OUR SUNDAY LAW.

This is one of the topics that has attracted much attention and caused much comment lately. That the law is unpopular as it now stands, is unquestioned; whether it will be repealed or simply altered, is a matter of speculation. The experience of the past has been almost uniformly to the effect that laws pertaining to public morals, when once passed are seldom abrogated afterwards. The tendency is to strengthen and make more stringent. In Maine, when temperance laws were first enacted there was a great hue and cry, and strenuous opposition to their enforcement—but the step once taken there was no turning back, and Maine has since strengthened and perfected those laws from time to time rather than to strike them from her statute books. In Iowa the experience has been in the same direction. In Kansas there is at present a fierce contest going on over the same question and heaven and earth are being moved, so to speak, to influence public sentiment against the "Kansas Prohibition Act;" but Kansas will do as her sisters have done. Experience with Sunday laws is generally on a par with that in reference to the regulation of the whiskey traffic. Once start the wedge in the direction of legislation, and the more opposition you arouse afterwards the more active efforts will be put forth by friends of the law. Aside from this, in the outset there is always a reluctance on the part of political parties to deal with these questions at all. Political managers are generally keen enough in point of policy to avoid contests as long as possible over questions likely to divide their party. They let such questions severely alone until compelled to treat them as living issues of the day. After prohibitory or restrictive laws are passed very few men have the hardihood to oppose them openly, or in other words to risk their political future on the result—because such men have a wholesome respect for the feelings of the majority supposed to be back of such laws, or to have caused their enactment. Whatever may have been the state of public sentiment in the start, laws of this character are bound to grow in favor after being once passed, unless notoriously bungling and unjust in their provisions. It is possible, of course, to frame a good law in such a manner that its unjust operation will render it obnoxious regardless of the commendable principle back of it.

With reference to the Sunday law in this territory, the comment is frequently and freely made: "Oh, it is bound to be repealed at the next session of the Legislature; that law cant stand," &c. How so? The law is unjust because unequal in its operations. Granted; but can that imperfection not be removed? A very common objection is that "you cannot legislate morals into people; the moment you try to COMPEL people to be moral, that moment you arouse their antipathy to religion, and make them stubborn." And with these and like objections the opponents of the law console themselves that they are using "knock down" arguments. It is urged that the law operates to the detriment of towns in many instances; that it is unjust to compel saloon keepers to pay high license and then close their business one day out of every seven, &c., &c. Last Sunday, when the Alaska steamer was here a large amount of supplies would have been purchased from our merchants by miners, but for the Sunday law—to say nothing of the money that would have been left in the town in exchange for whiskey, had our saloons dared to do business. All these facts are cited to influence public opinion against the law. Now, in order to properly understand the question, the history of the law should be looked at. The saloon keepers who have so earnestly denounced the churches in connection with this law should remember that it was passed in THEIR interest by their representatives in the legislature. The churches had nothing whatever to do with it. In the criminal code a clause was enacted punishing for the sale or disposition of intoxicating liquors on Sunday; the saloon keepers and their friends then said that this was an unjust discrimination against them, and their champion, Councilman Hunter, introduced the now notorious "Sunday Law," which requires ALL business men to close their houses on Sunday—so that it was passed at the special instance and under the advocacy of the whiskey men themselves. Ask any member of the last Legislature and he will confirm our statement. In instances like that of last Sunday, the law as it stands prevents hundreds of dollars from being left in Port Townsend. Now, comes in the glaring injustice and defects of the clumsy law. That injustice consists in not prohibiting ALL traffic or labor for gain on Sunday. Of course, the Customs authorities here are compelled to attend to the entering and clearing of U. S. Mail or passenger vessels on Sunday when required to do so, hence they were powerless to keep the Eureka here till Monday. But had the Sunday law prohibited the handling of her goods on the wharf on that day, she would have had to remain here to do that business on Monday, and her passengers could then have spent their last cent in town if they chose, and thus prevented this clamor by business men who consider themselves robbed of so much, and the town injured financially, by the Sunday law.

Fundamental law always abhors discrimination or class legislation—hence our Sunday law, which compels store keepers and saloon keepers to close their business one day in the week, yet allows steamboat men, wharf owners, draymen and others to ply their respective vocations for gain, and thus puts an advantage in the way of the man who has his money invested in steamboats, wharves, drays, &c., is grossly unconstitutional and at variance with the principles underlying our jurisprudence. Laws are made for the whole people, and should not inure to the benefit of any class or classes to the detriment of others. If we are to have a Sunday law, let us have one that will operate equally upon all. If it is wrong to sell goods or whisky on Sunday, it is wrong to run a vessel or a dray, or do business on a wharf on that day. In each case the business or traffic is carried on for the sole purpose of pecuniary gain.

