There were charged with electricity, and by the simple turning of the key the car was made to start and stop easily. The speed will be regulated and the brakes set by turning a single key.

MIZPAH.

"The Lord watch between me and thee when we are absent one from another."
A broad gold band engraved
With words of Holy Writ—
A ring, the bond and token
Which love and prayer bath lit.
When absent from each other,
O'er mountain, vale and sea,
The Lord, who guardeth Israel,
Keep watch 'tween me and thee.

Through days of light and gladness,
Through days of love and life,
Through sunny joy, and sunshine
Through day with beauty rife:
When absent from each other,
O'er mountain, vale and sea,
The Lord, who guardeth Israel,
Keep watch 'tween me and thee.

Through days of doubt and darkness,
In fear and trembling breath;
Through mists of sin and sorrow—
In tears, and grief, and woe—
The Lord of love and glory,
The King of earth and sea,
The Lord, who guardeth Israel,
Keep watch 'tween me and thee.

HOW MY FATE WAS DECIDED.

"Oh, Nellie, how I envy you!" said Louise Carey, as she stood upon the platform bidding me good-by. "What a delightful time you will have! Of course, in so romantic a spot as Newport, you will have an adventure and meet your destiny."

Louise Carey and I had been friends from childhood. She was beautiful, vivacious, and inclined to be sentimental, while I was plain, staid and matter-of-fact.

As my aunt and I took our seats in the car, Louise's last sentence came to my mind, and I must confess that a little romantic feeling came with it. "What kind of an adventure would mine be? I wondered.

Auntie soon fell asleep, leaving me to enjoy my own thoughts, and I improved the time by building all sorts of air-castles concerning my future until we reached our destination.

Arrived at our hotel we were shown to our rooms, which, contrary to orders, were not adjoining. My aunt fretted that we should be so far separated, but the assurance that I was not a coward calmed her fears, and we resolved to make the best of the condition of things.

My room opened on a balcony which extended before the windows of two or three rooms. My curiosity was immediately aroused concerning my neighbors, but for two or three days remained unsatisfied, as I spent the greater part of my time in auntie's room.

At the end of the third day, I began to think that adventures in Newport are not such every-day occurrences as Louise had imagined.

On the morning of the fourth, after a bath in the briny waters, I hurried up to my room to make my toilet for dinner. The exhilarating bath had aroused my spirits, and I was humming a gleeful song with a great deal of enjoyment, when, upon opening the door of my room, I discovered a man lounging in my easy chair.

I started back in amazement, fearing that I had, by some mistake, entered the room of a stranger.

But not my number was upon the door; and my trunk and various articles belonging to me were in the room; consequently I presumed to enter, and was drawing up my figure with a great deal of dignity, preparatory to demanding the cause of his intrusion, when, with a smile, he addressed me as follows:

"My dear little miss, how sweetly you sing! One would suppose you had been taking lessons of Apollo; in fact, I should insist upon retaining that idea, were I not in direct communication with the gods. Had it not been for them, I should be just now in my own cozy little room in Hartford; but Cupid and I had a quarrel of operation, which resulted in my visit to this delightful spot. Arriving here this morning, I saw you in the water and made Neptune promise that he would to-day preserve the calmest serenity in the worthy element, that you might come forth unharmed."

During this speech he had been gradually moving toward the door, which he had opened, and he was about to depart, when, horror of horrors! he turned the key and quietly placed it in his pocket. I was locked in the room with a madman!

My blood seemed to freeze in my veins, and, catching a glimpse of my face in the mirror, my eyeballs seemed starting from their sockets. Of course there was no loss of escape, but by the term of violent death my mental action became intensely quick, and in a few moments I had thought of everything.

What was I to do? I knew that maniacs must always be indulged by those who did not understand controlling them, so I concluded to agree with all that he said.

