The venerable Erastus Brooks recently announced his retirement from the active management of the "Evening Express," at the close of 41 years of journalistic endeavor. His valedictory says there are at least 112 New York city journals more now than there were 25 years ago, and that with the constantly increasing expenses of daily journalism the chances are that there will not be as many published here 25 years hence as now.

JOHN P. PETERSON

FRIDAY, JUNE 15, 1877.

"Remember the Sabbath Day."

The Presbyterian pulpit of this town has been ably filled for the past two Sabbaths, by Rev. T. J. Weekes, of San Juan. This gentleman has one of those sanguine nervous temperaments which leads him to throw his whole soul into any work in which he engages; and to that fact are due the thrilling sentiments and stirring rhetorical enunciations which characterize his discourses, and make them effective.

One thought in last Sunday evening's discourse is worthy of note and commendation: "What a fearful responsibility do those merchants and employers incur, who keep their business going on and their subordinates at work on Sundays!" This bold, and certainly timely exclamation ought to receive a warm, energetic and reform-inciting response in the heart of every pure-minded, moral man in any community.

We, as a nation, as social bodies, as intelligent, moral people, profess to fear God and keep his commandments. We invoke His blessings upon all important public acts; we recognize His supreme power by keeping up appropriate religious services in all legislative bodies; and we refuse to accept, in a court of justice, the testimony of a man who will not, in the full and wholesome fear of his Maker, and in view of the certainty of being called to account hereafter for the deeds done in the body, ask that Maker to witness his words, whether they be true or not.

Yet in spite of all this, when comes the blessed Sabbath morn, the day set apart in an express command as a day of rest, by this God whose favor we seek, and whose anger we would avoid, how many of us are there who would respect the day and the Divine decree concerning it, were it not for universal custom?

Our merchants and business men would do well to give the subject a little candid thought, followed by conscientious action. It would make no difference in the actual amount of their trade, to close their shop doors on Sunday; and, if it failed to set at rest conscientious scruples, it would at least satisfy a laudable ambition to have Port Townsend set to other places in point of decorous and enlightened respect for the Lord's day. What say you folks; shall this upward step be taken?

The conspicuous example of those who have in the past allowed the Sabbath to pass without public desecration, needs nothing farther than modest mention to insure it the honest admiration of all.

"Our Traveling Agent."

The "North Pacific Rural" is a sprightly, pewey little monthly; and as a "new departure" in the journalistic fraternity of Puget Sound is a creditable item, being the entertaining result of worthy labors in its line. But in the June no., a copy of which lies on our table, a correspondence appears under the caption of this article, containing some very flagrant errors.

No doubt the correspondent labored to give the public interesting and strictly correct information, and his enterprise is certainly commendable; but still, while on many of the main points he is about right, to enumerate the erroneous items, more space would be required than we have to spare. Settlers down here simply read the article, and smile at the random statements which really lower in their estimation the otherwise valuable and growing paper. Besides this, emigrants coming in after reading this description of the country, and seeing the vast difference between the account and the reality, would be inclined to get disgusted. For instance, the statement that "James Tower has about 200 acres of bottom land on the Clallam County road; came here in '55, and is now worth $20,000," sounds peculiarly breezy to one acquainted with the facts, especially when there is no such person here as James Tower, and when the richest farmer in the county is not worth more than about the half of $20,000. The fact of Mr. Watkins, of Sequim, Pa., having built a grist mill which "grinds flour for the neighborhood," has been exaggerated out of proportion. Mr. W. has been experimenting on a grist mill propelled by wind, but it would hardly do justice to the pen picture now before the public. "Thos. Abernethy farms 300 acres," is another "whopper," and the idea that "any man who will work two months in the year can raise from three to four thousand bushels of grain and potatoes," is, if reliable, the grandest instance on record of the elasticity of truth under the manipulations of a "stretcher." If the gentleman found a hundred Indians at Sequim Bay, he must have been there when they were entertaining all their friends. Any one who will go and look at Mr. Rice's farm on Port Discovery Bay, of "160 acres of land that will raise anything he puts in the ground," and then compare notes, will have margin enough between the yarn and the fact to write footnotes upon for an Eastern tour. Then the glowing account of the fine farming country, with its opulent residents, that can afford only a "trail" through it, presents a paradox that is, to say the least, uncommon.