The argument that public morals is not a legitimate or proper subject of legislation is just simply so much bosh. Accept such a theory as correct, and follow it to a legitimate conclusion, and you would turn society into a state of chaos, without restraint upon the viciously inclined. Our laws in regard to prostitution, exposing the person in an indecent manner, publishing or circulating obscene literature, &c., &c., all have their foundation in that principle which says you CAN properly exercise legislative supervision over public morals. This principle is founded in that civilization which the world received from Christianity. No one questions the propriety of laws like these. The only open question is as to the extent legal restraint may properly reach over public morals. If our Christian civilization is worth having, then under it and for public good, it is proper to enforce an observance of the Christian Sabbath—especially as the reason for such a course reaches back of mere public morals and finds support in the physical law, which requires one day's rest out of every seven. But such a law, if enacted, should be uniform in its operations, and should provide for all possible cases of necessity.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE Third Judicial District, of the Territory of Washington, holding terms at Port Townsend for the counties of Jefferson, Clallam, Island, and San Juan, Washington Territory.
ABIGAIL PRITCHARD, pl'tf.

HENRY W. PRITCHARD, def't. }
Action brought in the District Court of the Third Judicial District of the Territory of Washington, holding terms at Port Townsend, for the Counties of Jefferson, Clallam, Island, and San Juan, and Complaint filed in the County of Jefferson, in the office of the Clerk of said District Court.
To HENRY W. PRITCHARD, def't.

In the name of the United States of America, you are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff, in the District Court of the Third Judicial District of the Territory of Washington, holding terms at Port Townsend in Jefferson county for the Counties of Jefferson, Clallam, Island, and San Juan in said Territory and to answer the complaint filed therein within twenty days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—If served within this county; or if served out of this county, but within the Third Judicial District, within thirty days; or, if served out of said district, within sixty days—judgment, by default, will be taken against you according to the prayer of said complaint.

The said action is brought to obtain a decree of the court dissolving the bonds of matrimony now existing between plaintiff and defendant because of the willful abandonment of plaintiff by defendant for more than one year, before the commencement of this action and because of the neglect of the defendant to furnish plaintiff support and maintenance. And that the custody and control of the two minor children of plaintiff and defendant be awarded to plaintiff. And you are hereby notified, that if you fail to appear and answer said complaint as above required, the plaintiff will apply to the court for the relief demanded in said complaint.

Witness the Honorable ROGER S. GREENE, Judge of the said Court, and the seal thereof this 24 day of March, 1882.

I am instructed by Professor Spencer F. Baird, Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, to announce to those persons desirous of sending donations to the National Museum, that I will receive specimens at Port Townsend and forward them from here to Washington free of charge to the donor.

Specimens of stone intended to illustrate quarries of building material, should be in rough cubes not over 5 inches, so as to admit of being finished at Washington of a uniform size of 4-inch cubes. Specimens of Indian stone work of all kinds, such as were formerly used by the natives: Spear heads, arrow points, and other archaeological collections usually found in old shell heaps and deserted sites of former dwellings. Indian carved work of all kinds. Minerals, Metals, Fossils, varieties of wood, to show the products of our forests, finished so as to show the grain and texture; Skins of birds and beasts, taken off so as to allow of being mounted; specimens of fish, shells and molluscs, as fresh as possible so as to be fit for preserving in alcohol; in short, everything which will illustrate the products of the country. All specimens sent to me should give the donor's name and address in full, with particulars as to locality where procured, &c. On arrival here, they will be properly labeled with the name of the person presenting them, and forwarded at once to Washington, where due credit for the gift will be awarded.

James B. Mantrop was in the Toombs police court of New York charged with disposing of $3,000 worth of bonds of the Peruvian company belonging to Peter Vavener, and appropriating the money. Mantrop says his arrest is a conspiracy to prevent him bringing charges against certain persons largely interested in the Peruvian scheme.

Corhill, editor of the Lienster Leader, has been arrested under the coercion act.

At Chicago on the 25th a loud explosion occurred in the Union building, in which the general offices of the associated press and W. U. T. Co. are located, shaking the entire building and knocking out heavy plate glass windows in all parts of the building. Wood work, doors and plastering were also demolished. The explosion was caused by a boy named James Brett entering one of the vaults where gas had been escaping since Saturday, with a lighted match. He was seriously if not fatally injured.

