drawer of a check. The check was payable to order, duly indorsed in blank, and transferred to the plaintiff. On presentation the bank, drawee, demanded that the holder should also indorse it. This he refused to do, and thereupon had the check protested, and brought this suit. Judge Jones holds that the bank had no right to make such requirement, although it was proved that such was the local custom, and holds that the check was properly dishonored. A correspondent asks us if we think this good law. Our impression is that it is. The bank had nothing no right to demand the holder's indorsement as additional security, for it was bound to pay the deposit on the depositor's order. The indorsement would not be held to ascertain or guarantee the genuineness of the payee's indorsement in blank, but nothing more. We think Judge Jones is right when he says: "A bank is ordinarily presumed to know the signatures of its own customers and depositors; but it will not be seriously doubted that when a check is drawn on a bank, which is a stranger to the payee and his signature, the bank is entitled to a reasonable time in which to ascertain the genuineness of the indorsement, before paying a check payable to his order; and indeed some of the authorities seem to justify a bank or banker in calling on the holder of such a bill or check, when it is reasonable to do so, to furnish proof that the indorsement is the genuine one of the payee; but in this case neither of these things was required or asked; there was no demand by the bank for proof of the signature, nor for a reasonable delay to satisfy itself of the genuineness of the indorsement, but there was simply an absolute refusal to pay unless the person who who presented the check would indorse it. That this refusal to pay without such indorsement is not justified by commercial law, is, we think, perfectly clear; it is an attempt to limit the negotiability of such paper, and to fix terms and conditions for its payment not warranted by the law or by the drawer of the check, and to which neither he nor the holder is obliged to submit. The implied contract of a bank with its customers is to pay their checks according to the law merchant." In respect to the custom it may be said that it was merely local, contrary to the law merchant, and unavailing to protect the drawee, and therefore unreasonable. The custom of a bank is available for certain purposes, even where it is contrary to the law merchant, as, for example, where it is its custom to demand payment and give notice of non-payment on the next succeeding the third day of grace (Mills vs. Bank of the United States, 11 Wheat., 431) or to give notice by mail to indorsers residing in the place where the bank is situated, (Carolina National Bank vs. Wallace, 13 S. C., 347; S. C., 36 Am. Rep. 691). But these customs do not tend to change the contract of the bank, as the custom in question does. We take it that no custom of a contracting party can set up to excuse his non-fulfillment of his contract.

An adjourned session of the Supreme Court, Judge Greene and Hoyt present, and a sitting of the District Court in Chambers, were held in Olympia yesterday.

Motions for rehearing in the cases of Jackson vs. Holyoke and Brewster vs. Baxter, were denied.

The same motion was granted in the case of Munns vs. Schwabacher Bros. & Co., and the case continued for re-argument next July.

In two cases of the United States vs. N. P. R. R. Co., for cutting timber on Government land, a change of venue has been granted from the first to the second district. Motions of counsel to make complaint more definite and certain was granted, and a motion to strike out denied.

The next session of the District Court in Olympia will convene on the second Monday of December next.—Courier.

CLIPPINGS.

The Northern Pacific Railroad Company earned $2,764,519 during the year ending July 1, 1881, and 5,430,306 during the year ending July 1, 1882. It is now earning at the rate of nearly seven hundred thousand dollars a month, and a fair estimate of the gross earnings for the current year is $8,000,000. The earnings of next year will not be far from a million a month, or $12,000,000 for the year ending July 1, 1884.

G Morris Hailer and W. W. Wardell have gone into the sheep business to stay. They had before several bands of common animals, to which they have lately added a lot of full blooded Spanish Merinoes, theirs being the first considerable importation of these valuable animals to this section of the country. They have enough for their own purposes and to spare and are willing to let their neighbors share the ownership with them. In other words they have thoroughbred Merinoes for sale.—Post-Intelligencer.

Eleven school boys in Geneseo walked to Niagara Falls on August 4th, 1832, and agreed to meet there again, if living, in fifty years. Seven of them kept the promise, coming with their wives and children.

Winnemucca, the head chief of the Piute Indians, is dying. He is about 80 years old, and recently took a young wife. The Indians say the new wife has bewitched the old man, and if he dies they will kill her and the medicine man who attended him in his last illness.

A half pound baby was born in Harlem a few weeks ago, and christened the other day with the ponderous name of George Washington Krumm. Of course the proper thing to say is that the baby is a Krumm of comfort to his parents. The child was the talk of the neighborhood, and so many wanted to verify his weight that he came very near being half pounded to death.

An Augusta man, who has been enjoying a few weeks' leisure at Reed's Neck, recently donned his rubber boots, swung a pail over his shoulder on a hoe, and started out at high tide to dig clams. Not meeting with good success, he approached a settler's cabin, and inquired where he could find the clay bivalves. The squatters eyed him keenly for a moment, and then remarked: "Young man, I don't know much about city customs, but if you want to dig clams at flood tide you'll have to leave those parts to do it.

TWIN COMETS.—Prof. E. E. Barnard, of Nashville, Tenn., on the 14th inst., discovered a new comet located near the star Lambda, in the constellation of the Twins. His discovery was announced by telegraph to Mr. H. H. Warner, at the Warner Observatory, Rochester, N. Y., and almost at the same moment Prof. Lewis Swift, Director of the Warner Observatory, received intelligence that a large naked eye comet had been discovered in Rio Janeiro, South America. Prof. Barnard is the first person the present year to receive the Warner prize of $200. The fact that these two comets came into view at the time is exceedingly significant.

CANADIAN PACIFIC.—The tract on this road is now laid for 317 miles westward from Winnipeg, Manitoba, and construction trains run to Qu'Appelle. It is announced that the section between Thunder Bay and Winnipeg will not be opened for traffic this year. The track is all laid, but there is still some work to do in filling temporary trestels, ballasting, etc. Several parties are in the field, locating the line from Prince Arthur's Landing eastward through the country north of Lake Superior to Lake Nipissing. Work has begun on the grading from Prince Arthur's Landing to Nepigon. One line has been run from Nepigon by Pic River, Matamasaganie Lake, the White River Valley, Esnagunna Lake, Betanising and Dog Lake to Lake Minisabe.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The reduction of the public debt during the month of September is estimated at $16,000,000.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—The coinage at the mint during September was 877,880,880, of which one million was silver dollars.

PORTLAND, Or., Oct. 3.—The last rail of the Columbia division of the O. R. & N. Railroad was laid at 10:30 A. M., a few hundred yards above Multnomah Falls. A special train left the east side depot at 8:45, carrying about fifty prominent railroad officials, merchants and professional men, and proceeded to the point of junction, where they were met by a special train from Beaver Creek, Montana, bearing Chief Engineer Thielsen, the Northern Pacific Commissioners, Gen. J. W. Sprague and Gen. H. A. Morrow. Everything was in readiness, the last rail was laid, all the guests assisted in driving home the last spike, cheers were given with a will, and calls were made for Judge Deady, who made a splendid congratulatory speech. This was responded to on the part of the company by Hon. J. N. Dolph. The entire party then returned to East Portland. The road is already ballasted and in fine order, and forty miles an hour can be made with safety and comfort.

American Shipping.

The Congressional Joint Committee on shipping have issued a circular in which information is asked on all points concerning the subject of American shipping. The following is a copy of the circular:

Joint Committee on Shipping, etc.

—DEAR SIR: Please send me a response to the following inquires, and oblige:

First. Why cannot this country build iron, steel or wooden vessels as well and as cheap as they are built in Scotland, England and other countries?

Second. If we had such vessels without cost to us, could they be run by us in competition with those of other countries who build their own vessels and run them with their own officers and crews, without a modification or repeal of existing laws?

Third. What modification of existing laws, or what new laws are required to remove discriminations against and burdens upon our shipping and ship-owning interests, such as customs dues, port dues, Consular charges, pilotage, tonnage and other dues, etc.?

Fourth. Compare the laws of other countries with our own with a view to their effect upon our own and their shipping and shipowning interests?

Fifth. Should our navagation laws be repealed or modified, and if modified, wherein and for what purpose?

Sixth. What is the cost of the component materials of iron, steel or wooden vessels in other countries and our own?

Seventh. What would be the effect of a rebate on any or all of such matters?

Eighth. Present any other statements connected with the cause of the decline of the American foreign carrying trade, and what remedies can be applied by legislation.

The owners of the steamship Edom, sunk in collision with the Lapinte, have filed a libel in the United States District Court against the Lapinte for the recovery of $443,789.

The Cutavaco Cures
PITYRIASIS, or Dandruff, with which many are afflicted.
ALOPECIA, or Baldness, also depends upon a fungus destroying the roots of the hair. A spot may first arise where first inoculated, spreading in a circular form, and so enlarging by degrees that the whole hair is swept away, leaving a glistening scalp; or, the disease may first appear in various places. The hair is dull and lustreless and easily extracted, or it begins to fall, and progressing by degrees is soon lost unless remedied.
The Cutavaco will cause the hair to grow, because it at once destroys the offending cause which prevents; the hair is at once preserved, and the scalp and bulbs made healthy and vigorous. Parties from a distance need send the price of bottle with the order. Price 75 cents.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF JEFFERSON CO

ALLEN WEIR, Editor and Proprietor.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1882.

TELEGRAPHIC.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26. Beginning today, the 26th, and until further notice, the secretary of the treasury will pay any called bonds without rebate of interest at the rate of two million dollars per week. The announcement for the coming treasury relief started the stock market up, and prices advanced 1@1¼. It then began to be rumored that the treasury would get no bonds tomorrow, and the rise halted and prices declined a fraction.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26. The Post referring to the unusual stringency in money matters, says: It should be said that large lots of money were yesterday borrowed at fancy prices, which money was not used, that is no collaterals were put up and money not taken; all that was done by borrowers being to pay one day's interest for money and leave it in the hands of lenders. Something is being done today and it puts in clear light the fact that a good portion of the present stringency to artificial loans; a good reason why the treasury should act in the matter and grant relief, and says there will be ground for disappointment if Secretary Folger does not take this view of the subject.

BROWNSVILLE (Texas), Sept. 26.—Water is disappearing from the street. Five new cases of yellow fever and one death here. Nine new cases at Point Isabella today. Dr. Murray, of the Marine Hospital at Arroyo, Colorado, is perfecting the condition of communication with Matamoras. It will be opened under the supervision of the health officers. The fever in Matamoras is considered nearly over. One death reported since yesterday.