"I have a nephew whom I am anxious to see happily settled in life before I leave him," he began. "You are the first young lady I saw after my arrival, and you are the one selected for him. He is rich as Croesus, handsome as Apollo and strong as Hercules. If you do not accede to my terms and accept him when he arrives I will hurl a thunderbolt at you, for he sometimes act the part of 'Jupiter.'"

"I promise with all my heart," I replied, hoping that he would leave after accomplishing his object. But as he remained, and seemed in deep thought, I inferred that he was planning some terrible deed and exerted myself to draw him into conversation.

"Please describe your nephew more minutely," said I. "For I am anxious to understand thoroughly the man whom I am to marry."

In the most gracious manner he complied with my request, and extolled his nephew in the most entertaining and eloquent manner.

"If any one had been with me I should have enjoyed hearing him express his flighty ideas; but I was alone, expecting every moment that he would produce some weapon with which to take my life.

"Oh," thought I, "can this be the adventure referred to by Louise, and is murder the destiny awaiting me?"

I must have lived hours in those few moments, spent in racking my brain for some way of escape. At last I resolved to make a desperate effort, and having a pencil and paper in my pocket, I pretended to be carelessly scribbling, talking at the same time with the maniac. After a long time I had written, in large letters, "A madman in this room; get a force of men and capture him."

This time I had moved toward the windows, and stationing myself at one, invited him to look from the other. Thinking me with great volubility, he accepted my invitation. My object in doing this was that I might, without being seen by him, hold up the paper on which I had written to any one who might pass on the balcony.

While we were standing there I exerted myself to entertain him, trying to divert his thoughts from myself, describing, almost by inspiration, (for I was never gifted in the art of amusing) ludicrous things that I had read, until he seemed convulsed with laughter.

"Really, miss," said he, "you are the most entertaining young lady I ever met; I believe I shall marry you myself, instead of giving you to my nephew. Do you think you could act the part of Juno?"

A sensation of faintness came over me, when a fastener on the balcony crossed my falling energies. I placed my paper in full view, and presently a young gentleman passed the window. He probably saw us standing there, but was not rude enough to stare at us. When he re-passed I fixed my eyes full upon him, resolving that if there was any power in mesmerism, he should feel the force of it.

He turned his head toward me, as he did so, reading the mute agony written on my face, then, reading the words I had written, he comprehended the situation, and giving me an assuring glance, he passed on.

Soon afterward there was a creaking of the lock, the door opened, and in rushed five men, who, surprising the madman, had handcuffed him before he was aware of it.

Then I passed into oblivion, from which I did not awake in many days. The terrible excitement which I had undergone had proved too much for my strength.

After awakening to consciousness I soon recovered my usual health, when auntie told me that the maniac had escaped from the Hartford asylum, that he had been a great classical scholar, and since he had become insane, often imagined himself a god.

But there were fresh flowers on my table which, auntie told me, had been left by Mr. Benton, the gentleman who so providentially passed upon the balcony and helped to capture the maniac.

Mr. Benton and I did not forget each other, and as soon as I was well he took me for a drive, and entertained me most eloquently with the old, old story.

Of course, I assented to his proposal, (how could I do otherwise, when he had saved my life?) and all through his life I have been as handsome as Apollo and strong as Hercules; yet he is good, noble and true.

Louise's prophecy had been fulfilled. I had had an adventure—and met my destiny.

IN A PANIC.

"Gentlemen, I just long to be there."

"Where?"

"Why, in one of those panics at the theatre. Yes, sir, I'd give a new twenty dollar bill to be in the theatre one night when there was an occasion for a panic."

"Why?"

"Why, because one cool, level-headed man could stop the thing as easily as you could end up that barrel of flour."

"Well, I dunno about that," observed one of the sitters. "There is something awful in the cry of fire, but by the term of violent death my mental action became intensely quick, and in a few moments I had thought of everything."