The San Francisco Produce Exchange held its first call on the 27th which was eminently satisfactory. Bidding was fairly lively considering the present dull condition of the market, and everything worked smoothly. Extra choice wheat sold at $1 65@1 70 for spot lots, $1 62 1/2 for 5 days delivery and $1 67 1/2 for No. 1 white for May delivery; No. 2 brewing barley $1 77 1/2@1 80 for spot lots; No. 1 medium at $1 42 1/2 for July delivery, No. 2 $1 70 spot; No. 1 oats at $1 81 1/4 spot, and bags—Calcutta—at 8 1/2 for same delivery.

James Gamble of the Mutual Union Telegraph Co., says that by the beginning of 1883 the company will have three wires in operation across the country. The system now extends as far west as Kansas City, and it is expected that work will be begun on a transcontinental line about the 1st of May. The routes have not yet been determined, but will probably follow the line of the Denver & Rio Grande and Central Pacific. It is also the intention of the company to carry a line along with the Northern Pacific R. R. as fast as that road is constructed.

A dispatch from Mineral Park, A. T., says: At Hackenbury, thirty-one miles from this town, J. O. Weldon, a desperate character, on the 20th, shot and killed a citizen by the name of John Bullock. Citizens rushed to the scene and opened fire on Weldon, who he returned, slightly wounding Indian Agent Charles Spencer. Weldon was shot through the breast, and after his pistol was emptied he surrendered. He was held in custody till the night of the 21st, when a party of 15 men took him out and hung him to the beam of a blacksmith shop. Weldon declared publicly a short time ago that he was glad Guiteau had killed Garfield.

A Chico, Cal., dispatch of the 27th says: To-day we have had all sorts of weather, cloudy, sunshine and showery, but at two o'clock there was a violent rain and hail storm, preceded by a small cyclone. It took shape first about four miles from Chico on the Dayton road as a whirlwind, and expanded into about 100 yards, taking a northeasterly direction, going through the McCormick ranch, taking in its way a large oak tree about two feet through and shivering it to atoms. It passed through the Reavis and Silver ranches, knocking down some brick work on the latter ranch and carrying Chinamen about a hundred yards from where they stood. It then passed through the Chinn ranch, carrying some fencing, but spent its force before reaching town. The wind is now north.

The New York Times of the 28th says editorially: Notwithstanding the evident fact that congress will pass one of the two anti-Chinese bills now pending, the people of San Francisco are determined to free their minds on the subject before it is too late. Miller's bill is before the senate and is likely to come up at any time. Page's bill in the house is in no less favorable position than Miller's. There is no radical difference between the two bills for both are designed to carry out the provisions of the new treaty. Both have been favorably reported by the respective committees to which they were referred and both are favored by the Chinese embassy. If there is opposition to either bill and Miller's bill is least open to criticism, it has not been manifested. Why, in face of all these facts, representatives of all political parties in California, commercial organizations, etc., should demand all business should be suspended for one day, while monster meetings give voice to anti-Chinese sentiment of California is beyond comprehension.

On the 22d quite an excitement was created in San Francisco which required the interference of the police to prevent riot and bloodshed. It appears Gat Su, a Chinese woman of the slave order, who had followed a vocation of infamy for some time, rented rooms in the basement of a house on Washington street and began to lead a different and better life. This evening the woman presented herself at a restaurant and took a seat among a number of respectable women, wives of Chinese merchants, to whom she was a stranger. She was seen and instantly recognized by a countryman who knew her former calling, and was exposed and ejected by the proprietor of the restaurant. A large crowd of Chinese followed the fleeing woman hooting and yelling, "Drive her out!" "Kill her!" "Kill her!" A mob numbering several hundred followed her to the house and attempted to break down the door and smash the windows. The police interfered and finally compelled the mob to disperse. During the day the place was visited by a thousand Chinamen, and it required constant efforts to avert violence. This evening another assault was made on the house by a crowd, who effected an entrance to the basement, destroyed the furniture and threatened to kill the person who leased the woman the house. The police arrested ten of the ringleaders and took the woman to the Central station for protection. The affair created great excitement among the Chinese residents of the city, and the woman narrowly escaped murder at the hands of her infuriated countrymen.

A Steam Chair.

I don't like Mr. Travers as much as I did. Of course I know he's a very nice man, and he's going to be my brother when he marries Sue, and he used to bring me candy sometimes, but he isn't what he used to be.