PANAMA, Sept. 26.—The earthquake killed only four persons on the Isthmus. One woman died from fright. The damage to property is not as great as was at first reported at Montaneros, destroying houses and crops only.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—The secretary of the navy received the following cable message from Minister Hunt:

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 27.—Gilder arrived here accompanied by Henry P. Wilson, of the Jeannette. Both are well.

WYTHEVILLE (Va.), Sept. 27.—During the session of the Baptist Association at Hampton cross roads, Sunday, two young men began a pistol combat in the church, causing a panic among the worshipers. Levi Bryson was fatally shot by Jerry Cox, but the latter finally succeeded in shooting Cox. Both died in the church. Many women were injured by being trampled upon during the melee.

SOUTH LEBANON (Ohio), Sept. 27.—Five persons entered an old boat yesterday to cross the Miami river. During a playful struggle for possession of the oars, the boat capsized and four of the party were drowned, named Newton and Ella Wallace, and Abraham and Belle Lucas.

REDFIELD (D. T.), Sept. 27.—A fire is raging in this county and has destroyed much farm property and threatens Redfield. Dr. H. M. Towne, formerly of Chicago, and Zachariah and John Farmerly, of Taylor Ridge, Ill., were surrounded by fire and attempted to run their teams through the flames, but the horses became frightened and turned suddenly, throwing two of the men to the ground. Towne's leg was broken, and in his helpless condition he was smothered and burned to a crisp. The other man escaped but was horribly burned.

MILFORD (Mass.), Sept. 27.—Professor Allen's balloon escaped this morning with the Professor in the basket. He had no anchor nor were the preparations for a journey complete, and the valves were not in working order. When last seen the balloon was passing Douglass, going southwest.

Later.—The balloon landed about two miles from Putnam—occupant all right.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 27.—A slight shock of earthquake was felt in this city this morning. In the central part of the city the shock was first noticed by a rumbling noise, followed by twelve distinct vibrations, at intervals of one second. The first vibration was the most violent. The shock lasted about fifteen seconds.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Engineer Melville had a long interview today with Secretary Chandler, and gave a detailed account of finding the bodies of DeLong and party. The private papers and journal of DeLong will be turned over to his wife.

PORTSMOUTH (N. H.), Sept. 27.—Crops in the greater part of New Hampshire and western Maine, with few exceptions, exceed those of the preceding year.

ADRIAN (Mich.), Sept. 27.—Hon. Fernando C. Beaman, member of Congress for the first district of this state, for five successive terms, died here this afternoon, aged 66.

ALEXANDRIA, Sept. 27.—The Manchester and Derbyshire regiments have been ordered to re-embark for India.

CAIRO, Sept. 27.—The ministers today agreed upon three decrees, which the Khedive will sign tomorrow, for the prosecution of all acts of rebellion committed by the military or civilians. The commission will consist of nine members who will be under the presidency of Ismail Beg.

The second decree orders a court martial with eight members, Rauf Pasha presiding, to be held in Cairo.

The third directs the assembling in Alexandria another court martial to try all cases submitted by tribunals recently appointed.

LONDON, Sept. 27. Fawcett, the postmaster general, while speaking at Hackney said: England has no selfish object. Her chief concern is to secure to the Egyptians the best government and the greatest amount of liberty possible. The abuses connected with the late control will be avoided in the future. The Egyptians will not have to submit to the injustice of an unduly large part of the revenues being appropriated by foreign officials.

OMAHA, Sept. 28.—The morning session of the National Women's Suffrage Association was devoted to the organization of campaign work. This afternoon Mrs. S. Pattuck, of Boston, and Susan B. Anthony made speeches. The convention closed with a reception, attended by the leading citizens. Many converts have been made, but it is doubtful if the movement will win this fall.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Washington specials say that one of the first acts of General Sherman yesterday, as Acting Secretary of War, was to sign an acceptance of the resignation of General Geo. Stoneman as Colonel on the retired list of the army.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 28.—The Board of Directors of the Veteran Association held a meeting today, and decided to purchase the Clark tract of land in Napa county as the site for a home.

Helmrich & Hansen, commission brokers, are reported to have failed for $150,000. Hansen was arrested this morning on a charge of grand larceny. He borrowed three checks yesterday, aggregating $55,000, from the Pacific Bank, and failed to return them. The whole transaction at present is in a state of obscurity.

CITY OF MEXICO, Sept. 28.—Cholera or cholera morbus has appeared in the city of Chiapis. Twenty-eight deaths occurred in a population of five thousand in one day. The Government has taken measures to prevent the spread of the epidemic by establishing quarantine. There is great alarm in the infected district.

LANCASTER, Ky., Sept. 28.—The coroner's inquest on the bodies of the men killed by the wreck of Sells Bros. developed the fact that Sell Bros. removed a number of brakes from the train in order to facilitate loading wagons, leaving only four, which were insufficient, so that in going down a heavy grade the train became unmanageable and ran at a rate of speed probably causing a spread of the rails. Three men were instantly killed, two fatally hurt and 12 are more or less seriously injured.

PORTLAND, Or., Sept. 28.—A fire this morning destroyed the dwellings of Mrs. J. Fisher and George Smith, in South Portland. Loss $2,000; partly insured. In running to the fire Tom Springer, an employee of Weidler's saw mill, was run over by a steamer. His chest was crushed and a groin cut. His injuries are considered fatal.

Congressman M. C. George received a letter tonight from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs at Washington, inclosing an order of President Arthur that the Malheur Indian Reservation be restored to the public domain. This opens to settlement the largest arable region in one body lying between the Blue Mountains on the north and east and the Cascades on the west. It is more than 60 miles square. The Baker City extension of the O. R. & N. Co. and the Oregon Short Line will run within hauling distance of the reservation.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—McCommon, the Assistant Attorney-General of the Interior Department, negotiated an agreement with the Flathead Indians of northwestern Montana, to allow the Northern Pacific Railroad Company to build their road through their reservation, a distance of 55 miles. The Indians at first fixed upon $1,600,000 as the price to be paid for a strip of land 200 feet wide across the reservation, but finally accepted $25,000, $16,000 for the land and $7,000 as compensation for the destruction of buildings and crops on the line of the proposed road.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 28.—The firm of Helmrich & Hansen, well known wheat brokers and dealers in promissory notes, failed today and it is reported that the French Bank engaged in the discounting business holds securities of the firm for $60,000, another bank for $25,000, and a third for $10,000. It is estimated the total liabilities will probably reach $260,000. Their assets cannot at present be determined definitely. Emanuel Hansen one of the firm was arrested today on a charge of grand larceny, on complaint of the Pacific Bank. It is complained he came into the bank yesterday, and asked permission to take away with him three notes made by Degener & Co., representing amounts aggregating about $60,000. Hansen failed to return the notes to the bank, but returned them to the makers. Steps are being taken to protect the interests of the banks. Hansen was admitted to bail in the sum of $20,000, and the examination of the charge continued.

SALT LAKE, Sept. 28.—Governor Murray, in obedience to the law of Congress providing for appointment to fill vacancies occasioned by a failure to hold an election in August, has appointed a number of officers throughout Utah. In defiance of this law and the Edmunds bill, which disqualifies polygamists, the appointees of the Governor have been refused records and positions to which they have been named. This organized nullification is in obedience to orders from the Mormon leaders. Those who think it criminal to hold over are whipped in by Council threats, and the polygamists are holding on, Congress to the contrary notwithstanding. Writs of mandamus were applied for today to enforce the title of the officials appointed. The action of Governor Murray, in firmly executing the law, in the face of the Mormon leaders, is approved by all law-abiding citizens.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Army officers and civil employees of the War Department are forbidden to make public any information relative to business of the department.

Secretary Folger and Inspector Haywarth made the following distributions for Indian schools for the present fiscal year. For the support of non-treaty schools already established and to be established, $317,000. Increased attendance of fifty schools now established, $50,000; establishing new industrial schools, $150,000; continuent expenses of agency schools, $75,000; purches of stock cattle for industrial schools, $80,000; completion of school buildings, outhouses, etc., for the industrial school near Arkansas City, $15,000; support of the industrial school at Genoa, Nebraska, $31,000; support of Indians in schools in the States, $17,000.

BUCHAREST, Sept. 28.—Russian officials at Kilia, near the mouth of the Danube, are taking soundings notwithstanding the remonstrance of the International Commission. The Russian Government has also arranged that Russians shall perform police duty instead of employees of the Commission. In consequence of these infringements a meeting of the commission is summoned.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 28.—Lord Dufferin communicated to Lord Granville a note from the Porte thanking Great Britain for re-establishing order in Egypt, and expressing the hope that the bonds of friendship at present existing between Turkey and England will become still closer. Lord Granville has replied expressing satisfaction at the sentiments of the Ottoman government.

CAIRO, Sept. 28.—An ammunition train has exploded near the Cairo railroad depot. Explosions still continue. Arabs and Europeans are fleeing from the scene. Thirty persons are reported killed. Explosions of shells continue at intervals of less than 30 minutes. The railway depot is in flames, and the train is also ablaze.

The losses through the war are less than was expected, the provincial treasury being fairly filled.

There have been riots in the several towns in upper Egypt owing to efforts of an official to enforce a demonstration of loyalty to the Khedive. Flags and devices have been torn down by the mob, and Christians insulted and maltreated.

ALEXANDRIA, Sept. 28.—The Egyptian government is in possession of a telegram from Prince Ibrahim to Arabi Pasha, congratulating him upon the supposed Egyptian victory at Kassassin, and hoping that at the next feast of Bairrim, Englishmen would be sacrificed instead of sheep.

It is reported that two companies of the Forty-ninth regiment have been ordered to Tantah.

SPRINGFIELD, (Ill.), Sept. 29.—Hon. Robt. T. Lincoln, Secretary of War, this morning gave bonds in the Sangamon Court in the sum of $180,000, as administrator of the estate of his mother, the late Mary Todd Lincoln. Of her estate, $72,000 is in Government bonds, the rest being personal effects.

PORTLAND, Oct. 2.—A fire at 4 o'clock this morning destroyed the frame row, on the southwest corner of First and E streets, the Anchor saloon, California saloon, Scandinavian saloon, barber shop, fruit store and gift enterprise store. The total lost is about $15,000—pretty well insured. The buildings were owned by A. Bundschuck. The fire no doubt was incendiary.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—A meeting of Railroad Commissioners was held Thursday afternoon, when Gen. Stoneman moved to amend a resolution offered by Mr. Cone reducing the maximum rate of fare over railroads to three cents per mile. The motion was lost by a tie vote. The resolution offered by Cone reducing the rate to four cents per mile was then adopted, rates to go into effect November 1st. The railroad companies are notified to appear before the Railroad Commissioners on October 17th to show cause, if any, why the rate fixed should not be adopted.

