

THE MULLAN ROAD.—Why don't somebody start a subscription paper for the purpose of raising funds to open the Mullan Road? We are constantly being told that this man and the other man is willing to contribute in aid of the enterprise, and yet nothing is done.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON.—To judge from present indications, President Johnson is likely to harmonize all parties and bring about a restoration of the good feeling which characterized Monroe's administration.

THE MONTANA TRADE.—It will be seen from the notice elsewhere that our Lewiston friends are preparing to enter upon a vigorous contest for the trade of Montana.

EARLY VEGETABLES.—Now that Spring will soon be upon us, we have to repeat a suggestion made some time since, that our farmers prepare themselves to supply the Portland market with early vegetables.

A GREAT MISCHANCE.—The visit of the Assessor of Internal Revenue, at the end of each month, for the purpose of ascertaining how many cards, circulars, etc., we have printed, is certainly a great nuisance.

MARKETS.—Walla Walla Flour is quoted in the Boise market report at $24 per bbl, at Virginia City, Montana, Flour is quoted at $25 @ $26.

FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH.—The editor of the Salt Lake Telegraph, the Mormon organ, says that every time he takes a new wife, he feels ten years younger.

HOME MANUFACTURES.

The Salt Lake Telegraph has an article under this caption the main points of which are applicable to this Valley. Home manufactures has become a very familiar subject, yet home production of one kind or another is the foundation of the prosperity of any people, and the proportion of production to consumption is the measure of that prosperity.

There have been times when wool in the raw could have been raised in this Valley and shipped out of it at a profit, but there was very little to ship, and further, the time is now, and has often been, when many things besides flour and wheat could have been shipped out of the county, provided quality and price could have been made just right.

LAND SURVEYS.—In our issue of last week we referred to the (supposed) fact that there had been no return of the surveys made some two years since. The following letter, addressed to T. F. Berry, Esq., fully explains the cause of the delay.

SENATE COMMITTEES.—On looking over the list of Senate Standing Committees, we find that Senator Nesmith, of Oregon, is a member of the Committee on Commerce, on Military Affairs, on Indian Affairs, and on Revolutionary Claims.

NIPPED IN THE BUD.—Last week the weather opened so finely that many of the farmers in the Valley commenced ploughing preparatory to putting in their spring crops.

AT OATS.—We notice that the Boise Statesman is particularly severe upon Caleb Lyon of Lyonsdale. The Governor is unfortunate in his newspaper relations.

EDITORIAL PARAGRAPHS.

THE WAR IN CONGRESS.—In looking over our files of the Congressional Globe, we notice that the war upon the Administration is being waged fiercely in both Houses of Congress. In the Senate, as might have been expected, Sumner leads off, and assails the policy of the Administration with great bitterness.

FROM BLACKFOOT.—Mr. D. V. Waldron, the Blackfoot expressman, arrived on Tuesday last, having been six weeks on the way. He reports the winter in the mountains as the severest of any in his experience, and gives the details of much suffering from frozen hands and feet.

A DEFAULTER.—The community was startled Tuesday evening on the arrival of the Idaho stage to learn that Alfred Slocum, Treasurer of Boise county, was found to be defaulter absolutely on the Territorial fund to the amount of eight thousand dollars.

TRAIN OWNERS AND TRAINS IN A PRECARIOUS SITUATION.—From a statement in our Helena items, and information derived from other sources, we feel apprehensive of the fate of men and stock between Helena and Pen D'Oreille Lake.

RUCKER, THE ROAD AGENT, HUNG.—The Velleite of the 8th says that the Montana vigilantes captured and hung Rucker and four others of the Port Neuf stage robbers, a few days ago, near Denver.

LETTER FROM BOISE CITY.

Boise City, I. T., Jan. 19th, 1866. EDITOR STATESMAN.—Thanks for the Walla Walla Statesman duly received, and rest assured that I will endeavor to return the compliment by keeping you posted from time to time of affairs in this country.

I give you news, second hand, by parties today from Rocky Bar, on Bear Creek. Waddingham's mill is running, (10 stamp) crushing Confederate Star rock, and doing a "big business."

The Legislature has granted a charter for a road from Big Camas Prairie to the Yuba, to S. B. Dille, C. H. Stewart, H. W. O. Margary, and W. S. Stucking, as a corporation, to be styled the Big Camas and Yuba Wagon Road Co.

The Governor is very popular, and on Christmas, at the School Christmas Tree, made an excellent little speech to visitors and children. On Saturday next, his Excellency again gives a lecture, (the proceeds to go towards fitting up a church) on education, and as he is a very easy and entertaining speaker and full of anecdote and fun, I do not doubt but that it will be a very pleasant evening.