One time—that was last summer—he was always dreadfully anxious to hear from the postoffice, and whenever he came to see Sue, and he and she and I would be sitting on the front piazza, he would say:

"Jimmy, I think there must be a letter for me; I'll give you ten cents if you'll go down to the postoffice;" and then Sue would say:

"Don't run, Jimmy; you'll get heart disease if you do;" and I'd walk 'way down to the postoffice, which is pretty near half a mile from our house. But now he doesn't seem to care anything about his letters; and he and Sue sit in the back parlor, and mother says I mustn't go in and disturb them; and I don't get any more ten cents.

I've learned that it won't do to fix your affections on human beings, for even the best of men won't keep on giving you ten cents forever. And it wasn't fair for Mr. Travers to get angry with me the other night, when it was all an accident—at least most of it; and I don't think it's manly for a man to stand by and see a sister shake a fellow that isn't half her size, and especially when he never supposed that anything was going to happen to her even if it did break.

When Aunt Eliza came to our house the last time, she brought a steam chair; that's what she called it, though there wasn't any steam about it. She brought it from Europe with her, and it was the queerest sort of chair, that would all fold up, and had a kind of footstool to it, so that you put your legs out and just lie down in it. Well, one day it got broken. The back of the seat fell down, and Aunt Eliza up in the chair so that she couldn't get out, and didn't she just howl till somebody came and helped her! She was so angry that she said she never wanted to see that chair again. "And you may have it if you want it, Jimmy, for you are a good boy sometimes when you want to be."

So I took the chair and mended it. The folks laughed at me, and said I couldn't mend it to save my life; but I got some nails and some maulage, and mended it elegantly. Then mother let me get some varnish, and I varnished the chair, and when it was done it looked so nice that Sue said we'd keep it in the back parlor. Now I'm never allowed to sit in the back parlor, so what good would my chair do me? But Sue said, "Stuff and nonsense. That boy's indulged now till he can't rest." So they put my chair in the back parlor, just as if I'd been mending it for Mr. Travers. I didn't say anything about it; but after it was in the back parlor I took out one or two screws that I thought were not needed to hold it together, and used them for a boat that I was making.

That night Mr. Travers came as usual, and after he had talked to mother awhile about the weather, and he and father had agreed that it was a shame that other folks hadn't given more money to the Michigan sufferers, and that they were not quite sure that the sufferers were a worthy object, and that a good deal of harm was done by giving money to all sorts of people, Sue said:

"Perhaps we had better go into the back parlor; it is cooler there, and we won't disturb father, who wants to think about something."

So she and Mr. Travers went into the back parlor, and shut the door, and talked very loud at first about a whole lot of things, and then quieted down, as they always did.

I was in the front parlor, reading Robinson Crusoe, and wishing I could do likewise—like Crusoe, I mean; for I wouldn't go and sit in a back parlor with a girl, like Mr. Travers, not if you were to pay me for it. I can't see what some some fellows see in Sue. I'm sure if Mr. Martin or Mr. Travers had her pull their hair the way she pulls mine sometimes, they wouldn't trust themselves alone with her very soon.

All at once we heard a dreadful crash in the back parlor, and Mr. Travers said Good something very loud, and Sue just shrieked as if she had a needle run into her. Father and mother and I and the cook and the chambermaid all rushed to see what was the matter.

The chair that I had mended, and that Sue had taken away from me, had broken down while Mr. Travers was sitting in it, and it had shut him up like a jack-knife, and caught him so he couldn't get out. It had caught Sue, too, who must have run to help him, or she never would have been in that fix, with Mr. Travers holding her by the waist, and her arm wedged in so she couldn't pull it away.

Father managed to get them loose, and then Sue caught me and shook me till I could hear my teeth rattle, and then she ran up stairs and locked herself up; and Mr. Travers never offered to help me, but only said:

"I'll settle with you some day, young man," and then he went home. But father sat on the sofa and laughed, and said to mother:

"I guess Sue would have done better if she'd had let the boy keep his chair." I'm very sorry, of course, that an accident happened to the chair, but I've got it up in my room now, and I've mended it again, and it's the best chair you ever sat in.—Jimmy Brown in Harper's Young People.

Friend of the family to the boy twins—"I'm afraid you little fellows don't always agree. You fight each other sometimes, don't you?" Twins—"Yeth, thir, thumtinth." F. of the F.—"Who whips?" Twins—"Mamma whips."

Come, rouse and shake yourself, my friend! Shake off the sluggard's dust; Unfold your hands and wake your eyes; Don't be content to rust. Away with indolence, and rise Above the brutish sloth, And health and ease will come if thou Be not to labor loth.

