Ego.—This subject may suggest a display of vanity; but we feel assured that what we desire to say at this time is of sufficient interest to the public to render an introductory apology unnecessary. On the 15th of next month, or as soon thereafter as possible, the Argus will be published as a daily and weekly combined. Now don't start. This "new departure" has been carefully considered for some time—the only question to be decided was that of adequate support. Believing that the time has fully arrived when there is sufficient demand in Port Townsend and vicinity for a commercial daily, and that our business men will support such a publication if it be properly maintained, we have decided to make the venture on a small scale, as an experiment. To this end we have sent for the necessary additional printing material, and will be prepared soon to take orders for subscription or advertising. This will be no reckless speculation, calculated to involve its projector in debt—but will be a carefully perfected business venture, based on purely business principles. Its success must be determined by the public. We are convinced that there is a liberal support here for the right kind of a daily, and if the new paper does not succeed under our management, we are willing to speedily vacate the field for the proper man if he can be found. The cost has been carefully counted, and it certainly involves a great deal of labor for a comparatively small remuneration for some time to come. This, we are willing to undertake—though not entirely on the principle of self-sacrifice to public good, nor altogether for mere "glory." Port Townsend is, by virtue of its peculiarly fortunate geographical location, and being the port of entry for Puget Sound, the proper location for a commercial newspaper that will, under somebody's leadership, become in the future a prominent factor for public good. The aggressive business start made here during the past few months forestalls a year of unusual activity in building and substantial growth. We are persuaded that the place has roused itself for vigorous strides in the race for commercial supremacy on the Sound. There has never yet been a systematic and FULL publication of the commercial statistics of the Sound—for obvious reasons. Much of our export trade does not go through the Custom House, and there is no record of it kept by any one; hence, in all published reports, there have always been heretofore portions estimated or left out entirely. Besides this, the mere giving of dates and names in arrivals and departures is all that has been done or attempted heretofore by the papers of the Sound—when full memoranda of voyages, weather, destinations, cargoes, vessels to arrive, etc., etc., would have been read with interest and avidity by all commercial men. It is no idle boast that our facilities for obtaining all items of interest in the line of shipping news will be far superior to those of any other publisher on the Sound; and we do not propose to undertake the collecting and publishing of such news without doing it thoroughly. The hearty co-operation of all mill owners, stevedores, shipping agents, sea captains, and others actively engaged in commerce is invoked—and we believe will be cheerfully given. We will have a competent person employed to collect and prepare for publication, all news of the character mentioned, and will make that the leading feature of the daily. At the same time we will endeavor to keep our patrons fully informed as to prices current, local news, telegraphed items of importance, leading questions of public interest, and, in fact, everything that should find a place in the columns of a publication devoted to general news. The Argus is on a firm financial foundation, after years of labor and struggle, and we are now in a position to do for the public what we could not do before, on account of limited facilities. With these rambling introductory remarks, we will leave the matter for folks to talk over and speculate about. More anon.

The "Oregonian" and other web-foot papers do not seem to relish the thorough showing up the Columbia river bar has been getting lately at the hands of Puget Sound papers. Well, it is hardly to be expected they would submit quietly, on account of the commercial interests of Portland being at stake in the issue. No papers can be blamed for doing everything legitimately in their power to forward the interests of the community from whence they get their bread and butter—though they may be properly criticized for willfully perverting or suppressing facts to the detriment of the world's commerce. For years the attempt has been systematically continued to convince ship-owners, underwriters and commercial men generally that the Oregon white elephant was a black one—in the face of facts that have proved indeed to be "stubborn things." A tithe of the editorial skill and labor that has been squandered upon this fruitless issue by Oregon editors during the past ten years would, if it had been expended for some worthy object, have produced astounding results long ago. But all shadow of excuse for continuing this pantomime will soon be at an end. Shippers in other parts of the world are being disenchanted by actual and expensive experience, which happily the papers could not prevent. The Columbia river bar, according to the "Oregonian," is a most delightful place. Indeed, 'twere a pity that such elysian perfection could not be indefinitely preserved on paper—it looks so nice there. But the hand of fate must needs shatter the beautiful creature of such elaborate imagination. Yes, old dame Nature evidently placed that "gateway" so near Puget Sound in order that commercial men might by comparison learn to appreciate the value of the latter. Judging from the Astoria letter to the New Tacoma "Ledger," which we insert elsewhere, it would seem that somebody has the nerve and capital to set about probing this "bar" ulcer to its bottom. It is said that "figures cannot lie." The facts and figures adduced in the effort alludated to are of the kind necessary to carry conviction to every mind. It is to be hoped that such showings will be continued until the outside world can no longer be imposed upon, unless it willfully closes its eyes to the truth—which it never does where dollars and cents are involved.

THE CINCINNATI WEEKLY TIMES has for more than forty years maintained its position as the leading paper of the West. It ranks above all others in circulation, influence, and in the esteem of its readers, because it is just the kind of paper the people want. The Weekly Times covers the whole ground of a first class family journal. It is larger and better than any high priced weekly offered the public; its reading matter covers a greater scope, is more entertaining and instructive, and yet it costs
BUT ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.
 Our agents everywhere say it is the easiest paper in the field to canvass for, and readers of one year are so pleased that they are sure to renew the subscription. Eight pages—Fifty-six columns for one dollar a year, and the most liberal terms to club agents. Specimen copies free. Send for one before advertising for any paper. Address Weekly Times, 200 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, O.

THE DAILY TIMES-STAR,
 Eight pages, forty-eight columns. Only six dollars a year. $3 for six months, $1.50 for three months. Has the largest circulation of any paper in Cincinnati. Is the best advertising medium and the best paper for readers who would know of the world's doings as promptly as the news can be imparted. Address Times-Star, Cincinnati, O.

The Southern Pacific railroad has been advancing for the last few days at the rate of three miles per day. Its track is now laid 196 miles east of El Paso. Travel and traffic has largely augmented since connection was made with the Texas Pacific, and considerable travel from the southern states is noticeable. It is expected the road will be completed to New Orleans by next August. No grades of any consequence will be encountered on the remainder of the route.

At Alta, Utah, on the 13th the thermometer stood ten degrees below, and the strongest northeast gales ever experienced have prevailed. Reservoirs are frozen sufficient to permit skating, and all mining ditches frozen full, rendering them temporarily useless. Several buildings have suffered damage and Towle's railroad is blocked by fallen trees, one of which fell on a Chinaman in their employ, probably causing fatal injuries. No harm to fruit growth is yet predicted.

Dissatisfaction among workmen on the Texas Pacific railway, at a recent order from Manager Hoxie, reducing their wages to $15 a day, has culminated. At Wild Horse, 500 miles west of Dallas, the pay car being mistaken for Hoxie's private car, was side tracked by a large force of desperate men, determined to lynch Hoxie. They piled wood around the car for the purpose of roasting him and it was with great difficulty that Major Kretz, the paymaster, convinced the mob that he was not Hoxie. The paymaster, after being detained 48 hours, has been allowed to leave town.

SCIENTIFIC MISCELLANY.

Concerning the cause of London fogs, it is now suggested that they are largely due to the burning of sulphur, 200 tons of this substance being daily burned in London.

Even so inflammable a material as cotton can now be used for the construction of fireproof buildings. It is converted into a paste by chemical treatment—which becomes as hard as stone. It is molded into large slabs, and designated as architectural cotton.

