Puget Sound Dispatch.
SKAGIT RIVER.
 Messrs. Hill and Sweeney, on behalf of the Skagit River Company, having made a thorough exploration of that region, make the following report to the Board of Directors:
 Gentlemen:—Acting under your special instructions, and bearing in mind the general objects and purposes for which the "Skagit River Co." was instituted, we procured a small outfit and left Seattle on Monday morning, June 17th, by steamer J. B. Libby, arriving at Swinimish Reservation the same day, at seven o'clock P. M.
 Here obtaining such further supplies as was thought necessary, we hired a canoe to take us up the North Fork, or mouth of the Skagit, to Conner's Store, situated at the Forks, or where the main river divides, about eight miles from the Sound and two and a half miles below the Jam.
 This being the period of the Spring freshet, and the river high, the North Fork at this date would now be navigable for good sized steamers, but probably would not be for any but of the lightest draft at low water. The South Fork is known to be navigable at all seasons for any of our river steamers. The river is affected by the tides up to the lower part of the Jam, which rises and falls with it about two feet. The land on and around the delta of the Skagit, from the salt water to the Jam, is of excellent quality though mostly heavily timbered; it is a district of several miles in extent, and is said to be all taken up and occupied by actual settlers, who hold their claims at high prices.

"THE JAM,"
 which has heretofore been the great barrier to any further progress of settlement up the valley of the Skagit, is a mass of drift timber which has been accumulating probably for ages—mammoth trees with all their roots and branches drifting into a narrow bend of the river, became embedded in the sand of the bottom and locked in with fallen trees from the banks, and among this impenetrable network of large timbers several sand bars have formed, making it a formidable, impregnable and permanent obstruction to the navigation of this, the largest tributary of Puget Sound. The appropriation of $10,000 asked for in a memorial of the last Territorial Legislature would, in our opinion, be a sum entirely inadequate to remove the Jam, but it may be possible to open a channel around it, for that amount. Private enterprise will never be likely to risk an outlay of capital to do either. The Jam will be undoubtedly removed some time, or a new channel opened, but not until the country above becomes settled up and contains a population with trade of sufficient importance to ask of government an outlet for this river; but those who desire to secure homes and good farms in that valley need not wait for this result. We are assured by Mr. David Kimball, and other settlers in the vicinity, that a good wagon-road will soon be opened from Mr. Kimball's house, below the Jam, around on the south side to a point on the clear river above. This road, the great desideratum as a portage for freight and travel, will be perfectly level and less than two miles long. So, really, the Jam may no longer be regarded as a material obstruction to the navigation of the river, or to the settlement and development of its rich bottom lands, though the timber will probably be looked up until by action of Congress the river is cleared. With this road opened, a steamer of light draft might be placed above the Jam and run without any difficulty to the head of the Skagit, 60 miles above, and for some distance up many of its tributary streams. We made the portage over an Indian trail, on the north side (only 1,100 yards long) Wednesday, June 19th, and with Skagit Indians, ascended the river in three days to the Forks of the Skagit and North Branch, or head of the Skagit, 70 miles from the Sound. Our reconnaissance was as thorough as could be made under the circumstances, and as the wild nature of the country would permit. We derived much valuable data relative to the lay of the land, quality of soil, etc., of the river, from members of Capt. Sheet's party, now engaged in making a preliminary survey for the N. P. R. R. to Skagit Pass. We have also been diligent in making enquiries and noting all reliable information obtainable from other sources, and to sum up in a brief description.

THE SKAGIT VALLEY
 contains at least 200,000 acres of land suitable for agricultural and grazing purposes, some of which is of most excellent quality, and nearly all would be rated first class soil.
 The low lands near the bank are in many places, especially in the lower portion of the valley, subject to periodical semi-annual overflows, in January and June; but the June freshet seldom rises over the banks, so that growing crops would never be likely to sustain much injury from this cause. The lower bottoms are covered with a dense growth of Cottonwood, Alder, Crab Apple, Vine Maple, etc. On a higher level the same of a larger growth, and also Fir, Spruce and Cedar, and in some places excellent large timber reaches to the river banks. There is an undergrowth of briars, salmonberries, nettles, goose berries and grasses everywhere, and the soil is mostly alluvial sediment mixed with a vegetable and ligneous mould.