A True Tale.

"Well, Tommy, back again, eh?" "Yes, Captain." "Not very sorry about it, either?" "No, Captain." "Glad of it, perhaps?" "Glad to get back, Captain, but sorry I had to do anything wrong to get here. But no one suffered, and I meant that no one should. The purse without a penny gone was returned to the owner after the trial." "Yes, we heard about that. Walked right into the office, took the purse and waited to be arrested." "That was it, Captain." "How much did the Judge give you this time, Tommy?" "Just as good as life, Captain. Second offense, you know." Tommy grinned weakly. "When the officers testified I'd been up before the Judge looked mighty hard. When he sentenced me, he says: 'Prisoner,' he says, 'prisoner, considerin' as how you are an old offender, I may as well put you out of the way of preyin' on the public peace and welfare again. Fifteen years,' he says, and here I am, Captain."

long ago. Years ago—he did not remember them very well—when he was a restless, hopeful "con.," doing duty inside, he did complain and curse his fate bitterly as did many hundreds all around him. But that was before he began to pity his former self, and separate his life before and after sentence, as the life of the hopeless drunkard is separated from that of a hopeful son. His story was known to all the officers and their children. He was on his way home from the shop one night when the awful event which twisted his life so happened. He had been working late, as he had for several nights, and had learned to carry a thick stick, for Sacramento, even so late as the early sixties, had plenty of rough characters abroad o' nights. He was passing a saloon just as a rush of angry men came out, with oaths, a flash of light and a blast of hot air from the interior. A man whom he recognized as a peace officer was evidently trying to arrest a man whom the rest of the crowd were trying to rescue. Suddenly one of the men ran around behind the officer, and raised a knife to strike him in the back. Instinctively, only with the thought to save an officer from dastardly assassination, the strong-armed mechanic struck with his cane.

much. He had money enough left to take him to San Francisco, and keep him there a few days. But what a wilderness of loneliness was there. What place in the great, busy, noisy, lonely city was there for this old timid man, so long accustomed to having every act of his life ordered by a force which there was no questioning? He inquired for work only a few times. His answer to the question, "Where did you work last?" was too hard to give, to be given often; and then there appeared no use in asking, anyway. Not a soul in all the city to speak to; nothing in all he saw going on about him to be interested in; nothing to look forward to. What were the children doing over at the bath houses? Were the new oars for the barge finished yet? and would the carpenter take any kind of pains with them if he was not there to keep an eye on the work? The cook for the officers' mess would miss him. Tommy thought on. "For what would he do for fresh fish now that he was gone?" His last night's lodging had used up his last cent. He was hungry, too, as he thought again of the children, the boat-house, the officers' cook, the officers themselves with their kindly words the very prison walls, offering security and shelter, and companionship, and— He was passing a city front office which was vacant for the moment. He saw a long purse lying on a desk, and without knowing what it contained, entered, took it, and walked slowly out on the street, and waited to be arrested. The purse contained five hundred dollars in bank bills. "So you are back again, Tommy?" "Yes, Captain." "And not sorry, either?" "No, Captain."