An old Baptist minister enforced the necessities of differences of opinion by argument: "Now, if everybody had been of my opinion, they would all have wanted my old woman." One of the deacons who sat just behind him responded: "Yes, and if everybody was of my opinion nobody would have her."

M. Colladon has found that any tall tree may serve as a lightning conductor to protect a house, providing its roots enter damp soil. In the case, however, where the house stands between the tree and a pond of water, the shortest path for the lightning from the tree to the liquid conductor may be through the house.

A Hungarian chemist has lately shown some surprising experiments in Paris with a new light-giving substance which burns with so little heat that its flame will not set fire to a handkerchief, carpet or other fabric with which it may come in contact. A person may hold the burning liquid in his hand without injury. This new illuminating fluid is prepared from petroleum.

Prof. Porosino and Dr. Licht, who have both experimented upon the principles of transmission by telegraphic wires of the forms and colors of objects in the same way sounds are transmitted by telephone, hope to ultimately succeed in contriving an apparatus by which two persons who are separated by an ocean will be able to both see and hear each other.

Atmospheric pressure has a very decided influence upon the melting point of various substances. Under ordinary circumstances ice melts at thirty-two degrees Fahrenheit, but, in some recent experiments, Dr. Carnely is said to have heated it in a vacuum to 350 degrees before it became liquidified. At a much lower temperature the ice rapidly disappeared, however, passing directly from a solid state to that of vapor.

At the Castle of Simonetta, about 20 miles from Milan, a surprising echo is produced between the two wings of the building. The report of a pistol is repeated by this echo sixty times, and Addison, who visited the place on a somewhat foggy day, when the air was most unfavorable to the experiment, counted fifty-six repetitions. It is stated that the sound of musical instrument in this place resembles a great number playing in concert.

A watchmaker at Copenhagen is reported to have made a watch which requires no winding up, inasmuch as it performs that work itself by means of an electric current. An electro-magnet fixed inside the watch keeps the spring perpetually in a state of tension. To keep the watch in running order all that is necessary is to preserve the battery in proper working condition, for which purpose one or two inspections a year are said to suffice.

White light being the sum total of the various colors, it has been generally believed by physicists that the sensation of white light is simply the sum total of the sensations of its constituent colors. On the ground that the sensitiveness of the eye for white light may be increased—as for instance, by the previous absence of all light—without the sensitiveness for color being increased, Prof. Charpentier urges the novel theory that there is a color sense as distinct from that of light as is the sense of touch from the sense of heat.

Hydrophobia.

As to hydrophobia the following paragraph from the British Medical Journal appears to be worth attention. Dr. John Ruxton of the army medical department, was called in at Peshawar in 1874 to a boy aged five years, who had severe symptoms of hydrophobia, following one month after a bite received from a rabid bull dog. Considering the case to be hopeless, and remembering the soothing effects of Indian hemp taken by himself on one occasion for experiment, Dr. Ruxton administered five minims of the tincture of that hemp simply to relieve the child's suffering. To his surprise the child fell asleep for ten hours, and on awakening felt very drowsy and slept again for ten hours. The symptoms of hydrophobia never re-occurred, though the medicine was repeated to insure perfect relief. In an account of seven cases of hydrophobia, all fatal, Mr. F. A. Southam, assistant surgeon to Manchester Royal infirmary, gives his experience of four drugs which he employed to relieve the patient's suffering. Chloral by its sedative action on the nervous system gave most relief. Morphine was of far less use. Curare introduced a new element of danger by causing a sudden falling of the respiration without relieving the spasms. Chloroform, although without any curative action, will give a temporary cessation of the convulsions, during which interval food may be taken into the stomach.

WHO MAY BE SUFFERING FROM THE EFFECTS OF YOUTHFUL FOLLIES OR INDISCRETIONS, WILL BE PLEASED TO KNOW THAT THE GREAT GERMAN REMEDY, DR. SPINNEY'S, WILL GUARANTEE TO RESTORE TO EVERY CASE OF SEMINAL WEAKNESS OR PRIVATE DISEASE OF ANY KIND OR CHARACTER WHICH HE UNDERTAKES AND FAILS TO CURE.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN. There are many at the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with too frequent evacuations of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and a weakening of the system as a matter the patient cannot account for. On examining the urinary deposits aropy sediment will often be found, and sometimes small particles of albumen will appear. The color will be of a thin milky hue, again changing to a dark and torpid appearance. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of Seminal Weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

A Back-Handed Speller.

Santa Fe has a young man with a mind which has a faculty which is rarely to be found, if, indeed, it can ever be discovered elsewhere. The gentleman in question is Hugh McKeivitt, a printer, working over at Military Headquarters. He is a rapid type setter and a thorough good workman, so that he is not dependent on any side business for a good living, and as a consequence has never said anything about his spelling capacity, which is the subject of this item. McKeivitt is a back-handed speller, and defies any one to put at him a word which he cannot spell backward as rapidly as the best and quickest speller could give it in the usual way. The other day the reporter fell in with him when he was in a mood more communicative than usual and had occasion to try him. Incomprehensibility was not a marker for him. As soon as the word was pronounced Mac said, "Fifteen letters," and went at it backward so fast that his hearers were unable to tell whether he was right or wrong. "You see," said a fellow-printer, "he can tell the number of letters in any word without a moment's hesitation, as well as he can spell it backward, and not only that, but you can give him a whole sentence, and he will tell you at once how many letters there are in it, and go right and spell through the whole thing backward faster than most people could spell it the other way." This thing was tried time and time again, and no word or series of words could be hit upon which were not rendered as indicated above. Of course, there are words in the English language which McKeivitt has never heard of, just as is the case with almost every man, but he is what would be called a fine speller, "right-handed," as he says, and is familiar with the language, and any word which he has heard and can spell at all he can spell backward with astonishing rapidity. The strangest part about the whole thing is that McKeivitt has never practiced or studied spelling backward a day in his life. He says he does not know how he ever acquired the ability to do it, but that as soon as he sees or hears a word, even if he has never thought of it before, which, of course, is the case with a large majority of words, he knows immediately how many letters there are in it and how to spell it backward or in the regular way. It is so, too, with sentences. He knows at once how many words and letters in any sentence that may be suggested, and states the numbers promptly as soon as the words are uttered. McKeivitt can also distribute type backward as fast as forward. In the left-handed spelling there is no theory of sound to aid him, as in very many instances the letters spell nothing at all and cannot be pronounced, so that there is no accounting for his ability to spell in that way, except to conclude that it is the result of a gift—a peculiar faculty of a remarkably quick mind. There is no particular advantage in all this, as far as it can be discovered, but it is a curiosity, and a rare one, and if anybody thinks it isn't hard to do, let him try to acquire it.—[Santa Fe New Mexican.

It was a Man

Some time ago—never mind where—two sprightly and beautiful young ladies were visiting their cousin, another sprightly and beautiful young lady, who, like her guests, was of that happy age that turns everything into fun. All three were fond of practical jokes, and were constantly playing all sorts of pranks with each other. All three occupied a room on the ground floor.

Two of the young ladies attended a party on a certain fatal night, and did not get home until half past eleven o'clock. As it was late, they concluded not to disturb the household, so they quietly stepped into their room through the low, open window.

But it seems that about half an hour after they had left for the party, a young Methodist minister called at the house where they were staying, and craved a night's lodging, which of course was granted. As ministers always have the best of everything, the old lady put him to sleep in the best room, and the young lady (Fannie) who had not gone to the party, was intrusted with the duty of sitting up for the absent ones, and of informing them of the change of rooms. She took up her post in the parlor. But Alas! sleep overcame her, and she departed on an excursion to the land of dreams.