CAIRO, Oct. 1.—A train from Benha had just arrived with the 60th Rifles when an ammunition wagon in the station exploded, killing a doctor in the train with some invalids and some men, a number of whom were unknown. The train ignited and the fire spread to the railroad depot, which was quickly burned. The flames next reached the commissary depot adjoining, and thence extended to some of our magazines, which exploded. It was found impossible to prevent the reserve ammunition from being destroyed.

The train with the 60th Rifles arrived just as another was starting from Alexandria with trucks containing ammunition and shells. One on a truck exploding, scattered the shells all over the station and demolished the end of the carriage of the Benha train, in which were a number of invalids. It is feared some soldiers and natives were buried under the debris. The Duke of Connaught and the Duke of Teck with their staffs, are on the spot. The engines are going forward, but the fire spreads so rapidly that it is hopeless to expect anything of consequence to be saved. The truck with 500 rounds of ammunition has not yet exploded, rendering approach perilous.

The whole of the commissariat stores, the main ordinance stores, the greater part of the forage, all hospital necessaries and a large quantity of clothing was destroyed. The estimated loss is £100,000.

Philadelphia manufactures more umbrellas than any city in the world, the annual production is valued at $20,000,000.

The market for American cereals is widening. The government of Morocco has decided, in view of the present high price of breadstuffs in that kingdom, to reduce the import duties fifty per cent.

In New York city, the dealers in fresh fruits and vegetables have organized into a cooperative exchange, making the thirty-seventh trade organization connected as branches of the N. Y. Mercantile Exchange.

Dresden is the chief seat of the manufacture of cigarettes in Germany. It is estimated that about 800,000,000 cigarettes are made there every year, more than half of which are sent to foreign countries.

New Zealand is booming up as a wool-producing country. The number of New Zealand sheep in 1858 was 1,523,000; in 1870 there were 13,070,000. The value of the wool in 1858 was $1,250,000, and in 1880 the value was over $15,000,000.

The total production of sugar in Louisiana last year was 150,874,950 lbs., and 9,031,104 gallons of molasses. The amount of cane land was 180,032 acres—2149 less than the previous year. This year the acreage is three times as great as it was last.

The appropriation for life-saving stations is not as large by $30,000 as was asked for by the chief of the life-saving service. Authority to pay surfmen $50 a month has led to the expectation that all employes of this class will receive that amount. In order to do this, it was necessary to postpone the opening of some of the stations till the middle of September.

In addition to oleomargarine "bull butter" made out of soap fat, palmed off on the unsuspicious housekeeper for genuine "fresh roll," alligator fat is another food fiend that is on the market as genuine hog's land with which it is mixed. The enterprise is said to have started in Florida, and is so profitable that the business is likely to soon extend from the Carolinas to Panama. Bull butter is horrible to think of, alligator fat in our doughnuts—say thing but that.

While at Portland, a few days ago, Mr. Power of the Herald called at the office of the Corps of Engineers, in company with Captain Stretch of Steilacoom, and ascertained that the Government would at an early day proceed with the construction of the snag-boat and that the work undertaken would be the removal of the jam in the Skagit River. The snag-boat will cost about $12,000, leaving about $8,000 with which to commence operations. It is hoped that regular appropriations will hereafter be made to keep this snag-boat constantly employed in the improvement of the rivers of the Sound.—Mail.

In the United States Circuit Court in Massachusetts, Judge Lowell has given an important decision concerning the filing of holes in silver coin with base metal, and attempting pass punched coin with holes thus filled. The former practice is held by the court to be an act of counterfeiting, and the latter is made subject to the penalty provided for the crime of passing, or attempting to pass, counterfeit money. These practices have hitherto been by many persons regarded as trivial offences. To all such, Judge Lowell's decision should, through wide publication, be a timely warning.

The old packet ship "Great Western" was burned to the water's edge recently at San Francisco. She was built over forty years ago, and was one of the vessels of the Black-Ball packet line, plying between New York and Liverpool. She was 1800 tons register, and records have gathered around her at those two ports, as she was considered a "big thing." She was twenty-nine years in the packet line, and made 126 trips without losing a member of her crew, a sail or spar. She is said to have carried 20,000 passengers in the aggregate from Europe to America; 1560 births and 200 marriages have occurred on board of her. Nine years ago she was sent to the Pacific Coast and went into the coasting trade, and her good luck followed her until the morning of June 20th. She was beached and burned for the old iron.

A NOVEL STEAMSHIP has been invented by Mr. Robert Fryer, of New York, which is in affect a marine velocipede on three wheels, the hull not being intended to touch the water. The vessel floats on three spheres, made of sheet steel, one forward and two astern, and each of these fitted with flanges, which surround nearly the whole of the circumference and act as paddles. No rudder is needed because the spheres are so arranged that they can be worked backward or forward and independently of each other, and in this way the vessel can be made to turn completely round in its own water. It is claimed for this remarkable construction that increased accumulation, greater safety and higher speed are furnished than can be obtained on the best steamers now in use, and the voyage from New York to Liverpool will be reduced to five days.—Court Journal.

The new electric locomotive and railroad patented by Edison is attracting considerable attention in the East, and if it realizes half the anticipations of its projectors, will create a revolution in locomotion. In an interview with a Star reporter in New York, recently, Mr. Edison explains the workings of his experimental roads in Menlo Park, New Jersey. In the course of the interview Mr. Edison said that his later experiments were designed to demonstrate to Henry Villard the possibility of opening up for cultivation the immense tracts of arable land on the line of the Northern Pacific Railroad, which cannot be done, with economy, by steam railroads. If the experiments are successful Mr Edison said that the company intends to build several hundred miles of railroad. Surveys have also been made, he explained, for short roads for pleasure and local traffic in Philadelphia, Atlantic City, Long Branch and other places. The process of supplying locomotives with motive power is by means of stations along the road, ten miles apart, from which the electricity is commited to the track and thence to the locomotive.

The conductor of one of the Central-Hudson N. Y., trains allowed three aged people in charge of officer Charles Clark at the depot, to be escorted to one of the hotels. On the walk from the depot the old gentleman walked off quite briskly, and remarked to Officer Clark:

"You are in charge of those pretty old people, Mr. Policeman. How old do you think I am?"

Officer Clark—Oh, about 75 or thereabouts: but you are a pretty smart walker for that age.

O. G.—Ha! ha! Why, my friend, I am 105 years old, my wife here is 104, and this young daughter of mine is 80 years old. What do you think of that?

Officer Clark thought that he felt like taking off his hat to the last century, and he did so. Further inquiry revealed the fact that the gentleman told the truth. His name was J. Fish. He and his family had been living in Texas for many years, and they said they were coming back to Lowville to be buried. The daughter is a widow with no family. From all appearance Mr. Fish, and family will live for several years to come.

PROBATE NOTICE.

IN THE PROBATE COURT OF CLALAM County, Washington Territory.

In the matter of the estate of George Seibert deceased.

Order to show cause why decree of distribution should not be made.

On reading and filing the petition of Elliot Cline, executor of the estate of George Seibert deceased, setting forth that he now has and has had control of his administration of the estate of the said deceased for the space of two years, and the same has been duly settled and allowed, that all the debts and expenses of administration have been duly paid, and that a portion of said estate remains to be divided among the heirs of said deceased, and praying for an order directing the payment to the heirship of said estate among the persons entitled.

It is ordered that all persons interested in the estate of the said George Seibert deceased, be and appear before the Probate Court of the County of Clalam, Washington Territory, at the office of the Clerk of said Court, in said county on the 25th day of November, 1882, at 11 o'clock A. M., then and there to show cause why an order of distribution should not be made of the residue of said estate among the heirs of the said deceased according to law.

It is further ordered: that a copy of this order be published for four successive weeks before the said 25th day of November, 1882, in the PORT SUSAN WEEKLY ADVOCATE, a newspaper printed and published in the City of Port Townsend, Jefferson county, Washington Territory.

Dated September 25th, 1882.

WILLIAM WARD, Probate Judge.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF FFER C

ALLEN WEIR, Editor and Proprietor

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1882

It is feared that the Edmunds law respecting the suppression of polygamy will accomplish but partial and negro results. Under this law twenty-four registers have been appointed, whose duty it will be to superintend elections in Utah and see that no polygamist exercises the right of elective franchise granted to ordinary American citizens. Only seven of the whole number of the registers are gentiles, while nine are apostate mormons. Polygamy is regarded by the mormons as a divine institution, enforced under authority of the Church, therefore it is expected that the registers who are mormons will disregard the U. S. law under which they are acting rather than run counter to the interests of their Church. Just what the practical results of the whole thing will be seems a matter of considerable doubt thus far, with indications pointing to wholesale evasions of those portions of the law most objectionable to polygamy.

Hon. T. H. Brents, we learn, will visit Puget Sound informally during the coming two weeks. From present indications there will be a very feeble effort, if any, made by the democrats, and of course an expensive canvass will hardly be necessary. Mr. Brents' election seems to be conceded everywhere, about the only thing necessary being the formality of casting a vote for him on election day. This state of affairs speaks volumes for republicanism in Washington Territory. It means that the people are entirely satisfied, as a rule, with the present dominant political party, and it means that with careful management, the selection of competent, faithful leaders, republicanism, among us is sure of a long lease of life.

The senatorial dead lock in Oregon is obstructing legislative business to an unusual degree. Mitchell has secured as many as forty-two votes, counting two from the democrats—only four short of the number necessary for a choice. Bolting republicans number eighteen, and they are resisting very stubbornly. Judge Prim is the caucus nominee of the democrats, and Mr. Mitchell received the caucus nomination from the republicans by over a two-thirds vote. The republican minority vote has changed round, rotating through half a dozen different candidates. Just what the eventual result will be is difficult to foretell, but the chances seem to favor a democrat if Mitchell is defeated. It has been charged that the four democrats who voted for Mitchel were bribed. This may or may not be true. It does not necessarily follow, by any means, as there is much sympathy existing among democrats in his behalf on account of the dirty, disreputable, unjust fight made against him by the Oregonian.

It is somewhat irritating to note the persistence with which the Walla Walla Union labors to convince its readers that Puget Sound people are opposed to admitting northern Idaho as a part of the new State of Washington. There is not the slightest foundation for Bro. Johnson's fears. He also says that Mr. Brents' last nomination was enthusiastically endorsed by the republican papers of the territory, "with the exception of one or two on the Sound, who had made a bitter fight against him before the nomination." If our neighbor will kindly point out who he means, people will not be so much mystified. As it is, his strictures sound like romancing.