 The valley immediately above the Jam is perhaps 20 miles wide and is very much like the country below. Two or three claims have been taken up and cabins built within five miles of the Jam, but located, it seems, on the lowest ground because easily cleared, they were found to be too wet at high water and have been abandoned.
 The Nuchachamas empties into the Skagit from the south eight miles above the Jam. Along this stream and around the lake at its head there is an extensive area of good land. Further up, the banks are generally higher and the country less liable to overflow. There is one tract of good timber extending over a mile along the water and more than half a mile back.
 At the mouth of the Yeteche, twenty miles up, is located Mr. A. Williamson, the only white man above the Jam. He went there last January and has already four or five acres cleared and planted with hops. From Williamson's up to the mouth of the Baker or Nechulum River the valley is not so wide, but there are many tracts of splendid land for farming, and much valuable timber.
 "Skookum Charley," the petty Chief of the Skagit Indians, has an old clearing of about 200 acres, just below the mouth of the Nichulum, upon which, in their rude way, the Swishaws cultivate a few patches of vegetables. Over the place is a dense growth of shrubs, briars and nettles, which with very little labor might be cleared off, and the place be made one of the most valuable farms in the Territory. There is a large tract of good land in this vicinity and the Indians expressed themselves very anxious to have the country settled by a good class of white men who would give them employment.
 There is a fine country from the Baker to the Skoh. The river is as broad, deep and smooth as it is below the Jam. As we go up, the valley widens out, and around the Forks is a broad level district of many miles in extent surrounded by lofty snow-capped mountains, amid scenery beautiful, magnificent and grand as may be seen on this Continent. We reached the Forks late on the evening of June 21st.

THE CLIMATE
 of this region is delightful. With Mt. Baker between us and the Coast, and snowy peaks all around, the night was warmer than any we have experienced at Seattle for some weeks. Capt. Sheets, who accompanied us, calculated the altitude here to be not more than 150 feet above the sea level.
 A few miles above are the forks of the Skoh and Seattle, and the Indians say there is a large prairie country there, and that the land is excellent. There is, around the head waters of this great, navigable and hitherto unknown river, a large district unsurpassed anywhere in all the natural advantages of fertility, fine climate, and grandeur of scenery, and when labor and time, art and taste, shall have laid their polishing touch upon it; when the latent beauties and riches of this lovely region shall have been developed by the industry of an intelligent American or European population, beautified by cultivated fields, orchards and gardens, and by the homes of civilized men, there may not be found on the whole Pacific Coast a more healthful or desirable place of residence; for enclosed in this environment of mountains, where the air and water are ever pure, are many spots of remarkable loveliness and beauty.

TOWNSITE.
 There must be at the main forks, or head of steam navigation, a town of considerable importance, the future commercial centre of the Upper Skagit and its tributaries.
 We have arranged with Mr. Flickenger, now with Capt. Sheet's surveying party, to examine further the country above, to locate a town site at the most eligible point, and forward a sketch of the same, so that if it should be thought advisable, you can prepare a map therefrom.

RAILROAD ROUTE.
 Capt. Sheets, at his Camp No. 15, had run 40 miles from his initial point below the jam, over almost level ground, and there seems to be an easy grade to the Skagit Pass; so it is very probable that this route will be selected for the Northern Pacific Railroad.
THE RIVER.
 We found the general average of the current to be less than five miles an hour; though there are a few rapid places below the mouth of the Baker, in which for a few rods the current exceeds this rate, but in no place would a strong light draught steamer, say drawing 18 inches, have any difficulty in the ascent; besides, the river is remarkably clear of rocks and snags. The average width, from bank to bank, is about 60 rods. The depth of the channel of course varies, but we are informed by the Indians that at the lowest stage of water on the worst bars, there is a depth of three feet. If this is so, we have only to solve the questions—How to get above the jam? and the all-important question in every business enterprise—Will it pay? We sought for a passage through a slough which makes out on the north side about two miles above the jam, and traced this some distance, but learned that it spread out below, over the Swinimish flats, and could not be made navigable for a canoe. A steamer would then have to be built above the jam, or taken over the road around it. There is at this moment no trade for a boat on this route worth mentioning.—The Indians are poor, ambitious and few in numbers, subsisting principally on fish and berries. They have few skins to traffic, and scarcely any money. They have never learned to want much, and the trade with them would be insignificant. There is but one white settler on the river, and yet, notwithstanding all this we believe that the enterprise would pay from its inception. Steam is a great missionary of civilization.—So soon as it should be known that a steamer was to run on that route, business would offer, claims would be taken up by actual settlers, families with their household furniture and supplies, lumber, stock, farming implements and merchandise, would be ready to go up before the boat would be. Government should do no less than aid this enterprise by establishing a postal route, and give a liberal compensation for carrying the mail. The first trip would then pay, and each successive trip would pay still better. Should the Northern Pacific Railroad locate over the Skagit Pass, the business of that Company alone would employ a steamer, and the travel on the Skagit would be immense.

