

The Northern Pacific shown to be such by Vice-President Hayes in his Reception at St. Paul.

Mr. F. F. Oakes, like Mr. Villard, has been the happy recipient of innumerable receptions along the line of the town on the Northern Pacific railroad, the other side of the mountains. The one we particularly allude to was given him in St. Paul on the evening of August 29th.

Mr. Oakes spoke glowingly of the prospects of the road and had much to say respecting our own fair land.

Standing easily before him, with his hands clasped behind him, and his head bent slightly forward, an American among Americans, and supremely typical of the indomitableness to which mountains are mole-hills and continents conquerable.

Mr. Oakes spoke briefly and succinctly as follows, calling to his aid no flowers of rhetoric nor aids of gesture, but simply and forcibly, as one thoroughly imbued with strong beliefs and mighty hopes.

Gentlemen of St. Paul, I must be made of sterner stuff than common were I not flattered and gratified by the reception you have tendered me this evening, and most heartily do I express my acknowledgments.

My connection with the Northern Pacific has been brief. I am first apprised of my election to the vice presidency when in Portland, Oregon, and complied with the announcement.

The road has the best physical location of any in the world. Along the beautiful Columbia, and for 600 miles it passes until it reaches Deer Lodge valley, about 12 miles in extent, and here it meets its first really great obstacle.

Second—The road has the best physical location of any in the world. Along the beautiful Columbia, and for 600 miles it passes until it reaches Deer Lodge valley, about 12 miles in extent, and here it meets its first really great obstacle.

Third—The great difference in fixed indebtedness between the Northern and Union and Central Pacific. I have the figures here to give a statistical statement of these differences. I wish I had, but you are all aware of the bonded debt of the two last mentioned roads is enormous.

Fourth—The entire distance the surety of a great local traffic is clearly marked. On the westward end we have the fertile valley of the Columbia, and then Montana comes with its mountains, its flocks and agricultural possibilities.

Last Friday morning the construction locomotive ran over a hand car on which there were two men. Just a moment before the collision the men jumped off and went rolling down a steep rocky bank, being cut and bruised up some, besides being very badly frightened. The hand car was thrown several feet high, and broke on wheels besides other minor damages, and the headlight of the locomotive was badly broken. The accident happened at a sharp curve.

Sailing & Reuse have now sixteen hundred square feet of platform now constructed, and are receiving wheat. They are now able to receive and load on cars with dispatch at that may be bought. Their agent is on the platform day and night.

There is an average of five trains every twenty-four hours passing this point—two passenger and one freight. The amount of wheat that is being taken down is simply immense.

McDermitt's track layers have reached Ford's. They take up the small steel rails and lay big iron in its place. It is slow and tedious work, as they have to connect every few hours for trains to pass.

W. S. Toussaint, who was sentenced to five years' imprisonment in the penitentiary, and who was awaiting the arrival of Sheriff Billings, of Thurston county, left the jail in this city, this forenoon, and departed for parts unknown. He was ready for his morning meal, at which time deputy sheriff Corbaley released him of his shackles, in order to give him more freedom during the day time. The darkey who was also in the jail with him says that two Germans came to jail in the forenoon, who were afterward, joined by a third person. A saw was passed to the prisoner who cut his way out through the three-inch plank that was nailed over the stove-pipe hole in the northeast corner of the building. It was probably the work of but twenty minutes or half an hour. No one else has seen the prisoner since he left the jail. That is singular too. Sheriff Hatten is chagrined to think that a prisoner should escape from the custody of one of his deputies, and is making every effort to recapture him. Mr. Corbaley, of course, had no idea that the only fellow would crawl so small a hole. Mr. Hatten deserves great credit for his efforts to regain possession of the jail-lair.—Spokane Times.

THE FAIR.—To make it beneficial to the country and a success to the Agricultural Society it must be patronized, not alone by going and paying your half dollar at the gate, but by taking something there to put on exhibition. Such things as the people have, from fancy works and works of art, the dairy and garden, to blooded stock and fast horses. The people should have one week of holiday and should try and make that a pleasant and profitable one, and not do so by giving some attention to our annual agricultural fairs. Mechanics should join in the exhibition, and help to fill up the pavilion and make the fair worth seeing. The Society are doing all they can and hold out as good inducements as ever in the shape of premiums as they think they can pay, and will willingly give much more inducements if the people would turn out as they should and give it their support. We need not expect large premiums until the people take hold and make the fairs what they should be, and what such a county as this is capable of doing. Since advertising the programme the trustees, in order to give more inducements to people to attend and patronize the fair, have increased the premium for the free-for-all running race to $500, and the result of this offer is that the celebrated horses "Trade Dollar" and "Paddy Dully," and probably others, will probably contest hotly for the first money. We hope that everybody and their children may attend the fair, and that everybody may take something to exhibit if it is nothing more than pretty faces and a baby show. So turn out and go to the fair, and see if we cannot all be benefited by it. Do not say that the Society does not offer enough premium for this or that, or that there was nothing there worth seeing. Recollect that unless the people do something to make a fair, there will be none. It is expected that the three in five running race free-for-all will be the fastest ever made in the Northwest.