Beauty in Washington. Mrs. Keifer's sweet and matronly face is not wanting in any of the great gatherings. Her simple but rich black costumes, her pretty laces and regular bouquet of rose buds, are all in keeping with her style. Her niece, Miss Nora White, has followed in the same successful path, and every one has words of praise for the little Ohio girl, who has more wit and brilliant common sense than the average society girl knows what to make of. Mrs. Senator Jones made almost her first public appearance this winter, and appeared in an exquisite white satin costume, with her immense diamonds twinkling like stars. Mrs. Senator Hill was the gayest of all the gay groups, and each motion of her head and throat made her equally famous diamonds shine with great sparks of light. The Colorado lady wore a sapphire blue velvet over a petticoat of pale blue brocade, and the laces adorning it were as fine and costly of their kind as her splendid jewels. Mrs. Hazelton, of Wisconsin, with her poetic face, was more of a picture than ever, with her delicate brunette beauty shown in soft relief above a long and graceful dress of white cashmere and satin. Mrs. Page, of California, wore one of the richest dresses of the evening in a fawn-colored satin, brocaded in lavender velvet, the heavy shirings and folds of the gleaming satin combined with the long train of sumptuous brocade, and the whole odd costume giving an admirable effect to her striking beauty. Mrs. Burrows, of Michigan, was a picture for one of the old miniature painters, in an embroidered pink silk over a white satin petticoat, with soft white ostrich plumes nodding in her coiffure. Mrs. Jay Hubbell, another Western brunette, was arrayed in a cream-colored satin and Spanish lace, with heavy pearl embroideries, and wore some of the most envied diamonds of the evening. Mrs. Pacheco, of California, in a black brocaded velvet and a glitter of steel beading, was the exact contrast in type and style to her black haired Castilian husband. Mrs. Pacheco is a blonde of the finest order, large, stately, and like the portraits of the famous beauties of old Venice, her heavy velvet costume, the square neck and vignette of pink feathers in her hair immediately suggesting some lady of the Doge's court. The pretty young daughter who accompanied her is by almost every one conceded to be the beauty par excellence of all the young rosebuds of the season, her fine head, pale and perfect complexion, and the round and soft black eyes being so many rare and unapproachable perfections. Miss Mabel Pacheco was dressed in all a debutante's simplicity, in pale blue nun's veiling and satin, with long tan-colored gloves wrinkling on her round arms. Miss Fanny Dunnell, of Minnesota, in crimson velvet, over pale satin, with large corsage bouquet of tea roses, was another western beauty, and besides, the stalwart congressman was accompanied by Mrs. Dunnell, who wore a heavy brocade of the most delicate lilac satin with bunches of soft white Mexican poppies. Another beauty and belle of the season is Miss McDaniels, of Vermont, a picturesque brunette, whose novel coiffure and rich costumes have attracted much admiration, and whose complexion is matchless, with the damask bloom of nature rising and changing in her cheeks with every fresh sally and pretty speech. At Mrs. Russell's this Green mountain maiden was the admired of all the artistic, wearing a white satin dress, with pink rosebuds in the piled up masses of dark hair, and a full bouquet at the corsage. Washington is favored this year with an unusual number of pretty girls. A notable trio of beauties were gathered in one box at the theater the other night. Miss Ames and Miss Sturgis, of St. Louis, and their friend, Miss Moulton, of Cincinnati.—Globe-Democrat.

PUGET SOUND ARGUS.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF JEFFERSON CO

FRIDAY, MARCH 10, 1882.

NEWS ITEMS.

THE Provincial Parliament of British Columbia is in session—and now other misfortunes over there sink into insignificance.

THE Portland "Telegram" prints a likeness and biographical sketch of Marshal Henry, the man who is to hang Guiteau—and counts him a wondrously favored mortal.

ENGLAND is not free from Guiteaus. On Wednesday of last week, at Wind-railway station, a miscreant named McLean shot at Queen Victoria, but fortunately the murderous bullet missed its intended victim.

"THE Argus was slightly in error in stating that Mrs. Cann of this city, was in Port Townsend, displaying her fashionable millinery. Mrs. Cann is at her place of business here but has an agent at Port Townsend."—"Post-Intelligencer." Why, then, did she distribute posters here announcing herself at the Central Hotel?

PARTS of Lower California have recently been afflicted with severe north winds drying up everything and fatally injuring growing crops. Sheep and other live stock have been dying by thousands. A partial failure of California crops will result from the drouth. Farmers on Puget Sound may plant potatoes again with confidence.

THAT was a pungent criticism upon the nomination of Roscoe Conkling to be a Supreme court Judge, when an exchange remarked that the public would regard it very much as the man felt when he got his leg broken, and was thankful it wasn't his neck. The inference is that everybody is glad President Arthur didn't make Conkling, Secretary of State.

VERY little news comes from the sealing business this week. The weather has been quite unfavorable, and a small catch has been made. Prices have been run up, through the fierce opposition to more than the skins are really worth—and the business is consequently being overdone. Doubtless one half the vessels engaged in the business will find that they might have found more profitable employment in other ways.

THE latest corporation is that of the Puget Sound West Side Railroad Company, with headquarters at Port Townsend, capital stock of $3,000,000, and T. T. Mijor, C. C. Bartlett, J. A. Kuhn, R. D. Attridge, Robert C. Hill, J. B. Montgomery, J. G. Swan, Chas. Eisenbeis and Thos. Kirkpatrick incorporators. The declared object is to build a railroad to a point on the Columbia river. Such a road would, of course, tap the rich Chehalis country, and would seriously interfere with the roads projected from the east side of the Sound. We shall not be surprised to hear of our neighbors over there stirring themselves lively to get ahead of the enterprising business men of this section.