We will now return to the young ladies who had gone to their room through the window. By the dim light of the moonbeams, as they struggled through the curtains, the young ladies were enabled to descry the outlines of Fannie (as they supposed) ensconced in the middle of the bed. The truth flashed upon them at once. They saw it all. Fannie had set the boots in the room to give them a good scare.

They put their heads together, and determined to turn the tables on her. Silently they disrobed, and stealthily as cats they took up their positions on each side of the bed. At a given signal they both jumped into the bed, one on each side of the unconscious parson, laughing and screaming, "Oh, what a man! Oh, what a man!" They gave the poor, bewildered minister such a promiscuous hugging and tussling as few parsons are able to brag of.

The noise of the proceeding awoke the old lady, who was sleeping in an adjoining room. She comprehended the situation in a moment, and, rushing to the room, she opened the door and exclaimed:

"Gracious sakes, gals, it is a man, it is a man, sure enough!"

There was one prolonged, consolidated scream, a flash of muslin through the door, and all was over.

The best of the joke is that the minister took the whole thing in earnest. He would listen to no apologies the old lady would make for the girls. He would hear no excuse, but solemnly folded his official robes about him, and silently stole away. Query—whom was he mad at?

Roadside Nights in Palestine.

"Sunset" Cox writes from Jerusalem concerning his ride thither from Jaffa. The old maritime plain of the Philistines (which is another name for Palestine) lay along this coast, and it was considered a land worth struggles. This Joshua found. But in vain do we look for the "roses of Sharon and the lillies that grow" in this land so renowned once for its roseate beauty. Still, we are told that in the vernal season it is carpeted like a Texas prairie with flowers of varied hue and loveliness. Along the dusty afternoon road we pass innumerable caravans of camels, led by Arabs on donkeys. The Arab generally sits on the remote point of the coccygis of the animal and without stirrups. He swings his bare, brown feet and legs, while the little beast trots along. Plenty of women, with faces here apparent, in long, blue, cheap, cotton mantles, and sometimes with head crowned with burdens of fruit, pitchers, straw or wood, in the way. Some ruins, mostly of churches, here and there appear, while square, windowless, Turkish guard houses are seen at intervals, at whose doors are the white dressed, fez capped Turkish soldiers with guns and cigarettes. These are the police who are supposed to guard the road; but to our observation no guard is needed, except in the dark mountain passes, and there Turkish engineering has been careful to have as few guard houses as possible.

There is not much to see on the road until you come to Ramleh. Beggars and backshish, and some old relics as crusading reminders are here, and one very conspicuous object. The latter is a square tower and winding staircase. It is off the road, and has a fine view of the surrounding country. It is over 1000 years old, and has many Moslem associations. Ramleh has been the scene of much contest. Indeed, every little spot here in Judea is full of memories, from the time Israel came down from the Moab Mountains into the Jordan Valley. The road is not to be mentioned for its convenience and perfection, only for its historic, religious and aesthetic interest. It was built in 1369, by forced labor, and indeed its rough and stony incompleteness looks like anything but the result of cheerful work. It is supported by tolls, so much per head, on every animal on the road. One should not complain of the road when it is remembered that before 1869 there was not a bridle-path to Jerusalem. It is said that the Sultan promised the Empress Eugenie to build a road to Jerusalem if she would come that way, and this royal courtesy is the origin of the road.

Shrewd Sharpers' Game.

One day recently a gentleman in business in Wall street, New York, received a note from his wife informing him that she had invited a few friends to dine with her at Delmonico's, and desiring him to put in on appearance with money to pay the bill. The information came after bank hours, and as the gentleman had not the money on hand, he drew a check for $175 and got a neighbor to cash it. Hastily jamming the roll of bills in his left vest pocket, he got into a stage bound up town. Somewhere in the neighborhood of Houston street a man sitting next to him suddenly exclaimed, "I'm robbed," and halted an officer. At the same moment a man sitting on the other side of our Wall street friend added: "Yes! and here is the man who robbed you. I saw him take the money. It is in his left side vest pocket." The officer had arrived, and the first conspirator charged the Wall street man with robbery, describing the sum as $175, and indicating the size of most of the bills. The officer asked the victim for the contents of the pocket, and, sure enough, it was $175 in bills, as described. All the parties got out of the stage and went toward police headquarters, but on the way the man who claimed the money urged the officer to give it to him, taking what he pleased for his trouble, as he (the claimant) had a pressing engagement, and as the person who had robbed him appeared to be a gentleman he did not care to appear against him. Here the officer scented the rat, and replied that as they were so near headquarters he would keep the money for the disposal of the superintendent. Coming to the next corner the claimant again urged his pressing engagement, in fact, he said it was so pressing that he must wait until the next day for the money, and he then disappeared. The reader will anticipate that the confederate also had a pressing engagement, and skipped out. On arrival at headquarters the gentleman from Wall street was recognized, and his money was restored. One or both of the rascals had spotted him, seen him get the money, noted the size of the bills and where he put them, and they tried the robbery dodge in the hope that a liberal "divide" with the officer would bring them successfully off.

THE VACANT CHAIR.—In not a few families Christmas will be shaded by memories of the dead. The yearly meeting will not be lighted by one sunbeam. There will be an unoccupied seat at the table, for a beloved child has not returned home. Few will be the words spoken. But amid the hallowed mirth eyes will moisten as they fall upon the vacant chair. It tells that another link has been broken—perhaps the first in the family circle.

A Fish Story.

There are certain childish instincts that never wear out from the nature of a healthy man. Only a man utterly heartless—a man totally unmanly—can be without childish feelings. And the love of the marvelous is one of them. Suppose it were to be published, on the morrow—and by authority not to be questioned—a publication avouched for by the leading divines and scientists of our city—that the veritable cup which Joseph commanded his steward to hide in the mouth of Benjamin's sack, was to be exhibited at such a time and in such a place. How many staid and sober men would hurry up to see it? They would behold but an ancient silver cup, perhaps, blackened and battered, and sadly defaced; like unto any old cup that has been through the wars, and seen much service. Yet, how men would gape at it. But never mind—the picture is before you, and you can all see it. Though but a silver cup, it would be an object of wonderful interest.

Well a few days since I saw a picture of a ring—a large signet-ring, a red cornelian, cut in Roman antique—in a heavy gold setting. And it had a story as follows:

Sir Francis Anderson was Mayor of Newcastle in 1559. One day, while standing on the bridge, idly looking off upon the shipping in the distance, his heavy seal-ring accidentally dropped from his finger, and fell into the river. As we may suppose, he bid a regretful adieu to his signet, very sure he should never see it again.

This was in the month of April. Early in the month of September next following, Sir Francis' steward brought him home a fine fish, upon opening which, lo and behold! a signet-ring was found firmly imbedded in the tissues of its alimentary. The steward was not anatomist enough to tell exactly where he had found it, only, from his account, it was evident that the ring had been swallowed five months before, and had reached a certain point and there stopped.

However,—it was Sir Francis' own ring,—very probably erugnt by the fish as it fell from the wearer's hand, and thus restored to its original owner.

Two hundred years later a Mr. Brand saw the ring in possession of a descendant of Sir Francis and took a faithful drawing of it; and a hundred years later still, George Hepworth came across the drawing of Mr. Brand and made a copy of that; and it was Hepworth's copy of a copy that I saw; and yet the interest was not all gone.

