The Congregationalists have concluded that their church is too far away from the center of population and have staked out the store room in the Cadwell building, where services will be held during the winter.

Lieut. Wyckoff is having a comfortable cottage built on his farm on the bench to the west of the city. He returned to Port Orchard Saturday.

Fred R. Reed and Bert Hancock left for the Sound Saturday. Mr. Reed returned on Monday.

The new warehouse to be built by ChapPELL & Cox will be almost double the size of the one destroyed by fire, being 50x70 feet. It will be built of corrugated iron, which has been ordered from Chicago, and is made fire-proof, with iron shutters and doors.

D. E. Leah, wife and three children left Monday for a visit of three or four weeks with Mr. Leah's parents at Steamboat Rock, Iowa.

The Northern Pacific has expressed a willingness to put in a depot at Yakima City if the citizens will build 2000 feet of roadbed. It is about time this act of justice was done, and it seems a very small piece of business for the company to ask the citizens to do its grading.

"Dr. Bill," the comedy to be presented Saturday evening at the opera house, is said to be decidedly French in tone and full of funny situations. That it had a run of 964 nights in three cities attests its popularity.

The Republic seems over-perturbed because Tom Hamalo should receive pay from the city for the work it does. That paper may rest easier when it learns that Tom Hamalo's bills have not been as great as the Republic's by over fifty per cent. Perhaps an overhauling of the Republic's bills for city and county printing may be what that paper desires.

Spokane Review: Yakima papers state that their section this year produced fruit far superior to that shown in the California car which recently passed through that city, a fact which the manager of the car acknowledged by taking a quantity of it east with him. Yakima has long been known as one of the best fruit growing sections in the west, but it is too bad that the choicest products of that locality should now be used to induce immigration to California.

Blue jeans is becoming a most popular material for many home uses. It sheds dust easily and can be washed without changing color, and for these reasons it is liked for table covers, seats for partially worn-out chairs, crumpled cloths and closet portieres. It should be worked in a bold, conventional pattern, with rope lines or coarse embroidery silk, and it makes a splendid cover for an invalid's sofa pillow, worked with white rope lines.

Rev. Mr. Chas., of the Episcopal church, was for a number of years engaged in the newspaper business in Boston.

Falk Tension, formerly a drugist of Tacoma, but recently from Australia, is now in the employ of H. H. Allen as prescription clerk.

The public library has been moved to comfortable quarters in the Livesley block.

Dr. G. J. Hill has his office over the Yakima National bank, and not the First National, as stated last week.

"Dr. Bill," which will be presented at the opera house Saturday, is a light and racy farce comedy. "Dr. Bill" is a rich young physician in London who marries, and in order to escape from his theatrical and other too worldly friends decides to give up his practice. His plans to lead a strictly domestic life are frustrated by his father-in-law, who designedly causes his son-in-law doctor's name to be published in the press in such a connection as to overwhelm him with patients. In this way his old loves of the theatrical profession find him out. Chief among them are Mrs. Horton, now the wife of a police inspector, and the gay and festive Miss Fauntleroy, danseuse by profession. Once they are thrown together both by design and accident, there ensues a series of complications, laughable, ridiculous, and at one time, not altogether consistent with modern ideas of social propriety.

Arthur L. Duellie, who believes his name and is a rustler, was in the city Monday in the interest of the Washington Blank Book company, of Tacoma.

Telephonic connection has been made with Dr. G. J. Hill's residence. Ring up No. 5.

Marshall M. Miller is on the lookout for a dapper young fellow who burglarized the room of Train Dispatcher J. R. Abbey, of Ellensburg, Tuesday. The thief carried a gold watch and a K. of P. charm.

Sam Chappell is mourning a despoiled clothesline. Some one entered his yard the other night and made off with a quantity of underclothes and linen which Mr. Chappell had just laid in stock to carry him through the winter.

The city council met last Monday evening and fixed the tax levy for the ensuing year as follows: For general municipal purposes, 4 mills; for special fund, 3 mills; for road and bridge fund, 1 mill; total, 8 mills, against 10 mills for last year.

Sneak thieves are playing havoc with wigs, robes and small parcels left in buggies by unsuspecting country people. The officers are now busy trying to ferret out a number of these petty larcenies. People should be on their guard against these thieves.

