DIED.

At Ferndale, Whatcom County, W. T., April 20, 1883, Ellen Maude, daughter of Allen and Ellen Weir, aged 2 years 3 months and 12 days.

Parental solicitude and doctor's medicines were alike unavailing. Death claimed our little darling, and took her from our helpless gaze. She was an unusually bright and intelligent child, the pride of our hearts, with a disposition so angelic that all who saw her loved her.
Her illness lasted but a few days, and was supposed at first to be a mere cold.
Developing into membranous croup, it terminated fatally in a brief time. Poor little "Birdie!" How sad our hearts are no tongue can tell.

Arriving home on Wednesday, we have received the most profuse expressions of sympathy from all sides; but alas! While it is soothing to wounded hearts to know that others are touched with a fellow feeling in our grief, yet
the absent one cannot be restored to us, and our anguish-stricken souls, like Rachel mourning for her children, refuse to be comforted. One place at our fireside is vacant; her little playthings are unused; the merry prattle of her childish voice is hushed forever! But Death has not robbed us entirely of our child—only removed her to the pearly gates on the golden shore, where we know she will wait, her little heart aglow with expectation, for those left on earth. She,
with her little baby brother who was called away last November, have a corner in our hearts that will remain green
as long as memory throws her tendrils around these objects of our supreme affection.

The funeral occurred on Wednesday afternoon from the M. E. church, Rev.
S. H. Todd officiating, assisted by Rev.
John Reid. A large number of sorrowing friends attended. After the ceremonies the procession moved slowly to the Masonic cemetery where the little body
was laid away to rest.

Pit-a-pat, dear little feet;
Was ever golden-haired darling so sweet,
Were ever the beautiful summer skies
Sweeter or bluer than our Birdie's eyes?

Dainty and sweet, laughing and gay,
Pit-a-pat, pit-a-pat in mamma's way,
Till the great sun in the crimson west
Has blown out his light and gone to rest.

Then the little head on my breast droops
low,
And the blue eyes drop their curtains of snow,
While the silver stars through the window peep
At dear little Birdie fast asleep.

"Close the door lightly, bridle thy breath,
Our little earth angel is talking with Death;

Gently he woos her, she wishes to stay,
His arms are about her, he bears her away.

"Bear her out softly, close the blue eyes,
No wonder such beauty was claimed in the skies!
Cross the hands gently upon the white
breast,
So like a mild spirit strayed from the blest."

[Dedicated by a sorrowing parent to the memory of Angel Birdie.]

In Memoriam.

"Our Baby Dear,"
"Little Birdie Weir."

The following has been contributed by
a kind friend:

"Angels waiting at the portals,"
Standing with arms extended wide,
To bid welcome to our darling
Over to the other side.

Glad the music that will greet her,
Bright the crown that waits her there,
Her's the joy and our's the sorrow,
Her's the peace and our's the care.

Come on wings of glory bright
Down to earth, to lead our darling
To her home of "pure delight."
And when stars were brightly beaming
From a calm unclouded sky,
With her hands in those of angels,
Sadly did we say good-by.

Chant a song of strange delight,
While we mourn our little darling,
She is happy in His sight,
But we will not weep nor sorrow,
For she's only gone before;
With the Savior she is waiting
On that bright celestial shore.

BORN.

In Oakland, Cal., April 8, 1883, to the wife of Col. L. H. Briggs, a son. Mother and child doing well.

DIED.

In this city, on the 25th inst., Mary S., wife of Frank H. Winslow, aged 46 years sometime and 30 days.

Mrs. Winslow was born in Lowell, Mass., February 5th, 1837, and was the oldest daughter of the late Joel and Jane
W. Foss, of Dover, N. H. On the 31st
March, 1859, she was married to Frank H. Winslow in Boston, Mass. In January, 1860, they left Boston for San Francisco, Cal., and residing there but a short time they left January 27, 1861, for Port Discovery, Washington Territory, in the bark Ann Parry, Capt. J. S. McTay-tyre. They arrived in Port Discovery February 14, 1861, and her husband being in the employ of the mill company
there, they remained there about nine years, a portion of which time Mrs.
Winslow was the only white woman in the place. Her heart and hand were ever open and willing to minister to the suffering and distressed, and where there was sickness there Mrs. Winslow was to be found doing all in her power to alleviate suffering humanity. Having no children of her own her heart was large enough to love all children with whom she came in contact, and after Mr. Wood moved his family there his little daughter "Mamie" used to call her by the name of "Auntie Frank," by which name the children ever knew her during her long residence there. In 1870 her husband moved to Port Townsend, having received an appointment as Inspector in the Custom House, where they have ever since resided. Mrs. Winslow was extravagantly fond of flowers, and it was her delight to cultivate and grow
the choicest kinds, particularly those which could be used and were most acceptable in decorating the coffins and graves of dear friends passed away.
About four years since her health began to fail and she was compelled to entail and diminish her deeds of charity and her errands of mercy, but though from weakness being unable to visit in person yet many were the little deeds of love and mercy performed through others by her warm and sympathizing heart, and probably there are none who will be missed in our community more than will be Mrs. Winslow. During her sickness her strong will power was ever battling with Death and bidding him depart.
Ever hopeful, ever cheerful, she feared him not, desiring only to live for her husband's sake, having a perfect trust and confidence of a life beyond the grave. But when, at last, convinced that there was no hope, and that death was near at hand, she made her preparations with coolness and calmness, giving directions as to her funeral and whom she desired to prepare her for her final resting place in the casket. Her sufferings were great and yet she bore them all without a murmur—without a complaint—desiring only to live for the sake of her dear husband; and when at last the moments
drew nigh when she could keep death no longer away, and her lips were growing cold with the damps of death, she embraced her fond husband, and giving him a long and loving kiss, sank back in her chair, and soon her pure spirit winged its flight to its loving Father above. She has passed over the river, we shall hear her cheerful voice no more, we shall see her pleasant and happy smile no more, but though passed away forever from our earthly vision, yet her memory will ever be fresh and green in the hearts of all those who knew only to love her. And in this sad hour of trial and affliction her stricken husband has the sympathy of the whole community. Truly may it be said that the world was better because of her having lived in it, and this community, where she was so well and favorably known,
will long have in remembrance the deeds of love and mercy done by Mrs. Winslow.

The steamer Mississippi, laden with coal from Seattle, called in here for a short time yesterday, en route to San Francisco. The coal trade between the Sound and Frisco is assuming immense proportions and the number of steamers engaged in the traffic is being constantly increased.

Lieut. Pickering and wife have gone to Oregon on a visit.

From Friday's Daily.

Sawmill slingeth sawdust.

A fine cow belonging to Mr. Geo. Barthrop died yesterday. Cause unknown.

Quite a number of people around here have colds. We sympathize—have em-self.

Warren Hastings is down from Seattle on a visit. It seems as though an extra bright sunbeam has struck town.

Reserved tickets for the school play
are going off like hot cake. At Plummer & Terry's; everybody should buy one.

Ten years ago Alaska was a terra incognita to most of this people of this country and of the world. It was thought of as a land of Esquimaux and polar bears, of icebergs and barren shores, of darkness and desolation. A land on which the sun never shined, and where civilized people could hardly exist. After a time rumors of rich gold diggings commenced to circulate and a few hardy adventurers went up and prospected the country. The rosy-tinted stories they circulated caused a rush to that region
that has increased to enormous proportions, and this season will probably increase more than ever. Already this month two steamships have left here for Alaska with freight and passengers, and during the next two months myriads of people will flock there. Of these a few may get fortunes, many will die in their struggles for wealth, and the rest will return poorer than when they started. This will but repeat the experience of all those who have delved for the precious metals
in the bosom of mother earth.

The Wilmington laid here for several hours yesterday discharging freight, having had over one hundred tons for Waterman & Katz. She unloaded at the Quincy street wharf. The enormous increase in the amount of freight coming here shows, more than anything else, the great growth of the town within the past few years. Not many years have passed when but one steamer per month called here, and "steamer day" then was anxiously looked for, as being something new and strange; now three steamers have arrived here with freight within two days and another is due to-morrow, yet
this passes with hardly a word of comment. So, to, with the freight. When,
years ago, the old craft came poking along here from Frisco (trying to get here one month, and trying to get back the next, thus making a tri-monthly of her) if she discharged 10 tons of freight
it was thought wonderful, but now the receipt of two hundred tons per week is passed by as nothing. We hope, before we "shuffle off this mortal coil" to see half-a-dozen large steamers per day discharge and load here.