"Halt-Fellow-Well-Met" Girl.

The most superficial observer of the manner and customs that obtain in society, cannot fail to find perpetual proof of the aphorism, "The price we challenge ourselves is given us." In no particular is this more noticeable than in the demeanor of young girls toward members of the opposite sex. There is being developed in certain quarters a species of good-comradeship between young men and maidens, which, however productive of "jolly good times," hardly commends itself to those who regard modesty, delicacy and dignity as indispensable attributes of true womanliness. It fosters a tendency to loudness in girls, without exerting any softening or refining influence on the man. He regards the sharer of his experiences and adventures as a "very good sort of fellow," who neither exacts nor expects the little services to which women are usually considered entitled, and before whom he can with impunity smoke and lounge, and otherwise transgress the proprieties which should regulate special intercourse. There are those who aver that these comrades really smoke together and chat, aping the customs in vogue in foreign society. They will shortly invade our drawing-rooms in tea gowns and smoking jackets, bringing with them the easy manners—suggestive of dressing gowns and slippers—which prevail in social gatherings at English country seats. In spite of the abolition of the restraints of the old-time courtesy, the young men are not apparently very greatly inclined to seek the society of the maidens who are so very, very gracious, and whose amiability is proof against any amount of snubbing in the way of "declined" invitations to act as escort or accept hospitalities. So far from seeking her society rumor has it that more and more does the young man shun the ball, the reception, and, most pitious of all, a matrimonial alliance. As this vigorous paying of court to men, and the working out of the "comrade" idea, seem to have been barren of desirable results—serving only to develop in men a contempt for women, which betrays itself in the disrespectful tone men employ in their intercourse with the "dear fellows" in bonnets—it might perhaps be advisable for girls to challenge for themselves a higher price, bearing in mind that men in their sentimental experiences, lightly hold that which is easily won.

Caught Up.

The latest pleasant gag is here introduced for the first time. Jones who is driving an omnibus up street, overtakes Brown, who is walking, and he sings out: "Hold up." "What's up?" "Going up?" "Far up." "Pretty well up." "I'll go up." "Up?" "Yes I'm up." "Git up"—and he drives on.—[Detroit Press.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF JEFFERSON CO
FRIDAY, JANUARY 27, 1882.

HUMAN! Saturday last the stockholders of the Port Townsend Saw Mill Co., held a meeting at which the contract for building the mill was let to Mr. Geo. W. Bullene, of Seattle. The mill is to be 226 feet long, and is to cut 30,000 feet of lumber every ten hours. It is to be ready for work by July 12th next—so there will doubtless be some lively work done in the building. Plans and specifications, even to the minutest detail, are the basis of the contract. The contract price is to be about $21,000, more or less, according as two or three minor details are decided upon by the company hereafter. The mill will be located on Point Hood-on, using the lagoon outside the breakwater in which to hold logs. Mr. Bullene is a thoroughly reliable, practical man, who may be relied upon to turn out no shoddy work. The mill will have a powerful engine with three large boilers, and all the machinery will be new and of lately approved patterns. This is the first substantial business start that Port Townsend has ever had—unless we take into account the iron works at the head of the bay—and our citizens may throw up their hats in congratulation over the event. This is assured the success of an enterprise which a few old crackers insisted would end in a blank. Set in motion by the impetus resulting from this industry, our thriving little town ought to continue to grow until the shores of our beautiful little bay are lined with the smoke-stacks of manufacturing industries of all kinds. Let them come. We cannot have too many.

IMPROVED ORDER OF RED MEN.

This benevolent Order which, in the United States and California, is very numerous, has within a recent period added a Beneficiary fund in the form of Life Insurance for its members, on the same principle as those of the United Order of Workmen. The rules will admit of persons 55 years of age joining the Order and being admitted to the benefits of this new Insurance Fund, which is under the sole charge of the Grand Council I. O. R. M., of the United States.

All old members in good standing no matter what their age, can be participants in this fund if they desire. This new feature in this excellent order is already attracting much attention, and in California large accessions of new members are reported. In this Territory there is but one Lodge, the Chemakum Tribe No. 1, the officers of which for the ensuing year, are Jas. G. Swan, Sachem, George Schaeffer, Sen. Sagamore, J. S. Woodley, Jun. Sagamore, George Barthrop, Chief of Records, J. P. Peterson, Keeper of Wampum, J. C. Appleton, Prophet, James G. Swan is Senior Past Sachem of the Order in this Territory, and John C. Appleton is Vice Inchoonee, or executive officer of the Grand Council of the United States for Washington Territory.

The Chemakum Tribe No. 1, meet on the second and fourth Tuesday of each month in Red Men's Hall, Barthrop's building.

Messrs. R. W. deLion and Chas. A. Enell, stevedores, have quit their opposition and "pooled their issues," so to speak. The new firm is "Chas. A. Enell & Co."

DIED.—On the 20th inst., near Dungeness, Mr. G. B. Hotchkiss, aged about 55 years. Mr. H. was an old and highly respected citizen.

Lafayette Lodge of Perfection No. 3, A. S. R. A meeting will be held by Lafayette Lodge No. 2, A. & A. R. on Wednesday evening, February 1st, 1882. All brethren are invited to attend. By order of the senior master, D. C. H. ROTHSCHILD.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The Vigon cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair,
The Vigon is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

Forty years experience has stamped public approval on Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, as the most reliable of all remedies for Throat or Lung disease. Its continued and increased popularity is conclusive evidence of its superior curative qualities.

It is said that Lieut. Bioudi, of the U. S. Rev. Cutter Wolcott, has resigned his commission, on account of some difficulty with Capt. Stodder, of the same vessel. This is to be regretted if true. Mr. Bioudi had sustained the position of First Lieutenant, and is an able officer.

DIED.—From Mr. J. Ellison Ebey, of Ebey's Landing, Island Co., we receive the following item: "Goidy Coikett, an old and much respected citizen of the Island, died while on the beach near this place to-day (22d). His brother-in-law, John P. Engle, had left him but a few minutes in apparent usual health. Deceased was aged near 57 years of age.

MAJOR Jas. P. Canby, paymaster, U. S. A., came over from Portland last week on an official visit to Fort Townsend. His brother, Mr. E. L. Canby, was with him, and visited Irondale during their stay here. The younger Canby is a stockholder in the iron company, and has an interest in developing this section of country.

ACCIDENT.—Last Saturday night, as Mr. Bonestein, the barkeeper at the Central, was closing up, he accidentally fell from the back stairs—a distance of about twenty feet. For some minutes he lay as if dead. Finally he revived through the use of restoratives and was taken home. He is recovering slowly—no bones being broken—but the fall was a terrible one, and the only wonder is that it did not kill him outright.

The first day of January, the twenty-second of February, the fourth day of December, Good Friday and the thirtieth day of May, also any day that the President of the United States or Governor of a state designate as a day of fasting or thanksgiving, are legal holidays. The law provides that whenever New Year's Day, Christmas, Washington's Birthday, or the Fourth of July, occur on Sunday, the following day, Monday, shall be deemed and declared a public holiday. The provision is different on Decoration Day, as to which the law provides that when the thirtieth day of May falls on the first day of the week, the day preceding it shall be a holiday.

