LATE JUSTICE STORY ON DISUNION.
We find in the columns of a New England contemporary the subjoined passage from the writings of Justice Story:
When we reflect on what has been, and what it, how is it possible not to feel a profound sense of the responsibilities of this republic to all future ages?
What vast motives press upon us for lofty enthusiasm. What solemn warnings at once demand our vigilance and moderate our confidence.

Good Night,
Downward sinks the setting sun,
Soft the evening shadows fall;
Light is dying,
Darkness stealth over all—
Good night!
Autumn gathers in her stores—
Fusion of the fading year;
Leaves are falling,
Winds are sighing—
Whispering of the winter snow—
Good night!
Youth is vanishing, manhood wanes,
Age its forward shadow throws;
Days are dying,
Years are flying,
Life runs onward to its close—
Good night!

Miners Meeting in Salmon River Mines.
At a meeting of the miners of the 4th District, of Salmon River mines, held on the 18th of Oct. 1862, the following laws were passed:
PREAMBLE: Whereas, The present General Mining Laws of Salmon Mines, are inadequate for the protection of the mining interest of District No. 4, said District comprising Sand creek, Healey's creek and their tributaries. Therefore be it enacted, That we the miners of the 4th District, do this day deem it expedient to adopt a code of Laws governing said District, and we agree to abide by, and be governed by the following Laws, to-wit:
Article 1st. Each person mining in these mines shall be entitled to hold by location one hill, one gulch, and one creek claim.
Article 2nd. Any person or persons discovering a Quartz Ledge or Lode, shall be entitled to one claim each by location, and one by right of discovery.

EASTERN NEWS.
Dates to Oct. 29.
New York, Oct. 29th.—At daylight this morning, the Twenty-Third Illinois regiment attacked a rebel foraging party, capturing 175 head of cattle, 16 prisoners and 20 head of horses.
Baltimore, Oct. 29.—A committee of loyal citizens, appointed by a Union town meeting some time since to take testimony to lay before the President, as to charges against the military authorities, while in session last night, were seized with all their papers, by order of Gen. Wool. Much excitement was occasioned by this act. Gov. Bradford was very indignant, and it was understood that he had sent a protest to the President.
The Emancipation Proclamation.
The Washington correspondent of the St. Louis Democrat gives the following inside view of the position of the various members of the Cabinet on the President's emancipation scheme:
The position of the various members of the Cabinet on the President's emancipation policy, during the time that it was the subject of Cabinet discussion may be accurately stated, and on a subject of such momentous interest the information is due the public. From the outset Gov. Chase has been the recognized leader in urging emancipation, and when the matter was at various times under discussion, he was its leading advocate. Secretary Welles favored emancipation, but was not specially energetic in urging it, as he rarely is in urging any point in public policy outside his own Department. Secretary Stanton, if not originally active in favor of emancipation by the approved method, was at least opposed to it in the later discussions. At the same time he has always been outspoken in declaring his readiness to strike at slavery under the war power whenever and whenever slavery could be reached. Postmaster General Blair was throughout the most determined and bitter opponent of the emancipation policy, and when the substance of the proclamation was made known to the Cabinet, he was perhaps more outspoken than any of the members in protesting against its adoption. Not less determined, though perhaps more cautious in protest, was Secretary Seward. He was not so ready to say that he was the great leader in the Cabinet of opposition to any policy of emancipation resembling that which the President finally adopted. Secretary Smith and Attorney General Bates occupied about the same ground on the subject. They opposed the proclamation, not because they were averse to the abolition of slavery, but because they believed it would be certainly accomplished by legitimate progress of the war without the step the President has taken. They believed that obtaining from the proclamation would save trouble in the border States, and avoid, possibly, complications at the North. In short, they believed in pushing the war as vigorously as possible, and had no doubt that the necessary result would be the destruction of slavery in the progress of the war.—Secretary Smith is understood to have urged these views very strongly.—Attorney General Bates with less persistence. There was an actual majority in the Cabinet against the President's proclamation; but Lincoln, as usual, when he has made up his mind, took the matter in his own hand, without much deference to the opinions of his Cabinet officers, and even at last, with little if any consultation. It is claimed that the emancipation policy is strictly a war measure, and as such it receives the support of Gen. McClellan, who was consulted as to its character.