We have no knowledge or information respecting the MINERAL RESOURCES of this region. Discoveries of valuable coal lodes have been reported, but we are incompetent to say whether we even saw indications of Coal. Gold and silver have been found and profitably mined on Baker river, and there is reason to expect discoveries of the precious metals on other streams flowing from the Cascade Range, which is a link in the great chain of gold and silver bearing mountains extending the entire length of the Continent. On Mr. DeWitt C. Dennison's place, near the mouth of the river there is a ledge of cement rock, throughout which streaks of virgin gold are plainly visible, apparently in paying quantities.
 The Cascades have never been prospected. Gold which has been washed therefrom is found in the sands of all our rivers and we must infer from this, and the geological formation, that in this region are districts yet to be developed rich in precious minerals as well as coal and iron.

With this statement, gentlemen, we conclude our written report. It sets forth our observations and views as truthfully, fully, and carefully as we can express them in a limited paper.—To those who desire to examine the Skagit country for themselves we would suggest as a starting point the new town of La Conner on the Swinimish slough where there is a good hotel kept by Mr. Marston and where Indians and canoes can be procured for the trip at reasonable charges.

We returned to Seattle Wednesday, June 26th, having been absent on this tour ten days. The accompanying private memoranda herewith submitted are self-explanatory. Any further information in our power to give verbally will be cheerfully furnished.
 Respectfully submitted,
J. S. HILL,
J. W. SWEENEY,
 To MESSRS. ROBBINS, LEARY, HILL, GATZERT AND COLLINS, Directors Skagit River Co., Seattle, June 27th 1872.

A Scandal Monger's Murder.
 Andrew Johnson, ex-Alderman and ex-President, having been summoned to appear here and testify before the Committee of the House, on Tuesday morning. He has been kept at home by a great scandal, which has resulted in the suicide of Mrs. Harold, the wife of his neighbor, at Greenville. On one of the last Sundays in April, some mischief breeder dropped an anonymous note to Mr. Harold through the Post-office, intimating to him that an improper intimacy existed between his wife and Mr. Johnson. Mr. Harold and Mr. Johnson had been personal and warm friends for thirty years. Mr. Harold had lived happily with his wife for nearly forty years. She had his entire confidence and deep love. For thirty years she had been an active, exemplary and most consistent member of the Presbyterian church. As soon as he read the letter he went promptly to her, showed it to her, and assured her that he did not believe a word of it.—Mrs. Harold read the letter and was so indignant that she could hardly retain herself. At one time in the evening she was found almost crazy with excitement with a gun in hand, and declaring she intended to shoot her traducers. So excited did she become that she almost lost her reason. She repeatedly assured her husband of her innocence, but the idle gossips who infest Greenville, and other places took up the scandal and talked about it constantly. Mrs. Harold seemed bore down by these repetitions of the scandal. About this time her son, a Lieutenant in the U. S. Army, a young man of high character and excellent traits, came home on a leave of absence. It was thought best to keep him ignorant of the slander, as it would only make his visit unhappy. A few days after his return word came to Mrs. Harold that her mother was dangerously ill. It was determined that Mrs. Harold should go to the sick bed in Rhea county, rather than her sister, living with her, as the visit would take her from the scandal and give her rest. Her son accompanied her. They reached the mother's house, after a short trip during which Mrs. Harold seemed very despondent. But her son, still ignorant of the slander, attributed this to her mother's condition. When they reached her mother's she was found to be some better. On the second morning after reaching there Mrs. Harold arose earlier than usual, and was then seen to take from her son's satchel his small pistol. Her mother supposed she was getting it for him. Taking the pistol Mrs. Harold went out some distance from the house into a thicket and there shot herself through the left breast and through the heart; the alarm was given and soon after she was found in a dying condition. It was supposed the first shot was fatal, as it set fire to her clothing which was burning when found.—She was carried to the house, but died before reaching it, never uttering a word. Her remains were taken home for interment. The suicide, following so close the other excitement, threw Mr. Harold, an invalid, into a dangerous state, from which he has hardly yet recovered. Mr. Harold, who is a quiet man, of few words, fears now that though he assures her more than once of his confidence in her, she had some fears that he and others did not entirely believe her innocent, and that it weighed so heavy upon her as to unbalance her mind. Her son never heard of the cause of his mother's taking her life until the Rev. S. V. McCorkle, at her funeral sermon, very justly and properly referred in severe language to the terrible reason the event afforded the idle slanderers who had brought about the trouble. Mr. Johnson declared the lady never had been in his library. He said he had been a friend of Mrs. Harold's for half a life time, but that he had not spoken to her for a week before or at the time of the alleged visit to his library.