Burglars broke into Stone & Green's store Monday night and made off with a lot of under-clothing, silk handkerchiefs and about four dollars in change which was left in the till. They secured entrance into the building by prying up one of the rear windows.

Nip Oakley, charged with stealing a fine buggy from Rufus Henderson on the Natchees, was given an examining trial before Justice Gardner last Saturday and bound over to the superior court in the sum of $1,000. Failing to secure the necessary bond, Oakley now bides in jail until court meets, Dec. 7.

The contract for building the middle ditch in Kittitas county has been let to the Buellman Contract company, of Tacoma, for bonds of the district to the amount of $200,000, drawing six per cent. interest and running twenty years. The ditch is to be finished next year, and it is claimed that it will irrigate 30,000 acres.

The lame bootblack was ordered out of town the other day on account of his general worthlessness, and Monday night he broke into the section house at Toppenish and stole some clothing and blankets belonging to Pat Gallagher. Sheriff Simmons has been using every effort to capture the thief, but has so far been given the slip.

A slide on the N. P. R. R., near Eagle Gorge, occurred on Wednesday, and it was at first reported that fifteen men engaged in repairing damages from the former recent cave were killed. No particulars can be learned, but it is said at railroad headquarters here that the report is greatly exaggerated. Trains are again running through.

Walter, son of J. H. Purdin, of the Wenas, sent some large and handsome apples of the "Maiden's Blush" variety to THE HERALD office Wednesday. Why they were called the Maiden's Blush it is hard to tell, unless on account of the luscious coloring, for no maiden or any one else would have any reason to blush at such beautiful fruit.

Chappell & Cox's store was broken into and burglarized last night, and the thieves got away with several suits of clothes, four or five overcoats, and a lot of silk handkerchiefs. It appears that the reduction of the police force was made at a very inopportune time; at least, the thieves take advantage of the scarcity of policemen, and get in their fine work while the officers are out of the way.

The musicals at the opera house last night was probably the most successful local performance ever given here. Nearly every seat was filled, and without exception the people are loud in their praise of the excellent character of the entertainment. It is a real pleasure to our citizens to reflect upon the musicals as well as dramatic ability of our "home talent." Such entertainments as that of Thanksgiving night cannot fail to increase their interest and popularity.

True to the prediction of this paper, Mr. Will R. White has joined the ranks of the benedictines. The knot which bound for life this popular young gentleman to Miss Louisa Schanno was tied at the residence of the bride's mother in Yakima City Wednesday evening, Nov. 25. No cards were issued and none but immediate relatives witnessed the ceremony, but it is said that some of the many friends of the young couple tendered an impromptu serenade in the shape of a charivari. If their happiness half realizes the well-wishes of their many friends, THE HERALD included, they will find their path through life strewn with roses.

PERSONAL.

F. S. Woodward, late superintendent of the Electric Light & Water company, expects to leave the first of next week for a visit to Baltimore, Md.

Miss Houghton, of Seattle, is about to take up her abode among us. Her musical abilities will make her a valuable acquisition to Yakima society.

J. M. Brown is up from his Horse Heaven ranch. He reports a joyful Thanksgiving at his home. His first cause for thanks was the advent of a little girl, and his next that she wasn't twins.

Howard Carr, of Tacoma, well known in this city, accompanied by his wife, arrived in Yakima Tuesday. Mr. Carr is suffering greatly with a severe attack of asthma, and is trying the efficacy of our climate.

B. K. Hall, a well known conductor on this division of the Northern Pacific during construction times, but now a successful real estate man of Tacoma, was here this week visiting F. B. Shardlow. Mr. Hall anticipates investment in Yakima realty.

Judge B. B. Bishop, of Pendleton, who was largely instrumental in building the first of Oregon's railroads, the one around the Cascades of the Columbia, in 1851, was in the city several days during the past week visiting his niece, Mrs. W. D. Walker. The motive power of this road at the start was furnished by mules. Judge Bishop has a fund of interesting and exciting stories regarding those early times. He was in the fight when the Indians tried to capture the steamer Mary, which was tied up below the junction of Mill creek and the Columbia. In this battle Dan Put. Bradford, Jim Thompson, H. Chenoweth and several other well known persons were in it. Capt. Banfill ran away and was succeeded in command by Jim Homan, at present a resident of The Dalles. Homan took the boat loose and after a perilous trip brought back Captain Wright and 200 men, who routed the hostiles after a hard battle. A number of the whites were wounded and one or two killed.