Garibaldians Offering to Fight for the Union.
Five Thousand Italian Soldiers for our War.
By the courtesy of R. A. Withaus of this city, says a New York paper, we are permitted to publish the following letter, received by him from an officer of Garibaldi's army, tendering the services of six thousand Italian patriots to fight for the Union. Taken in connection with the personal offer of Garibaldi's services, of which we receive tidings, this is a striking indication of the zeal of the Italian patriots in the cause of freedom:
"Milan, (Italy), Sept. 15, 1862.—I desire you to read the following proposal with patience, and if you think it execution possible, to favor me with an answer:
'After the execrable betrayal, by which the great Garibaldi was captured at Aspromonte, all his young heroic followers are stopped in their career, and the incredible persecutions which Government exercises towards them, prompts them to emigrate! A great many of the officers have requested me to lead them with their soldiers to America, in order to fight for the Union! After minute and detailed inquiries, I am convinced that I can collect from four to six thousand men, composed of two hundred good officers, and all of them veterans, who have experienced service in the campaign of 1848—49 and 1859—60.
'Can and will the State of New York engage them? Will you inquire about this in His Excellency, Gov. E. D. Morgan?
'They could all arrive ready equipped in New York.
'Please accept this, my proposition, as a testimony of the love I bear the great Union Republic of America, and I shall consider myself fortunate if my proffered services are accepted from this standpoint.
'In the hope to be soon favored by an answer, I have the honor to subscribe with the most profound respect,
'ALBINO B., Colonel.'
A translation of this letter has been forwarded to Governor Morgan by Withaus. It is understood that the Garibaldians whose services are thus tendered, will find no difficulty in leaving for the United States. They have taken no part in the late demonstrations, and are living quietly at their homes as peaceful citizens—retaining, however, their general form of military organization.
LARGEST CITY IN THE WORLD.—A very erroneous idea is indulged in by many people in relation to the largest city in the world, many confidently assert that London, or, as is frequently termed, 'Great Metropolis,' is far superior both in size and the number of its inhabitants. But such is not the case. Jeddo, the capital of Japan, is, without exception, the largest and most populous city in the world.
'It contains the vast number of 1,500,000 dwellings, and 5,000,000 of human souls.
'Many of the streets are 19 Japanese in length, which is equivalent to 22 English miles.
'The commerce of Jeddo far exceeds that of any other city in the world, and the sea along the coast is constantly white with the sails of ships. Their vessels sail to a Southern portion of the empire, where they are laden with rice, tea, sea-coal, tobacco, silk, cotton and tropical fruits, all of which can find ready market in the North; and return freighted with corn, salt, oil, iron, glass, and various other productions of the North, which have a market in the South.