MILITARY EXPLORATIONS.—Col Chambers, of Port Townsend, says that he will leave here some time in next month with a detachment of soldiers and a pack train, to proceed via Cape Flattery, on the north side of the Olympic range, and thence around the south side of these mountains through the Quilucete valley to Hood's Canal—for the purpose of making a military reconnaissance and mapping out the section of country to be explored. The services of an experienced guide, we understand, are wanted. We are very glad to hear of this exploring expedition, as it will be the means of obtaining authentic information about a region rich in agricultural lands, valuable timber and perhaps minerals.

A "BOOK."—Port Townsend is just entering upon the first real estate boom of any importance ever experienced by her. As an illustration of the rapidity with which prices have advanced recently, we cite one instance. The old Masonic Hall property, which was purchased by Mr. Eisenbeis last year for three hundred and thirty dollars, changed hands a few days ago for fifteen hundred dollars.—Mr. Carl Seidel, a shrewd business man, being the purchaser. Other real estate has gone up correspondingly. In fact property in general here has about doubled in value during the past year. The substantial character of numerous improvements being made gives evidence of unbounded confidence in all kinds of business among us. We will have a great deal of building done before the end of the present year, and our population will materially increase.

ALL the older settlers of Port Townsend and vicinity know Frank Clinger well, at least they did know him well up to the time when he left here to follow the sea eight years ago—a poor boy without money or friends to assist him in the strange lands wether he was going. Well, Frank arrived home again on the 22d of last month, in the schooner Arago, of which he is master. His father, our respected townsman, of course takes a parent's commendable pride in the son who, unaided and alone worked his way from the position of a common sailor to that of Captain in such a comparative short time. Mr. Clinger recently told us that the boy sent home six hundred dollars during the first four years he was away. This is certainly in strong contrast with the conduct of ordinary sailors who never thing of laying up a cent, but on the contrary usually manage to dispose of their ready cash at the end of every voyage—and advance money from the following trip as well, when they can get it. Apropos to the case in point, we may also say that the average youth of the period, who grows up in small towns, and utilizes that time in which, "Satan finds some mischief still for idle hands to do" in lounging around street corners, or looking on a card table, learning to gamble, drink, smoke, and pick up loose morals, may here find knowledge that will be useful to him if he will utilize it to advantage; knowledge that comes to us through example—the most potent teacher among all the factors that serve to shape our characters. Capt. Clinger has done well—has shown the characteristics of that Bible character described as a "wise son" who "maketh a glad father." We take pleasure in commending such.

GOING NORTH.—The steamer Eureka, Capt. Carroll, arrived here last Sunday morning and left again for Alaska ports on Monday morning. While she was lying at Union wharf she took on board such a large amount of freight for our northern neighbors that the wonder was where it was all stowed. About forty miners were passengers on board bound for the already famous Alaska gold fields. The development in Alaska mines during the past two years has been of such an encouraging character that a thorough test will be made this year. During the coming two months perhaps 1000 to 2000 men will arrive at Sitka or Wrangel, for the purpose of extracting the precious metals from the earth in the placer diggings and quartz mines of that region so positively asserted to be "fit only for polar bears to dwell in." Greater interest, perhaps, centers in the development of the quartz mines than attaches to the placer diggings, because quartz mines require heavy capital for their successful operation; they interest monied men who erect improvements that are of substantial and lasting benefit to the country. We await the result of this year's operations with intense interest. Meantime the Alaska mail steamer will have all that she can do. Indeed the important and growing interests of Alaska, and the number of people to be served by her mail facilities, render it almost imperative that she have at least two mails per month hereafter. It is to be hoped that this matter will be brought before the favorable attention of the P. O. Department as soon as possible.

Business men are bored to death with every conceivable scheme for advertising. The number of snide schemes by which they are plucked of money for which they see no return is astonishing. Young, middle-aged and elderly men are every day after business men to get their cards for a hotel register that even commercial travelers do not read, or to give their card, costing only $5 or $10 for some gorgeous frame to be hung in the post office or placed in a hotel, or for a programme that nobody reads, or for a "new paper" to be sent to everybody free, like a poster, and only worth about as much, or, on the end of a bit of sandpaper to be posted in saloons or on cigars counters, or catch-penny cards with a dozen firms represented. The demand upon business is constant to patronize these schemes, and hundreds of dollars are paid annually without the reasonable hope being indulged in by the men who pay the bills that these cards and signs ever do their business any real good. The advertisers of the United States, men and firms who have expended tens of thousands of dollars experimenting us to the best and cheapest method of reaching the eye and ear of the public, have always settled down to the conclusion that this method is through regular newspapers. Advertising pays, but giving money away to every applicant who has a cheap catch-penny scheme does not pay. A newspaper goes to a regular reading constituency, and every paper averages about eight readers to each subscriber, and the highest rates any publisher will ask will be cheaper to the advertiser than the snide schemes alluded to above. Papers that are given away have no more character or value than a hand bill. The place to make known business advantages is through the columns of a generally circulated and regularly published newspaper.—"Commercial Record."