Capt. Harry Lott, formerly of the steamer Hope, and a first class machinist, and Mr. N. L. Bancroft, of Seattle, also a master mechanic, have formed a partnership, and will start a machine shop in this place. They have purchased land in the lower part of town; contracts for the buildings have been let, and on or about Monday work will commence on them.
We are informed that Messrs. Lott & Bancroft have bought out the North Pacific Iron Works, at Seattle, and will move the machinery and tools to this place. A machine shop has been long needed here, and, we doubt not, it will prove a success
from the first.

The gale here this morning delayed
the Welcome some. Her Captain tried to take her through the "storm
tossed" billows off point Marrowstone but had to give it up as a bad job, and tie her up to a tree till the weather moderated. We think it about time this putting "wheelbarrows," fit only for cruising on a very smooth duck pond was stopped. It takes a steamboat to run of this route this time of the year.

The Wyman's.—This company of ten first class artists will play two nights at Port Townsend in Good Templar Hall, Monday and Tuesday April 23-24. This company is too well known for us to speak of them in flattery. Having played over two months in Victoria to good houses

we bespeak them good houses here.
We are glad to see Yakie once again.

The play "One Hundred Ago" will be given in Good Templars' Hall on Friday and Saturday next for the benefit of the public schools. All are invited. Tickets 50 cents, reserved seats $1. To be had at Plummer & Terry's.

Seattle Railroad.

[Special By Telegraph]

SEATTLE, April 20.—The people of Seattle met Mr. Villard today by appointment and offered him $150,000
to build a standard gauge road from Seattle to coal fields via Green river valley. Mr. Villard accepted the proposition and stated the road they built would make the Green river coal mines exclusively tributary to Seattle, and that it would also be operated as a portion of the Cascade Division. He complimented the citizens highly for progress made since his visit 18 months ago; promised to ride into Seattle on his own private car, brought direct from the east, by the last of August or first September.
Seemed very friendly toward the Sound.

It is in some respects fortunate that the United States is represented in England by a gentleman who cannot be suspected of sympathy with the desperate measures resorted to
by a few persons of the so called Irish party. Mr. Lowell's entire sympathy with the English government in its measures to repress this irregular warfare will enable him to do Americans in England more service than if his sympathies were known to be with the other side. The trait of character which the American Minister needs to develop now is courage.
Under the conditions which prevail in England at the present time, it is hardly possible that innocent American citizens will suffer arrest. The English government will not stop to ascertain the facts about every suspected person before making the arrest. The American Minister cannot of course examine all the cases of this character which may come before the public; but he will most likely have occasion to take a decided stand in cases in which the innocence of the party accused is made reasonably apparent. The American Minister can be of great service to his countrymen in the present emergency, or he can so act as to deepen the impression that our government has relaxed its protection over its citizens abroad. Between twenty and thirty years ago Mr. Webster made the American name respected in Europe by two or three ringing letters to the Austrian Foreign Minister, but the reputation then gained is about exhausted, and little has been done since to sustain it.—Call.

FIBRED BANK-NOTE PAPER.
The fibred bank-note paper on which American legal tenders, national bank-note currency and Government bonds are printed, is made at Dalton, Mass., in an old mill, whose existence dates back to Colonial times. If you should stop at the old paper mill, with proper credentials, you may, perhaps, be allowed to handle a sheet of the crisp fibre paper, or take a peep at the pulp press, where, as the wet, grayish pulp is pressed between heavy iron cylinders, bits of blue and red silk thread are scattered over its face and silken ribs laid on its surface. You may go beyond into the counting-room, where each sheet as it comes from the drying-room is carefully examined and counted and then returned to the paper center to be divided into smaller sheets. If you trace this paper still further you will find that from the cutter's hands it passes again to the counting-room, is separated into little packages containing 1,000 sheets each, the amount recorded in a register, and then packed into burlap bags and stored in fire and burglar-proof vaults to await shipment to the United States treasury. From pulp room to vault the precious paper is watched and guarded as carefully as though each sheet were an ounce of gold. Its manufacture is one of the greatest secrets connected with the Government's money making.

From the vaults of the paper mill at Dalton to the guarded storerooms of the treasury at Washington is but a journey of two or three days. In the capacious vaults of the treasury building, among gold and silver and copper and nickel coins, bullion, paper currency and official records, you will find thousands of packages of the bank-note paper that is manufactured at Dalton. It comes in little iron safes, such as are used by the Adams Express Company, and each package and every sheet is carefully counted before the manufacturer and the express company are relieved from further responsibility. The paper that arrives to-day may lie in the treasury storerooms for years, or it may be sent to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing to-morrow, to return in the course of a month's time, a legal tender or bank note.—New York Sun.

CORK.
The layer develops itself under the epidermis of the cork-oak. This tree, which belongs to the region of the Mediterranean, is very abundant in Spain, Italy, the South of France and Algeria, where it alone forms considerable forests.

Up to the age of 12 years, the tree produces a hard, irregular, tough kind of cork, which can only be used for floats or buoys; but, after this is carefully removed, a new layer forms itself, which, being no longer compressed by the epidermis, is regularly developed, and grows the true cork for bottles.

In about ten years it gains the necessary thickness, when it is cut round the trunk at the top and bottom, and, by vertical incisions, stripped off in planks, which are sent to market. The same operation is repeated every ten years; so that a single tree gives in 150 years twelve or fourteen harvests, producing a revenue better than any land can afford to the owner.

A SMITTEN SENATOR.
Mary Maddox, a beauty, visited the Senate Chamber of the Kentucky Legislature. Senator Stanton's eyes fell upon her for the first time. "In less time than it takes to copy them," says the Louisville Courier-Journal correspondent, "he dashed off the following lines:"

With June-like lips and autumn hair,
With sunset cheek and brow most fair,
With eyes like stars that haunt the skies
When in the west the evening dies,
A woman with an angel face
The Senate Chamber came to grace;
A moment there she filled our sight,
Then passed without and—all was night.

THE craze for antiquities pervades everything. The millionaires build their houses in the style of one age, decorate them in the style of another and furnish them in the style of a third.

PLEASANTIES.
Too much corn whisky makes the voice husky.

THERE should be very few roughs among the Polish people.

MONEY isn't exactly tight, but it is perhaps a little exhilarated.

WHAT kind of robbery is not dangerous? A safe robbery, of course.

IT is safe for women, it is said, to use toy pistols, for they are never known to have jockjaw.

YOUNG men should be careful about dropping remarks. They may be picked up by a bigger man.

MODERN EXTRAVAGANCE.
The Kings of to-day are growing economical, not to say stingy, and save money, and seek "investments" after a fashion which would once have been denounced as most unroyal, but which probably has its root in a permanent sense of insecurity. The late King of the Belgians left a fortune worthy of a Jew financier; our own Queen has grown wealthy on the throne; the Sultan, according to Mr. W. Blunt, has a heavy secret purse in England; the King of Italy is an exact economist, and the Emperor of Austria is, it is said, never in debt. Still, this generation remembers the Emperor Nicholas, who spent £2,000,000 a year on the imperial household; King Victor Emmanuel, who, with eight or nine royal incomes and estates, never had a penny; the Emperor Napoleon III., who frittered away £1,000,000 a year, with little but rather vulgar festivals to show for it; and the King of the Netherlands, who scattered in his earlier youth a fortune "beyond the dreams of a vicar," popularly estimated at £12,000,000, and probably exceeding half that amount. It is not fifteen years since a week's visit to Compeigne cost each lady £500—twenty-one dresses at least being de rigueur—since it was impossible for a French courtier's wife to spend less than £1,000 a year on her dress, and since a lady contested before the courts of Paris a bill for £15,000 for dressing her for three years. She had paid, says the Quarterly, £12,000 into court.