Western Courtship.
The nine Miss Browns were going to be married; and on the following evening a banquet was prepared, a minister announced, and the nine bride-grooms in awfully new attire arrived to claim their lady-loves.
Each Miss Brown wept and blushed in turn, and I as bridesmaid did my duty. Supper followed, and after that a dance, of which I will only say that if you never saw a Western ball, you cannot imagine to what a pitch the art of dancing can be carried.
My partner was a stalwart youth of six feet three inches, sun-burnt and black-eyed, and wearing his gala suit with a jaunty 'abandon' which was rather taking. He kept excellent time and made considerable noise with his feet. When the set was over, we sat down in a quiet corner to rest, and as I was fanning myself, I was astonished to find Mr. Sicken—for that was his name—had taken the opportunity of encircling the back of my chair with his arm. I shoved my chair a little, but he only edged the nearer.
'Do you know you are the nicest gal that's been in these parts for ten years?' he asked.—'If you don't know it, you are. Now I'm considerable sweet on you and I want you to be my wife. 'T would be a good notion to step up and ask the parson to fix us like the other fellows—wouldn't it? If you will, I will!'
The whole affair was so ludicrous, that for the life of me I could not help laughing.
'Ha! ha! ha!' roared my suitor, 'would make 'em laugh, wouldn't it? Come, it's a funny notion, let's do it.'
And he pulled my arm as vigorously that I was obliged to seize the back of the settee to regain my seat.
'I didn't mean to marry, Mr. Sicken,' I remonstrated. 'I am going next week. We don't marry in such haste in my part of the world—please drop the subject.'
'Look a here, you don't know who I am,' remonstrated my suitor. 'I'm a real half-breed—half-Gallego feller. I'm death on whisky, I am, and can lick any ten men from anywhere; I've shot down half a dozen in my day, and the way I can handle a Bowie knife is a caution. No kind of variolous can escape me, and I'm a match for any gal, I tell you.'
I shook my head and kept my hand upon the settee.
'If you won't hev me now when will you, say?' persisted the 'illegible man.' 'Come, speak out, I'm obligin', and will wait as you like.'
I shook my head again.
'You'd better not take a shine to any other feller while I'm round,' pursued my suitor.
'I'll put a half an inch of cold steel into him if you do. Why, I wouldn't stand it, I wouldn't.'
I can tick any twenty, I can't.
I could not stand it any longer, but freeing myself from the detaining grasp which my wretched suitor kept upon my wrist, escaped from the apartment yawning to avoid all single gentlemen during the remainder of my stay at Blommerville.
THE GREAT MEN OF THE PAST.—Setting aside Washington and Franklin, who are admitted to have been exceptional men (but who were nevertheless "righted" into their own day nevertheless), we believe that there are now in the public service of the United States, five times as many able men as there were during the revolutionary war. A deceptive halo surrounds the men of the past; they are seen by us in the light of a glorious success, and at the distance of eighty years, their mistakes, their failures, their faults, are all forgotten. The men of to-day we see in a clear light, that rather exaggerates than conceals their short-comings. We are close to them, and yet they are grasping with difficulties of which our knowledge is incomplete. Let them do what they will, they cannot satisfy the general imagination which clamors for impossibilities. Half a century hence our leaders will be better understood than they are now.—New York Ledger.
WHAT IS A NAME?—'I want to ship in the Lucilla,' said a Dutchman to a clerk in a shipping office.
'Well, said the clerk, pen in hand, what's your name?'
'It ich Hans Vans Mananderdumscany-mendy-mitchschunpuly-mungschuportin-romp' said the Dutchman gravely.
'Zounds!' cried the clerk; 'do you know what it is in English?'
'Yes, ich does,' said the Dutchman; 'it ich Van Smith.'
At a young ladies' seminary a few days since, during an examination in history, not one of the most promising pupils was interrogated:
'Mary, did Martin Luther die a natural death?'
'No,' was the prompt reply; 'he was excommunicated by a bull.'
McClellan Silver medals have appeared in San Francisco. They are in size like a fifty cent piece, on one side a bust of the General, with the words, 'Major-General George B. McClellan' surrounding it, and on the other is an American eagle encircled by the words 'I have sworn to defend my country.'
BRECKINRIDGE'S NEPHEW.—A nephew of J. C. Breckinridge has enlisted in the Eleventh Illinois. He expressed the amiable hope that a bullet shot from his rifle should lay his traitor uncle low.
A SAYING.—The California merchants are now paying their Eastern debts in legal tenders. By the last steamer one could purchase a draft for $1,000 by paying $800 in gold, so that the California trader saved just twenty per cent. A handsome profit and very easily made.
A NOOT OF ECHO, mourning over the fate that doomed him to be an exile from his country and his home, said, 'if he ever lived to die, but God only knew whether he would or not, he hoped to see sweet Ireland before he left Philadelphia.'
THE POPULATION OF THE SANDWICH ISLANDS IN '32 was 12,000; it has since been decreased by disease to half that number. The eggs will ultimately be supplied by Americans and Europeans.
FORTUNE MAY FAVOR FOOLS; BUT THAT'S A POOR REASON WHY YOU SHOULD MAKE A FOOL OF YOURSELF.
CONSCIENCE IN SOME MEN IS BUT THE DREAD OF A PUBLIC OPINION.

Removal. The Statesman office will be removed to-day to Third street, one door above the corner of Main, in the rear of Brown Bro's & Co's new brick building.

Foreign Intervention. If the much talked of intervention of France and England in American affairs should occur on the first of January next, or at any subsequent time, and those two powers recognize the Southern Confederacy, what policy will the people of the north pursue?

Such a recognition, and consequent support of the Southern Confederacy by these powers, would inevitably bring about a war compared to which that now being waged in our land would be but an insignificant shadow.

The proud people of America were not born to be the slaves of any foreign power. The great north would rise up in her might and beat the cowardly invaders back.

France and England are not blind to these facts, and we are loath to believe that there will be an intervention policy pursued by them. They are suffering for want of cotton, and it is hard, no doubt, for the poor people of these nations to pay the exorbitant prices which cotton fabrics command.

From St. Cloud to Walla Walla. From one of a party of five men, who arrived in Walla Walla two days ago, we get the following information in relation to a trip from the town of St. Cloud, Minnesota, to Colville, in this Territory.

They started from St. Cloud, on the 11th of July last, with two wooden carts and two Indian ponies—one pony to a cart—starting with one hundred pounds of flour to the man, and such other necessary articles only as they could not dispense with.

Violence Committee.—A large number of citizens of Lewiston have organized themselves into a Violence Committee, with a city police of twenty-five men, who are to be kept continually on duty.