Telegraphic Market Report.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 4.—Wheat steady; 92½ cash, 86¾ October, 88½ November. Dec. 3, 80. Corn strong at 60. Oats steady at 31. Rye steady at 53. Barley excited and higher, at 81@93.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 27.—Feed barley is rather better at $1 27½@1 30.

Wheat is stagnant: No. 1 $1 60; No. 2 $1 62½.

Bran, country brands, $17½@17½.

The Philadelphia Inquirer favors the protection of American "industries" of Maine, like duck in the pond, or like Hampton Beach in midwinter, difficult to keep down. As intimated above and his great name seemed to his political opponents, at least, to be totally obscured by the cloud of his South American shortcomings; but present, standing in the effulgence of the great republican victory in Maine, which, when [illegible] of strength, is entirely a [illegible] to him, or is the most prominent [illegible] in politics. Recently it was commonly reported that Mr. Blaine had forgone all aspiration [illegible] ery, and that he would not permit his name to be mentioned as a candidate [illegible] of the Republican newspaper press which is friendly [illegible] ing him as the proper standard bearer of the republican party for 1884. Whether he will be that or not is a question of time, and of time only, and that he will be the leader of what is known as the Garfield, or anti-stalwart hosts there can be no question whatever."

BRITISH MERCANTILE MARINE.—The new issue of "Lloyd's Register" gives the following account of the mercantile marine of Great Britain: "It includes 5207 steamers of more than 100 tons register, of the aggregate measurement of 5,934,851 tons; and 1 £15 per ton, of the gross value of £89,022,765; iron and steel sailing ships mounting to tonnage of 1,722,57 tons, valued at £12 per ton, valued at £20,671,884; wooden and composite sailing ships of 2,810,258 tons, valued at £6 per ton, at £17,041,548; giving the total value of vessels at £126,736,197.

In addition to these, there are now in course of construction steamers of the aggregate measurement of 1,220,000 tons, valued at the sum of £85,400,000. It is estimated that the amount of capital invested in the Australian and Indian trade and on the coasts of China and Japan, in tugs, passenger steamers and fishing boats, may be set down as £20,000,000, and therefore the aggregate value of the mercantile marine of Great Britain may be represented by the sum of £233,000,000.

THE CONCERT AT THE M. E. CHURCH.

The pastor not being able to attend and participate in the exercises of the evening desires to extend to the congregation present, in his own behalf, and in behalf of the church, his most hearty thanks for their attendance, respectful attention, and their liberal contribution. That ten dollar bill on the Bank of British Columbia, was quite a surprise. We do not know from whose pocket it came, or from whose fingers it fell into the contribution box, but we have our suspicions. The Lord loveth a cheerful giver. We desire furthermore to thank all those who assisted in the exercises.

REV. S. H. and MRS. A. H. TODD.

UTSALADY, Oct. 1, 1882.

EDITOR PUGET SOUND ARGUS:

Dear Sir,—As the political ball has commenced to roll and it stands every true republican to take some interest in the welfare of his country, and particularly in the coming election, I would like to say a few words. I was in hopes our friend Dr. Minor would get the nomination for delegate to Congress as I think he could have filled the place just as well as Mr. Brents, nevertheless the latter is a good man and is sure to be re-elected by a large majority. The people on this side of the Sound say Brents has done more for us than any of his predecessors, and why not stick to him, which they will do in November. Of our friend Bradshaw's election there is no doubt. Charley is all right. I have had a good deal of talk with Whatcom county people in regard to him. They say: "We have transacted business with him and he has done many of us a good turn which we don't forget." When November comes he will find he has a host of friends in Whatcom county yet. I hope our friends on that side won't forget to give Capt. Calhoun a place on the county ticket for sheriff, but I think his chance is small.

SUCCESS.

The sale of Syrup of Figs is simply immense. Everyone is taking it, and all admit that it is the best medicine ever used. Children cry for it on account of its pleasant taste, and grown people who have used it once never take anything else. Unlike other remedies for biliousness and constipation it never loses its power to act, and it always leaves the organs on which it acts stronger than before. Besides one feels fresh and bright and realizes that it is Nature's own true laxative. Messrs N. D. Hill & Son, are agents for Syrup of Figs.

AMERICAN LEGION OF HONOR.

Having organized Councils in Astoria, East Portland, Or., and Vancouver, also at Olympia with 48 members (13 ladies), and at Seattle with 30 charter members, I shall remain at Port Townsend until a Council is instituted here. Ladies are on an equality with gentlemen. Dr. Seavey, Medical Examiner.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF PORT TOWNSEND.

LOCAL ITEMS.

From Wednesday's Daily.

CIRCUS!

DR. WILLSON has an elegant office in the upper part of the Bartlett stone building.

THE bktne. Catharine Sadden arrived yesterday from Guaymas, and was towed up Sound.

THE Dispatch arrived today with a large lot of passengers and freight from Chihalis county.

THE bktne. Mahah brought freight for Seattle and Port Blakeley, besides the large lot she brought for Port Townsend and Irondale.

FOR a wonder, there were no services in any of the four churches in town last Sunday. No minister was in town except Rev. Todd, and he was sick.

REV. JOHN. REID, has gone to attend Presbytery at Vancouver, and the Synod at Portland, this week. In consequence there will be no services in the Presbyterian church next Sunday.

AMONG the Port Townsend people whom we noticed returned from San Francisco, on the ocean steamer today were: Mrs. Jno. Low, Mrs. R. K. Latimer, Capt. E. E. Hickman, Mr. Pettygrove and Mr. Barker.

TODAY was a busy time about the wharves. At Union wharf were the Idaho, Dakota, North Pacific, George E. Starr, Dispatch and Virginia. Large amounts of freight came for local merchants, and kept draymen working like beavers.

WE learn that Mr. Seidel will open a beer saloon this week in the cellar under his building that was formerly the old masonic hall. He intends finishing the re-fitting of this building and opening a boarding house in the upper part for workmen in the new saw mill.

OUR friend, Mr. A. R. Johnston, of Nanaimo, has been on the Sound a few days, buying grain, etc. He was at Irondale today, and returned as far as Victoria. Mr Johnston looks hearty enough to please his best friends, though he is in a lucrative business that keeps him stirring all the time.

THERE will be a meeting this evening of the stockholders in the saw mill, to decide upon a few business propositions. A Mr. Patrick, of the firm of Middlemess & Boal, S. F., arrived today to ascertain about making a few changes in the mill machinery, also increased rent, if any, in consequence. We learn that the firm may purchase the mill property outright.

As proof of the fact that Dungeness farmers have raised splendid crops this year, we may cite an instance. Mr Alex. Henderson had fourteen acres in wheat. He has just threshed and measured 954 bushels from this land. Of the fourteen acres there were five that averaged ninety-one bushels per acre. How would our eastern friends like to raise such crops as this one? The wheat was all of the best market quality.

AMERICAN LEGION OF HONOR.—Mr. D. S. Van Slyke, Deputy Supreme Commander of the above named order, is in town and intends to organize a council, as will be seen by his advertisement elsewhere. This order is somewhat like the Chosen Friends and Workmen, its distinctive features being that it insures ladies or gentlemen from 18 to 65 years of age, in sums ranging from $500 to $5,000, members paying graded assessment according to age and amount of policy. Mr. Van Slyke comes with high recommendations from Grand Lodge officers of the order of United Workmen, who are members of the A. L. of H. He is rooming at Dalgardno's, and can be found there by those who desire particular information.

From Thursday's Daily.

THE North Pacific and the Alaska steamer Idaho were detained here today almost all day handling freight.

MR. CLAPP, the wide awake merchant at Dungeness, has just completed a large warehouse for use in his increased trade with the farmers.

COAL OIL is almost cheap enough to be a drug in the market these days, on account of an unusual amount being received this week by our local dealers. It has been offered as low as $3. per case.

WE have received the Polaris on our exchange list, and we appreciate the reading matter contained therein to the full extent of the law. The Polaris would do credit to the literary tastes of any community in the United States. Published at Portland, Or., at $8 per year; J. H. Acton, proprietor.

AGENTS are in the field selling "Footprints of Time," a large, comprehensive work, giving the origin of history, theories of Government, and a great mass of interesting and reliable data in reference to the United States from its organization to the present time. The book is handsomely bound in leather, library style, and is sold at $5 per copy.

W. HAIGHT, special agent of the Department of Justice, who is making a tour of the Pacific slope, on business connected with the department, visited the United States prison on McNeil Island a few days ago, and came on to Seattle. He will go to Walla Walla to see United States Prosecuting Attorney Allen and Judge Hoyt.

OWING to the poor health of the pastor, there were no services in the M. E. church last Sabbath; but on next Sunday, the 8th inst., the usual services, morning and evening, may be expected. It being the quarterly meeting occasion, the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered immediately after the morning sermon. PASTOR.

A BOSTON man who came west and ordered his hotel dinner to made up of "anything made from beans," was fed on castor oil. He did not find it as palatable as might have been expected from his request. Mr. Clinger doesn't make a speciality of castor oil, but he keeps almost everything—and sells at low prices.

SHERMAN'S renowned educated horses made their appearance in Port Townsend last evening, supported by all the ordinary appointments of a first-class circus. The tent, a large one, was crowded, all the seating room being fully occupied. The tricks performed by the horses showed them to be thoroughly trained, and elicited repeated rounds of applause. The trapeze performance, acrobatic feats, tight rope dancing, clown oddities and after concert were not startling or unusual, though they were fully up to representations. Some little disappointment was felt at the absence of female riding, but it was unavoidable on account of the sickness of performers. However, the public received its money's worth and was abundantly satisfied.

THE September number of the West Shore contains elaborate lithographic views of Seattle, and an interesting article descriptive of that place. It will be of material service to the whole Sound as well as the particular point illustrated, and will convey to eastern readers a truthful representation of a flourishing town. The enterprising business men of Seattle have met this matter in their usual progressive spirit, and their reward is not distant. Tacoma will be one of the points next illustrated; also a few views in Port Townsend will soon appear, accompanied by brief descriptive descriptive articles.

PLEASANT PARTY.—On Saturday a jolly party of about two dozen young folks went to Irondale, by invitation of Mr. J. B. Dyer, the gentlemanly landlord of the hotel at that place—the occasion being the finishing of an addition to the hotel building, 22x40 feet. The generous host had furnished good music and spread a supper that all enjoyed. Dancing enlivened the gay pleasure seekers till midnight, when approaching Sabbath warned them to seek their homes. By the highly appreciated kindness of Capt. Bolles and Lieut. McHenry, of the U. S. surveying schooner Earnest, the entire party was conveyed to and fro in the steam launch belonging to the Ernest, and in boats towed by that useful little craft. A most enjoyable time was reported, and the participants owe obligations to those who contributed so materially to their comfort and pleasure.