A MASONIC STORY.—Two men had been fast friends. In an evil hour they quarreled. They did not speak and had not spoken for years. Mutual friends tried the art of reconciliation in vain. They were avowed enemies for life. One of them became a mason after the estrangement, and it happened that the other remained ignorant of the fact. One evening he too was admitted to a lodge. Almost the first voice he heard, and certainly the first face he saw, was that of his enemy, who presided over the ceremonies of initiation, and was obliged, according to the usage, to address him as "brother." This was a peculiar situation, and a severe ordeal for both. After the lodge was closed the Apprentice sought the Mason, and without any preliminaries, the following colloquy ensued, commenced by the newly made mason:
 "Are you a member of this lodge?"
 "The answer was 'I am.'
 "Were you present when I was elected?"
 "I was."
 "May I ask if you voted?"
 "I did."
 "Now will you tell me how many votes it requires to reject a candidate on ballot for admission?"
 The Worshipful Master answered "One."
 There was nothing more to say. The initiated extended his hand, which was warmly grasped by the other, and uttered with thrilling accent, deep emotion mellowing his voice, "Friend! brother! you have taught me a lesson I shall never forget." This is a little ray of Masonic light. No language is so eloquent as the silent throbbing of a heart full of tears. While this kind of cement is used in the moral edifice, should it not be enduring?

An Artful Dodger.

The weekly Courier (the publishers cannot afford their daily in exchange) comes to us with its ponderous editorial columns largely freighted with pettifogging pretences and evasions designed to change the onus of the question of veracity from the shoulders of the Governor to ours.

We have neither time, space nor the inclination, to insult the intelligence of our readers by multiplying words in reply to its columns of pettifogging evasions, but will briefly dispose of the whole subject, covering every point of the side issue raised to avoid the main question.

We are charged with three distinct falsehoods, and these charges are made the base of all the words expended without an attempt to reply to the charge against the Governor to which these articles purport to be a reply.

2d. We are charged with falsehood in saying that a little over one year ago Ferry took part in a Republican party convention which nominated Mr. Blinn for Alderman and supported him as a party candidate.

3d. The third and principal charge of falsehood which the Courier attempts to establish against us is that we charged Ferry with making a false statement, which he denies.

4th. The fourth and principal charge of falsehood which the Courier attempts to establish against us is that we charged Ferry with making a false statement, which he denies.

The Northern Pacific Railroad.

The Committee of the House on Pacific Railroads made a report upon the resolution of February 13, to investigate and report upon the actual condition of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company.

There were no charges of any kind whatever made against the management of the company, and in order to meet the suggestion made in any communications referred to the committee or any of its members, as well as all questions of a general character, the committee put interrogations to the company which were answered under oath.

A Correction.

Editor Dispatch:—Your last week's paper contains a correspondence from Port Townsend in which I find a statement that is not correct, and upon which I would like to throw a little light.

Attorney General Williams.