AN ENJOYABLE SOCIAL.—The Thanksgiving eve party at the Hotel Yakima, given by Miss Host Atherton and wife, was a success in every particular and an unusually pleasant party. A very elaborate lunch was served shortly after midnight in a very pleasant way, two large tables being brought into the ballroom already spread, and from them the guests were served by the always attentive Hotel Yakima waiters. Music was furnished by Reed's orchestra. Among those present we noticed Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Donald and Miss Donald, Mr. and Mrs. Myron Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Atherton, Mr. and Mrs. Will James, Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Henton, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Conolly, Mr. and Mrs. H. Spinning, Mr. and Mrs. Ed White, Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Courter, Mrs. Goodwin, Mrs. F. Horeley, Mrs. Dr. Graves, Miss Houghton, of Seattle, the Misses Mattoon, Kate Patton, Dora Allen, Sinclair, Wright, Dunton, Baxter, Vaughn, Bailey, Katie Stephenson and Dr. Hare, Messrs. Vance, Wilson, Woodward, Guiland, D. Guiland, Jr., Walter Cornett, Baxter, H. H. Lombard, C. H. Lombard, Dittler, Sinclair, Stephenson, Al Rosbach, Hartung and Pelly.

POETICAL INDIAN NAMES.—The meaning of the Indian names which have been given to the different sections of the great Yakima country have been somewhat clouded in mystery, but a gentleman who has given the matter considerable study furnishes the following definitions: Cowychee, flower land; Wenas, narrowwaters; Kowsock, white dust; Satis, mad waters; Toppenish, stream of the oaks; Kittitas, white cliff; Yakima, succotash garden; Moose, land of the whirlwind; Tietan, milky waters; Simcoe, waving grass; Abnanum, daughter of the mountain.

HOP NEWS.—Hop quotations remain about the same, although the market seems less active. Charles Carpenter shipped three car loads to Minneapolis this week, being 70 and 77 bales by Stevens & Henderson. This makes 23 car loads, or 1500 bales, that Mr. Carpenter has shipped this season. He estimates that the crop this year will not run over 2500 bales, although the hops are weighing much heavier than ever before, one bale, the champion of the season, weighing 235 lbs.

Poison in the Kitchen.

No article entering so generally into the food of every household is so generally and villainously adulterated as baking powder. These adulterated powders are shoved upon the public with the greatest persistency.

Throbbing advertisements in newspapers claiming this brand or that is absolutely pure, backed by analyses and certificates, and yet they are adulterated with ammonia or alum. It is to be hoped the law will take hold of these mercile manufacturers and punish them for destroying the stomachs of the unsuspecting consumer.

Amid all this fraud and deceit Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder stands almost alone battling for pure food and continues to furnish a pure cream of tartar powder at almost the same cost to the people as the ammonia and alum powders are sold at, yet it costs much more to manufacture.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder is of the highest strength. It produces the largest amount of leavening power attainable in a pure baking powder. It is free from ammonia or any other adulteration. No powder does such work. Housewives who have tested all use Dr. Prices only.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

THE TUG OF WAR.

The Picked Team of Citizens Not in it with the Fire Boys

The Yakima fire laddies are determined to keep up the reputation gained over the Ellensburg boys July 4th last. They met the picked team of citizens in the "tug of war," at Switzer's opera house, Wednesday evening, and now wear the champion pennant. The exhibition of strength was given in the presence of a large and enthusiastic crowd, but, owing to the extra "heft" of the citizens' team the fire boys were not backed among their sporting friends to the extent of their merits, as the result showed. Two strong pulls, the first by the citizens' crowd, resulted in the loss of eight inches to the firemen, and the second in a similar gain by the city's defenders, marked the only great outward struggle, and then, with bodies ached backward and muscles drawn to the utmost tension, the tug of war was on in earnest. Such supreme effort cannot last very long, and in two minutes the "citizens" were gradually drawn over the line, and the fire boys gained the victory, amid enthusiastic cheering of the audience.