BORN.

In Port Townsend, September 29th, to the wife of A. W. Beck, a daughter.

SHIPPING NEWS.

San Francisco paper of a late date has the following: "The work of selecting special inspectors of foreign steam vessels, to act according to the new law providing for the inspection of this class of vessels, has been in progress at the Department, under the direction of General Dumont, Supervising Inspector-General of Steamboats. Six Inspectors are to be appointed for New York, two in Boston, two in Baltimore, two in Philadelphia, two in New Orleans and two in San Francisco. The new law has been criticised by legal authorities in Washington and elsewhere, as exceeding the authority of the Federal Government.

The bark Dublin, lying on the beach outside the Heads, is slowly going to pieces. Her anchor, chains and other movables have been removed from her, and also about 70,000 feet of lumber. She is to be stripped of her copper sheating, which is valued at $10,000, and all the iron possible will be saved. Her bow lies in about twelve feet of water at high tide.—S. F. Chronicle.

The ships Harvester and Bullion which arrived a short time ago from Philadelphia with railroad iron, loads wheat at New Tacoma for Europe.

The ship Cora that left Port Discovery last May, lumber laden for Iquique, sprung a leak on the passage and had to put into Valparaiso for repairs.

The bark Templar, formerly of the local coal trade, will take lumber as her next cargo, going from one of the Sound mills to Sydney.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Capt. Hamilton and mate Cummings, of the ship Undaunted, were arrested on a charge of cruelty at sea. One seaman was killed by falling through fear, into the hold.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 27.—George Hill, mess boy of the tug Pioneer, accuses George Canthom, the steward, of abusing him throughout the trip. He says Canthom beat him with a poker several times, and starved and ill-used him all the way out. He further says he complained to the Captain, but got no redress, so will lay the case before the United States authorities.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 27.—The British bark Anglesea, recently damaged by running on a rock in a fog, came off the dry-dock today, having been repaired.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 27.—A British Board of Trade has instructed the British Consul here to re-open the case of the steamship Escambia, for the purpose of obtaining additional particulars. Insurance companies interested have brought suit against the owners of the Escambia, and the latter, through their attorneys, have sent an agent here to obtain evidence in rebuttal.

PORT GAMBLE, Sept. 30.—Sailed, barkentine Kitsap for Honolulu; bark Atlanta for San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 4.—British bark Peri, 777 tons, has been chartered to take flour to Cork, v. k., at 26s 3d.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The British ship Venice has arrived from Yokohama, much damaged by gales. Chief officer Elliott was washed over board and lost.

The latest sales of vessel property reported are: The British steamer Sardonyx, now at Victoria, to Mexico. Terms private. She will be delivered to her owner as soon as she arrives from the north. The brig Hazard has also been transferred to the Oceanic Steamship Company for $80,000.

The barkentine Fremont is just down from the Okhotsk sea with 204,000 codfish. She reports the San Luis with over 180,000. Fishing ought to pay when such catches can be got in a single season.

The steamship Dakota brought from San Francisco 236 passengers. Of this number 123 were for Seattle, Victoria had 33 of the remainder, Port Townsend 25, Tacoma 38 and Olympia 17.

The barkentine C. C. Funk, recently built at Marshfield, left for San Francisco lumber laden a few days since. She has been built at a cost of $32,000, and will carry 750,000 feet of lumber.

Both houses of Congress have passed the tonnage bill, which relieves ships from local taxation. There is no doubt but that the President has signed it, and if such is the case American vessels will stand upon a footing with others in regard to port charges and all other charges which depend upon size and carrying capacity.

"LITTLE JIM."

The cottage was a thatched one, the outside old and mean,
Yet everything within that cot was wondrous neat and clean;
The night was dark and stormy, the wind was howling wild;
A patient mother watched beside the deathbed of her child;
A little, worn-out creature, his once bright eyes grown dim;
It was a settler's wife and child, they called him
Little Jim;
And oh, to see the briny tears, fast hurrying down
her cheek,
As she offered up a prayer in thought she was afraid to speak
Lest she might waken one she loved far better than her life,
For she had left a mother's heart had that poor settler's wife.
With hand uplifted see she kneels beside the sufferer's bed,
And prays that He will spare her boy and take herself instead;
She gets her answer from the child, soft fell these words from him:
"Mother, the angels do so smile and beckon Little
Jim;
I have no pain, dear mother, now, but oh, I am so dry,
Just moisten poor Jim's lips again, and mother don't you cry."
With gentle, trembling haste she held a tea-cup to his lips;
He smiled to thank her as he took three little tiny sips.
"Tell father when he comes from work I said good-night to him,
And, mother, now I'll go to sleep"—Alas! poor Little
Jim.
She saw that he was dying, and the child she loved so dear
Had uttered the last word that she might ever hope to hear.
The cottage door is opened, the settler's step is heard,
The father and the mother meet, yet neither speak a word.
He felt that all was over—he knew his child was dead.
He took the candle in his hand and walked toward the bed;
His quivering lip gives token of the grief he'd fain conceal;
And now, his wife has joined him, the stricken couple kneel;
With hearts bowed down with sadness they ask once more of Him
In heaven once more to meet again their own dear
Little Jim.

A TRUE HEROINE.

"This would be jolly, Tom, if it wasn't for that miserable shanty just under our window, and those infernally-noisy urchins across the street, and—"

"Don't expect, my dear boy, to secure all the beatitudes at a rental of $20 per month."

"And if you wasn't so everlastingly bearish, and—"

"What more, my dear fellow? Out with it."

"And if that shy daughter of the landlady wasn't so frightfully ugly."

"Well postscripted, Jack! I knew all along where the chief objection lay."

"Upon my soul, Tom, I believe you rented the rooms just because you thought her looks would annoy me."

"You compliment me undeservedly, my dear boy. I had not that much forecast. But, now that you have suggested it, I think I will adopt a new method of torturing you. The great Aristotle imbued his followers with philosophy while strolling about the groves and thoroughfares of Athens. Why should I not imitate the master of the peripatetic school, and make San Francisco lodgings a means of inculcating moral precepts upon your mind?"

"Good enough, Tom. But not such confoundedly-disagreeable lessons, if you please."

"All wholesome instruction, my dear Jack, is distasteful to the beginner. You will relish it more as you advance."

"Never, Tom, never, if Miss Corbin is an average specimen of the studies proposed in your new system of object-teaching."

"Don't speak so confidently, my dear boy. The future is a great gainsayer of thoughtless utterances. But, to inaugurate the course, the school will please come to order. First class in moral philosophy, attention!"

"Ready, sir."

"Why have you seen fit to speak of the landlady's daughter as a drawback to the jollity of our present location?"

"Because she is so terrifically hideous, and because—"

"No generalities, sir. Answer me categorically. Exactness of definition was the great point for which Socrates contended. She has lovely hair—brown, sleek and tastefully arranged?"

"Yes."

"Blue eyes of singular brilliancy and gentleness?"

"Yes."

"Fine eyebrows and lashes, and beautiful mouth and teeth?"

"Yes."

"An elegant figure—girlish, but symmetrical and well developed—and admirable hands and feet?"

"Yes."

"Taste in dress, grace in bearing, and a prepossessing voice and manner?"

"Yes."

"Then go to! If the total of these be not loveliness, the world is a deception."

"But, Tom, did you ever see any one so fearfully pock-marked?"

"If put to my mettle, Jack, you know I never wielded the superlative to living man. Miss Corbin's features have a scaly smoothness—a very gloss of finish—compared with faces I have seen. I have beheld countenances that resembled a colander—yes, that were engraved and corrugated like a mass of confectionerate. But, after all, it is only skin-deep. If the nature within be loveliness, these surface blemishes may become as attractive to the eye as a piece of ornamental fret-work."

"I grant you, Tom, that Miss Corbin is homely enough to afford to be good."

"Perhaps she is good enough to afford to be homely. At any rate, you were not born to a censor of her or any body else's appearance. The face you dislike may be comely to others and to the Creator. And, if not, remember, my dear boy, that no one has a license to exist in this world as well as beauty."

"And I have a right to express my [illegible]

[illegible] may give a lesson to orator ever doing so. Time endeth the first lesson. The class is dismissed."

Tom was awfully comical sometimes, but we were the best of friends, and I liked him just as well as though he had not been twice as old as I was, and crotchety and bald-headed to boot.

We had chummed together for years, and took adjoining rooms in a private residence on Rincon Hill. It was during the first week's ministry of our new quarters, while smoking on the veranda and looking out upon the moonlit bay, that the foregoing conversation occurred.

* * * * * * *

I had never seen Tom so moved by a book as he appeared to be by a volume he brought from the library one evening. He fidgeted, and wiped his bald head so much, and uttered so many ex lamations, that I really asked him what he had come across to agitate him so.

"A most affecting story, my dear Jack," he replied, "most affecting."

"It must be, judging by your manner."

"If it would not disturb you, I should like to read it aloud."

"I shall be very glad to listen to it, Tom. My book is rather dry."

"Excuse me if I read it badly. It was always difficult for me to get through well with anything that affected me. I shan't even attempt the dialect with which it abounds."

He cleared his throat, turned himself in his chair so as to face me, and read slowly, in a nervous voice:

In one of the outskirts of Edinburgh, where the homes of the middle classes mingled with the hovels of the poor that had formerly occupied the site, lived a family by the name of Compton. The husband was a builder. Though his trade was fairly lucrative, the thrifty wife let her spare rooms to lodgers, in order to eke out his income.

They had an only child, a daughter named Annie, 16 years old. Her unusual beauty rendered her exceedingly attractive, but she was everywhere more beloved for the sweetness of her disposition than for her comeliness. Her modesty and kindness perpetuated the admiration inspired by her personal charms. Among those who became strongly attached to her was an old woman known as Mother McNavit, who lived in a hovel adjoining. She was past 70, childless, friendless and destitute. She earned a meager livelihood by the labor of her aged hands. Her sharp tongue and uncanny behavior had alienated general sympathy and attention, and she dwelt alone, hating the world which had at last withdrawn what little kindness it had ever shown to her. But the poor old heart was not so unfeeling as the world thought it, or as she herself wished it was. It had simply been bruised and neglected till its soreness made it angry and defiant toward all that approached.