The carefully-guarded privacy of modern life, too, conceals enormous expenditures. We make very much of Crassus' bribes, but Lord Harewood spent £120,000 in one Yorkshire election; £50,000 have been given for a great borough; and the House of Commons expends £2,000,000 every time it is dissolved. We read aghast of Nero's horses shod with gold, and of a Spanish Viceroy driving into Lima with eight mules all shod with silver; but a first-class racing-stable in this country costs £30,000 a year, a "liberal" stable for a great country house has been known to cost £4,000 annually; the late Lord Mayo's wine bill as Viceroy of India exceeded that sum, and any man familiar with Cowes will point out steam yachts which for every month they are afloat cost £1,500. There are many men in England who spend £100,000 a year practically on themselves and their families, and, if we were to include purchases, as the writer in the Quarterly does, among prodigalities, we suspect the ancient world would be outdone.—London Spectator.

DISGUSTED.
Good writing is not inconsistent with good eating; for one's brains rather thrive than suffer by heeding the demands of a healthy and hearty appetite. To illustrate the folly of the etherial notions which young ladies sometimes form of their favorite authors and poets, an English paper tells the story of the way poor Charlotte Bronte was once disenchanted of her hero worship. Thackeray was her favorite author, and in her lonely home on the moors her imagination invested him with all the ideal graces.

On a visit to London, she was lifted to the summit of happiness by an invitation to a dinner where Thackeray was to be one of the guests. She was introduced to the great man and sat next to him. It was a red-letter day in her life, and memory was on the alert to retain all his bright sayings, and report them to her sisters. Thackeray, however, did little talking but much eating. He had recently recovered from a severe attack of typhoid fever, which left him with a ravenous appetite, while the dinner was exceptionally good.

Charlotte looked on in wonder at his feasts, and the surprise gradually changed to disgust. One more idol had turned to clay. If she had known the modern law of the conservation of forces, her charity might not have failed her.

THE discovery of what is true and the practice of what is good are the two most important objects of life.

THE thief is safest who lives under the walls of the King's palace.—Peruvian.

STATISTICS show that there are just seventy-seven elephants in this country.

A FISHERMAN'S occupation ought to be the most profitable because his entire gross receipts are net profits.

THE BARBER.
Outline Sketch of a Professional Career.
The barber, children, is of an extinct species. The hair-dresser and tonsorial artist of the present day are supposed, however, to be descendants of the barber in direct line.

The barber is a treacherous creature. He is never to be depended upon. He has been known to cut his best friends. He is remarkably sharp in a business transaction, and will shave you if you give him a chance. In fact, shaving may be said to be his business.

The barber is a strapping fellow, and is ever ready to raise a row. I have frequently seen him take a man by the nose without the least provocation.

He always wants his home way, and is always ready for a brush.

He has his shortcomings, to be sure, and is apt to stir up a dauber; but he has a very smooth tongue, and knows how to lay on the lather.

He is generally honest in his judgments, and sincere in pool-pooling shams and delusions; but at the same time he is given to a great deal of sham-pooling.

I can't say that he was ever charged with murder, but thousands of people dye in his shop yearly.

Formerly the barber was a surgeon also, and used to be paid for bleeding his customers. Nowadays he draws blood without extra charge.

The barber sees a great many affecting scenes. There is a good deal of parting going on every day in his shop.

The barber seldom uses nails when shingling, though he may use them when he comes to the scratch.

The barber is a very secretive fellow. You will find locks every where about his place.

He has very little recreation. Curling is his chief amusement.

He always stands well in his profession. You will generally find him at the head.

He never makes game of his work, unless hair-dressing may be considered a rare bit of pleasure.

The barber has to stand a great deal from his customers. He does not care, however, how much cheek they display in his establishment, and the more chin they give him the better he likes it.

The barber's wife goes shopping, just like other women, though she ought to be able to get herself at her husband's establishment. She probably prefers to whisker round elsewhere.

Though the barber may have no children to receive his inheritance, there are always many hairs apparent at his shop.

The barber's motto is: "Soap on, soap over."

There are many more things I might tell you of the barber, but he is a great conversationalist, and amply able to speak for himself.—Boston Transcript.

Ague Cure

Is a purely vegetable bitter and powerful tonic, and is warranted a speedy and certain cure for Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, Intermittent or Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, and all malarial disorders. In malarial districts, the rapid pulse, coated tongue, thirst, lassitude, loss of appetite, pain in the back and loins, and coldness of the spine and extremities, are only premonitions of severer symptoms which terminate in the ague paroxysm, succeeded by high fever and profuse perspiration.

It is a startling fact, that quinine, arsenic, and other poisonous minerals form the basis of most of the "Fever and Ague Preparations," "Specifics," "Syrups," and "Tonics," in the market. The preparations made from these mineral poisons, although they are palatable, and may break the chill, do not cure, but leave the malarial and their own drug poison in the system, producing quinine, dizziness, ringing in the ears, headache, vertigo, and other disorders more formidable than the disease they were intended to cure. AYER'S AGUE CURE thoroughly eradicates these noxious poisons from the system, and always cures the severest cases. It contains no quinine, mineral, or any thing that could injure the most delicate patient; and its crowning excellence, above its certainty to cure, is that it leaves the system as free from disease as before the attack.

For Liver Complaints, Ayer's Ague Cure, by direct action on the liver and biliary apparatus, drives out the poisons which produce these complaints, and stimulates the system to a vigorous, healthy condition.

We warrant it when taken according to directions.

HOW TO SLEEP WELL.

No healthful sleep comes except that which follows voluntary or involuntary action of the body. Pedestrians fall into sound, deep sleep as soon as put to bed, at the appointed time for rest. This is the sleep from voluntary muscular exercise. A person in good health sits around the house all day; an invalid may all day sit and lounge and lie down from morning until night without sleeping; and both the healthy man and the invalid, in the course of the evening, will become sleepy and fall into round repose, the result of the weariness which involuntary action brings about; for the various organs of the body, the heart, the liver, the stomach, the eyelids, work steadily every day. The fatigues are as ceaseless in their motion as the waves of the ocean; as these latter are always dashing toward the shore, so is the great visceral machinery working, working, working, pushing the wastes of the body downward and outward from the first breath of existence to the last grasp of life. There is no movement of the system, voluntary or involuntary, external or internal, which does not require power to cause it. When that power is to a certain extent exhausted, instinct brings on the sense of sleepiness, which is the result of expended power, intended by nature to secure that cessation from activity which gives time for recuperation, very much as a man who runs for a while stops and rests, so as to get stronger to run again. We get up in the morning with a certain amount of nerved or accumulated strength; in the course of the day that strength becomes expended to the point necessary for the commencement of a new supply, which comes from rest, the rest from sleep. Opium narcotics, all forms of anodynes, cause sleep artificially, compelling rest. A person may be tired so that he cannot move; he is compelled to be at rest; it is not the rest of tiredness, hence it is unnatural. Anodynes, in a sense, take a man down; they take away his power of motion, they compel a rest, but it is not the rest which is the result of used-up strength, hence it is an artificial rest causing an artificial sleep, not natural; and sleep which is unnatural cannot be healthful; hence the truth of the first utterance of this chapter—healthful sleep comes from the expenditure of the strength of the body in various forms of exercise.—Hall's Journal of Health.

BEGGING LETTERS.

There are some things to be urged in behalf of poverty, one of the chief of which is that one is not annoyed by begging letters. A reporter of the New York Mail, who was sent to make certain inquiries of a citizen noted for his liberality, was shown a few specimens of the importunities for help almost daily made by mail. Among those he was allowed to copy were such as the following, the penmanship being retained: "Tutuks you could do a kindness if you could pay off a mortgage of $115 on a piano or find some man in the Baptist Church that would do it." "Would like you to send him money to go to college with." "Wants to be supported." "Her husband had sore on his head that burst out and she would not ask no man for a nickle if she did not think he had a big hart. Her husband never drunk no intoxicating drinks, never gambled, never need no bad language, never used tobacco and never had a lawsuit." "Would like you to go and see all the Captains of the ocean steamers personal and see if you cannot raise enough money to support the grandniece of —." "Thinks you would like to give him money to go to England." "Would like you to get your journal box patented for him." "Would you have the kindness to lend him $4,000?" "Would like you to invest $2,000 head of cattle."

A LARGE-HEARTED WOMAN.