The citizens' team make the claim that the firemen's success was due to appliances with which the former was unprovided, and are now trying to incite the boys to another contest, but, when it is remembered that the citizens' weighed several hundred pounds in excess of the firemen, the latter are certainly entitled to all the glory attainable from the victory, even though they may have had advantages, through the former experience of their coacher, Mr. E. T. Willson, which the citizens were not of.

The entertainment was very enjoyable one, winding up with a good old-fashioned dance.

Thanksgiving in Yakima

Thanksgiving was probably observed here more generally this year than ever before. Nearly all the stores and other places of business were closed, at least part of the day, and the streets presented the appearance of Sunday. The union services at the Presbyterian church were of a very interesting character and highly enjoyed by a large audience. The musicals at the opera house was well patronized, and everybody is loud in praise of the entertainment. A live pigeon shoot in the eastern part of town drew an interested crowd, and the raffle of three or four horses served to attract the attention of members of the sporting fraternity, as well as others who were overly flush. A dance at the Hotel Bartholomew in the evening was also well patronized and highly enjoyed. Turkeys quit the scene entirely immediately after dark, on a rising market. Altogether it was a quiet, pleasant day.

The Congregationalists Will Move.

After three years of effort to sustain congregations in their church building on the west side of the track, the Congregationalists have decided to occupy the large store room in the Cadwell block opposite THE HERALD office for the winter. Services will be held morning and evening, beginning with Sunday school at 10 a. m.

The subjects announced for the Sunday evenings of December are: "The natural evidences of the immortality of the soul," "Christ's philosophy of life," "The Creation," "Being and personality of the Deity."

The Greedy Girl and the Ferns.

A story was recently told to me by a lady who had just returned from camping in the Yosemite valley. A friendly guide, when asked about the ferns of the region, answered that he would have to know her a long time before he would be willing to tell her about the kinds in the valley, and continued: "I know you don't mean any harm, but there was a young woman here from the Bay—a great botanist—and I told her of a fern that only grew in two places, so far as I knew, in the whole region. Then she was wild to see it. I told her she might have some leaves to press in her brown paper book, but warned her not to pull up any. Don't you know I know better than to spoil your fern garden?" replied the college girl. So I showed her where the stuff grew—one place, where the most of it grew, under some dry brush I had put there—and I made her promise again not to tell any one, and not to pull it up.

"I said to her: 'I guess there ain't but two clumps of it in the Yosemite, and my idea is it ought to stay where it would be a kind of murder to drive it out.' Then she looked real pretty, and said she entirely agreed with me. It might be a new species, she remarked, and it might be named after me if I would let it be taken away, but then I was exactly right, and it belonged right here.

"Two or three weeks after that her camp broke up, and she went up the valley and dug up every root of the fern that she could find. Fact I saw her doing it. When I went down to tell them good-bye, she had a little hypocrite slyed up and begged me to take good care of the ferns—especially of that new kind of No. 11—she said you everything in the line of plants from the Merced river to the top of El Capitan, except one little bunch of fern—all that was left by that young woman from the Bay.—Glen and Forest.

A Woman of the West. One of the prettiest women in the West is the wife of Judge Burke, of Seattle. She has the well groomed air of a lady, and she is a first-class beauty. Withal, she is tall, slender, dark haired, dark eyed and has a complexion that can dare much in the matter of color. She is dressed by Worth and goes to Paris every year to select her new gowns. Imagine this of the master's sublimity ordered at one time for that far away town in Washington.

When you meet a woman like Mrs. Burke, who owns her own yacht and can sail it, too; who is a capital horsewoman and can drive a four-in-hand; who can swim, dive and dance with grace and ease, hold her own as a shot and has a good French accent, and who has had New York training and western opportunity can make of a woman. One of the latest fads Mrs. Burke brought back from Paris is that of wearing a dot of a timepiece inside the high collar of her gown. A smart, clear-headed terminant in the most exquisitely wrought basket of golden flowers falls on the outside of the collar and keeps the watch in place. Thus has she solved one of the worries of watchmaker and woman, and who have for years sought a way at once safe and convenient for the feminine watch to be worn.

Judge Burke is a lawyer and a man of affairs. He had the prestige of being a territorial judge before Washington sparkled as a star in our national armament. He can relate many amusing incidents of his early career, and among others his experience with justice among a crowd of women, who he pronounced to be, as a rule, severe upon their own sex and more inclined to show justice than mercy to the other.—Mrs. Robert P. Porter in New York Herald.