All but one. The beauty and gentleness of Annie had often upon it so tenderly that its asperities and hostility were disarmed, and it clung to the child with an unnatural strength as the only object it loved in all the desolate world. The forlorn creature had once had children of her own, but she had buried them all. She fancied that Annie looked like her daughter Hetty. If she had lived, she said, her poor old mother might not be so forsaken now; but the sweet bairn could not have been kinder or dearer to her than was her Hetty-Annie, God bless her!—for so she mingled their two names together.

The shrewd love of the helpless old woman was returned by no warm an affection on Annie's part. Her pity was touched by the forsakenness and destitution around her; the coldness with which she was cursed at and hindered awoke the deepest sympathies in her nature, while the constant recognition of her name with that of the dead daughter finally impressed her with the feeling that she stood in the same relation to the bereaved mother. With a nature as sincere as Annie's, to feel thus was to manifest her sense of filial love in every possible way. So marked and unremitting were her attentions to the object of this strange affection that her parents and more intimate acquaintances were wont to address her spotively as Mother McNavit's child. The epithet did not offend her. Her love was too earnest and respectful for her to be ashamed or annoyed by any allusion to it whatever. If the nickname produced any effect at all upon her, it only strengthened the tie that existed between her and the desolate old woman.

At the date of this story the small-pox was ravaging Edinburgh. The disease was of an unusually violent type, and the greatest consternation prevailed throughout the city. One day Mother McNavit was ailing. The frightened neighbors summoned a physician, who told them she was stricken with the contagion. They informed her that she must be removed to the hospital. The intelligence appeared to inspire her with a mortal terror. She begged and prayed them to leave her where she was, but they paid no heed to her supplications. As a last favor she asked that before she was taken away they would let her see her Hetty-Annie. When Annie was told of this feeling, in spite of her natural timidity and the remonstrances of her friends, she went to the friendless bedside. The poor terrified old creature, upon beholding her, exclaimed wildly:

"Oh, Hetty-Annie, daughter, if you ever loved or pitied me, show it now! They're going to take me to the 'spital. Don't let them! Don't let them! For mercy's sake, don't let them!"

"Wouldn't it be better for you, mother?"

"My God! do you say that, too, Hetty-Annie? And all the while I have thought of you as my child. They've all forsaken me, and you are going with them. God will desert me next; then there can be no more disappointment."

"There, there, mother dear, don't cry," said Annie, fearlessly and tenderly pressing her lips to the burning cheek in her eagerness to console the poor old woman; "I'm not going to forsake you. I merely asked if the hospital was not a better place for you because they all said so."

"Yes, they all say it; and they all think the grave would be a still better place for me. I'm willing to go to my grave, but not from the 'spital! not from the 'spital! I can die here alone just as well, and it won't break my heart as it would to be sent to the 'spital. Oh, Hetty-Annie!" she cried, wildly clasping her withered arms about the girl's neck, "there is no one but you to take my part; for sweet Jesus' sake, don't let them take me to the 'spital!"

Annie quieted her with endearing names and caresses, and laid her gently back upon her pillow.

"You shall not go to the hospital, mother; you shall not die here alone; you shall not die here at all if I can save you."

Her manner was very calm, but her feature were deadly pale. She commenced quietly arranging the things in the little room, as if she had taken charge of it. Turning to a neighbor, she said:

"I'm not going home again until Mother McNavit is well. Please ask mother to send me the things I shall need."

When expostulated with by her parents and friends, she only replied:

"Here is a poor, terrified, friendless human being, who clings to me frantically as her only hope and comfort on earth. I could never be happy if I forsook her in her agony."

When the influence of her pastor was enlisted to point out to her the uselessness of her sacrifice, she simply said:

"I do it for Christ Himself; for He teaches me in His word that inasmuch as I do it unto the least of these I do it unto Him."

And so, immovable in her calm purpose, she watched by the wretched bedside; watched through the fever and delirium, and all the horrors of the loathsome disease; watched till the danger passed from the sufferer's pillow, and settled upon her own devoted head.

She lived through the terrible ordeal. Health came slowly back to her; but her beauty had gone, never to return. A scarred and repulsive face was all that was left her. The polish of her brow and the velvet of her cheek, that was once so lovely to look upon, had been laid as a sacrifice at the feet of the lonely old woman.

"No, Tom; they had been laid up as treasures in heaven," I said, as Tom put the volume aside.

"Dispose of them anyhow you please," he replied. "Further the book saith not."

"By Jove! she was a noble girl!"

"Could you forgive her ugliness if you saw her?"

"Mary, have I ever deceived you?" he plaintively asked. "I never have! As proof of my sincerity you can take this basket to the asylum yourself!"

"And I'll do it!" she promptly replied as she relieved him of it.

"Mary, hain't you——?"

"No, sir. I hain't! You'd better hurry up with that fish-pole, as the man may want it, and be careful how you stand around in the hot sun!"

She left him there. He watched her take the car for home, and then he returned the fish-pole and crossed the street and said to an acquaintance:

"Tom, I'm suffering with neuralgia, and the excursion is off till next week. Too bad, but we can never tell what a day may bring forth."

There was chicken and pickles and other good things on the table at dinner, but he never smiled. Even when his wife wished she was an orphan, if that was the way they were fed, he never betrayed the gloom in his heart. It was only when she handed him the bottle he had so carefully tucked into the basket, and he saw it labeled, "Good for Little Children," that he said:

"Mary, it is an awful thing for a wife to get the impression that her husband is a cold-blooded liar!"

"It must be," she replied, as she took the other chicken leg.—Detroit Free Press.

Stage Kisses.

There was the Platonic kiss of Kellogg, who used to fling them like icicles with her finger-tips, and, as Sher Campbell once said, there were chilblains in each one. Then there was the Presbyterian kiss of Ada Dyas, who used to plant it on Montague's left ear, or on the back of his neck, and always created an impression in the gallery that she had bit him; and the Lotta bubble, which always sounded like the pulling of a cork, and seemed to be a number of linked kisses effervescing; and the Corinthian kiss of Wainwright—a severe affair; somewhat motherly, and when dropped upon a stock actor always frightened him a little bit, as if he had pulled a few Testaments out of his pocket instead of a pack of cards; and the Cary kiss—ah! the romantic Cary kiss, that never began anywhere and never ended—that ran down the back, and tingled in the arms and legs, and made the hair stand on end, and was accompanied with laughter whose echoes were undying; and the cavernous Soldene kiss, that opened its ponderous and marble jaws with a report like the bursting of an india-rubber balloon. Who shall formulate all these schools for us? Certainly not Ablett; for hers is the spiritual kiss, and we are not educated up to it.—Nym Crinkle's Feuilleton.

Bismark says he wants to secure the peace of Europe, but it looks very much as if the piece of Europe he wants to secure is the Balti provinces of Russia, the inhabitants of which are Germans.—Texas Siftings.

Habits of Salmon.

"There is no more interesting fact in connection with the propagation of fishes," says the U. S. Commissioner on Fish and Fisheries in his last published report, "than that of their return to the original spawning ground at the expiration of a given time. The young fish also hatched out at any point, will in their turn seek the same place for purposes of reproduction. Numerous instances of this fact are on record; thus Mr. Wilmot, who for several years past has been engaged in hatching out salmon at Newcastle, on the north shore of Lake Ontario, has presented to the U. S. Commission the stuffed specimen of a female fish from which he had taken eggs for three successive years, as indicated by his marks that were apparent on the skin. At the United States hatching station on the Penobscot, Mr. Chas. G. Atkins has been in the habit of tagging and numbering the fish which he captures for his purposes, and which are released in Penobscot Bay when he has finished with them. Of these quite an appreciable number have been taken in subsequent years identified by their labels. A still further instance of this is shown in regard to California salmon. In previous reports I have referred to Mr. R. D. Hume, of Astoria, Oregon, in connection with the artificial hatching of salmon by him in 1877 and 1878. In the former year he marked a hundred fish and let them go, and the next year he is said to have retaken ten of the number."

The Yale (B. C.) Sentinel says: "All along the edge of the river the water is black with salmon, while all the creeks for a long distance up are jammed with them. As the water goes down in the creeks, thousands are left to die along the edges and where the water is dried out or shallow. Such sights are not in the recollection of the oldest inhabitants. On last Monday, a photographer proceeded to Gordon creek bridge and took a number of views of the salmon swarming along the edge and at the mouth of the creek."

It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brushy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The Vigor cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair,

The Vigor is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

PROCLAMATION.

TERRITORY OF WASHINGTON
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT
Olympia, Sept. 2, 1889.

WHEREAS, It is the duty of the Executive, at least sixty days before any general election, to issue his proclamation designating the offices to be filled at such election;

NO, therefore, I, Nicholas H. Owings, acting Governor of said territory, do hereby declare that a general election will be held in said Territory of Washington, on Tuesday, the seventh day of November, A. D. one thousand eight hundred and eighty-two, at which the following named officers will be elected:

A Delegate to represent said Territory in the Forty-eighth Congress of the United States.

A Brigadier General.
A Quartermaster General.
A Commissary General.
An Adjutant General.
Members of both branches of the Legislative Assembly, and all county and precinct officers required by the laws of said Territory.

FIRST JUDICIAL DISTRICT.

A Prosecuting Attorney for each of the counties of the First Judicial District (except the counties of Columbia and Garfield which shall have one Prosecuting Attorney jointly," and the counties of Spokane and Stevens which shall have one Prosecuting Attorney jointly.

SECOND JUDICIAL DISTRICT.

A Prosecuting Attorney for the counties of Yakima, Klickitat, Skamania and Clarke.

A Prosecuting Attorney for the counties of Cowlitz, Wahkiakum, Pacific, Chehalis, Mason, Thurston and Lewis.

THIRD JUDICIAL DISTRICT.

A Prosecuting Attorney for the Third Judicial District.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the Territory to be affixed at Olympia, this 2d day of September, A. D. one thousand eight hundred and eighty-two, and of the United States the one hundred and sixth.

From Friday's Daily.

HAVE you seen the comet?

THE steamship Victoria, from San Francisco, arrived today.

FOREST fires are making havoc on the eastern shore of Lake Washington.

THERE will be no morning service at the Presbyterian church on Sunday next.

JUDGE SWAN went over to San Juan this morning in the interest of the Smithsonian Institute.

THE Rev. J. Reid expects to preach at Discovery at 10:30 A. M., and Irondale at 2:30 P. M. on Sunday, Oct. 1st.

DR. HUNT, the dentist, left for Seattle this morning. He will return on or about November 1st. See ad. elsewhere.

CHANGE OF DATE.—Sherman's circus will exhibit here on the 4th of October, and not on the 7th as heretofore stated.