"My wife," said a hard-featured old Benedict, when the subject of conversation was "woman," "is one of the largest-hearted women I have ever known. She thinks first of herself, second of the children, third of her relatives, fourth of her friends, fifth of her acquaintances, sixth of her husband. Mighty few ladies can get over so much ground as that, I can tell ye."

The annual product of gold is now less than $100,000,000, and its foreign coinage is practically suspended. In the United States the production has gradually diminished. In 1878 it was $47,266,107; in 1879, it was $38,900,000; in 1880, $38,000,000.

FACTS FOR THE CURIOUS.

ONE oyster may lay as many as 2,000,000 eggs a year.

A BLOW from the leg of an ostrich will break a man's leg.

A WOLF, like a tiger, having once eaten man, prefers him to all else for a dinner, and if he attacks a man it is proof that he has already dined off one or had hydrophobia.

THE sea cucumber, one of the curious jelly bodies that inhabit the ocean, can practically efface himself when in danger by squeezing the water out of his body and forcing himself into a narrow crack—so narrow as not to be visible to the naked eye. He can throw out nearly whole of his inside, and yet live and grow it again.

ACCORDING to a writer in Nature, the small migratory birds that are unable to perform the flight of 350 miles across the Mediterranean sea are carried across on the backs of cranes. In the autumn many flocks of cranes may be seen coming from the north, with the first cold blast from that quarter, flying low, and uttering a peculiar cry, as if of alarm, as they circle over the cultivated plains. Little birds of every species may be seen flying up to them, while the twittering song of these birds comfortably settled upon their backs may be distinctly heard. But for this kind provision of nature, numerous varieties of small birds would become extinct in northern countries, as the cold winters would kill them.

BANK OF ENGLAND notes are made from pure white linen cuttings—never from rags that have been worn. So carefully is the paper prepared that even the number of dips into the pulp made by each individual workman is registered on a dial by machinery, and the sheets are carefully counted and booked to each person through whose hands they pass. The printing is done by a most curious process within the bank building. There is an elaborate arrangement for securing that no note shall be exactly like any other in existence; consequently there never has been a duplicate bank note except by forgery. The stock of paid notes for seven years is said to amount to 94,000,000, and to fill 10,000 boxes, which, if placed side by side, would cover over three miles in extent.

IN England the northside of a churchyard is objected to as a place of burial. The old ecclesiastical reason is this: "The east is God's side, where His throne is set; the west is man's side, the Galilee of the Gentiles; the south is the side of the angels and of the 'spirits made just,' where the sun shines in its strength. The north is the devil's side, where Satan and his legion lurk to catch the unwary." Some churches have still a "devil's door" in the north wall, which was opened at baptisms and communions to let the devil out. Miles Everdell, in his "Praying for the Dead," A. D. 1535, says: "As they die, so shall they arise; it is faith in the Lord, toward the south, * * * and shall arise in glory; it is unbelief, * * * toward the north, then are they past all hope."

THE disproportion of the costs of a lawsuit to the damages obtained was probably never greater than in a case argued by William H. Seward in 1848. A newspaper addressed to a Miss Felton was received at the Syracuse postoffice. The Postmaster refused to deliver the paper without letter postage, because the initials of the sender were on the wrapper. The lady sued in a Justice's court for the value of the paper, and was awarded 6 cents damages. The Postmaster appealed, and the case was carried successively to the Court of Common Pleas, the Supreme Court of the State, the Court of Appeals and the United States Supreme Court, each affirming the original decision. When the case entered the last tribunal $136.90 in costs had been added to the 6 cents damages.

The Parasite of Malaria.

Prof. Laveran, of the Medical School of Val-de-Grace, has published a work describing what he considers to be a new parasite which he has found in the blood of persons affected with malarial fever. A notice of his discovery was communicated to the Academy of Medicine so long ago as November, 1880, but it seemed to have attracted little attention, being thought to be simply one of the numerous announcements made of late years, of the discovery of the cause of malaria, which prove in the end to have no foundation. The organism described by Prof. Laveran is a minute cell, in general appearance somewhat like a white blood corpuscle, and having, like it, amoeboid movements. He considers it to be animal rather than vegetable in character, but for this there seem to be no sufficient grounds.—Sanitary Engineer.

IN proportion to its size the Isle of Jersey exports as many cattle yearly as are contained in England. The entire island if squared would be but six and three-quarters miles each way, and yet the census of 1881 gives it 12,000 head of cattle, showing that the breeders of Jersey cattle manage to support one head of the tawn-colored dairy cows to each acre yearly—a showing unequalled by any country in the world.

FALLING STARS.

Astronomers divide meteors into several classes—auroral meteors, as winds, tornadoes, etc.; aqueous meteors, as fogs, rain, snow, hail, etc.; luminous meteors, or those due to the action of elements in the air, as rainbows, halos, parhelia, mirages, etc.; electrical meteors, as lightnings, auroras, etc.; and igneous meteors, as shooting or falling stars, star-showers, bolides or fire-balls, aerolites or meteorites, etc. In present usage, says Prof. Newton, the term meteor is generally limited to the last group, or to the igneous meteors. The meteorites are all evidently fragments, not separate formations. They are, says the same authority, in the heavens, to some extent at least, grouped in streams along the orbits of known comets, and hence have a common origin with them. The continuity of these streams, the double and multiple character of Biela's and other comets, and the steady diminution of comets in brilliancy at successive returns, seems to argue a continuous breaking up of the comet into fragments by some cause, probably by the sun's heat. This view is strengthened by the fact that the meteoric irons and stones bring with them carbonic acid, which is known to form so prominent a part of the comet's tail. It is now universally admitted that igneous meteors are caused by small bodies which have been traveling about the sun in their orbits, but now come into the earth's atmosphere, and, in general, burn up. The stony meteorites have in general the shape of broken fragments of stone. The outside is usually covered with a thin, black crust, which is evidently due to a melting of the surface in the atmosphere. There have been found at various times and places loose iron masses that are assumed to be of meteoric origin, because their peculiar form, their peculiar composition, and their peculiar crystalline structure are like those of the iron masses that have been seen in several instances to come down from meteors. Shooting stars are seen on any clear, moonlight night; they leave behind, many of them, a bright cloud of phosphorescent light; the meteors and their trains have various colors—white, green, blue, yellow, scarlet, etc.; the duration of the flight is generally less than a second of time, but the brighter ones may last several seconds; the meteorites contain no elements, so far as we know, which have not been found on the earth, but these elements are compounded differently from terrestrial minerals; sometimes they reach the earth, and again are consumed in their course.

READINESS OF JOURNALISTS.

The journalist what writes "leaders" for a daily paper is precisely in the position, as regards political news, of the doctor with respect to disease, or the solicitor with respect to practice; he knows a little more than the person who consults him. He may not have half of the ability of his patient or his client, but he knows something, much or little, which the other wants to know. An important telegram received at night in the office of a morning paper really falls into the hands of a kind of corporation. Some one member of the staff probably knows the question fairly well, has watched the events leading up to the event recorded in the telegram for years, has a distinct idea what the news means, and has thought out, superficially it is true, but still with some distinctness, what result such an occurrence would probably produce. Long habit enables him to put his opinion on paper quickly, clearly and pleasantly, and he does put it; and if he is even decently competent his readers next morning have something beside news, which increases the value of the news to them. That the something may not be as valuable as the doctor's opinion or the lawyer's may be true, because the journalist's range is apt to be too wide for equally accurate and minute knowledge; but it has value, nevertheless.—Exchange.

THE Countess D. is subject to fainting fits, but when alone she recovers from them very quickly. "How do you recover consciousness so easily?" a friend asked of her. "Oh," responded the Countess, "it is a matter of habit. When I am alone, I slap my hands, and that soon brings me to."