THE CANYON CITY MURDERER.—In our issue of last week we noticed the arrest of a man named Michael H. Lewis, charged with the crime of murder. From Major M. P. Berry, Sheriff of Grant county, we learn that the murder was accompanied by circumstances of peculiar atrocity.

The Legislature granted a charter for a telegraph, and another for a railway from the head of navigation on the Columbia. The distance is about 300 miles, and as Holladay & Halsey, Ltd. and other money men are in it, it may, in time be put through. The telegraph, in contemplation, is so far gone as that contracts are offered for poles between this and Ruby City, Owyhee, to connect, it is intended with a wire to Silver City.

TRAIN OWNERS AND TRAINS IN A PRECARIOUS SITUATION.—From a statement in our Helena items, and information derived from other sources, we feel apprehensive of the fate of men and stock between Helena and Pen D'Oreille Lake.

THE ANNEXATION PROJECT.

EDITOR STATESMAN.—I was somewhat surprised on learning through your columns, last week, that the members of the "Walla Walla Bar" had addressed a note of thanks to the members of the House of Representatives of Oregon for their efforts in crowding a memorial through asking Congress to annex this county to Oregon.

The Governor is very popular, and on Christmas, at the School Christmas Tree, made an excellent little speech to visitors and children. On Saturday next, his Excellency again gives a lecture, (the proceeds to go towards fitting up a church) on education, and as he is a very easy and entertaining speaker and full of anecdote and fun, I do not doubt but that it will be a very pleasant evening.

CONDITIONS OF RESTORATION.

By telegraph we have been apprised of the conditions on which Senator Sumner proposes to re-annex the States late in rebellion. The Congressional Globe has the resolutions entire, which we present as part of the history of the times:

Resolved, That whenever a convention is called in any of the States for the organization of a government, the following persons have a right to be represented therein, to-wit: the citizens of the State who have taken no part in the rebellion; especially all those whose exclusion from the ballot enabled the rest to carry the State into the rebellion, and still more especially those who became soldiers in the armies of the Union, and by their valor on the battle field turned the tide of war and made the Union triumphant; and Congress may refuse to sanction the proceedings of any convention composed of delegates chosen by men recently in arms against the Union, and excluding men who perjured their lives in its defense; unless its proceedings have been first approved by those hereby declared to be entitled to participate therein.

Resolved, That the Constitution of the United States being supreme over State laws and state constitutions in respect of these matters and since it speaks, and the duty being imposed on Congress to legislate for the establishment of government in such States respectively, it is hereby declared that no proposed State law or State constitution can be set up as an impediment to the national power in the discharge of this duty.

Resolved, That in such cases, where, by reason of rebellion, there is a lapse in the State government, and it becomes the duty of Congress to provide a government for the State, a government can be established, which shall be a form of government where a large proportion of native-born citizens, charged with no crime and no failure of duty, is left wholly unrepresented, although compelled to pay taxes; and especially where a particular race is singled out as a class to be taxed, more especially where such race constitutes the majority of the citizens, and where the disfranchised minority has forfeited its rights by rebellion; and more especially still where, by such exclusion, the oligarchical enemies of the Republic can practically control the State government, and national soldiers and national creditors to whose generosity it was indebted during a period of peril.

REBEL CRUISERS.

The following is an extract from the Report of the Secretary of the Navy to Congress. It is very severe in its tone toward the British authorities for their action in regard to piratical vessels during the late rebellion:

"Information reached the Department in May that the iron-clad ram Stonewall, a formidable vessel built in France, had arrived in Havana. This vessel had been conditionally sold to Denmark, but not proving satisfactory to that Government, she was purchased by the rebels. Some difficulty in procuring armament and a crew caused a temporary slight embarrassment in her movements, but she was soon met by the English steamer City of Richmond off the coast of France, and her armament, which was made in England, with supplies for a crew and an English crew, were transferred to the Stonewall. She remained for a short time at Ferrol, where she was watched by the Niagara and Sacramento, and leaving that place, she did not reach Havana until after the downfall of the rebel organization. Like other rebel cruisers which had plundered our commerce, the Stonewall was without a port.

Acting Rear Admiral Godon, who had received orders to command of the Brazil station, and was on the point of sailing, was directed to proceed immediately, with a force hastily collected and placed under his command, in pursuit of the Stonewall, which it was under orders to destroy or appear on our coast. He sailed from Hampton Roads on the 16th of May, and arrived off Havana on the 28th, having in his command the Susquehanna, Chippewa, Monticello, Fabke, and two turreted vessels, the Mohawk and Canonicus. Shortly after his arrival, the Stonewall was delivered over to the Spanish authorities by her commander, and our Government was advised that Spain would place her at the disposal of the United States. It being unnecessary for Acting Rear Admiral Godon to remain longer on this special duty, he left Havana June 6, returned to Hampton Roads on the 12th, and on the 21st proceeded, in pursuance to previous orders, to Brazil.

