VILLARD'S PROJECTS.

[From the Philadelphia Press, May 27.]
President Henry Villard, of the Northern Pacific Railroad, was in this city yesterday, and C. B. Wright, formerly one of the board of directors, and now one of the largest stockholders in the Northern Pacific, invited a number of the Philadelphia stockholders to meet him at the Union League Club House. President Villard, who is about undertaking a trip over the line of the road, gave a very interesting account of the progress that had been made, and read extracts from recent reports of the engineers. He said that the line would be open within fifteen months from the Lakes to the Pacific, no matter what happened. Referring to the detailed reports, he told of the activity with which work was being prosecuted along the line and the rapidity with which excavation was going on in the Bozeman tunnel by means of a shaft and labor at both ends.

"An interesting feature of our work," said Mr. Villard, "has been the Chinese Immigration Bill. We had only 1800 men when we wanted twice as many, and such was the demand that the price of Chinese labor had gone up forty per cent. in the last six months. When it was evident the Chinese Bill would pass the six companies hastened to bring out as many Chinamen as they could. At one time we had only 1300 men at work, of which 400 were Americans, and I ordered that all the force which we had at work for the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company should be transferred to the Northern Pacific. Soon the influx of Chinamen began to be felt and we now have 4000 men at work, and the chief engineer telegraphs me that he has ordered 2,000 more to be put on at once. We are pushing the line as fast as possible, and I assure you, gentlemen, that no matter what happens, we shall finish it inside of fifteen months.

"Now," continued the speaker, who evidently had the full sympathy of his hearers, "I want to say a word about one thing which has been brought up unpleasantly more than once—that is the 'lilyd pool.' That means the Oregon and Transcontinental Company—a company which means to see the Northern Pacific through, whether the syndicate who have taken our first mortgage bonds care to take the rest or not. That company represent a full paid up capital of $25,000,000, and it has the largest amount of available assets, and it is by far the largest holder of the stock of the Northern Pacific road and looks for its profit to the success of the Northern Pacific road.

"We know that no great railroad can depend upon its trunk line without feeders. The great mistake of the Northern Pacific was when it let go of the Oregon Steamship Company and lost the control of the St. Paul and Pacific. It is true that the Company was poor and could not retain its ownership, but if that had been possible it would now have been earning ten millions a year. The Union Pacific has steadily developed the territory tributary to it until the traffic which is strictly local brings it 30 per cent of its earnings. The Northern Pacific has not been able to do this, and it is not likely that it will be able to do this, and it is being compelled to sit idly by while the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba has been paralleling it and putting out spurs to drain territory rightfully belonging to the North Pacific.

The Oregon and Transcontinental had too large an interest in the Northern Pacific to permit the company to be thus hampered. For this reason a contract was entered into by the Boards of the two companies, by which it was agreed that the Oregon and Transcontinental should furnish the necessary funds to build the branch lines, and it ought to penetrate the Northern Pacific territory. You directors felt that they had no right to take your earnings for any other purpose than to complete your main line. Therefore they entered into the agreement, which will be more fully explained in this circular, which you will receive in a few days. [Here President Villard read from the proof sheets of a circular which is soon to be issued.] The Oregon and Transcontinental Company propose to furnish the money to build such branch lines—and only such—as may be recommended by the engineering department of the Northern Pacific Railroad. The railroad company is to operate these lines, and after they have been two years of operation is to grant to their owners the amount of $1,400 a mile, which is equivalent to the interest on $20,000 a mile and a sinking fund of one per cent. The Oregon and Transcontinental is to pay the interest for the first two years, and the Northern Pacific will ultimately become the owner in fee of these lines. To raise the funds for the construction of these lines the Oregon and Transcontinental will offer its forty six per cent gold bonds at ninety and will pledge not only its own assets but the traffic guarantee of the Northern Pacific.