SAFE KIDNEY LIVER CURE THE LEADING SCIENTISTS OF TODAY agree that most diseases are caused by disordered kidneys or liver. If, therefore, the kidneys and liver are kept in perfect order, perfect health will be the result. This truth has only been known a short time, and for years people suffered great agony without being able to find relief. The discovery of Warner's safe Kidney and Liver Cure marks a new era in the treatment of these troubles. Made from a simple tropical leaf of rare value, it costs as just the elements necessary to nourish and regulate both of these great organs, and safely restores and keeps them in order. It is a POSITIVE REMEDY for all diseases that cause pain in the lower part of the back—the Torpid Liver—Headache—Stomach—Diarrhoea—Cholera—Fever—Ague—Malarial Fever and all obstructions of the Kidneys, Liver and Urinary Organs. It is an excellent and safe remedy for females during Pregnancy. It will control Menstruation, and is invaluable for Leucorrhoea or Falling of the Womb. As a Blood Purifier it is unequalled, for it cures the organs that make the blood. BEWARE OF THE RECORD. "It saved my life."—E. B. Lakely, Selma, Ala. "It is the remedy that will cure the many diseases peculiar to women."—Mother's Magazine. "It has passed severe tests and won endorsements from some of the highest medical talent in the country."—New York World. This remedy which has done such wonders is put up in the largest sized bottle of any medicine upon the market, and is sold by druggists and all dealers at $1.25 per bottle. For full particulars inquire for WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY LIVER CURE. It is a positive remedy. H. H. WARNER & CO., Rochester, N. Y.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF PORT TOWNSEND.

BRIEF LOCAL ITEMS.

ACTION sale of the James store building tomorrow, Saturday.

Mr. Hadlock's scow has been launched and will soon receive her machinery.

Our weekly edition is delayed a day this week—for reasons that must be apparent.

HON. R. O. Dunbar has succeeded W. L. Ames as editor of the Klickitat Sentinel, at Goldendale.

Mrs. Henry Ran and her daughter Miss Fannie Ran, of San Francisco, are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Landes.

IRELAND has her troubles still—and they are serious ones too—but Clinger sells just as cheap as ever. Call on him and verify our statement.

Mr. Wm. Ward, of Dungeness, who has been in the logging business near that place, was in town yesterday, having been to Port Discovery with a boom of saw logs that was towed there by the tug Mastick.

SOLD.—We learn that Mr. Bartlett has sold the hull of the wrecked C. L. Taylor to parties in Victoria, and that she will be converted into a coal barge. The lumber that was in her, we learn, has been about all sold.

A Mr. White, a machinist, who was here some week ago looking around, has returned, and we learn he contemplates starting in business here. Let him be afforded every encouragement, as he belongs to the class of business men that Port Townsend most needs.

Mr. C. L. Dingley, of San Francisco, and Mr. Cool, of Middlemass & Cool, are in town. We learn that they are very desirous of introducing the industry of ship building in connection with the Port Townsend saw mill. It is to be hoped they may make satisfactory arrangements with our mill owners, as Point Hudson can't be beaten for advantages in the location of a ship yard.

NEW SCHEDULE.—The following is the new schedule of the steamer Hope for her semi-weekly trips, which went into effect on the 16th inst.: Leave Port Townsend Monday, 9 A. M., arrive at Anacortes Tuesday, 4 A. M. Leave Anacortes 6 A. M., Tuesday, arrive at Port Townsend 9 P. M. same day. Leave Port Townsend 9 A. M. Thursday, arrive at Semiahmoo Friday 11 A. M. Leave Semiahmoo same day at 3 P. M., and arrive at Port Townsend Saturday at 5 P. M.

On account of Mrs. Winslow's death the entertainment, "One Hundred Years Ago," has been postponed a week.

Judge D. W. Smith makes an important announcement in today's Argus in reference to desirable town lots. Read it; you may find something of special interest.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Winslow will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, from the late residence of deceased. Let all who can turn out and pay respect to one who lived so long here to such a noble purpose.

Mr. James's remnant of stock left in his store was sold at auction today. The directors of the bank propose to sell the building at once, and have it removed to make way for their substantial stone building so soon to ornament that portion of our city.

Prof. A. L. Francis, piano tuner, who has been in town the past few days on professional business, will leave for up Sound tomorrow morning. On his return a few weeks hence—of which due notice will be given—he will remain as long as business will warrant. Those wanting work in his line may leave orders at the Central Hotel.

TRANSFERRED.—Mr. M. G. Marsilliot, for several years occupying the position of 1st assistant engineer on the U. S. revenue cutter Wolcott, has been transferred to the steamer Hartley at San Francisco. The position made vacant by this transfer will, we learn, be filled by Mr. Horace Hassell, who will be stationed on us again. During Mr. Marsilliot's stay on this station he made many very warm friends who will regret very much to lose his genial society. He left this morning for his new post of duty where we hope he may find it both pleasant and profitable.

NEW LODGE of A. O. U. W.—On Thursday evening, April 19th, Whatcom Lodge, A. O. U. W., was organized at Whatcom, W. T., by Allen Weir, District Deputy Grand Master for the jurisdiction of Oregon, W. T. and B. C. Some seventeen applicants had been accepted for this Lodge, only twelve, however, being present at the institution. The officers are as follows; W. L. Steinweg, Past Master; W. H. Penfield, Master;

C. Donovan, Recorder. [Unfortunately, we lost our memorandum, and cannot give the list complete.] The Lodge starts out with flattering prospects, and, as there are more anxious to join it, and two or three old members to transfer to it by card, it will have twenty or more when full fledged.

From Tuesday's Daily

If this isn't fine weather, what would you call it?

As the dead child of Mr. Weir will be buried tomorrow this paper will not be issued.

Mr. John LeMaistre has commenced the work of grading the long road leading up the hill past Mrs. Myers' house.

The steamer Gipsy has been purchased by the O. R. & N. Co. to carry coal from San Juan Islands to New Tacoma, and will arrive soon to go on the route.

Full orchestra in connection with the drama, "One Hundred Years ago" at Good Templars' Hall, Friday and Saturday evening. Don't forget it.

We are very sorry to learn that no improvement in the condition of Mrs. Frank Winslow is visible. Mrs. Winslow has been very ill for a long time.

Mr. Henry Morrell, who had his head terribly lacerated by a saw at Port Gamble is nearly recovered, and expects to be around in a couple of weeks.

The Hope got away very late on her Anacortes trip this week. She was aground at the wharf this morning, and did not leave till quite late, one day behind time.

Travel has increased wonderfully on the route between Tacoma and Victoria during the past year, and the North Pacific was crowded with passengers on her arrival here this morning.

SAILED.—Schr. John C. North, lumber laden; bktna. Wrestler, lumber laden; bk. Tidal Wave, lumber laden, and schr. Geo. C. Perkins, lumber laden, all for San Francisco, sailed yesterday.

The ship Oracle, 1550 tons, built at Bath in 1870, and owned by J. Hitchcock and others, is reported a total wreck off Cape Horn. The Oracle was commanded by Capt. Morrison.

A Tombston, Arizona, dispatch of the 22d says that H. M. Woods, editor of the Epitaph, was stricken suddenly by blindness, caused, his physicians say, by too close application to the duties of his profession.

Mr. Villard, in his speech at Tacoma assured his hearers that that city was to be the terminus. He promised Seattle the same thing, and has often said the same of Portland. Mr. Villard seems to be a first-class hand at distributing "guff."

C. Stuart Campbell, the young man who got his leg crushed last week at the Port Blakely mill, died at Providence Hospital, Seattle, at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. Blood poisoning set in immediately after he received his injuries and it was from that he died.

Saturday about midnight a man by the name of S. F. Sharps, who arrived at Seattle from Portland, was attacked by two foot pads who came up behind him and knocked him senseless with a sand club, presumably, and then robbed him of a large sum of money; said to be about $800.

The Wyman Comedy Co. made its first appearance in Good Templar Hall last evening in "Yakie, or the emigrant's oath." A very small house greeted them. We were sorry to see such a small attendance for the play was well rendered. "Yakie," as rendered by Mr. Al Wyman was immense, and the other characters were well rendered, especially those taken by the ladies. Tonight the troupe will appear in Kathleen Mavourneen, an interesting Irish drama. Every one, who possibly can, should attend.

A dispatch from San Francisco, dated April 22 states that the schooner Two Brothers capsized off Bodega Head at 5 a. m. and is now lying at anchor in Bodega Bay, bottom up, all hands lost. The unfortunate vessel was owned by Daniel Dodge. She carried a crew of five besides the master, Capt. F. Balke, and a passenger, Captain Schnellling. The names of the crew are unknown. The vessel was 56 tons, new register, and valued at $4000. She was insured for two-thirds this sum. It is said that the disaster was caused by what in marine parlance was known as "tripping in the sea."