Melon Day at Rocky Ford. Five thousand long green watermelons of the "swan" variety were arranged in a huge pile within a low board inclosure under the shade of New Cottonwood grove, in the pleasant little village of Rocky Ford, Colo., one morning recently. Surrounding these watermelons were little pyramids of cantaloupes, some 2,000 or 3,000 in number. The top of this board inclosure served as a table, on which the melons, sliced by big knives into halves, were laid, only to be eagerly assailed by waiting crowds of merry people, who lined the tables as closely as they could stand. The only restrictions were numerous rudely painted signs tacked to trees, reading, "Please leave your rinds upon the tables."

It was Melon Day at Rocky Ford, and this melon pen was the center of all interest, and every one of the 5,000 visitors present at this annual festival were welcome to as much melon as they could stow away. Ten years ago a single ranchman named G. W. Swank was raising melons for market in this valley. The quality of his product was so superior that 100 acres of melons could not supply the demand.

Now the village of Rocky Ford is in the center of thousands of acres of watermelon vines, while as far as the eye can reach, stretch prolific fields of grain and hay, interspersed with young orchards and luxuriant vegetable gardens. All this is the result of irrigation during the past ten years. No longer are the students of this valley deluged in celebrating this annual Melon Day.—Cor. St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Speeulations from Storms. Physiologists—that is to say, the physicians who are not killing—are now busy repairing the aftermath of the thunderstorms which for a week or more have been the chief meteorological feature of our climate. Lightning of every type—sizzler, with sharply defined borders, without any apparent width, in sheets or in the shape of fireballs—has been seen, and several lives have been lost by these Olympian thunderbolts. But what is most curious is that cattle have been more frequently struck than human beings, even when the chances of both were equal. This has been noticed more than once by students of electricity.

Thus, a miller standing between a horse and a mule was only shaken a little, while the animals were killed. There is also the well known instance of the Abbey of Noirmontiers, near Tours, where a flash of lightning killed twenty-two horses without doing any other harm to the 150 monks whom it visited in the refectory than overturning the 150 bottles which contained their rations of wine.—London Graphic.

COOL AND COURAGEOUS.

HOW A KENTUCKY GIRL OUTWITTED AND KILLED A BEAR.

A School Girl Who Thought a Lesson on How to Circumvent Bruin—She Blocked Him with Wearing Apparel Until She Could Get to Shelter and a Gun.

Miss Callie McGee, of this place, has an experience that she will not forget, and in which she showed rare courage and presence of mind in the face of the greatest danger.

Miss Callie has been teaching school in the "Bear Creek" district, which lies on the waters of Bear creek. In going to and returning from school each week she is obliged to pass over Bear Walker mountain—so called by the early settlers on account of the great number of bears that formerly made it a resting place in their migrations from the Chimney mountains to the Cumberland. For several years past, however, no bears have been seen, and the inhabitants have long ceased to apprehend any danger from these animals. Miss Callie started for her home for the purpose of passing the Sabbath with her mother. She was accompanied by her little niece, who is only three years old.

The road between Bear Creek valley and America is lonely even for a mountain road, and from the base of the mountain on one side to the foot on the other—a distance of three miles—there are no signs of human habitation. While slowly climbing the mountain on the left hand side from this place Miss Callie was suddenly startled by a rustling of the bushes at one side of the road, and upon looking around discovered a large black bear stepping slowly and cautiously into the road about forty yards in her rear.

Catching up the child in her arms, she fled rapidly up the steep mountain side. Casting a terrified glance backward over her shoulder she was appalled to see the bear break into a lumbering gallop and start in pursuit. The child, frightened at the unusual actions of her aunt, was screaming at the top of its voice, and Miss Callie, with her eyes fixed on the bear to catch them. Panting and gasping for breath she at length reached the top of the mountain almost exhausted, and upon looking back discovered the bear still in pursuit and rapidly decreasing the distance between them, being now scarcely fifty yards behind her.