Mr. Villard spoke at some length on the importance of these branch lines as a means of making their land grant valuable, and was greeted with hearty applause, and was concluded. A few minutes were spent in social conversation and in making him acquainted with the gentlemen present, and the conference adjourned.

The New York Sun nominates Arthur for a second term.

Comments on the Flood—Appeal to Congress.

The Terrific Flood has completely subsided, and the "dry land" again appears where, last week, rafts of drift-wood and booms of logs floated at their own sweet will and pleasure.

What a Whidby Island "Tillicum" Thinks of Railroad Booms, &c.

COUPEVILLE, June 8th. EDITOR MAIL.—The people of this lovely island have before them the prospect of a bountiful harvest of grain and fruit, though before the late rains the Spring crops had begun to show the want of moisture.

On the Fraser River Floods the Victoria Colonist Says: Just as the thrifty, industrious farmers and stock raisers in New Westminster district had recovered from the disastrous effects of the 1878 floods, and when a much larger area of land was under crop, with the certainty of commanding good cash prices, down came a mighty torrent from the mountains, overflowing the river banks, backing up all the streams and sloughs, and covering all the grain and hay fields with water.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Blue cranes—nine feet spread—are killed in Arizona and eaten as Colorado turkey. The exportation of live stock and fresh meat across the Atlantic was never so active as at present. President Grey gave two thousand francs to the poor of Paris in honor of his daughter's marriage. According to the late French papers, a prodigy called Chicky in astonishing people by hanging to a trapeze with his hands and playing violin solos with his feet. Deer, squirrel and pheasants are said to be abundant in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia this fall. Partridges are scarce, while wild turkeys are above an average. There are six turkeys on exhibition at the office of the Oregon Improvement Company, Colfax, W. T., that weigh in the aggregate 102 pounds. The largest of the six weighs twenty-two pounds. The second annual congress of German numismatists was held at Dresden, under the Presidency of Dr. Erbstein. At the same time an exhibition was opened of coins now in use throughout the world, which is said to have been the most complete collection of the kind ever seen. A project for constructing a circular elevated railway for Vienna, which for the last fifteen months has found employment for a large staff of English and Austrian engineers, is about to be carried out. It may be possible it shall be carried above ground on iron columns. The chaparral cock of Arizona (pauisno) is a very delicious bird, but hard to kill, its motions are so rapid. These birds, it is said, are the natural foes of the rattlesnake, and build a corral of cholla cactus around him, and irritate him until he lashes himself to death against the thorns by which he is surrounded. Until she was fourteen years old, Victoria did not know she was heir to the throne. But on seeing a general election table one day, she discovered the fact, and said to her governess: "There is much splendor but much responsibility." "Baroness, I will be good." She was more sober and more dignified ever after. The large pine tree on the site of old Fort Herkimer, New York, which has been cut down, had given shelter to General Washington and party while dining beneath its branches, when on his way to visit Fort Stanwix, was blown down in a gale a few days since. It was over four feet in diameter at the butt and over 150 feet in height. At Knoxville, Tenn., Mr. A. Moore was instantly killed by the discharge of his gun while holding the barrel over the fire to melt the bullet out. The ball was tightly wedged