READ THIS.—Dealers in cigars and tobacco, who have stocks on hand that they wish to get a rebate on, must be careful to pay their special tax (license) prior to May 1st, or they will not be "dealers" in the eyes of the law, and therefore not entitled to the rebate. Rebate will only be allowed on stock on hand or in transit May 1st, and no claim for less than $10 will be considered, therefore a dealer must have on hand 3350 cigars, or 125 pounds of tobacco, or enough of the two to amount to $10 at $3 per 1000 for cigars and 8 cents per pound for tobacco. Blanks will be furnished dealers on which to make out their schedules. They will also have to affix a label to each package, containing the name, place and collection district. These labels will also be furnished in case parties do not wish to have their own labels printed to save work of writing. The Collector's office here will not be supplied with these labels May 1st, on account of the impossibility of printing the enormous quantity needed, so that as it seems now; the only way to do will be to have the tobacco and cigars counted and listed May 1st, and labels printed for themselves.

From Monday's Daily.

The Port Townsend Amateur Band will furnish Music Friday and Saturday evenings in connection with the school drama.

The steamer Phantom, from Seabeck, came down Sunday. She is a much better looking craft than she was when she ran the route between here and Neah Bay.

The Wyman Comedy Co. commence their performances here tonight with "Yakie, or the Emigrant's Oath." It ought to be good for it was written by a newspaper man.

We are informed that Mr. Stewart Campbell, whom we mentioned a few days ago as being badly injured at Port Blakely was so low on Saturday that his life was despaired of.

The steamer Helen is to be hauled out on Tobey's ship ways, and thoroughly overhauled and repaired, preparatory for the summer work, which, judging from present indications is going to be heavy.

Mr. H. A. Tucker completed the foundation of Mr. F. A. Bartlett's new residence, and will put the building up as rapidly as possible. Mr. Tucker is a master at his trade and will put up a first-class house.

We are informed that the Rev. Mr. Spangler, of Oak Harbor, is seriously ill. Dr. Minor was called on to attend him, and went across yesterday, by way of Deception Pass, on the Dispatch. With the heavy wind blowing this must have been anything but a pleasant trip.

Geo. P. Wall, advance agent for Leo's Ideal Pleasure Party, is in town, arranging for the appearance of his company in this place, on Monday next. This company comes to the Sound with an unrivalled reputation, having gained the reputation of being the "grandest aggregation of acknowledged specialty stars ever congregated together."

From Saturday's Daily.

We are told the mill will begin running on full time again Monday. The company have obtained a large number of logs, some of which are in their pond and others on Whidby Island waiting to be towed over.

The Goliah brought down from Port Gamble, last night, a large quantity of specially selected lumber for Capt. R. W. DeLion, who will use it in the construction of a large and elegant dwelling house on the hill. Masons are at work laying a stone foundation for the building.

Sometime since a merchant of this place commenced delivering goods sold in the store free of charge. This started the rest and now most all deliver goods, many having their own wagons. The last to start a delivery of their own is Plummer & Terry who having obtained a handsome, young, gray horse and a strong, well built wagon, perfectly adapted for the business, commenced operations this morning. It will be a grand advertisement for their business.

The calico ball spoken of a few days ago will come off on the first Wednesday in May. The committee of arrangements have spared no pains in their attempts to make the evening enjoyable. To assist this object they have arranged for a concert in connection with the dance, to come off immediately preceding it. Medd's orchestra, of Seattle, considered the best in the territory, has been engaged to furnish music for the ball, and will also conduct the concert. Gentlemen and ladies are requested, if possible, to appear in calico suits. Tickets, $3, for sale at C. C. Bartlett's and Waterman & Katz'. None but holders of tickets to the ball will be admitted to the concert.

FOR THE LADIES.

Ladies suffering from sick headaches, neuralgia, colds, fevers, indigestion and habitual constipation will find Syrup of Figs as effective in affording relief as it is pleasant to the taste. It acts thoroughly yet gently, a very small quantity sufficing to remove all impurities from the system, and makes one feel happier and brighter. Large bottles for sale and trial bottles free at N. D. Hill & Son's Drug Store.

ALLEN WEIR, Editor and Proprietor.

THURSDAY, APRIL 26, 1883.

E. STONE WIGGINS, LL. D.
THE FAMOUS WEATHER PROPHECY.

This famous storm predictor was born in New Brunswick, Canada, in 1839, graduating an M.D. in Philadelphia in 1868, and a B.A. at Albert College, Ontario, in 1869. He became noted as an educator, his management of the Ontario Institution for the blind winning him high distinction. His defeat for Parliament in 1878 was rewarded by a post in the Finance department at Ottawa. He has published an excellent English Grammar, and his essay on Comets for the Warner Prize gained second place with 120 competitors. His ancestors, Capt. Thos. Wiggins, was sent over in 1630 to act as Governor of the Massachusetts districts. A great-uncle, Stephen Wiggins, a St. John, N. B., millionaire, founded the Wiggins Male Orphan Institution of St. John. In 1872, Dr. Wiggins married a cousin, Miss Susie A. Wiggins, daughter of Vincent W. Wiggins, of New Brunswick. This lady's zeal and talents procured the passage by the Canadian Senate of the bill legalizing marriage with a deceased wife's sister, which service won her a wide popularity with her own sex.

But it is the Doctor's weather predictions that have won his questionable fame. He is no small prophet. His storm of March 10th, 1883, was to rise in the North Pacific, and striking America from the south-west sweep eastward and along the Great Lakes. General havoc was to be done in the lower St. Lawrence region and the Gulf of Mexico. Dread of this storm induced the Canadian and New England fishermen to keep in port until the time for its occurrence was past. But Wiggins was undaunted by failure. The result, he said had proved the correctness of his theory that opposite tides were caused by the ocean's vibratory motion from east to west. He was alarmed by the increase of the moon's forces, when advancing across the equator, with the other planets. Had the moon's conjunction with the sun occurred at one o'clock, instead of four in the morning, over the meridian of London, i.e. over the Gulf of Guinea, instead of the China Sea, the Atlantic coast and Florida would have been submerged by the storm which this coincidence would have occasioned. Some day such a complication of forces must happen, and would cause tides of terrible destructiveness. He had based his prediction on this principle and he cited the storms at various places in proof of its correctness. But there is a broad distinction between forecasts of the weather for 24, or 48 hours, and for several months. Should the theories of Dr. Wiggins be conclusively shown to rest upon a scientific basis, the weather, like motions of the planets, could be foretold with certainty. But this point cannot be considered to have been reached. It is safe to say that the weather of March, 1883, has cast grave doubts on the soundness of the Doctor's views. But whatever may be thought of his peculiar ideas and claims, he is certainly a man of parts and extensive attainments, who has rendered conspicuous service to the educational interests of Canada.

A Lost Art in America.

A New York paper says: "We have before us a detailed statement of the progress of shipbuilding in England, Ireland, and Scotland. The Tyne, the Lagan and the Clyde have, each of them, now on the stocks or just launched, palatial steamers for the North Atlantic trade. The Guion Line has the Oregon, a ship to out-rival in speed its already possessed "grey-hounds of ocean"—the Arizona and Alaska; the National Line, which has conquered a reputation for safety and its own in speed and comfort, is making additions to its fleet; the Irman Company is rapidly repairing recent disasters by the addition of ships of the best construction and finest models; the White Star will have auxiliaries to its present noble array of first class steamers, and of course the Cunard is bound to keep up its reputation by competition with the best of its rivals. There are, at least, for the ocean passenger trade, already six or eight mammoth steamers now in progress of completion, on the stocks, launched or ready for trial trips in British waters. What is America doing?