THE SHORE OF ETERNITY.

REV. FRANK W. PARKS.

Alone! To land alone upon that shore!
With no one near that we have seen before;
Thought of a different love,
And the words all new.

THE ECCENTRIC BACHELOR.

F— was a living specimen of the typical old bachelor, a personage more often met with in the pages of fiction than in real life; lean and sharp visaged of aspect, crusty and cynical of temper.

served the attraction her comeliness and winning ways were for these. "Swarming round—like flies about a honey-pot! Scouting, I daresay, a fat jointure. All widows are supposed to be rich, and just because she is a widow, and for no other reason, making up to her, the fools!"

ward the weaker sex, or at ease in its company, increased his pangs in much discomfort as these symptoms of "water works turned on" became apparent. His hurried step soon subsided, however, to a steady march up and down the little drawing-room, while with frowning brow and occasional chuckles, he seemed to be concocting some scheme.

Butter—Good and Bad.

The quantity of bad butter in this country is surprising, not in the West and South only, where farmers and planters do not understand and do not care to learn the art of making it, but in the Middle States, and even in New England, where it is better made than anywhere else.

What the quality of butter was in ancient times, is unknown. Many people think that it is a modern article of food, but it seems to have been used largely by the ancient Hebrews.

Benefit of Bedbugs.

In my last paper I asserted that mosquitoes contained a large quantity of animal quinine, and therefore when they bite a person they inject into his system an antidote to malaria and febrile causes generally.

Chinches, annoying as they may be, have a purpose, and night after night they are working the accomplishment of that purpose, achieving these duties which are factors in the economy of nature.

A member of a London club was standing on the club-house steps, when a gentleman came up to him and asked him if there was a gentleman with one eye named Walker in the club.

Carelessness with Firearms.

I am reminded every once in a while upon reading some tragedy caused by reckless "fooling" with guns and pistols, how near I once came to taking the life of a fellow-being, and it has been a constant warning to me never to point a gun at anybody, unless in self-defense.

Next day at noon, while I was washing up, Fordham's gun, which was standing near the washing-trough, caught my eye and I took it up to examine it. Fordham was working the old Ruggles press at the other end of the office, distant, perhaps, fifty feet.

There are here and there human beings who are by nature incapable of writing a good hand, just as there are others who are incapable of drawing a straight line or a true circle, or even recognize one.

Bad Hand-Writing.

There are here and there human beings who are by nature incapable of writing a good hand, just as there are others who are incapable of drawing a straight line or a true circle, or even recognize one.

They (the revisers of the New Testament) have rendered an invaluable service toward the right understanding and the clear expression of the New Testament. But their work is not perfect.

As Spring with its change of weather creates a revolution in the very bowels of the earth, so does Pfunder's celebrated Oregon Blood Purifier create the desired change in the human system.

FOUND AT LAST.

A Positive and Never Failing Cure for Rheumatism, Neuralgia and Gout.

Hundreds of testimonials given to Dr. Henley, uncollected, are in his possession from his own townsmen, living right here among us, testifying to the wonderful curative powers of his Rheumatic Neutralizer.

If you have a thorn or splinter in your finger and you put on Chloroform, or some other drug, you stop the sensibility of pain for a time only.

The Doctor has come to the conclusion, after twenty-two years travel and close investigation, that the Liver has a great deal to do with Rheumatism.

OREGON TO MASSACHUSETTS.

Some time ago Messrs. Hodge, Davis & Co., of this city, in a Massachusetts paper that Hon. Charles B. Ladd, auditor of the State, was afflicted with an incurable kidney disease, and had been obliged to give up work and return to his home.

Measrs. Hodge, Davis & Co.: Dear Sirs—I have no objection in saying that I have been much benefited by the use of the Oregon Kidney Tea as a remedy for a kidney difficulty which has troubled me for six or eight years.

IT is said that TILDEN is already engaged in the task of selecting a suitable man to run on the presidential ticket with him in 1884. The Democrats might take a hint and save a great deal of money and vexation by dispensing with a National Convention, leaving the work of fixing up the ticket to SAMMY. It would amount to the same thing in the end.

CANNERY BOUGHT.—The B. C. Packing Co., of which F. G. Reed is president and D. C.