While the subject was being continued the grocer went to the rear end of the store, poured a little powder on a board, and gave three or four men the wink. Directly there was a bright flash, yells of "Fire!" and "powder!" and every man sprang up and rushed. Joe didn't spring up and talk of shooting. On the contrary, he fell over a lot of baskets piled between him and the door, got up to plough his way over a pack of brooms, and when he reached the sidewalk he was on all fours, white as a ghost, and so frightened that he never looked back until he reached the opposite side of the street.—[Detroit Free Press.

SIR KNIGHTS.

Points and Programme of the Great Event to Occur Next August.

THE GRAND MASTER OF THE UNITED STATES TO BE PRESENT.

Such a grand event as will be that of the meeting of Sir Knights in San Francisco, in August, next has never before been equaled on the Pacific Coast, and probably its like will not be seen here again by this generation.

Therefore everything in connection with this imposing ceremony must be of general interest, and the following synopsis of a recent meeting of the committee in charge of arrangements is published:

Some discussion occurred regarding the design for the first prize for competitive drill. Considerable dissatisfaction was felt by certain Knights in regard to proposed alterations of the design. It was finally decided to allow the design to remain as at first submitted.

Six additional prizes are to be given, and it is proposed to take whatever money is left over and make a purse of it, to be awarded with the last prize.

The Secretary reported that negotiations for the Boy's Band of Hawaii have not yet been concluded. He reported that he had secured a band for the California Commandery, and also that the Mechanics' Pavilion had been engaged in which to hold the exercises of the Conclave.

THE WEEK'S PROGRAMME.

The programme committee reported the following outline of the week's business and entertainment, subject to reconsideration and amendment:

SATURDAY, August 18—All the commanderies will be on duty the entire day for the purpose of receiving and escorting visiting Knights to their quarters. At 8 P. M. the California commanderies will assemble at the Mechanics' Pavilion for inspection and orders.

SUNDAY, August 19 2 P. M.—California Commandery, No. 1, and Golden Gate Commandery, No. 16, will assemble in Masonic Temple and form an escort for the Grand Commandery and all the visiting Sir Knights who are disposed to join with them in attending divine services at Trinity Church, Post street.

MONDAY, August 20—Grand parade review and exhibition drills, closing with a reception of the Grand Encampment at the Grand Opera House. Reception addressed by the Grand Commander, Mayor and Governor, etc.; response by the Grand Master.

In the evening a promenade concert in the Mechanics' Pavilion all Sir Knights and ladies admitted free on presentation of tickets. Exhibition drills of visiting Commanderies, followed by dancing and refreshments.

CONCERTS to continue during each evening through the week. Some one or more of the California Commanderies being detailed for duty each evening, to be assisted by the ladies of the Triennial Union, as a reception and entertainment committee.

TUESDAY, August 21—10 A. M.—The Grand Commandery of California, escorted by the Commanderies of California, will escort the officers and members of the Grand Encampment from the hotel to the asylum where the Twenty-second Triennial Conclave will be formally opened.

WEDNESDAY, August 22 5 P. M.—Grand banquet, attended by the Grand Commandery of California and the Grand Encampment of the United States, and complimentary to the Grand Encampment.

SATURDAY, August 23—Grand competitive prize drill at the Bay District Track, as per special programme; and also laying the cornerstone of the Garfield monument in Golden Gate Park. Evening, closing concert at the Mechanics' Pavilion. Entertainment at various points, including a yacht race, to be arranged for each day during the week, excepting Monday and Saturday.

After transacting some further business of no great importance, the committee adjourned till Wednesday evening, the 31st instant.

GRAND MASTER DEAN COMING.

Eminent Sir Knight Benjamin Dean, Grand Master of the Grand Commandery of the United States, has lately been in correspondence with A. L. Sharon, proprietor of the Palace Hotel, and has engaged a suite of rooms in that hotel for some weeks preceding and following the Conclave.

It is certain that a number of Sir Knights from England and European countries, and also from Canada will make the trip to this coast.