The ocean is the great highway of the nations; there is no monopoly of the waters. On its broad bosom there is no toll-bar to impede the progress of commerce, and the intrepid navigators who "go down to the sea in ships" can move about without let or hindrance, save the impediments which elemental wrath will sometimes interpose. And the nations have not been slow in availing themselves of this great pathway of international commerce. The flags of all countries are to be seen through the smoke darkening the air as it rises from hundreds of chimneys, telling of fires that make the steam for propelling the mighty engines of the leviathans of commerce—the British, Dutch, German, Danish, Belgian, French, etc.—but among the three hundred or more there are only four who carry the Stars and Stripes, and these, as Mr. Codman, in an interesting and suggestive treatise on "Free Ships" informs us, "were put afloat mainly at the cost of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company." Three hundred steamships, employing fifty thousand men, earning a million and a half dollars monthly; these men supporting and educating families, and themselves becoming reserves for their respective countries to call upon for naval service in time of war. The consequence is, to the countries from which these vessels hail, prosperity of the workmen and enrichment of the capital distributed. Warehouses, repairing shops, building yards and wharfs, these in abundance in every port of foreign countries are reproaches of our home neglect.

The progress of shipbuilding abroad is an appeal to us to look at home, to calculate the sum of one hundred and thirty million dollars that has been annually paid to us by foreigners for transporting ourselves and merchandise? And may we not add to the appeal the inquiry—is shipbuilding a lost art in America? Have we given up the race in skill, industry, enterprise and capital? And is it from a recognition of our own incapacity we surrender the record of the days when our sailing packets almost monopolized the ocean on account of the excellence of our naval architecture, and the skill of our naval officers and seamen? We shall not have far to go for answer. Among the blessings in disguise showered upon the nation by the beauty and bounty and beneficence of Republican law-making is the almost total extinction of the American Atlantic merchant service.

LIVING THOUGHTS.

EXPERIENCE is the extract of suffering. A MIND once cultivated will not lie fallow for half an hour.

PATIENCE, the second bravery of man, is, perhaps, greater than the first.

THE public mind is educated quickly by events—slowly by arguments.

IF the end or one mercy were not the beginning of another we were undone.

LEARN to take life as it comes, but be sure to make the best of it before it goes.

THE wisdom of the wise, and the experience of ages, may be preserved by quotations.

THE flowers of rhetoric are only acceptable when backed by the evergreens of truth and sense.

WE do love beauty at first sight, and we do cease to love it if it is not accompanied by amiable qualities.

THE virtue of a man ought to be measured, not by his extraordinary exertions, but by his every-day conduct.

SPANISH proverb: The man who stumbles twice on the same stone is a fool.

NOTHING is rich but the inexhaustible wealth of nature. She shows us only surfaces, but she is million fathoms deep.

THE whole universe of God will crumble to pieces before God will overlook or despise one single tear of genuine repentance.

GENIUS should be like joy—majestic, equable, serene, confirming, ceasing, raising, making free. Striving to consume small troubles, to command Great thoughts, grave thoughts, thoughts lasting to the end.

"It's not you are, winter or summer," said the snappish wife to her drunken husband. "And it's so cold you are, summer or winter," he replied with a malicious grin.

THERE are some experiences in life which make us feel like the boy who, when he stubbed his toe against a sharp stone, said he was too big to cry and too laddy hard to laugh.

THIS is a beautiful language of ours. Ben Hogan, the retired pugilist, who has turned preacher, is spoken of as the expounder of the prize ring and the expounder of the gospel.

J. W. RILEY has a poem on "The Lost Kiss." He doesn't make it very plain as to how he lost it, but it is presumed her mother came into the room just in time to catch her at it.

"WHAT makes you feel so uncomfortable when you have done wrong?" asked a teacher who was lecturing his pupils on conscience. "My father's leather strap," answered a little boy.

A LADY who had quarreled with her bald-headed lover said, in dismissing him, "What is delightful about you, my friend, is that I have not the trouble of sending you back any locks of hair."

A LITTLE girl went timidly into a shop and asked the shopman how many shoestrings she could get for a penny. "How long do you want them?" he asked. "I want them to keep," was the answer, in a tone of slight surprise.

SCENE—A butcher's stand. Butcher: "Come, John, be lively now; break the bones in Mr. Williams' chops, and put Mr. Smith's ribs in the basket for him." John (trickily): "All right, sir, just as soon as I've sawed off Mrs. Murphy's leg."

A QUESTION of supply: Parish clerk (at vestry meeting on the question of organ blower's salary, the rector in the chair)—"You see, sir, it isn't as if there was only the hymns, but there's the comin' in and goin' out, and the spouses and the prayers and the psalms take a wonderful deal o' wind!" —Punch.

HE was at breakfast, wrestling with a piece of remarkably tough veal. His wife said to him, "You always say there's something to be thankful for in everything. I fancy you'd be puzzled to find something to be thankful for in that veal." "Not at all," he cheerfully responded, stopping to breathe; "I was just thinking how grateful we should be we met it when it was young."

AT a dance, the other evening, he was introduced to a very becoming miss, and so, of course, was doing his best to merit his good luck. Feeling a sudden indisposition, he excused himself for a minute, and, on returning, was in the act of removing a few kernels of coffee from his vest pocket, when the damsel astonished him by saying: "Don't chew that; I had rather smell the new rum." He didn't apologize.

THE PROFESSION OF JOURNALISM.

At a college commencement dinner, Mr. Z. L. White, editor of the Providence (R. I.) Press, was called upon to speak for the profession of journalism. He said, in substance: "I have been asked to say a word for a profession which does not need speaking for; the press, like the poor, you have always with you, and it needs no word from me to introduce it. The profession of journalism has grown up almost within the memory of these present. It is only a few years ago that newspapers were not the power that they are to-day. Among the influences tending to change the character of journalism and to elevate it to its present high standard, that of the colleges of the country and its institutions of learning is one of the strongest.

"The importance of the influence of the profession of journalism leads to the consideration of the responsibility of the journalist. There is no other class of professional men on whom so great a responsibility rests. The duty of the journalist to-day is not only to present to the world a mirror of events, to hold up a record of contemporaneous history, but also to present this record in such a way that the proper lesson may be drawn from it. Ever vigilant, within an hour of the time when the paper goes to press, the editor hears for the first time of some event of great national importance; on the spur of the moment, without time for reflection, he must present it to the world in his editorial in such a way as will lead his readers to look upon it in the right and proper light. When we consider these things we cannot overestimate the responsibility which rests upon him.

"The great newspaper to-day is not the mouth-piece of politicians, or intended to promote the ambitions of single men who control them. As a class, the newspapers of to-day are independent, owned and controlled by men who have no special ambition of their own, and who are hence able better to judge events. The public service of this country is improving daily, and this fact is due, to a great extent, to the existence of a free and independent press.

"I would say to-day to those young men who propose to enter journalism—you cannot place too high an estimate upon the calling you have chosen. Enter it with the idea of work. Journalism to-day demands a devotion such as no other profession requires. Of those who enter it not more than one-fourth continue to the end. The odorous, the long hours, the incessant demands of journalism are too great for many to bear. But to him who enters it able and prepared to undergo the necessary strain and toil the possibilities of reward are great."

THE LITTLE SHEPHERD DOG.

The best of these dogs are worth $200 or even more. One herder, whom we met at Cold Spring ranch, showed us a very pretty one that he said he would not sell for $500. She had at that time four young puppies. The night we arrived we visited his camp, and were greatly interested in the little mother and her nursing babies. Amid those wild, vast mountains, this little nest of motherly devotion and baby trust was very beautiful.

While we were exclaiming, the assistant herder came to say that there were more than twenty sheep missing. Two male dogs, both larger than the little mother, were standing about with their hands in their breeches, doing nothing. But the herder said neither Tom nor Dick would find them. Flora must go. It was urged by the assistant that her foot was sore, she had been hard at work all day, was nearly worn out, and must suckle her puppies. The boss insisted that she must go. The sun was setting. There was no time to lose. Flora was called, and told to hunt for lost sheep, while her master pointed to a great forest, through the edge of which they had passed on their way up. She raised her head, but seemed very loth to leave her babies. The boss called sharply to her. She rose, looking tired and low-spirited, with head and tail down, and trotted wearily off toward the forest. I said:

"This is too bad."

"Oh, she'll be right back. She's lightning on stray sheep."