It may be regarded as certain that Attorney General Williams will be elected Senator in the place of Corbett, who has been a mere cypher in the United States Senate.

Attorney-General Williams, the last called, but by no means least in importance among the President's counselors, is a Western man, of strong rather than fine qualities.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY. Seattle, Thursday, July 4, 1872.

ORDINANCE NO. 30.

HEALTH ORDINANCE. The City of Seattle does ordain as follows:

SECTION 1. It shall be the duty of every practising physician within the limits of this city to report within six hours in writing, to the Mayor or Health Officer every case of contagious or infectious disease which has come to his knowledge. For every violation of this duty the offender shall be subject to a penalty of not more than one hundred and not less than fifty dollars.

Sec. 2. It shall be the duty of every owner or occupant of any house, store or other building within the limits of this city, to report to the above-named officers, every case of a like nature within six hours after the same has come to his knowledge, under a like penalty as above expressed.

Sec. 3. It shall be the duty of every owner or occupant of any store, house or other building where a case of contagious or infectious disease exists, to forthwith place on such building in a conspicuous place a yellow flag, and to keep the same thus exposed until permitted to remove it by order of the Mayor or Health Officer. Every violation of this section shall subject the offender to the payment of a fine of one hundred dollars. It shall be the duty of the Health Officer to compel the enforcement of this section, and in case of neglect or refusal of any such owner or occupant to provide and place such flag, to place one there himself.

Sec. 4. Any person who has any such contagious or infectious disease, who shall leave the house where he is ordered to remain by the Mayor or Health Officer, and go upon the streets, or go from house to house, or in any public place whatever, or in any way put himself in contact with persons not properly in attendance upon him, until he is fully discharged under the written order of the Health Officer, shall suffer a penalty of not more than five hundred nor less than one hundred dollars.

It shall be the duty of the City Marshal to enforce this provision. Sec. 5. All clothing and bedding used by or about any person who may have any contagious or infectious disease, shall be burned under the direction of the Health Officer. Every person who shall neglect or refuse to obey the order of such officer, in this regard, shall suffer a penalty of one hundred dollars.

Sec. 6. The corporate limits of the city of Seattle shall and hereby is constituted a Health District, and the Mayor, and two Councilmen who shall be appointed by the Mayor, shall constitute a Board of Health, under whose direction all steps shall be taken for the enforcement of this ordinance.

Sec. 7. A Health Officer shall be elected by the Council, whose compensation shall be fixed before he enters upon the discharge of his duties.

Sec. 8. No vessel, whether propelled by steam or sail shall be permitted to land at the piers or at any point within the city, unless the Master of such vessel shall report first to the Health Officer that there are no cases of infectious or contagious disease on board of such vessel, and such Master then have permission from such officer to land.

Any Master or other person in command of such vessel, who shall violate this section shall suffer a penalty of not more than five hundred dollars nor less than one hundred dollars.

Sec. 6. It shall be the duty of the Board of Health to provide a Pest House, to which all persons who may have any contagious or infectious disease shall be removed, if so ordered by the Health Officer. The said Board are hereby empowered to contract with some competent Physician to vaccinate all persons who in his opinion may require it, the expense thereof to be a charge upon the city. JOHN T. JORDAN, Mayor. GEO. N. McCONAHA, Clerk. July 2d, 1872.

REMOVAL.—Gardner Kellogg, County Auditor, has made arrangements for removing from the county, to a farm on the Swinimish. The office will be managed for the balance of his term by Duncan T. Wheeler, who is well qualified for the duties thereof, and commands the confidence of this community for integrity and fidelity to his trusts. The disagreeable duty which we have felt incumbent upon us, to ensure some of the official acts of Mr. Kellogg, does not detract from our estimate of his social qualities or good wishes for success in his new field of operations.

The Skagit River Company have organized by the election of J. B. Robbins, President; Baily Gatzert, Treasurer; John Leahy Secretary; and J. W. Sweeney, Agent.

Mr. Felton, correspondent of the Bulletin, called upon us yesterday morning, and furnished us the following items:

The Puget Sound Steam Navigation Company have sent to Portland to purchase a stern-wheel steamer to run on the route from Seattle to the Skagit River.