Shot by Indians.—A packer, whose name we have not learned, was shot by Indians at Wild Horse Creek on Wednesday morning. The circumstances as we learn them are as follows: The Indians had stolen a horse from the packer; he followed them into the brush to recover the animal, and coming unexpectedly upon them they seized him, took his revolver from him and shot him in the hip, inflicting a serious flesh wound.

Suppressed.—The S. F. Evening Journal, says it is stated that the Oregon Union, published at Corvallis, is to be devoted to transmission through the mails and express companies.

Editorial Correspondence.

Notwithstanding the rapidly enlarging proportions of this metropolis of the Northwest, it cannot yet be considered a very profitable place for the lounge. I have made several perambulations about town in search of the queer and curious, but have found little to amuse and entertain.

Let us see who among the business men of the old residents "have held to the faith," and are now reaping the harvest which was so long maturing. From an "up-town" stand-point, I commence with "Couch & Flanders"—names as familiar to the country as household words.

The Blackfoot Indians, at the foot of the mountains, were very annoying. They would take their horses and hide them away at night in the timber, and when they were asked if they knew anything of them, would feign great surprise at their absence, but would volunteer to hunt them for a blanket.

One of the parties prospected on a little stream at the foot of the mountains and obtained small prospects of gold, but the Indians made him desist and told him that he must go (pointing westward) to the Boston country to dig for gold.

Mr. Wm. Wilson, who came in from Boise this week, informs us that the Snake Indians recently made a descent upon the camp of a company of packers, in the vicinity of Fort Boise, and drove off all their animals. Mr. W. says the Indians in that country manifest a decidedly inhospitable disposition toward the whites, though since the rush to Boise began they seem to have become somewhat intimidated, and will through fear of the large number of whites in their country, probably commit no serious depredations.

They have a fine store, an immense stock of goods, and an extensive trade. J. Kohn & Co., are among the heaviest of the wholesale dealers. W. S. Ladd retired from his old business several years ago, established the first banking and exchange house in the city, and must now be reaping a handsome income from the shrewd direction of the capital with which the business was established.

Our citizens turned out en masse, and as the house was too small, they organized the meeting by appointing Geo. E. Cole, President, and then adjourned to Arcade Hall. The crowd was increased to thousands, and upon Mr. Cole taking the Chair, Mr. E. B. Waterbury was elected Vice President, and Mr. L. H. Thompson as Secretary.

The next morning the citizens met at an early hour, and appointed a committee of fifty others to make the necessary arrangements for their trial. The committee consisted of our best merchants and citizens generally. They took possession of the prisoners and carried them into the vacant saloon of Hays & Trevitt. The citizens then appointed Mr. R. H. Johns the Judge to try them, and the President of the meeting, Mr. Cole, drew out from a hat a jury of twenty-four names out of a list of two hundred and eighty.

Our citizens turned out en masse, and as the house was too small, they organized the meeting by appointing Geo. E. Cole, President, and then adjourned to Arcade Hall. The crowd was increased to thousands, and upon Mr. Cole taking the Chair, Mr. E. B. Waterbury was elected Vice President, and Mr. L. H. Thompson as Secretary.

The next morning the citizens met at an early hour, and appointed a committee of fifty others to make the necessary arrangements for their trial. The committee consisted of our best merchants and citizens generally. They took possession of the prisoners and carried them into the vacant saloon of Hays & Trevitt. The citizens then appointed Mr. R. H. Johns the Judge to try them, and the President of the meeting, Mr. Cole, drew out from a hat a jury of twenty-four names out of a list of two hundred and eighty.

BEING LEAVE TO INFORM THEIR FRIENDS AND

The Devil and the Lawyers. The Devil came up to the earth one day. And to the court house window he went. Just as an attorney with a very grave face, Was proceeding to argue the points of his case? Now, a lawyer his majesty never had seen, For his dominions none ever had seen, And he felt very anxious the reason to know Why none had been sent to the rigorous stool.

Gen. Houston's Prescription to a Bore. Among the guests at the St. Nicholas Hotel in New York, once on a time, was Gen. Sam. Houston, of Texas. Gen. Houston is, as all his acquaintances well know, fond of mirth and fun, and, in short, is what docticks would call a P. B.—perfect bore. The General, however, entertains an intense hatred for that species of humor being called "bore."

Benefit of Avena Florentina.—The London Agricultural Gazette says: The tillage and drainage of the soil are very closely related to each other. So, indeed, are the tillage and manuring the soil. And these, not merely as cause and effect, are related—through drainage does enable tillage, and tillage does alter composition, as being operations of the same class and kind.