THE City Marshal, in compliance with an order made by the municipal Council at its last meeting, has torn up the rickety old sidewalk on the north side of Water Street along the front of Mrs. Fowler's property. The property owners along that portion of the street, with this one exception, we believe, have provided lumber wherewith to lay a new and much needed sidewalk clear to the end of the street—and are anxious to do so whenever it can be completed the whole length. It is the plea, we learn, of Mrs. Fowler's attorney, that she is a "poor widow lady, and unable to build a new sidewalk along her property front." For the widow of a gentleman who left an estate valued away up among the thousands, and who is known to be extremely economical, this plea is thinner than veneering. But aside from this, it is unjust to the city, to public convenience, and to the owners of adjacent property, to thus retard or prevent needed improvements just because one property owner "feels too poor to undertake her share of the expense." In other towns, people do not wait the pleasure of every one—but elect to lay sidewalk of uniform width and strength along any street whenever a majority of the property holders thereon desire it. The property itself is good for all taxes necessary for such improvement, and can be held for the same irrespective of the feelings of the owner. We hope to see no more nonsense about this matter. Let the city council order the work done.

A MISTAKE.—The report that Capt. Thornton and his assistant, Crawford, of the wrecked schooner Orcas, were drowned is a mistake. They appeared alive and well on the Dispatch Sunday evening. It seems that the schooner was running for the San Juan channel, under a smart breeze, being loaded with five brick, and when nearly off the western point of Long Island, near Lopez, the captain had gone below to take a rest leaving Crawford to manage the vessel; the latter not being well enough acquainted with the locality, ran too near the point of the island and the schooner struck a sunken rock. The two men managed after a hard struggle to clamber up the side of the rocks that there run down to the water's edge, and the P. C. S. S. Co's steamer Eureka, bound for McCurdy's lime kiln, to load for Portland, happened along soon after and took them on board taking them to the lime kiln. The vessel that brought the news here passed a few hours after, and seeing the Orcas sunk, her masts sticking out of the water, and finding no person near, concluded that the hardy (2) marines must be lost.

Mr. Curtis, of the firm of Paxton & Curtis, of San Francisco, arrived here last week and went at once to Irondale to inspect the furnace there and the iron beds of Chimacum valley. He went this week to Texada, accompanied by Mr. Blanchard, the Secretary of the company. Mr. Curtis is a member of a wealthy banking firm, and is one of the moneyed stockholders in the P. S. Iron Co. He is anxious to acquaint himself thoroughly with the location and prospect of the company's works. A lot of fire brick for the new interior of the furnace is on its way from England, and is expected here soon. It is expected that the company will soon employ a practical furnace man from Lake Superior, accustomed to working magnetic ores, and will reduce the workings of their smelting works here to a scientific basis. Mr. D. W. Moor, superintendent of the works, left here the first of the present month for San Francisco, visiting the Oswego works on his way down. He reports the interior iron works a failure, on account of the great cost of charcoal.

"STANDARD": "It seems that we are to have a practical exemplification of the claim that women are competent to manage the varied details of active business life. Miss Mary Shelton, who after graduating, from a printing office, spent several years as a book canvasser, has formed a partnership with her brother, Buck Shelton, and bought out the established business of Mr. N. Crosby, who proposes retiring for a while to recruit up his health. There is scarcely any doubt among the friends of Miss Shelton, but that she will make a success of her new venture, and secure no sma share of the loca trade." Miss Shelton and her brother were among our warm friends from the time we first met them in Olympia, and we are glad to hear of their upward course in business.

For Christmas Toys and Fancy Goods, go to JNO. OGBLEE.

On the 19th inst. the bark Harvest Home, Capt. Matson, bound from San Francisco to Seattle, ran ashore ten miles north of the Columbia river. A defective chronometer caused the disaster, as at noon the day previous it showed them to be 325 miles from Cape Flattery bearing northeast half north. The cargo (200 tons of mds) is damaged. The crew were all saved, but the vessel will probably prove a total loss.

NEWS ITEMS.

On the 14th inst., Dr. Francis B. H. Wing, health officer of New Tacoma died in his bed in that city, from heart disease. Dr. Wing was a physician of high standing and greatly respected in the community where he lived. He was buried under the auspices of the Masonic order.

A STEAMER named Cheballis has just been launched at Astoria, designed for the Shoalwater Bay Transportation company, and is now having her machinery put in by the Portland iron works. She is a stern-wheeler, 95 feet long and 150 tons register. Her timbers and planking are of fir and her house of cedar. Altogether, she is expected to fully meet the demands for a boat in the trade for which she is intended.

Mr. Thos. F. Oakes, Vice President of the Northern Pacific Railroad, estimates the earnings of the company during the year ending June 30, 1883, at $6,100,000, and during the year following at $7,997,500. Of the latter amount Oregon and Washington are expected to yield $1,262,500—$400,000 from the transportation of coal at $2 per ton; $500,000 from wheat, at $5 a ton, and the remainder from live stock shipments. The rate of $5 per ton is named by Mr. Oakes as the one rate to the Pacific Ocean. Nothing is said about a rate to Portland, a rate to Tacoma, a rate to Seattle, or an average rate, but it will be one rate, the inference is, to the three places alike.

under glass. There was the the tiff so a with the back cushion like a slice of a fluted column; there were the six chairs to match, and the claw-footed sideboard. There had been no children to break or scratch things. All was the same as when he left it last, and saw Miss Carney standing in the middle of the floor with her long black hair in curls about her shoulders, and a blue ribbon around her taper waist. Now he looked at her, and she was old and stout but somehow she seemed to be nobody else but Prissy Carney.

COME TOGETHER AT LAST.

Miss Carney walked up the long green lawn as her way home from a tea party. She wore a brown silk dress and a brown hat, and carried a large brown parasol in her hand. The lawn was of different shades, and two softly into each other like the tints upon a dove. All lines of her figure were smooth and rounded.

She was a very pretty old lady, indeed, and must have been a very pretty girl, though she was a spinster; and people who believed that all unmarried women were left upon the bough of single blessedness because they tempted no one to pluck them, must have owned that it was not so in her case.

Down her lawn, coming toward her, walked a gentleman. He was tall and stout, his hair was gray, and his hat was gray, and his summer coat was gray; his waist was gray also. He, oddly enough, was dressed of into another kind of gray. The green trees were all about them, the green grass beneath their feet, the green grass under the fence.

There had been two young people named of two old people, one might have guessed it a lover's rendezvous; but they were old. Of course there could be no romance about them.

In the middle of the lawn, shaded by great old trees, stood an old house. There was an old-fashioned sweep in the well. It was altogether a thing of the past—no modern cottage of architectural systems. It was as old-fashioned that it must have been the same when those two people were young. Yes, when their parents were here, doubtless it stood, by a woman's new house, just as it stood now.

The pretty old lady in brown reached the gate of this house first. She lifted the latch and stood looking down the road, thinking it must be that the handsome old gentleman in gray had lost his way and would inquire of her, for the law was so thoroughfare because of a fence and gate and a sign with "All persons are invited to trespass upon these grounds," nailed upon it. The old lady's father had put up the sign the day after the peddler had stolen all his goods. No neighbor minded it, but she minded it. So the old lady waited to see the stranger that he might take the short cut through the orchard if he chose.

"He walks like somebody I know. Who is it?" she asked herself. She then suddenly blushed and looked nervous than ever. Yes, certainly it could not be because nobody had dared to pluck her that she remained a maid now upon the bench—Miss Carney instead of Mrs. anybody.