Mr. Miskel, of Monticello, is running an opposition line of spring wagons between Olympia and the Cowlitz, which affords the opportunity of making the trip at reduced fare, in quicker time, and over an easier road than by the mail stage.

Telegraphic

NEW YORK, July 2.—Coroners were to-day notified, for inquest of 28 victims of sun-stroke. Some forty deaths are reported. The heat was intense to-day; the thermometer reached 102° in the shade.

ASPINWALL.—Capt. Pennell, of the Edgar Stuart, on persuasion of President Canco, who guaranteed honorable release, voluntarily submitted to formal arrest for 24 hours in order to vindicate the dignity of the State authorities.

Trans-Atlantic Telegraph line from Santa Rosa, Argentine Republic, to Santiago, Chili, is formally opened.

NEW YORK, July 1.—The Herald's London dispatch says: Letters have been received from Stanley, the Livingstone explorer, of which the following is a summary: From Urejamey Tubec, where Stanley arrived in Sept. last he intended advancing on Ujui, but Menimbo King of Ujui, declared that not a caravan should pass Ujui except over his body. The Arabs declared war and anticipated a victory. I gave them assistance the first day and in concert with the Arabs attacked two villages; captured, killed and drove away the inhabitants. The third day the Arabs were ambushed and routed with terrific slaughter. On the fourth day there was a desertion of the Arabs: my own men after considerable difficulty reached the suburbs of Ujui. I entered, firing guns and carrying the American flag; the astonished natives flocked out in crowds with deafening shouts. I noticed in the centre of a group of Arabs and strangely contrasting with their sunburnt faces, a pale looking gray-bearded white man, wearing a naval cap with gold bands, and a red woolen shirt preserving a demeanor of calmness before the Arabs. I said it was Dr. Livingstone, I presumed. He smilingly answered, "Yes." He informed me that he started in March, 1868, with 12 Sepoys, 9 Johanna men and 7 liberated slaves and traveled up the banks of the Rohana, his men got frightened deserted and reported him dead as an excuse for the desertion. He crossed the Chambi and found it to be not contiguous to the Zambezi but a wholly separate river; and he found it was called, farther on, Luababa. He explored 700 miles and found that the Zambezi is doubtless the source of the Nile and that the length of that river is about 2,600 miles; it is not supplied by Luganyeka. He reached within 180 miles of the Luababa river which will occupy the next two years.

LA CONNER, June 30.—By reports from Omineca of the 23d ult., we learn of the poisoning of 16 persons by eating supposed mushrooms. Ten of them lived on Discovery Flat, and three have died from effects of the poison. Their names are David Hughes, formerly of Lexington, Kentucky; a Capt. Mann, a native of New York, and a Mr. Cook, formerly of Cleveland, Ohio, who recently came from Victoria with his family to reside here. A Mr. McIntosh is now dangerously ill, and several others, but are expected to recover.

PORTLAND, June 29.—The full official vote of Oregon in the late election is as follows: Republicans, 13,163; Democrats, 12,317. Republican majority, 846. In the Senate the Republicans have two and in the House fifteen majority, making the majority on joint ballot seventeen. The Legislature meets early in September.

PORTLAND, June 27.—A man named Chapman committed suicide to-day by jumping from the ferry boat, saying to the steersman that his wife had proved false and abandoned him and he intended to drown himself.

GENEVA, June 25.—Board of Arbitration, at session of 15th, informed the American and English agents that American indirect claims were untenable. There is reason to believe that dispatches received from Washington today, will lead to satisfactory solution of entire question. On reassembling of Tribunal, it will proceed to consider direct claims of U. S. Government. The Tribunal reassembled at 2 o'clock, p. m., and remained in session until 5 o'clock. They then adjourned to meet on Tuesday next.

NEW YORK, June 27.—A special dispatch from Geneva announces the presence of Gen. Sherman, yesterday. He visited General Dufour, lately in command of the Swiss army. He goes next to Berne and thence to France. Lieutenant Grant is at Sermalt. Secretary Borie arrived at Geneva yesterday.

The Herald's Geneva special says the members of the Tribunal are less reticent, and yesterday they communicated the fact that the representatives considered the business would be in such shape that the arbitrators would give a decision favorable to the preservation of the Treaty. The representatives of the American and English Governments visited each other and interchanged courtesies.