In addition to the official correspondence of Commanderies, many Knights of the Eastern States are making arrangements with friends in San Francisco for accommodation during their proposed visit.

Those Sir Knights and company going and returning via the Union Pacific Road will have the privilege of going either through Cheyenne direct, or through Denver and Cheyenne without extra charge. This arrangement will enable Knights desiring to attend the General Grand Chapter to be held at Denver the week before the Conclave here, to do so without inconvenience or extra charge. The General Grand Chapter referred to, is the regular Triennial Assembly of the Royal Arch Masons of the United States, and it is very probable that many Knights will take advantage of this suggestion, as all Knight Templars are Royal Arch Masons.

THE PUGET SOUND MAIL.
La Conner, W. T.

JAMES POWER, PROPRIETOR.
SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1883.

Terrible Floods Along the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers. A deplorable state of affairs exists along the Ohio, particularly at Cincinnati, Louisville and New Albany, but the danger for these places has passed and is transferred to the Mississippi, and for the latter region we shall doubtless hear of a repetition of the disastrous floods of last year. The river rose at Cincinnati 65 feet; at Louisville 66 feet, and at many other places in like manner, inundating and carrying away a large portion of the city front, destroying millions upon millions of property. Fortunately, however, but few lives have been lost; but the distress of the people along the submerged districts is indescribable. Small boats have been sent by rail from Chicago, Cleveland and other lake cities, and for the relief of the distressed have been telegraphed from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Chicago, Cleveland and nearly every city throughout the country.

There is a first class item from the Seattle Chronicle for the consideration of those who employ Chinamen because they are cheaper than white men. During the continuation of the Chinese New Year's festivities, a week or two ago, Chin Gien and Charlie, Chinese contractors, who were grading the streets, put on some fifty or sixty white men to replace the coolies who had taken a part in the annual jollification. The result was that the white men did more than double the amount of work that the coolies would have done in the same length of time, seeing which the contractors have decided to employ for the remainder of their work as much white labor as they can get. Some seventy-five white men take their places on the street-to-day with pick and shovel, and $1.50 a day will be added to the amount of money in circulation.

New Steamers for the Sound.—The Oregon Railway and Navigation Co. have just let contracts for two steel side-wheel steamers for the Puget Sound passenger trade. They will be alike, 250 feet long, 35 feet beam, and draw 12 feet. Each will have state room accommodations for 300 passengers, and for 1,500 day passengers, and the pair will cost $250,000. They will come around the Horn under sail and steam, and the contract requires that they be delivered in Puget Sound waters by December 15th.

A New Paper, entitled the Chehalis vindicator, published by Messrs. Walsh and Childer is at hand. Mr. J. W. Walsh, formerly connected with the Seattle Chronicle, is editor, and his editorial is a model of terseness, consisting of two lines: "We are here. We have come to stay, and we mean business;" and then proceeds to business in a journalistic like manner.

The agricultural outlook in Great Britain is very bad. Constant rain has rotted much of the autumn planting and has seriously interfered with the work of the farmer this winter. What makes it worse is that the entire continent has suffered in the same way. It is evident that Europe, this year, as in so many previous seasons, will be compelled to look to America for her breadstuffs.

A Justice of the Peace at Red Bluff, California, having been on a spree, entered his Court room, fined himself $20, handed it to the Clerk and proceeded with the business of the day. Since then he has become a teetotaler.

LEGAL NOTICES.

Notice of Application to Purchase Timber Land.
UNITED STATES DISTRICT LAND OFFICE, OLYMPIA, WASHINGTON TERRITORY.
Notice is hereby given that, in compliance with the provisions of the Act of Congress approved June 3, 1878, entitled "An Act for the sale of Timber Lands in the States of California, Oregon, Nevada and Washington Territory," JOHN A. WILSON, of King County, Washington Territory, has this day filed in this office his application to purchase the Lots 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24,