As she came the old gentleman in his gray coat, and as he looked at the little old lady he looked like gray hair.

"Nelson," he said, "this is where Mr. Edward Carney used to live, I know. How do you like him now?"

"He is the best looking man I ever saw," she said, "and he is the best looking man I ever saw." "He is the best looking man I ever saw," she said, "and he is the best looking man I ever saw." "He is the best looking man I ever saw," she said, "and he is the best looking man I ever saw."

"But one day," proceeded the old gentleman, "one day there came to him out of the past an old familiar face, and amidst the whirl of the great city this ghost talked to it of the green lanes and rippling streams of the spot where he was born, and asked of the house under the oaks and the girl who dwelt there once. And this old friend told him something that made him feel suddenly that he might come to life again. 'She never married,' she said—it was a woman. 'She lives in the old house now. Other men loved her, but she never loved any other man than you. We all know that.' And then the ghost said to himself, 'Forty years of life lost,' and went down to the green country place to haunt his old love, and hear her say she was sorry to see him."

"Oh dear, oh dear," sighed the little old lady in brown. "How could she help it? All her beauty gone, all her youth; what could she feel but sorry, and just a ghost herself?"

She arose and turned away. He arose and followed her, putting his arm about her waist.

"Prissy," he said, "you are the only woman I ever loved. Is not that something for a man to say, when it is true as gospel?"

"Yes," said she; "and I almost believe you—for I never cared for any one else, either."

"Then why not do our best to be happy, now, Prissy? Why not marry each other and be living again, not two poor old ghosts?"

"Well, because folks would call us two old fools," she said.

"Well, let them," he said.

"Very well," she replied, "I don't care."

Then the old gentleman in gray kissed the old lady in brown, and said:

"What day shall we set, my dear?"

What her answer was may be guessed, when the village bells, one month later, rang the wedding peal of the old lovers.

Virtue vs. Intellect.

Once upon a time there was a Bad boy whose Name was Reginald and there was a Good boy whose Name was James. Reginald would go fishing when his Mamma told him Not to and he Cut off the Cat's Tail one Day with the Bread Knife and then told Mamma the Baby had Driven it in with the Rolling Pin which was a lie. James was always Obedient when his Mamma told him Not to Help an old Man across the street or Go into a Dark Room where the Boogies were, he always did What she said. That is why they Called him Good James. Well, by and by, along Came Christmas. Mamma said, you have been so Bad, my son Reginald, you will not Get any presents from Santa Claus this Year; but you, my Son James, will get Loads of presents, because you have been Good. Will you believe it, Children, That Bad Boy Reginald said he Didn't care a Darn and he Kicked Three Feet of Veneering off the Piano just for Meanness. Poor James was so Sorry for Reginald that he Cried for Half an hour after he Went to Bed that Night. Reginald lay Wide-awake until he Saw James was Asleep and then he Said, If these people can fool me, They are Mistaken. Just then Santa Claus came down the Chimney. He had Lots of Pretty Toys in a sack on his Back. Reginald shut his Eyes and Pretended to be Asleep. Then Santa Claus Said, Reginald is Bad and I will not Put any nice Things in his Stocking. But as for you, James, I will Fill your Stocking Plumb full of Toys, because You are Good. So Santa Claus went to Work and put, oh! Heaps and Heaps of Goodies in James's stocking but not a sign of a thing in Reginald's stocking. And then he laughed to himself and Said, I guess Reginald will be Sorry to-morrow because he was so Bad. As he said this he Crawled up the chimney and rode off in his Sleigh. Now you can Bet your Boots Reginald was no Spring Chicken. He just Got right Straight out of Bed and changed all those Toys and Truck from James's stocking into his Own. Santa Claus will Have to Sit up all Night, said He, when he Expects to get away with my Baggage. The next morning James got out of bed, and when He had Said his Prayers he Limped over to his Stockings, licking his Chops and Carrying His Head as High as a Ball going through a Brush Fence. But when he Found there was Nothing in his Stockings, and that Reginald's Stocking was as Full as Papa is when he comes home from the Office late and Sat down on the Floor and began to Wonder why on Earth he had Been such a Good Boy. Reginald spent a happy Christmas and James was very Miserable. After all, Children, it Pays to be Bad, so Long as you Combine Intellect with Crime.—Denver Primer.

First Newspaper in America.—The first newspaper in North America was printed in Boston in 1690. Only one copy of that paper was known to be in existence. It was deposited in the State paper office in London, and is about the size of an ordinary sheet of letter paper. It was stopped by the government. The "Boston News Letter" was the first regular paper. It was issued in 1704, and was printed by John Allen, Pudding lane. The contents of some of the early numbers are very peculiar. It was a speech of Queen Anne to Parliament, delivered 120 days previously, and this was the latest news from England.

Mrs. Irwin, a sister of Mrs. Rowena Webster, both noted beauties of Alabama, died recently at Huntsville. She was known as the "Southern Florence Nightingale." During the Civil War she had hospitals wherever the army of the Tennessee could be reached, and after the war she established an asylum for the orphans of Confederate soldiers.

HOSPITAL
Port Townsend, W. T.
The above institution having been presented a permanent footing, as the United States Hospital for Marine Patients, on Puget Sound, the Proprietor takes pleasure in announcing that no patient's expense will be spared in maintaining the comfort and convenience of private patients.
This is the largest General Hospital north of San Francisco, and by far the most complete in equipment. It has been thoroughly refitted and refurnished. Its general wards have accommodations for about one hundred patients and are peculiarly adapted for cases requiring the most careful treatment and constant supervision at limited expense. Those who desire entirely separate and distinct, at a slight additional cost.
The attention of Mill owners, and those interested in shipping, is called to the fact that seamen suffering from contagious diseases will be treated outside the Hospital without expense to the vessel.

TAKING TESTIMONY.

THE PROPRIETOR'S PAIN.

A Matter of Vital Importance to Every Household.