THE Maison Dore restaurant notice of which appears elsewhere—is now under the excellent supervision of Mrs. Learned, and cannot fail of giving perfect satisfaction.

THE "Presbytery" of Puget Sound will meet at Vancouver on Tuesday next, and the Synod of the Columbia at Portland on Thursday. The pastor of the Presbyterian church will attend.

OFFICERS ELECTED.—The trustees of the Puget Sound Westside Railroad, at their late meeting, elected the following officers: President, T. T. Minor; Vice-President, N. H. Owings; Supt., J. A. Kuhn; Sec., R. C. Hill; Treas., Charles Eisenbeis.

IT is pleasing to notice the rapidity with which new houses are being "run up" on the hill. The commodious dwelling of Capt. Bowles is nearly finished, while Mr. Geo. Downs house is being rushed along. We also notice the frame of Mr. Baumis' building on Maple Avenue coming on apace, and understand that Messrs. Starrett Bros. have contracted to erect right away another abode for Capt. L. B. Hastings. With all this clattering and hammering now when lumber is so dear, what may we expect WHEN (?) the saw mill gets agoing.

From Saturday's Daily.

The steamship Victoria cleared for New Westminster and Nanaimo, B. C., and sailed today.

THE subject tomorrow evening at the Presbyterian church will be "Esau sold his birthright for a mess of pottage."

THE steamship Geo. W. Elder arrived yesterday evening, from Seattle, and left early this morning for San Francisco via Victoria.

IMPORTANT TO PUBLIC SAFETY.—We notice one of the left hand rails of the "Great Steps" is broken down and if not attended to at once, some poor fellow may slip over some night and lose his balance at any rate—probably his life.

THE project of boring a well on the hill so as to supply spring water to the neighborhood all the year round, has been mooted and action so far taken as to obtain particulars respecting the cost of apparatus, which can be obtained for $350. Could not a solid company be gotten up to work this through—or better still could not our "City Fathers" take up the question in a practical manner, rating the inhabitants so as to cover the cost? It is certainly time something was done, as this bad feature of our city will drive away many intending settlers.

SHAD.—A few weeks since, the Seattle papers announced the fact that a shad had been taken by a fisherman at that place, and had been preserved by Mr. Levy and placed in the collection of natural history of the Young Naturalists Society of Seattle. G. M. Haller, Esq., announced the fact in a letter to Mr. J. G. Swan of this city, who enclosed it to Professor Baird, U. S. Fish Commissioner. Yesterday Mr. Swan received a communication from Professor Baird enclosing a letter to Mr. Haller soliciting the fish alluded to for the U. S. Fish Commission. Professor Baird writes: "We have already specimens of shad from the Columbia river, but would like very much to get this, as the first occurrence in a more northern locality. The shad have only been planted in the Sacramento river, but they have been taken at Monterey, the Columbia, and now in Puget Sound. I beg that you will use your influence to obtain this specimen. It is not only important to us, not only in verifying the facts, but to aid in influencing Congress in behalf of our own work. It is barely possible that it may be something else than a shad, and it may be important to verify the fact." We hope the specimen alluded to will be sent as desired by Professor Baird, and if any other shad are taken, specimens, by being sent here to Mr. Swan, will be forwarded by him, free of cost, to Washington.

DRIARD HOUSE BURNED.—On Sunday morning, Oct. 1st, at 2:30, the stable of Bowman & Co., in Victoria, took fire and before it could be extinguished it reached the Driard House across the street setting it in flames and consuming the whole of the upper portion of the building. The fire is supposed to have originated in the stable from a box of ashes. We have not learned the extent of the damage.

SHIPMENT OF INDIAN CURIOSITIES.—James G. Swan, Esq., has sent his entire collection of Indian manufactures to the U. S. National Museum in Washington, D. C. The cases containing this fine collection were shipped on the steamer G. W. Elder on Friday last. This collection has been an object of great attraction to strangers visiting this city, and will be of great interest in the National Museum at Washington.

HOP PICKERS RETURNED.—Our beach this morning presented a lively scene from the presence of a large number of Indains camped over night on their way home from the great hop fields of Puyallup. Some twenty or twenty-five large canoes were filled with men, women and children belonging to Fort Rupert, B. C., and about a dozen canoes filled with Clalams from Dungeness and Port Angeles, made our beach look as lively as in the "days of '49."

THE Synod of the Columbia is composed of the presbyteries of Idaho, Puget Sound and Oregon. The territory of Alaska is under the care of the last named. The Synod, therefore, covers the extensive area of the Pacific Northwest. It is in geographical extent the largest Synod in connection with the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States.

The entire excavation for the graving dock at Esquimalt will be over 600 feet long and 400 feet wide at the top, while its depth is 50 or more feet. The front of the dock is composed of a most substantial stone wall, while the inside will be cemented, several tons of cement being necessary in the great work. A number of years have already been used in the construction, and a number more will yet be required, while the cost of the work will be probably half a million dollars. Its location will be between the town of Esquimalt and the naval yard, midway, and directly opposite the anchorage ground of Her Majesty's fleet.

The Congregationalists are about instituting an academic school at Steilacoom, in Pierce county. They bought the old Court House and two lots at auction a fortnight since for $281, and have since bought fourteen lots in addition, giving them the equivalent of two full blocks of 240x256 feet each. The citizens of Steilacoom enthusiastically favor the project, and have already given $300 to help it on.

WEATHER delightful.

THE North Pacific was unusually late today.

JACKMAN & TERRY received 110 sheep yesterday per the Geo. E. Starr.

LARGE stocks of goods are now being received by our merchants generally.

A. U. DAVIS, the famous dairyman of Dungeness, is erecting a handsome, expensive and stylish residence.

THE steamer Yaquina made this port the latter part of last week from Portland with a cargo of flour.

TRIES out and give Sherman's educated horses an enthusiastic reception tomorrow. It will be a genuine treat.

THE Walla Walla Daily Events has been succeeded by the Democrat, a new, larger and more pretentious journal.

WE notice at the wharf of Waterman & Katz's some very fine oats and wheat which were raised on Whibby Island.

How long the senatorial contest in Oregon will continue seems to be a question rather uncertain, as the "staying qualities" on both sides are immense.

MR. Benj. Moore, formerly in the employ of D. C. H. Rothschild, Esq., of this place, having been adjudged insane was sent to the asylum at Steilacoom, per the Geo. E. Starr, today.

THE steamer Virginia makes her reappearance in our bay in a new dress—an indication that prosperity attends her. Long may she cleave the "placid waters" of Puget Sound.

REV. J. H. WILBUR, late Indian Agent at Fort Simcoe, W. T., has been appointed a minister at large by the Methodist Church, and will probably, for a time, make his headquarters at Goldendale.

THE editor returned today from Dungeness, or rather from the mountains back of that place, where he had an appointment to meet sundry elk. After getting "rested up" over night he will re-enter the treadmill tomorrow.

THE barkentine Makah has been lying at Quincy street wharf a portion of the day discharging freight for the various merchants of this place. She goes from here to Irondale with material for the P. S. Iron Company.

WATERMAN & KATZ are in receipt of more new goods, among which may be mentioned 50 chests of tea direct from Japan, 100 bbls. sugar from the Sandwich Island, and 500 cases coal oil from the east, all of which they offer at low rates.

THE new stone building which has been in process of construction for some weeks past by Mr. Eisenbeis is fast assuming shape and now only awaits the cornice to render it complete. It is without doubt one of the most substantial structures on the coast.

AN INDIAN MAGAZINE.—Our attention has been called to a little publication entitled "The Youth's Companion" for October, 1882. In the modest announcement at its head, it is stated to be "A juvenile monthly magazine published for the benefit of the Puget Sound Catholic Indian Missions; and set in type, printed and in part written by the pupils of the Tulalip, W. T., Indian Industrial Boarding Schools under the control of the Sisters of Charity, approved by the Rt. Rev. Bishop." The typographical appearance of this little magazine would be creditable to white compositors, and we think the young Indian students at Tulalip, from this evidence of their skill, will be able to take their place at any printing office on the Sound. The magazine and its contents are alike creditable to the good management of the good Sisters in charge of the school.

SUB-PORT OF ENTRY.—Below is the Act of Congress establishing a sub-port of entry at San Juan, together with a notice from Collector Bash to those who wish to take advantage of the facilities it may afford:

Circular, authorizing the Deputy Collector of Customs at San Juan Island, Puget Sound District, to enter and clear vessels, collect duties, and issue marine documents.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 16, 1882.

The following Act of Congress is published for the information of officers of customs and others concerned:

AN ACT authorizing the deputy collector of customs stationed at San Juan Island, Puget Sound District, to enter and clear vessels and collect duties.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the deputy collector of customs stationed at San Juan Island, in the Puget Sound District, in Washington Territory, is, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, empowered to enter and clear vessels and collect duties.

Approved, August 8, 1882.

The Deputy Collector of Customs stationed at San Juan Island, Puget Sound District, is hereby authorized to perform the duties mentioned in the Act, and, by virtue of the provisions of Section 2933, R. S., he is empowered to issue enrolments and licenses to vessels, under the direction of the Collector of Customs for the said District.

H. F. FRENCH,
Act. Sec.

TAKE NOTICE.—The above port of entry is now opened at Friday Harbor, on San Juan Island. The deputy stationed there is empowered to enter and clear vessels and collect duties and will so continue from this date or until further notice. Vessels bound for British Columbia, wishing to take the benefit of this sub-port of entry, should first call at Port Townsend, and secure their papers in order to deposit the same at Friday Harbor. A. W. BASH, Col. of Cus.

Sept. 25, 1882.

New telegraph offices are established on the Kalama Division at Chehalis, and Winlock Stations. Mr. Frank Gates, will have charge at Chehalis, and Mr. C. C. Paget, present operator and agent at Carbonado, goes to Winlock; Mr. Peterson, of Portland, goes to Carbonado. All the gentlemen are experienced operators, and will act as agents for the Railroad Company, and also for Wells, Fargo & Co., at their respective stations.

Marine Signals.

Marine signals had their first existance in the early Greek and Persian fleets, and were made by means of the sails, certain interpretations being given to the position and state of the sails, whether furled, loosed or partially secured. Shields held aloft in various positions, and bright, gleaming fires were made use of. No record of a code is to be found in ancient writings. Night signals were invented about the same time as day codes. In 1420 Captain General Piero Mozenigo, a Venitian, invented a system of flags, with distinction in colors, giving to each galley of the fleet a pennant and flag. He also established that a fire on the poop shall signify "set mainsail;" two fires, "both the square sails;" three fires, "all plain sail;" four fires, "lay in the oars and make all sail." Fleet signals were not generally adopted, however, before the middle of the 17th century.