Occasionally the bear gave an angry snort, as if enraged at being balked of his intended prey. His heavy, labored breathing was now distinctly audible to her ear, and she realized that her strength was failing, and that it was impossible for her to continue her present pace much longer. While contemplating her flight the child's hat, with its gay ribbons and flowers, became accidentally unarranged and fell to the ground. After a hundred yards or more, Miss McGee ventured to look back once more, and her relief may be imagined when she saw the bear still fifty yards behind her.

A COOL CALCULATION. Miss McGee said that at sight of this she instantly recovered presence of mind, and coolly began to calculate on her chances of escape and her best method of procedure. She knew that the nearest house in which she could seek safety was still nearly two and a half miles distant, and the chances of meeting any one able to assist her on that lonely mountain road were very few. She knew that she could not keep up her present rate of speed much longer, and she decided to stop, although she still made good time.

She had gained perhaps 300 yards on the bear when, upon looking around, she discovered him again starting in pursuit, having succeeded in demolishing the hat. She now rapidly proceeded to divest herself of her hat and threw it down in the road. Upon reaching the spot in the road where the garment was lying the bear again stopped and proceeded to destroy it before continuing his pursuit. Miss McGee made good use of the time lost by the bear, and she had again started in pursuit of the bear a good distance ahead. As he again neared her she threw the child's dress down the road, and again the attention of the bear was attracted and a few precious moments gained.

She continued this method, coolly waiting each time until the bear had nearly reached her, then dropping some article of wearing apparel into the road, until the child was entirely divested of clothing; then she began upon herself. She was already within less than a mile of a dwelling and began to feel confident of her ability to delay the animal until she reached it. Her gloves were first sacrificed and gained a few moments' respite from pursuit. Her hat went next, then blouse, and last of all her dress skirt. The latter succeeded in holding the attention of the bear until she reached the house of John Miller and nearly overtook her, then dropping some article of wearing apparel in safety, although almost destitute of clothing.

The bear, attracted by the squealing of some pigs in a pen near the door, made no effort to effect an entrance into the house, but left the road and went to the pen for the purpose of securing a night's dinner. Mr. Miller was not at home, and the bear's chances for securing a young porker seemed to be good, when Miss McGee took down a Winchester that was above the door, and despite the entreaties of Mrs. Miller the plucky teacher proceeded to the pen. As the bear saw her approaching he reared upon his hind legs and stood ready for fight. Miss Callie quickly brought her gun into position and fired, the ball passing through the animal's heart, and he fell dead. He proved to be a "whopper" and tipped the beam at 25 1/2 pounds.—America (Ky.) Cor. Cincinnati Enquirer.

LOVE IN ABSENCE.

The lamp is lit, the fire glows red. The storm rages over the road. I am weary of wearing the drowsiness Of thought into warp and wood.

The music lies in the yellow light, I finger the ivory keys. But the charm—the charm is fast tonight Of melody went to pieces.

I turn the pages of sweet books come. But it is not song by me. These are the words of another tongue. Each page has a memory.

Books hold me now at least I flee. For the lines but fade from view. I am haunted by a splendor of shining eyes. And my heart, sweetheart! is with you.

Of golden eyes, when she and I Sat watching here the flushing sky. The music and the moon. Or heard the children in the lanes. Following home the harvest wain. And shouting in their glee.

But when the daylight dies away. And ships grow dusky in the bay. These recollections cease. And, in the stillness of the night, Bright thoughts that end in dreams—bright Commemorate their peace.

I was not one the morning star. And hear the breakers on the bar. The voices on the shore. And there, with tears, I long to be Across a dim, untroubled sea. With her forevermore.

—George Eyre-Todd in Glasgow Citizen.

Seemed Like Amos. Silas Rhodes was a strong, hard working farmer; his brother Amos was a confirmed invalid who, three or four times a year, had "spells" of expecting to die, but, nevertheless, always managed to live. Still, he was really ill, and many thought him to be in considerable danger.

But, while Amos was sick and expecting to die, it chanced that the strong Silas did actually die very suddenly. A messenger carried the sad news to his sister Elvira, a grim spinster, who lived in a distant part of the town.

She heard the message with some incredulity. "Taint Silas yo mean; it's Amos," she said in reply.

"Why, no," answered the messenger. "It was Silas. Amos is all right. It's Silas that is dead."