in the barrel, and he took this method to get it out, having previously unbraced it and picked the powder all out, as he thought, but enough remained to hurl the molten mass into his abdomen. The biggest thing yet in the way of plaster casts is the cast of a whale at Provincetown, Mass., by Mr. Palmer, modeler for the Smithsonian at Washington. A papier-mache fac simile is to be molded from the cast, the entire skeleton of the same whale is to be inserted, and the monster will be supported in the museum. To show the arrangement of the skeleton, one side of the whale will be left open. Carrie Carr and J. J. Underwood met casually in a store at Bear Creek, Tenn. A rumor that she was about to be married was mentioned by her. "O, no, no, no, she will have me." "I'll take you," he replied. An engagement was made to meet at an appointed time to have the marriage ceremony performed. Underwood says it was all a joke, neither party pretending matrimony, but she did not make her appearance. But she claims that she was both in sober earnest and has brought suit for $10,000 damages. A Venetian gondolier descends generally from a long line of ancestors, who were for centuries boatmen. A gondolier costs about a small sum. The father says by week after week a small sum in order to buy his son, and thus start him in life. The gondolier costs about sixty dollars per annum in repairs. The owner pays a tax to the municipality, according to station, to which he is allotted, and he is obliged to be there not only every day, but every third night. During the summer months he earns a dollar per diem; in winter almost nothing. There is a good deal of difficulty found in familiarizing the Indian laborers employed on Mexican railways with the use of the wheelbarrow. The same trouble was experienced by the first railway contractors in Hindostan. The laborers there had been in the habit of carrying off the dirt from the excavations in baskets on their heads. The method proved picturesque, but slow. Finally, a large supply of wheelbarrows was obtained. The contractors' emotions may be imagined when, on the first morning of their use, he beheld his laborers fling off in long line, each with his wheelbarrow poised on his head. The Lady of Modern Venice. A Venetian lady used to be gallant in her youth and devout in her old age. She is now neither the one nor the other. In education she is inferior to a German or English clergy school girl. Any one who reads a newspaper once a week is spoken of as una donna molto colta. She is perhaps the most inveterate gossip on the face of the globe. Her tongue was eternally, and can only wag about the mass of her native land, for all beyond it is an unknown world to her. Every afternoon she goes to a reception of a friend, when she is not herself receiving. At these receptions there are twenty or thirty women, some on two or three chairs, each from arrival is handed round to be kissed by all the ladies, and when a visitor goes those who remain pick her to pieces as crowds do carillon. Strangers—and in this they include even Italians who are not Venetians—are regarded with distrust and dislike. They appear to be on friendly terms with them, but behind their backs they sneer and jeer at them. No matter how long they may have resided here, the line of demarcation is kept up. As the Venetian ladies talk patois among themselves, and as many of them are unable to talk any other else, they never get over a feeling of awkwardness and constraint when with those whose language is the pure Italian. When they meet at the home of the ladies, the ladies are seated on the Piazza of St. Marco, where they meet the men of their acquaintance and interchange notes.—London News. The fashion in men's hats changes far more often in England, France and America than in other countries. The men's hats worn in Don Quixote's time in fashion in Spain to-day.