To the Duke of York, afterwards King James II. of England, belongs the honor of first introducing, in 1655, a signal code upon a regular system. The papal code of 1614 prescribed that a pennant hoisted on the poop indicated "make sail," and to be dipped once for each sail to be set. A banner placed amidships denoted "distress." A banner held up on the poop meant "form line of battle." In 1795 a Mr. McArthur, who had been Secretary to Admiral Lord Howe, originated a code of thirteen flags. Each flag was known by a letter and number, and were used by Nelson at Trafalgar, when he hoisted the famous motto, "England expects every man to do his duty."

In 1795 the United States Navy used a code similar to the device invented by King James. There were twenty-six flags—one for each letter—and a number of pennants for specials. In 1846 the Navy Department adopted the method known as "Rogers' American Code." In 1857 and 1861 modifications were made. The International Code, devised by the British Government, has been almost universally adopted, with the exception of the United States. A gunner in the United States Navy, by the name of Coston, perfected a system of night signals, the colors corresponding to the day flag.

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC.—At the opening of the British Columbia Agricultural Fair the Marquis of Lorne, replying to the address of welcome, after referring to the province as being singularly rich in mining and forest, as well as agricultural resources, said:

It will be our endeavor to make the inducements you offer to the immigrant more widely known. Meantime let me entreat you to throw no obstacle in your own advance. You have a very formidable competion organized by our friends to the south. The Northern Pacific Railroad is being constructed with an energy and success to which I was myself last year in Montana an admiring witness. Unless you welcome all labor, no matter whence it comes, for the development of your communications you will be distanced in the race, and to your neighbors, and not to you, will fall the prize due to a sensible provision for the position.

The federal government must find in you ready co-operators in the gigantic works necessary to be accomplished. In regard to one of these, and that the most important, for Victoria as well as the mainland has a direct interest in the road that will connect this province with the interior, I am happy to have good news to bring to you. The President of the Canadian Pacific Railway telegraphed yesterday to me: "The route through the Rocky Mountains is by the Kicking Horse Pass. This has been adopted, and Major Rogers reports having found the locked for pass through the Selkirk range, thus making the connection with Kamloops by the shortest possible line. The grades for 20 miles on each side of the summit, though heavy, are easier than any of the American lines. No tunnel necessary. Hope to be within 250 miles of Kamloops this time next year. Expect to have the whole line from Montreal to the Pacific Ocean open by January 1st, 1887."

Horses That Stumble.

In the matter of stumbling, Col. Hayes on his book "Riding on the Flat and Across the Country" goes into the theory, drawing distinctions that may be very serviceable. He explains that there are two kinds of stumbling. One is really dangerous, and when the horse is either weak in the fore-legs, or cramped in the action, or with the physical defect of too straight shoulders. But when stumbling arises from the knee being insufficiently bent, or the hock only depressed, thereby catching upon any irregularity in the ground, it may be safely disregarded, unless the animal is intended for show rather than use. We may add, for ourselves, that we have ridden excellent horses with this failing; that frequently as they might trip or stumble, everyone held as first class; they were absolutely sure-footed; but that what we chiefly object to was, that in cases when they were nervous each trip led almost invariably to a succession of others. That such stumbling comes of a slovenly manner of going there can be no doubt.

It happens comparatively seldom in exhilarating weather, or when the horse has been brought fresh out of the stable; but when listless and languid, or when fatigue begins to tell, then you are quickly made aware of his exhibition by his blundering. Capt. Hayes' chapter on flat-racing, and steeplechasing and training will be read with interest, even by amateurs. He backs up his own opinions and experiences on these subjects by communications from well-known trainers and jockeys. As to giving "tucks" in a young horse's mouth to us very sensible. With a young hand instruction may be necessary, but if the jockey be a fairly good one, the riding should be left to his discretion.

It is impossible to foresee all possible circumstances, and decisions must be taken on the spur of the moment. As for starting, he calls attention for "getting off" as quickly as possible—a matter in which, though it is obviously of paramount importance, some people would appear to be strangely indifferent. As he says, "whatever distance is lost at the start must be made up when the horse is are galloping, at which time the effort to regain the lost lengths may very possibly be equivalent to throwing away an advantage of as many pounds."

'Tis Now.

Now the chowder's in the pot, and the days are getting hot, and all begin to swelter with a swell, swell, swelt. While the crimson lemonade through a straw enchants the maid, who displays a bunch of flowers at her belt, belt, belt.

Now we have the pictured fan, drink the cooling black-and-tan, and we watch the jerkwhile by the surf, surf, surf.

And the tourist happy feels, as he reads his "Puck on Wheels" while he rolls with laughter on the turf, turf, turf.

Now our fancies, quaint and queer, lightly turn to thoughts of beer, and the picnic's everlasting custard pie, pie, pie. And we sit with wingcutty Ned, neath a gingham umbrell, gaily boomeranged and shipwrecked by her sigh, sigh, sigh.

Now the cat begins to scoot from the well-directed boot, and the poodle wears a kettle on his tail, tail, tail.

Now the Vassar maidens mount every rain-swept found, and they drink intermission water till they're pale, pale, pale.

Now the ice-man with a smile slings his haughty summer style, and the plumber down in solitude his head, head, head.

Now the cuffs and collars melt, now the minute-man is felt, and the circus in the country does appear, 'pear, 'pear.

No news is this, by Jo, they are facts all people know, for they're written by the joker every year, year, year.—Puck.

Thermometers.

Time has shown that Fahrenheit's arrangement of the thermometric scale, instead of being truly scientific, is as arbitrary as the division of the Bible into verses and chapters, and that these two points (freezing at 32 degrees and boiling at 212 degrees) no more represent the real extremes of temperature than from "Dan to Beersheba" expresses the exact extremes of Palestine. The three countries which use Fahrenheit are England, Holland and America. Russia and Germany use Reamer's thermometer, in which the boiling point is counted 80 degrees above the freezing point. France uses the centigrade thermometer, so-called because it marks the boiling point 100 degrees from freezing point. On many points the centigrade system is the best, and the triumph of convenience will be attained when zero is made the freezing point, and when the boiling point is put 100 or 1,000 degrees from it, and all the subdivisions are fixed decimally.

Gen. A. H. Stephens and the Negro.

There are people who become honest only when there is nothing more to steal. That kind of forced virtue has too many examples.

Mr. Stephens has many stories to tell of negroes, and one is of a famous cotton and chicken depredator, who since the war met the ex-Vice President in the road.

"Well, Thomas," was the kindly salutation, "I was sorry to hear you had been in trouble about Mrs. Tripp's chickens."

"Yes, Mars Alec; but I done quit all dat now," said the negro, very penitently.

"How many did you take before you stopped?" asked Mr. Stephens.

"I tuk all she had," was the perfectly innocent reply.

Irish Bulls.

There are some good old Irish bulls which are too good to die of neglect. Of this order was the exclamation of the Irish gentleman, who, on getting £20 prize in the lottery, and finding that the prize was less than the money which he had paid for it, cried out: "Want it is it was I that let out the £20,000? I must have been entirely rubbed!"

During the time when Ireland had a Parliament of her own, a member of the Irish House of Commons was describing the inordinate love of praise which was a foible of his opponent.

"The honorable member," said he, "is so fond of being praised that I really believe that he would be content to give up the ghost if it were but to read his epitaph and the stonecutter's pay it well done."

"Contempt of money," was the expression of another, "The honorable gentleman is very fond to play the public piper. I can assure you, Mr. Speaker, that, if I were in any one office the guineas in the eyes of the Lieutenant no more, it is that of purse bearer; a person sent to him on a compliment or at the command of his master, the gentleman has a compliment to send in the act in hazarding for good, bad or and last, in the scale of human nature, he never ready reads peace, and sues and pursues. I verily believe," exclaimed the orator, rising to the height of his conception, "I think, if the immortal gentleman were in conversation with the archangel Gabriel, he would give a hint to see all mankind send it with a common message, that he might save the trouble of the general burial, and provide carts and hatchands for the survivors."

"Is it here my lord there I?" asked an English heart-t, who came suddenly to a full stop before one of the little mountain torrents in the West of Ireland. "Oh, to cross, your honor, there was a lord," said a peasant standing at the brink, in amazing a hundred grimaces of civility. "When was it?" said the traveler. "Bet r the day before I was born," said the peasant; "but when man and horse went over the bridge the ford got out of the habit." "Well, now that the bridge is broken down, I suppose the lord may have got into the habit again. Is it safe?" "To be sure, your honor, as best to the mind e, but that is nothing; and, if you can swim, there is not a better ford in the country." "But I cannot swim." "Then, you honor, the only safe way that I know of is, as soon as you get beyond your depth, to walk back again."

THE Rev. Joseph Cook said in a London lecture that alcohol hardened the human brain. The British Medical Record says this betrays his lamentable ignorance, because "it is an elementary fact that, while alcohol hardens dead cerebral substance, in life it induces softening of the brain."

THE LEADING SCIENTISTS OF TODAY agree that nine diseases are caused by disordered Kidneys or Liver. If, therefore, the kidneys and liver are healthy, perfect health is the result. The cause has only been known a short time, and for seven people suffered great agony without knowing what to find relief. The discovery of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure marks a new era in the treatment of these troubles. Made from a simple vegetal ind of rare value, it contains just the elements necessary to nourish and invigorate both of these great organs, and safely restore and keep them in order. It is a POSITIVE REMEDY for all diseases that cause pain in the lower part of the body—for Torpid Liver—Headache—Jaundice—Dizziness—Gravel—Fever, Ague—Malarial Fever and all difficulties of the Kidneys, Liver and Urinary Organs.

It is an excellent and safe remedy for females during Pregnancy. It will control Menstruation and is invaluable for Leucherrœa or Falling of the Womb.

As a Blood Purifier it is unequaled, for it cures the organs that make the blood.

PORT TOWNSEND
HOSPITAL,
Port Townsend, W. T.

The above institution having been placed on a permanent footing, as the United States hospital for the port of Port Townsend, the proprietor would respectfully announce that he has in every respect fitted up and prepared the same in a manner suitable for the comfort and convenience of patients.

This is the nearest hospital to Dungeness north of San Francisco, and by far the most comfortable in Washington Territory. It has been thoroughly refurnished, and every convenience is afforded patients. Those who desire change of air will find this a most delightful resort. Charges moderate.

☞ The attention of sailors is here, and those interested in shipping, is called to the fact that seamen suffering from venereal diseases will be treated outside the Hospital without cost to the vessel.