A gentleman connected with the San Francisco press, who has a more than usual desire to inform himself on current events and to become acquainted with every fact of importance, has had considerable experience of late in ascertaining the real standing of a certain article which is being prominently placed before our people by means of the press and otherwise. He made diligent inquiry. Neither rich nor poor have escaped his researches, and he is compelled, even against his inclination, to acknowledge the popularity of the preparation in question, and that the demand, at present great, is growing steadily. In the course of his rambles he dropped in at the Selby Smelting and Lead Works at North Beach, where he had a chat with Mr. Layne, the Superintendent. The gentleman remarked: "I recently had occasion to give St. Jacob's Oil a thorough trial. I had bruised myself badly in the chest, and the great German Remedy was applied with the most happy result," said Mr. Layne, "and furthermore I have cured my horse of a sprained ankle by the same oil." The reporter made a mental memorandum of the case, and when he saw W. T. Wenzell, the pharmaceutical chemist, corner of Market and Stockton streets, he also asked him his opinion of the great German remedy. "Oh," said Mr. Wenzell, "the sooner and more thoroughly the public know all about this St. Jacob's Oil the better. I think they are learning its merits rapidly, for it is the best selling article I have in stock. It is safe to say, judging from my customers' report, it is an admirable thing for rheumatic pains and all kinds of aches." James H. Gates, at the corner of New Montgomery and Howard streets, is another druggist of reputation who was consulted in regard to the remedy, its uses and its popularity. He put his opinion into words with great promptness and dispatch. "You can tell your readers," said he, "that St. Jacob's Oil has had big success with me. I am selling it right along, and my customers are high in their praise of it as safe and efficacious in cases of rheumatism and pains of all kinds." Thanking Mr. Gates for the information, our searcher after facts called in at the popular German drugstore of Messrs. Hertzog & Schultze, corner of Third and Everett streets, and were told by them that their customers spoke very highly of the oil as a cure for all pains. "The best proof of its popularity," continued Messrs. H & S., "is the almost incessant demand. It is selling like hot cakes, and we have to order supplies almost daily. I think," the druggists added, "to the information gatherer, 'you had better go down among the workshops to get bed-ridden facts as to the reputation of the great German remedy.' Agreeing this was a good idea, our indefatigable truth seeker wended his way towards Mission, Beale, Fremont and Main streets. His first encounter was with Mr. C. C. Gilmore, foreman of the extensive mill and box factory of Hobbs, Wall & Co., Beale and Union streets. Mr. Gilmore cheerfully testified to the efficiency of St. Jacob's Oil in cases that had come under his own observation. "I consider it the best medicine in the world for rheumatism," he said; "one friend of mine was cured of a severe case by its use, and another recovered from a lame back after applying the oil a few times. You can get plenty of facts of the same kind in this neighborhood." Mr. C. S. Biglow, one of the proprietors of the Western Iron Works, 316 and 318 Mission street, between Fremont and Beale, was even warmer in his praises of St. Jacob's Oil than Mr. Gilmore. To use his own words, he considered it "the boss medicine for rheumatism," for he himself had been cured of a severe case by its use. Pursuing his inquiries the gatherer of facts entered the Mechanics' Mill, at the corner of Mission and Fremont streets, owned by Wells, Russell & Co., where he was introduced to Mr. John Welch, the foreman. "Have you had any experience," he asked, "of this St. Jacob's Oil, or observed whether the men in the shop use it as a remedy in case of accidents or for pains?" "I believe they use nothing but this Oil," replied Mr. Welch. "One of the hands employed in the mills jammed his foot badly not long ago, and in a short time, after applying the Oil thoroughly, he was entirely cured. Had it not been for the Great German Remedy he would have been laid up for a week. In my opinion there is no article under the sun equal to St. Jacob's Oil for the purpose it is designed." Being pretty well satisfied, by these inquiries, of the value of the Great German Remedy and universality of its use, the gentleman of the press had concluded to seek no further; but it was suggested to him that the Fulton Iron Works, the important establishment of Binckley, Spiers & Hayes, on Fremont street, might contribute to his stock of information, and he bent his way thither. He found the proprietor in, and their testimony was most conclusive. "St. Jacob's Oil," they said, "is an indispensable article in our works. The hands employed say they cannot do without it. They have used the remedy for sprains, bruises, burns, cuts and all kinds of hurts and accidents and it has never failed to cure. It is an article that is worth the highest recommendations."

Conscience-Stricken Animal.

The moral responsibility of some animals seems less doubtful than that of "intermittent lunatics." If it should be the duty of a public attorney of the future to prosecute a homicidal monkey, the following case (quoted in Brehm's "Thierleben") would furnish an ugly precedent against the counsel for the defense: A few years ago Dr. Schomburg, the superintendent of the Botanic Garden, of Adelaide, Australia, took charge of a select corps of monkeys and kangaroos, a "happy family" he might have called them, if it had not been for the depravity of an old babuina, or female Blunder baboon. If she had not been the only representative of her species, he would have tried to get rid of her, for her only object in life seemed to be to make herself as very disagreeable. Solitary confinement made her wildly obstreperous, but in the family cage she kept the marsupials in a delirium of terror, and in the evening, when her younger relatives ventured to enter the sleeping-box, she seemed to consider herself divinely ordained to remove them by force. But one day she attacked her keeper, and without any apparent provocation lacerated his wrist in a shocking way. Schomburg at once ordered her to be shot. The next morning the assistant keeper approached her cage with a shot gun, which had often been used to shoot the rats that infested the menagerie building. The other monkeys seemed to expect another razzia, but the Blunder knew better. When she saw the gun she made a dash into the sleeping-cage, and when the keeper tried to open the door she yelled as if she hoped to get off on a plea of insanity. Meaning to try her, the keeper waited until breakfast-time, but the babuina did not show herself. She kept out of sight a full hour, till the mess-boy brought an extra lunch of sliced pumpkins, when she made a rush for the bucket in hopes of securing a portable piece. In that moment the keeper bolted the door of her sleeping-cage; and went back for his shotgun. As soon as the babuina caught sight of him she flew towards her place of refuge, and, finding the door locked, made a mad attempt to squeeze herself through the interspaces of the front railing. But the bars proved inflexible, and, after another desperate pull at the sleeping-cage door, the babuina flung herself into a corner, closed her eyes, and was apparently dead with fear before the buck-shot struck her.

THE GOLD MEDAL GALLERY.

A person walking hurriedly down First Street with his whole mind intent on business, would hardly notice the many brilliant displays made on either side, but with plenty of leisure upon one's hands how great the variety, how much to see and admire, especially in this case at the entrance to 167 and 169. One cannot but stop and admire the beautiful specimens of graphic art that fill the cases on either side of the hall, consisting of Cards, Cabinets, Panels, Boudoirs, Imperialia, Views, Croquis, etc. Having partially satisfied your mind, curiosity will impel you to go further, and admiring the stanzas you stand before the door with the modest sign, Frank G. Abell, Photographer, and two little words which please you more, for they are terms of hospitality and good nature—Walk in. Taking advantage of the invitation, generally extended to all, you open the door when a perfect outburst of beauty breaks upon the vision. Massive frames in gold, ebony, marquise, carved and gilt, filled with beautiful specimens of the "art preservative" line the walls from floor to ceiling. Look and admire to your heart's content and if perchance you wish to make a sitting the amiable wife of the proprietor will show and explain to you the different things. Make your selection, then step into the dressing room (a ladies' boudoir of itself), from there to the operating room and it is done. No it is not done, you cannot get your picture for a week or ten days to come. Your negative must go through the hands of the retoucher, the printer and his assistants, and then since the close of the state fair these parlors have been so crowded and yet many additions have been made to the working force of the establishment. Still the work accumulates, and you will have to wait a few days on this account for the finished work. Never mind; time flies swiftly; it is now done, and as you view the finely finished and artistic work, you will be but one of thousands made happy by visiting the photographic parlors of Frank G. Abell, 167 and 169 First street.—Portland Sunday Oregonian.

OREGON TO MASSACHUSETTS.

Some time ago Messrs. Hodge, Davis & Co., of this city, read in a Massachusetts paper that Hon. Charles B. Ladd, auditor of that state, was afflicted with an incurable kidney disease, and had been obliged to give up work and return to his home. They immediately sent him a box of their celebrated Oregon Kidney Tea, and from time to time sent him other boxes. A few days ago they received from him the following letter: COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS, Auditor's Dept., Boston, Nov. 11, 1881. Messrs. Hodge, Davis & Co.: Dear Sirs—I have no hesitation in saying that I have been much benefited by the use of the Oregon Kidney Tea as a remedy for a kidney difficulty which has troubled me for six or eight years. I can heartily recommend it to those who are similarly afflicted, as a safe and agreeable remedy. I shall test its virtues further, for I have great faith in it as a specific for many diseases of the kidneys. Respectfully yours, CHAS. B. LADD. The original of this letter can be seen by calling on Messrs. Hodge, Davis & Co., Portland, Oregon, and the Oregon Kidney Tea can be bought of any druggist or dealer, in Oregon or Washington. Price $1 per box.