The English screw-steamer Sea King, built in Glasgow in 1863, early attracted the attention of our officials in England as one of the class of rovers which, like the Alabama, Florida, and Georgia, was destined to prey on American commerce. But the English authorities professed to be incapable of detecting anything wrong in this vessel, and she finally sailed from London on the 8th of October, 1864, with clearance for Bombay. On the following day the steamer Laurel sailed from Liverpool, with the officers, men and guns, and went to Madeira. The Sea King soon appeared off Madeira and signaled to the Laurel, when the two vessels went to a barren island in the vicinity, and on the 17th of October a transfer of officers, men, and guns took place; the name of the pirate was changed, and thereforward became known as the Shenandoah. J. J. Waddell, a renegade American officer, assumed the command, and proceeded at once on a piratical cruise.

An official communication on the 18th of October informed the Department that the crew of the Sea King, as well as that of the Laurel, were all British subjects, that many of them belonged to the Royal Naval Reserve, and that some forty or fifty of the Alabama's men were among them.

Throughout the whole period of the rebellion these exhibitions of the manner in which the English authorities exercised neutrality were witnessed. On one occasion two persons secreted themselves on the United States steamer Tascorara, at Queenstown, with a view, it was suspected, of entering our service, and the British Government was on that occasion greatly exercised lest some violation of neutrality or breach of the foreign enlistment act had taken place which would work harm to the rebels. A less anxious solicitude appears to have been entertained of breach of neutrality when whole crews were enlisted for the Shenandoah and other rebel piratical cruisers which sailed forth to plunder American commerce. Before leaving the Atlantic the Shenandoah succeeded in destroying several vessels, and was next heard of in Melbourne, Australia, where she was received and entertained with great hospitality and furnished with ample supplies and repairs for the long cruise upon which she was about to enter. On the 8th of February she is reported to have left Melbourne, and was next heard of in the North Pacific ocean and the sea of Okhotsk, where she attacked and captured twenty-nine unarmed whale ships, of which twenty-five were destroyed and four were bonded. Although notified by some of his victims that the rebel armies had surrendered and that the rebellion was suppressed, Waddell gave no heed to the intelligence, but continued his work of destruction until four months after the fall of Richmond, when he was advised by an English vessel that Lee was on parole and Davis a prisoner.

The English Government, in the exercise of all that neutral tenderness and care which it had manifested for the rebels from the beginning of the insurrection, was finally compelled to admit the extinguishment of the rebellion, and to make special reservation to protect the rebel piratical cruisers, and particularly the Shenandoah, which was an outlaw, without country or home other than England, after the prostration of the rebel rebellion. Warned by neutral England, whose subjects constituted almost her entire crew, that the organized insurrection was annihilated, the Shenandoah had no alternative but to seek the shelter and protection of that neutral Power where she was built, and from which she was armed and manned. Under the name of Sea King she had cleared and sailed as an English vessel, with an English flag and an English crew, and as late as February she stood on the books at the Register's office of British shipping in her original name, and in the name of her original owners. Such may have been the case when the pirate was warned that he had not the pretext of a rebel organization to offer his crime, and that he was an outlaw. Of all her captures not one was ever sent in for adjudication, and I am not aware that she entered the port of any country but England. It was fitting, therefore, that she should return for refuge to the country of her origin.

Now and then.—The Paris Charivari, in a tone of grave rebuke, invites the English to review their conduct in regard to the United States. It says:

It was only some six months ago that John Bull was doing honor to the pirate of the Alabama. The "young Commodore" of the British Admiralty, in their newest and most richly gold-laced red coats, took the corsair to their elegant clubs. The blonde misses of Albion offered those blue eyes of theirs, nearly as large as their mouths, to gaze in admiration on old Semmes. In a strewed "roses in his path." Then came the news of Lincoln's death, and there was a roar of laughter in England at his successor—the tailor, the rowdy, the fellow with a big panache. At one of the theaters specially frequented by sailors and coachmen, a clown was dressed up in the President's official costume, with the word "Johnson" chalked on his back—a delicate epigram. But John Bull has begun to look serious, now that Johnson has sent in his little bill for damages done by the Alabama. The smart Commodore is trying to prove that they feasted the Captain of the Alabama in honor of the Kearese; the blonde misses are taught to recognize the perfect gentleman in Johnson, though he is podgy and Lord Russell writes to the President: "Your Excellency don't fret; we shall make all square."