A Mexican Bull-Fight.

We drove into Maravatio at high noon of a fiesta—the circumcison of our Lord—a day which might have been made on purpose for a holiday, if all days of this season in Mexico were not perfect. It was warmer, more southern-looking town than Toluca, on the high table-lands, with more tropical fruits in its markets and less clothing on its dark children. The rancheros and country people, in their best dress, were here, had come in town to attend the bull-fight, and were sitting about on the stone benches of the sunny little plaza, in motionless content. A continuous procession of sandal-shod feet shuffled along the sidewalk, under the arches of the portales; gayly dressed horsemen, in braided leather jackets and tight trowser-legs blazing with buttons, paced their bare-footed ponies through the streets, often with a friend accompanied behind. We sat in the deep stone window-seat of the hotel, looking out on the bright yet strangely listless throng, and partook of ices handed in at the window by a street vendor, who, having served us, passed on down the street, trailing a long, long, diminutive repetition of his long, musical cry "Nee-ee!" The returning stage from Morelia had not arrived; there were bad roads ahead, and no further effort was made to take that day. If not to-day, to-morrow," is a Mexican proverb. Possibly the driver did not care to turn his back on a bull-fight. A procession of toreros, in their brilliant costumes, uplifting a huge garland of flowers and accompanied by a band, paraded the streets. We could not see the figures distinctly; but we heard the music—the thrilling dance music of the country. As an invitation to the toros, nothing could have been better. It did not seem particularly to the toreros, and the people beneath, they were already convinced; but I, who abhorred the thing, and would not go in the capital, felt suddenly under the spell of the senseless, intoxicating music, and begged to be taken to the fight with me, with the rest of the town! It seemed all the more to me, for we were obliged in reaching the entrance to press through a crowd that "smelled to heaven" of humble Maravatiens, who remained outside because of the extreme poverty, not from any lack of taste for the popular amusement. We mounted a perilous wooden ladder to the scaffolding surrounding the arena. The entire structure had been reared without a nail, or saw, or timber, and was held together by the ropes of ropes. It may not have been particularly safe, but was quite in keeping with the performance we had come to see, which resembled the scenes in the arena as the place of the Caesars; for the tall below, the band played the National airs, to accompany a dance of clownish figures, who, with their heads bowed and their bodies arched, danced in the arena. In the great blue arc of sky above the densely packed seats, the buzzards mounted, wheeled and sank. One mountain peak looked down at us dispassionately, long way off. It was a very vulgar horror. Of all the figures in the arena the bull seemed by far the noblest. In the pauses of his charges, he faced his throng of persecutors with a large eyed bewilderment, as if he were not making quick breath of excitement. The space was too small for anything but butchery; there was little skill shown in defense by the men—not even very fine horsemanship. The spiritless, blindfolded, absolutely thrust upon the bull's horns. In less than ten minutes one was wounded to death. A—put his hand before my eyes; and, indeed, I could not have looked, for I was seized with an uncontrollable nausea, and began crying. No trouble was made to get me out of the arena, but I was taken to a quiet room, and could have stood it—the cries, the music, the peri—, wretched burlesque as it was, the simple fact of death was before our eyes. We went out ignominiously, looking at us with fixed curiosity.—Mrs. Mary Halleck Foote, in the Century Magazine. The Doctor. The doctor, children, is known by the letters "M. D.," which follow his name. Although it is an M. D. title, letters remember it. The doctor is generally attached to one of several schools, but some of them are so good that they were never connected with any kind of school. The medical profession is not an exact science, but the medical practitioner seldom fails to exact his fee. The doctor is a man of feeling. He invariably feels the pain of his patient, and quite a connoisseur in the matter of tongues. No tongue can tell what he sees in it to admire, as no sounds go with the tongues under his examination. Most people would think pulse poor living; but if it were not for the pulse it would go hard with the doctor. A doctor is always calm. He does not get heated, even when he comes to the boil. We are sorry to say that the doctor is not a genial character. He cuts his best friends as well as his enemies. However he is the first to aid us upon our advent into this world, and can always be depended upon to help us into the next. When everybody is wise or everybody dead, the doctor will have to give up doctoring. We do not intend to call the doctor names. We simply call the doctor.—Boston Transcript. Young women have taken a remarkable place in the late examinations of the London University. The class of three, which included a bona fide member, one of them a girl, who took the palm; a girl also came out ahead for English honors; and two of the four for German honors were girls, who again distanced their male rivals; one of three, again, placed at the head of pharmaceutical chemistry, was a girl; and Miss Prichard was first in the honors list for anatomy, coming from the London School of Medicine for Women, and beating both of her rivals in Guy's Hospital.

SCHOOL AND CHURCH.