A LETTER.

PORTLAND, Feb. 5, 1882. Having been a great sufferer from rheumatism for several years, and tried numerous remedies of every imaginable description, and a great number of physicians, all to no purpose, last spring I had a very severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism, so as to confine me to my bed. I was advised to try Dr. Henley's Rheumatic Neutralizer, and to my great surprise I commenced gaining, and in a short time was able to get about. I do freely recommend the Neutralizer to all afflicted as I have been, and I firmly believe it is, without exception, the best medicine for eradicating rheumatism from the system in the world. S. P. MATHEWS. (Formerly of the Cheateka hotel, Salem, and now of the Equum.) Dr. Henley's office is 263 Third street, near Taylor, Portland, Or. Hodge, Davis & Co. wholesale agents.

THE COLUMBIA RIVER BAR AGAIN.

The following is a copy of a letter from Astoria, showing up the "bar" question in a thorough, practical, convincing manner:

Astoria, Oregon, Jan. 17th.

I find that the evidence of sea captains who have visited this port is corroborative and cumulative, sustaining the two points:

First—The Columbia river is one of the most dangerous harbors in the world.

Second—The Columbia river is the most expensive harbor in the world in its exactions against shipping.

I have conversed with many masters of vessels who have been here the present season, and from none of them have I been able to get reasons which afford the least ground of hope that any moneys appropriated by Congress used in any possible way to afford permanent and substantial improvement of the bar at the mouth of the river. If there be in fact any good reason to expect that such improvement would be achieved by Federal appropriations, then, I say let the appropriations be made, and let them be made heavy, because, although I do not theoretically favor wastage of the public revenues, I am not loth to join the grand army of honest men who believe it right to

PLUCK UNCLE SAM

In any cause, noble or ignoble, or for the furtherance of any project, practicable or impracticable. I distinctly remember the forcible and emphatic declaration of the New York "Sun," to the effect that the entire treasury of the United States might be emptied into the Columbia river without avail by way of affording a deep and safe channel for the passage of ships, the idea of the "Sun" being that the obstructions at the bar were of a nature and so enormous that no appreciable effect would be had, even by the use of money without measure, and such I find to be the idea of all men whom I have conversed with, and who, from their experience, are qualified to judge of such matters. It is easy to prepare and have submitted bills for appropriations, but it is not so easy to have them passed. Intervening, before the passage of Mayor Thompson's bill, introduced by Mr. George, will arise objections of this character; and I can easily foresee that the committee examining the map and discovering the nearness of Puget Sound, and learning the magnificent disposal of nature there existing within easy reach of the settlements of Oregon and Eastern Washington, being connected with them by

RAIL AND RIVER—

The Committee will reason with the fond advocates of appropriation in this wise: "Why shall we expend so much money so ineffectually, as it would be spent, in construction and operation of dredgers upon the bar at the mouth of your river, when, only a few miles distant, you have a better inlet and outlet for commerce than can be found anywhere else in America, and which needs no expenditure to make it available? We find the distance from the sea to Portland is but thirty miles longer than by your river to the outer limits of this formidable sandbar." And the Committee are liable to say: "Prima facie the case is against you. If you would convince us, we will pay you the respect of listening patiently to your evidence and the arguments. Give us evidence of the height and depth of the breakers, the force of the winds and currents and the instability of the sands, and measure to us specifically the quantities of gold that should be set against these terrors." I see that you know about the bar bound vessels anchored inside and plunging about on the outside for the past fortnight or so. Occasionally I have been able to catch a glimpse of some of them through the telescope in the observatory of the Parker House—occasionally, that is during a

TEMPORARY SUBSIDENCE

Of huge, white breakers intervening and stretching from shore to shore across the broad mouth of the river, broad as a quarter horizon, and scanning that fearful line of destruction and death I have not failed to think forcibly of the ominous judgment of that sound headed man, Captain J. C. Ainsworth, when he said "this will never do." I have for a month carried in my pocket notes of interviews had with a couple of the most obstinate and indignant masters, which I did not deem it judicious to send for publication until their vessels had got out of reach of harm, which might otherwise result to them through the vengeance of the port. Seated before a comfortable fire one evening with Captain D. M. Spears, of the American ship James A. Wright, a wooden vessel of 1000 tons register, from San Diego in ballast, he told me he arrived off the bar October 21st, and beat outside nine days waiting for a pilot, crossing into Astoria on the 24 of November, being thus delayed twelve days.

HE WAS LUCKY

In not meeting with any misfortunes while waiting on the outside, and he had nothing of importance to report except the change in the Tillamook light. His ship arrived in Portland November 6th, and the delay at the bar occasioned the loss of his charter, which expired on the day he crossed the bar, and before his anchor was dropped in front of Astoria. He was fortunate in having no trouble on his way to Portland, but his vessel stuck in the mud on his way down the river, at Walker's Island. After taking a partial cargo of wheat at Portland he was detained nine days for the balance, lightered to Astoria for him. Capt. Spears told me that he regarded this as the most expensive port in the world. He gave me the expenses of his ship as follows:

Towing in over bar	$250
" out	250
" up and down (A. to P. and return)	450
Pilotage in over the bar	98
" out over the bar	192
" up to P. to Astoria	151
" down, (P. to Astoria)	74
Docking in P. (one day to another)	20
" in Astoria	20
Discharging and carting away 400 tons ballast, at 10¢	400
Lightering 600 tons at $1.25	750
Getting ready for grain (sealing)	350
Shipping Commission	35
Custom House and Tonnage tax	319
Captain's expense to and from P., 7 times	25
Putting in stream at Astoria	20
Surveying and certificate	15
Five per cent. on cargo of 1,320 tons	1,265
Total	$4,134

And I had also a long talk with Captain W. H. Blanchard, of the American wooden bark Wealthy Pendleton from Searsport in ballast. He

BEAT ABOUT OUTSIDE

Nearly a week and was compelled to come as far in as the red buoy before he could get a pilot, although he had a signal up and there was a tug in sight. As the pilot would not go to him he had to go to the pilot, and in doing so he found himself amid the breakers, and had a desperate time wearing ship to get out again. He found the entrance to the Columbia river so very similar to that of Shoalwater Bay, within sight to the north that nine masters out of ten would be deceived and venture into the wrong shallows. The Pendleton lost thirty days at Astoria waiting for lighterage. She is a bark of 800 tons register. These two vessels are bound with wheat for the United Kingdom. Captain Blanchard's port expenses were as follows:

Towing in and out over the bar	$ 450
" up and down to P. and return	400
Pilotage in and over the bar	98
" out over the bar	192
" up and down	151
Discharging 250 tons ballast and carting away	400
Lightering 400 tons	500
Getting ready for grain (sealing)	350
Shipping Commissions	35
Custom House fees with tonnage tax	280
Captain going up and down to P.	25
Putting in stream at Astoria	20
Surveying and certificate	15
Five per cent. on cargo	1,200
Total	$4,116

These figures are very similar to those in the estimate of other ship expenditures in this river and they will probably be not unfamiliar to you, but I thought they might sometime be useful for reference and possibly be of service in encouraging liberal appropriations. Send them to the commerce and let the committee have the whole case. It would be folly to stop at a quarter or half million a year. If anything is to be done let it be at least so done as to make a respectable showing of work, and a respectable showing could hardly be made short of two or three millions per annum.