The next morning I went over to learn whether Flora had found the strays. While we were speaking the sheep were returning, driven by a little dog, who did not raise her head nor wag her tail, even when spoken to, but crawled to her puppies and lay down by them, offering the little empty breasts. She had been out all night, and while her hungry babies were tugging away, fell asleep. I have never seen anything so touching. So far as I was concerned, "there was not a dry eye in the house."

How often that scene comes back to me—the vast, gloomy forest, and that little creature, with the sore foot and her heart crying for her babies, limping and creeping about in the wild caverns and through the long, dark hours, finding and gathering in the lost sheep!

I wonder if any preacher of the gospel ever searched for lost sheep under circumstances so hard and with such pain.

PRESIDENT GARFIELD'S favorite poet was Tennyson.

THE CHINESE BAMBOO.

A bamboo, be it said, can be put to more uses than any other thing of the vegetable kind in the world. What would our opposite neighbors in the Celestial empire do without it? It is employed for every conceivable, beside some inconceivable purposes, on land and water, and even in the air; for kites are made of it, and so are the queer little whistles bound to the tame pigeons to frighten crows from the grain fields. It can be used in the whole cane, in strips, in segments or in threads, and no part comes amiss. The tubes are suitable for water pipes, and so it answers for aqueducts; it is so strong that foot bridges are constructed of it, and light enough for rafts; so available that a whole house can be built of it—the frame, the thatch, the lattices, the partitions—and it furnishes material for the tables and chairs and some of the utensils and decorative articles; it is so hard that knives are made from thin slices, and so delicate that it may be carved into daintiest of boxes, and even thimbles and neckties; so elastic that baskets are woven of it, so fibrous that it may be twisted into ropes and cordage. It supplies lining for the chests of tea, strands for fishing nets, strips for fans and canes stiff enough for oars and spears and palanquin poles. It is one of the four things without which China would be China no longer; rice for food, tea for drink, silk for wear and bamboo for everything.

There are said to be more than sixty varieties of this wonderful thing, which is neither grass nor tree, yet is in structure like grass, while it grows in dense groves, like trees, and shoots away up even to a height of 150 feet, and is nothing after all but a hollow, jointed reed.—Wide Awake.

DRINKING WATER.

No sensible person need be told that pure water is as essential to good health as pure air, and we can not be too careful of that part of this most necessary article of domestic economy to be used in cooking and for drinking. Water has an immense absorbing capacity, and the colder it is the greater the facility with which it takes up impure gases. An open vessel of water will render the air of a room purer, but the water itself will, in a few hours, be rendered totally unfit for use by reason of the fact that most all the carbonic-acid gas and ammonia, the result of respired gases, is taken up by it. Hence, water for cooking or drinking should, if kept inside, be in tightly-covered vessels. Where well or cistern water is used the better plan is to keep the drinking pail on the outside.

Certain it is that no prudent housewife, knowing these facts, will use water that has stood uncovered, for any length of time, in an occupied room. When studying cleanliness and ventilation do not forget the important adjunct to comfort and health—pure water.

CHEMISTRY.

Some time since the director of the museum was granted leave to provide himself with apparatus and chemicals in order that he might make some experiments for the benefit of the club. Being now called upon to report progress, he came forward with his first experiment. Taking up an egg, he explained its proportions of lime, albumen and sugar, and broke it into a tin dish. He then poured in a gill of whisky, and explained that whisky was the juice of corn and was principally used to tone up the system, prevent baldness, cure lockjaw and produce pleasant dreams. He grated a little nutmeg, and explained that the nuts couldn't grow in this country on account of the weather fooling around so much. Milk was added without comment, and the mixture well shaken and poured out in a tumbler and handed to Brother Gardner. He gulped it all down with evident relish, and remarked that he should hereafter encourage chemistry with all his might.—Live Kith Club.

Authors at work.

Harriet Martineau at first believed copying to be absolutely necessary. She had read Mrs. Edgeworth's account of her method of writing—submitting her rough sketch to her father, then copying and altering many times, till no one page of her "Leonora" stood at last as it did at first. But such a tedious process did not suit Miss Martineau's habits of thought and her haste to appear in print. She found that there was no use copying if she did not alter, and that even if she did alter she had to change back again; so she adopted Abbott's maxim, "To know first what you want to say, and then say it in the first words that come to you." We have a very different style and a different result in Charlotte Brontë's toil in authorship. She was in the habit of writing her first drafts in a very small square book or folding of paper, from which she copied with extreme care. Samuel Rogers' advice was to write a very little and seldom—to put it by—and read it from time to time, and copy it pretty often and show it to good judges. Another contemporary authoress, Mary Russel Mitford, frankly confesses that she was always a most slow and laborious writer. "The Preface to the Tragedies" was written three times over throughout, and many parts of it five or six. Almost every line of "Atherton" has been written three times over, and it is certainly the most cheerful and sunshiny story that was ever composed in such a state of helpless feebleness and suffering.

SHIPPING NEWS.

From the Daily of Tuesday.

Steamship Eureka arrived here last night.

The steamer Virginia was launched today.

Mr. Henry Landes returned today from San Francisco.

Ship Topgallant arrived last night, 8 days from San Francisco.

Steamship Geo. W. Elder sailed for San Francisco, via Victoria, last night.

A bark, name unknown, was taken up-Sound by the Goliath yesterday.

Ship Canada, from San Francisco, was towed to Tacoma by the tug Tacoma yesterday.

The steamship Wilmington arrived today from San Francisco, with freight and passengers.

Bark Lizzie Williams passed up yesterday passed up Sound yesterday from San Francisco.

British Ship Ismer arrived last night twenty-seven days from Guaymas, Mex. She will load lumber at Tacoma for Valparaiso.

On her last trip to this place the Mississippi rescued the crew of the schooner Phoebe Fay, which she found waterlogged and disabled. It will be remembered the Fay came here some time since to go sealing, but springing a leak was sent back to Frisco, and was bound to that place when abandoned.

Steamship Mississippi arrived from San Francisco Wednesday evening with a large number of immigrants that could not come on the regular steamer. She brought considerable freight for this place, but took it up Sound instead of discharging it were it belonged, and it came back today on the Welcome. The only reason for this action is that the longshoremen wouldn't discharge her less than $1 per hour; this the steamer wouldn't pay; consequently the merchants had to wait for their goods.

Ehip Two Brothers has been ordered to Departure Bay to load coal.

The steamer Virginia has been thoroughly overhauled and repaired, and takes her place on the route between Irondale, Whidby Island and this place in splendid condition.

Schrs. John C. North and Geo. C. Perkins, bktns. Wrestler and bk. Tidal Wave, all lumber laden, were forced in here for refuge from the heavy gale yesterday. Ship Shirley, with her fore-topgallant mast gone, passed up Saturday; also, bark Vilette from San Francisco. Arrived—Norwegian bark Vale, from Victoriar.

The Wilmington after discharging freight up Sound returned here Saturday night, and left yesterday morning for Departure Bay, B. C., where she will load with coal. It was blowing a heavy westerly gale when the steamer went out, and as she was light, the way she rolled and pitched must have made it immensely interesting to any inexperienced individuals on board, and they probably commenced "looking for bottom" before she got half a mile. Going around Point Wilson, through the tide-rips, the steamer would at times put her bows under so deep that her propeller would be thrown completely out of water. This steamer is building up a lucrative freighting business on this route.

Steamship Walla Walla arrived here Saturday night seventy-four hours from San Francisco. She experienced very heavy weather on the passage. On Sunday morning she was docked at Union wharf, and discharged about 50 tons of freight for the merchants here and for the P. S. Co., at Irondale. Beside the freight the steamer brought from Frisco 24 horses, twelve of which were landed here for the Iron Co. The animals arrived in very fair condition, considering the roughness of the trip, although several of them were lamed and strained. At one time, while the steamer was running in a heavy sea several of the mangers were broken loose and it was feared some of the horses would go overboard, but by prompt attention this accident was averted. One of the seamen of the vessel was quite severely injured by being thrown down a hatchway. He was placed in the hospital at this place for treatment.

A fire broke out on the steamer Welcome on her way to this place today and in the words of a passenger on board, "it caused a dickens of a row for a time; the pump was out of gear and great trouble was experienced in quenching the flame. By strenuous efforts on the part of the crew the fire was extinguished." The boat is not greatly damaged.