A THING OF THE PAST.—Camp Howard on Camas Prairie, in Northern Idaho, is no more. At a recent date the buildings, comprising the late military post, were sold by auction. Some idea of the ridiculously low prices may be had from the fact that only $65 was realized from the whole sale. We append a few figures: The hospital was knocked down and sold for 50 cents. The company quarters, erected at a cost to Uncle Sam of over $100,000, brought $8. The stable, erected and built in a most substantial manner, realized $3 75; the laundry house $0 50 cents; commissary store house, $2 75; quartermaster's store house, $2 50; lake shop, $1 25; officer's quarters, $5; doctor's quarters, $2 25.

TOURISTS.—The Astorian says: Yesterday a pair of king-fishers struck the plate-glass front at Warren & Eaton's store, and fell stunned inside. They were picked up, and one of them showed fight, seizing upon the finger of Mr. Johnson, but they were finally set free, and one of them flew up Cass street, alighting upon Dr. Crang's sign at the Astorian office. Here he was caught again by Capt. J. H. D. Gray, and finally let loose over the water of the bay, going off with a voice as clear as if he had not passed through the exciting experience recounted.

STILL AHEAD.—Weeks ago the STATESMAN published the news of the convention held at Harrisburg, Alaska, to memorialize Congress for a territorial government, and yet the news has only just been received by the Associated Press. If there is a dead and gone old rooster anywhere he is sure to be picked out by the Associated Press as their reporter.

GOOD TO THE POINT.—Lewiston partakes of and has a small share of the prosperity of the country consequent upon the advent of the iron horse. Situated as the town is, there is nothing to prevent her becoming a metropolis. The STATESMAN will "stand in" and do its best to achieve so desirable a state of affairs.

ATTENTION IS DIRECTED TO THE Dayton advertisement of Frank Pierce, who has the best and most complete harness and saddle shop in the upper country east of Walla Walla. Mr. Pierce is one of the oldest citizens in our sister county, and is thoroughly acquainted with the wants of the people.

THANKS.—To the Idaho Park Association for a complimentary season ticket to their grounds. We can assure the noble President, Col. Mailey, and Fred Egan, Secretary, that nothing would suit us better than to visit them again, but we are waiting for the railroad.

GRANITE.—A granite mountain exists within a few miles of Lewiston, and rock quarried from there is well adapted for building purposes and is fully equal to Aberdeen granite. It admits of a high polish.

SOME WHEAT.—It is estimated that no less than four hundred tons of wheat leave Dayton daily for The Dalles.

DUTCH FRED KILLED.

A Cowardly Murderer. Last Thursday night at Boise city, Fred Hihn, better known as "Dutch Fred," was shot and killed by a fellow named Bedell, from Wood river. Poor Fred was for a long time a stage driver for the Overland Stage Company, and a better man never lived. The Boise Statesman gives the following account of the affair: It seems from the testimony of one of the inmates of a certain house in this city that she was in her room with Bedell when Hihn came to a door, which was locked. He tried the knob of the door and was told to keep out or he would be killed. So far from discouraging him, it only seemed to incite him to forcible action, for he burst in the door and a scuffle ensued between himself and Bedell, in the course of which Bedell drew a revolver and shot him in the pit of the stomach, the ball ranging upward into the lungs. Hihn lived about 15 minutes after the shooting. William C. Austin, who lives next door to the house where the shooting took place, was the first man in the house and found Hihn lying on the floor, with his back and shoulders against the wall and his clothes on fire from the flash of powder. Thomas Shortell and others then came in and found him apparently conscious, but unable to speak. Bedell fled the house, followed by Austin, who saw Tom Morrow, a special policeman, on the street, and called to him that a man had been shot by Bedell. Tom immediately arrested Bedell and took him to the lock-up, but did not know who was killed till he put him behind the bars. In the meantime the word spread like wildfire that "Dutch Fred" had been killed and in a few minutes the street was black with an angry sea of humanity. Fifteen gangs were in operation in two saloons but closed instantly after an hour it seemed imminent that Bedell would be lynched by the populace, so officers got a carriage and quietly removed him to the penitentiary where he now remains. Hihn was a native of Germany, aged about 50 years, and had lived in this territory for about twelve years. He was elected city marshal of Boise in 1879, and made an excellent officer. Since he went out of office he has been in the employ of the Stage company, as shot-gun messenger between Idaho city and Winnemucca. He was a kind-hearted old man, unmarried, and has no relatives on the coast that we know of. His funeral took place at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, from the Old Fellows' hall of which order he was an old and active member.