"Wal, y'aps it's so," was the reluctant rejoinder, "but I wouldn't ha' believed it of Silas; 't seems a good deal more like Amos."—Youth's Companion.

Water is Cheap. In the old days when water was carried around on carts the price per barrel was nine cents. That price did not seem exorbitant; was thought cheap. Now the cost to the consumer is about one cent of a cent per barrel—thirty barrels for ten cents. And at that rate the city is making a profit. Out of those profits is paid the cost of pipe extensions and renewals and of various other matters, and still there remains untouched revenue amounting to nearly $600,000. The rate of profit will rapidly increase in the future. Inasmuch as the city is not laying but has been in advance of population. Vacant spaces will henceforth be filled in with improvements and people rather than new spaces acquired. Extensions of the water service in many directions and to extreme distances are therefore nearly complete and permanent.—Chicago Herald.

Why Oysters Have to Be Cultivated. The oyster, though a very prolific shellfish and widely distributed, has so many enemies and is so helpless to defend itself when young and tender, that its chance of escaping extirpation rests almost wholly upon its cultivation and care by artificial methods. This fact has come to be so generally recognized in recent times that all nations on whose shores this delicious bivalve grows have legislated on its behalf and made many experiments for increasing its numbers. In spite, however, of all that has been done for it there is still a curious diversity of opinion as to its nature and habits. Whether it is hermaphrodite or bisexual has been warmly discussed, each contention having earnest adherents.—Joel Benton in Drake's Magazine.

Wealth and poverty are relative terms, as almost every one must have learned by his own experience. Many a man who now thinks twenty dollars a week pretty small wages can remember the time when he felt rich with half that sum.

A citizen of Westery, R. L., says the historian of the town, enlisted as a private during one of the early wars of the country. It was perilous business, but patriotic feelings and visions of gold carried the day with him. His cruise was long and eventful, but at last he returned home and received an appropriate welcome. As soon as the first greetings were over, his mother inquired: "Well, Harry, how have you made out? Did you get much money?"

"Oh, yes, mother, good luck! I am rich. I shall have enough, with gratitude, in the case of it, to carry me through life, I hope."

"I am glad, my son, but how much did you get?"

"Well, I don't know exactly, but I think when we settle up I shall have as much as three dollars."

Fire and Brimstone Located Fifty-Two Miles Underground.

"Hell," or hades, or gehenna, or sheol, or the inferno, or whatever you want to call it, is a lake of fire and brimstone, exactly 52 miles below the surface of the earth at sea level, and has the cubic contents of 552,000,000 miles."

That is the statement made by the Rev. C. A. Taylor, D. D., educational and financial traveling agent for the Florida African Methodist Episcopal conference, Indianapolis Freeman representative and general preacher.

"I have come to this conclusion," he continued, "after a most painstaking investigation into the most comprehensive literature of science, philosophy and theology, of libraries in Paris, London, New York and Boston, together with a minute investigation into the Holy Scriptures. I am a graduate of the French Academy of Philosophical and Sacred literature at Paris and am somewhat of a linguist. I base my belief on the scriptures. In the first place, Christ always speaks of hell being down and not up. Again, it is often and everywhere spoken of in the Bible as being a lake of fire and brimstone, and if it is not why should the bible say it is? You notice where the bible says that when Christ was three days in hell He lifted up His eyes. How could He look up if He was not already down? I got my conclusion by estimating the increase of heat as we go downward and have figured that at exactly 52 miles the heat is just great enough to melt any known substance. Here the lake of fire and brimstone begins and it extends through the whole interior. It was once completely filled with a molten mass, but God has put it into the heart of man and constrained him to bring about the grand consummation. In obedience to God's mandate man is gradually emptying out this interior by sinking oil wells, natural gas wells and coal mines. Besides this, volcanoes are gradually preparing a place for the unregenerate who persist in disobeying divine law. The holy book says that at the coming of the judgment the earth will be rolled together as a scroll and burned with an unquenchable fire. This means that the interior will be so emptied out that the crust will break in and the friction caused by molecular disintegration will create the heat which will consume the world and leave only the lake of fire. The good will escape by being called to heaven.

"The Bible says the sun moves around the earth and does not say that the earth is round. For that reason I believe the earth to be flat, or at least not as round as scientists believe it to be. I have about concluded that there are many suns and that we may have a new one every day."