In Minnesota there are ninety-four Episcopal churches, with eighty-three clergymen, 5,064 communicants and $267,497 worth of church property. The contributions last year amounted to $87,350. Owing to critical health the Rev. Joshua Kimber, Secretary of the Episcopal Board of Missions, has been granted a six months' leave of absence and a thousand dollars, which will pay the expenses of a trip to Europe. The California Methodists have begun to raise a "Haven memorial fund" of $10,000 in memory of the late Bishop Haven, who died in Oregon, for perfecting the library, cabinets, etc., of the University of the Pacific. The seventh-day Baptists have ten native families connected with their mission in Shanghai, China. The missionary force includes three missionaries, two native Bible readers, and a Bible woman. Two day schools are taught. President Seelye speaks with gratification of the success of the new system of self-government at Amherst. The faculty agree that they have never known a year in which so much honest work, with such happy results, has been done in the college. The English Wesleyans cherish as a valuable relic the pocket Bible which Mr. Wesley carried with him in all his journeys, and which is now handed down to each President of the conference in succession, and is carried and used by him during his year of office. The Rev. Sheldon Jackson, D. D., Superintendent of Presbyterian Home Missions, has just completed his third tour of Alaska. He has established two new missions, stationed three new missionaries, and accompanied by a band of missionary buildings and traveled 500 miles in canoes. Protestant Episcopal Bishop Penick, of Africa, says that four out of seven white ministers will come back to America for their health this year, and that sickness makes the work of white missionaries so irregular that the proportion of negro laborers must be increased till the whole work is turned over to them. The colored population of Lynchburg, Va., are in a prosperous state, as the character of their churches affords any indication. They have just dedicated a new Baptist church which cost $22,000. It is described as one of the most spacious and elegant church edifices in the city, with a tall spire that shows in the distance, and is situated on the west side of Otter, thirty miles distant. The visit of Mr. M. L. Hallenbeck to the Sandwich Islands on the invitation of the Young Men's Christian Association was attended by powerful revivals wherever he went, among the white and the native churches. An old missionary is reported to have said that "never since the great revival among the natives in 1838 has Hawaii seen anything like it." The Protestant Episcopal Diocesan Convention lately in session at Danville, Va., voted that the clergy should recognize the fact that the negroes within their parochial bounds are an integral part of their parochial work that they should not be neglected. A "solid block of Methodism" is what Methodist Antioch Circuit in Middle Tennessee, which occupies about fifteen miles square, and has nearly seven hundred members. In this whole territory there is no other religious organization, and probably not more than a dozen members of all other churches. PUNGENT PARAGRAPHS. We shall not have full faith in this cure, however, until the hydrant water is cured of its bad taste and smell. The physician's diploma is written in Latin. Latin is a dead language. So is the language of a large part of the doctor's patients after he has got through with them. Most people would think pulse poor living; but if it were not for the pulse it would go hard with the doctor. A doctor is always calm. He does not get heated, even when he comes to the boil. Professor Sawyer, the well-known New York electrician, was formerly short-hand reporter on the staff of the Boston Post. He invented and improved a telegraph instrument, and the royalties on the patent enable him to live in ease and roll in luxury. Professor Bell, now a Washington resident, was a poor man in Boston and taught the blind at the Perkins Institute on the Peninsula. He was experimenting with the little instrument which he afterward perfected, and which is making him a bonanza king of the first magnitude. Edison, last but not least of the trio, was also a Boston telegraph operator, and scores of the "boys" on State Street remember him as a tireless worker after better things. EXCITEMENT IN ROCHESTER.

The Commotion Caused by the Statement of a Physician. An unusual article from the Rochester, N. Y. Democrat and Chronicle, was republished in this paper recently and was a subject of much interest to our readers. It was a professional article and on the street. Apparently it caused even more commotion in Rochester than it did in the city. Dr. J. B. Henson, who is well known not only in Rochester but in nearly every part of America, sent an extended article to this paper, a few days since, which was duly published, detailing his remarkable experience and results in the treatment of Bright's disease. It would be impossible to enumerate the personal enquiries which have been made at our office since the publication of the article, and they have been so numerous that further investigation of the subject was deemed an ed necessity. With this end in view a representative of this paper called on Dr. Henson, at his residence on the corner of Broadway and Elm street, and an interview occurred. "That article of yours, Doctor, has created quite a whirlwind," said the representative, "and you were excited, such as you can sustain?" "Every one of them and many additional ones," said Dr. Henson, "and you are as I did and then return, and I am not surprised that the public think it marvelous.