A BROTHER'S STATEMENT. VANCOUVER, W. T., Sept. 1, 1881. EDITOR STATESMAN.—My attention has been called to an article in your paper stating that I was arrested with my brother Cheney. This is incorrect; I hold a Government position at this place. There is a man with my brother's name from the people thought was a brother to him. I was here at the time the article of your paper containing the article mentioned was issued, and left on the same day for Cheney at the request of my wholesale house at Portland, where I agent was on the spot, and with whom I had to act jointly; as soon as this question was disposed of I returned, I had nothing to do with his affairs, and separated from him completely, even not writing till his trial came off.

I assisted my brother financially, and was carried on the business under the name of Toussaint Bros, and when he left here I never saw him or was with him until I met him August 30th at Spokane Falls.

Yours very respectfully, A. F. TOUSSAINT.

THE MAILS.—When General Ben Simpson was in the towns above on his duties as U. S. Mail agent, his attention was directed to the fact that the mails from Walla Walla via Dayton for the upper country have to stay over there almost twenty-four hours because since the railroad was completed the schedule time has remained as before. The editor of the STATESMAN proved by his own experience only two weeks since that it is a very easy task for a traveler to leave Walla Walla and arrive in Lewiston the same day and be at Mt. Idaho, the extreme limit of stage travel, the next evening. It is his sincere wish of all that the time be changed, and Gen. Simpson will receive the gratitude of the community by doing his best to prevent the extra trouble they will be put to by the present change, for we do not believe in changes when honest men have to stand the racket.

GOING TO WALLA WALLA.—The parties alluded to in the following item which we clip from the Falls City are in part well known here, C. P. Church, of the firm of Simpson & Church, and Frank Demont, a typographer, and a resident of the Oregon City Enterprise. "Capt. J. D. Miller and family intend starting for Walla Walla on Thursday, when the Captain is going to assume the management of the Star Mill, of that place, formerly owned by Mr. Welch, the miller who used to be in this city. The miller is now owned by the co-partnership of Messrs. C. P. Church and J. D. Miller and Messrs. Frank and Fred Demont.—Standard.

CELEBS INDIAN.—Yesterday afternoon we noticed several Indians in a high state of commotion by the side of Hawley, Wallace & Co's Bank, and inquiring into the cause we ascertained that one of them had tied his pony to the sidewalk and was walking up the street when a strange Indian took hold of the lariat, mounted the cayuse and sped off rapidly over the Fourth street bridge. A crowd of people gathered, and several swiftness started in pursuit, but with what success we were unable to ascertain.

TO THE UNION CLERK.—That the Walla Walla Board of Trade was a defunct organization from its inception there is no doubt, and it will certainly devolve upon some organized body to receive distinguished guests, and watch sharply for the interests of Walla Walla, we suggest that the Union Club take this matter in hand, when they, as representative citizens and business men, can do in all propriety. This suggestion we make to the executive committee.

A GROWL.—Great complaint exists at Lewiston consequent on the non-arrival of the expected steamer. Low water is the cause. A large force of men are at work on the road to Grande city, and the track will be laid as soon as possible and regardless of expense, so as to relieve the wheat producers of the large crops which have been universal this year.

DISSENTING.—A drunken man was driving a spring wagon in which were his wife and daughter at great speed over the Third street bridge. The danger of the occupants of the wagon was great that John Justice forced the man to the back seat while his daughter took the reins. While the wife was trying to keep him still he bit her several hard blows in the face. Such are the fruits of drunkenness.

WHOLESALE HOUSE.—Messrs. Francois Marx & Co. have opened a large wholesale grocery establishment at 217 Main street to be known as the Kentucky Liquor Store. The place has been nicely refitted by Mr. Abel, the proprietor of the building, and that, coupled with the fact of only first-class liquors in stock, will surely add a new industry to the city.