Folly would do but little mischief if it were confined to fools.

BOOK-KEEPER'S DREAM.

BY J. W. EDDY.

The day had nearly worn to its close, and night had come down with its needed repose. As the book-keeper wended his way from the store, Glad that his tiresome hours were over.

The night was serene and dreamland damp; And the flickering flames of the dim star lamp went out in the wild, rough gusts that beat with furious speed through the gloomy street.

Tired and cold, with pain throbbing head, He sank to rest in his lonely bed. A few hours' sleep and against his name Were charged until there was no room to spare, And nothing, whatever, was credited there.

The great Balance Sheet he had finished that day, And profit and loss in the usual way, Showed how much money the merchant had made, Or lost, in the preceding twelve-month's trade.

And he dreamed that night an angel came With his ledger and against his name Were charged until there was no room to spare, And nothing, whatever, was credited there.

There were life and its blessings, as intellect, health; There were changes of time, opportunities, wealth; Of talents for good, of friendships the best, Of courtesies, joys, affections, and rest.

And hundreds of others, and each one as great, As the book-keeper's, and against his name, Till despairing of ever being able to pay, Still throughout his dream the book-keeper slept.

But the angel declared the account must be paid, And protested it could be no longer delayed. The book-keeper awoke, and found his name charged, How meagre the treasure, he'd laid up in store.

He'd cheerfully render all he had acquired, And his note on demand for the balance required. Then quickly the angel took paper and wrote The following, as an acceptable note:

"On demand, without grace, from the close of today, For value received, I promise to pay To Him who has kept me, and everywhere Has gaged my credit with infinite care.

"Whose blessings outnumber the drops of the ocean, While living, the sum of my heart's best devotion; In witness whereof, to be seen of all men, I affix the great seal of the soul's Amen."

The book-keeper added his name to the note, While the angel across the great ledger-page wrote, In letters as crimson as human gore, "SETTLED IN FULL"—and was seen no more.

One day recently, a man attired simply in a blanket shawl was parading in Syracuse, cursing dreadfully; but as he had the small pox no one dare arrest him. He finally started for the country saying that "if the people of Syracuse did not like his style they had better move out."

A negro baby was born in Petersburg, Va., the other day, with the exact impression of a two-cent U. S. revenue stamp on his forehead. An exchange says the mother must have been chased by a government tax-collector. Wonder if he didn't catch her?

The most remarkable instance of indecision we ever heard of was that of the man who sat up all night because he could not decide which to take off first his coat or his boots.

Mrs. Partington declares that she thinks it very strange that a little quicksilver in a glass tube can make such awful hot weather by just rising an inch or so.

MEDICAL INSTITUTE. QUICK CURES AND MODERATE CHARGES. DR. L. C. KINNEY'S Private Medical and Surgical Institute, Main Street, Walla Walla, opposite Dusenberry & Bro. Established expressly to afford the afflicted sound and scientific Medical Aid, in the treatment and cure of all Private and Chronic Diseases. Syphilitic cases cases of secrecy, and all Sexual diseases.

DR. KINNEY returns his thanks to his number of patients for their patronage since locating here in 1859, and takes this method of notifying the public that he has leased the large and commodious building of Mr. Joseph Hellmuth, one Main street and has had the same fitted up for the purpose of a Hospital, with every comfort for the afflicted, and attention of those who require Medical or Surgical assistance.

Special attention will be paid to affections of the Lungs, Liver, Digestive Organs, Kidneys, and Diseases of the Genitals—Urinary Organs. Disorders of a private nature will receive prompt attention and cure successfully. Diseases peculiar to women and children will receive the most careful attention, also, affections of eye and ear, and in short all the maladies to which human flesh is heir will claim his attention.

Letters from persons unable personally to communicate with the Dr. accompanied by the usual fee, will receive prompt attention.

The Doctor would state that he has had an experience of more than thirty years in treating cases of disease occurring in Northern and Southern climates besides, having enjoyed a large hospital practice, both in civil life, and with our army in the Mexican War—where he was surgeon in the army.

It is often occurs that persons requiring Medical aid, arriving here from the various mining towns in the upper country, at the instance of friends, are induced to go to San Francisco, thinking that they will not find proper treatment short of that city thus involving an unnecessary expenditure of both time and money. To show that there is no necessity to do this, the Doctor refers to parties whom he has treated, and those now under his care in hospital.

Persons who are indebted to Doctor Kinney, by note or account, are requested to call at his office and settle their bills. All accounts not paid before the 1st of January, 1866, will be placed in the hands of an officer for collection. T. WOOD & CO. 48ms.