It is but justice to the gentleman to say that in regard to the amount of grain and potatoes raised per acre in the country he describes, his figures are nearly correct. The soundness, in fact, richer in point of natural resources than he makes it, but what it wants is a fair showing before the outside world. Such "writing up" as the article in question, cannot fail to do more harm than good; and merits some degree of friendly censure.

The Great Northwest.

The following, taken from the "Oregonian," is worthy of note and extended publicity, as it bespeaks an enterprise commensurate with the growing interests of the Pacific coast and deserving assistance from all.

"Last January, Mr. L. Samuel, publisher of 'The West Shore,' issued a magnificent 'holiday number' of that valuable journal, which contained 44 pages of interesting reading matter, and 56 engravings of scenes in the Pacific Northwest. The entire edition cost about three thousand dollars, and surpassed anything ever attempted in the line of enterprising journalism on the Pacific Coast. The enthusiastic reception given to that number, and the liberal patronage extended to him since, have induced Mr. S. to issue a 'mid-winter holiday number,' and for the past two months his artists have been busily engaged in producing beautiful sketches of scenery about the mouth of the Columbia river, Eastern and Southern Oregon, Northern Idaho, Eastern Washington, British Columbia and the great lumbering and coal mining regions of Puget Sound. Besides these sketches a host of able writers are furnishing interesting descriptive articles. When ready for delivery, in July, this number will be a lasting monument to its enterprising publisher, and accomplish a vast amount of good for the Pacific Northwest. As Mr. S. furnishes these mammoth editions to all yearly subscribers without extra charge, and as the subscription price is only $1.50 per year, we think that every citizen of the Pacific Northwest should not only have this interesting journal in their own homes, but subscribe for extra copies to send to friends abroad."

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

FROM CLALLAM COUNTY.

While inditing a few more sentences from this extreme Northwestern county of Washington Territory, the thought comes, why is it that Clallam, having so much of natural wealth, should be consigned to such unmerited oblivion, and be so little known to the outside world? Coming from Port Townsend on a clear day, over the water, the scenery, to a lover of Nature's works, is perfectly grand. The broad straits of Juan De Fuca spreading out in calm weather like a vast basin of liquid glass, so clear and transparent that mountains, clouds, and undulating shore lines are alike reflected with distinctness of outline in its crystal depths; the rugged looking peaks and crags of the coast range spurs, all conspire to please the eye, in fact all the senses, and satisfy the most romantic imagination by presenting in reality a harmonious picture of natural beauty, incapable of improvement by the designing hand of man.

SEQUIM BAY extends about four miles inland, and is perhaps, at its widest point, about a mile and a half broad; although at its mouth the channel is narrow and deep. Here will undoubtedly be the future location of a ship yard. The luxuriant growth of fir timber around this bay has been partially culled along the water front, for milling purposes; although it will be the outlet of a vast amount of new logs. Not a great deal of farming land can be found near it; but still there are several unoccupied and unsurveyed claims in the immediate vicinity. At the entrance of the bay, a small Indian hamlet encumbers the shore, where a few—usually from a dozen to twenty—natives find an easy living on the salmon and trout which through the liquid elements, or on that emblem of guileless indolence, the meditative clam which can be found in quantities to suit, "without money and without price."

From this village a wagon road leads the pedestrian through timbered land about two miles to SEQUIM PRAIRIE, a large tract of quite level grazing land, covering an irregular space amounting to something like five miles long by three wide. This prairie is gravelly, partially barren land, rendering it in some degree unprofitable for farming purposes; yet around its edges, which are mostly occupied by tillers of the soil, some very fair agricultural land yields a good return of roots and cereals for the labor bestowed. In the months of May and June, the land being warm and its strength easily absorbed by vegetation, this place presents a pleasing mixture of flowers, grass and other transient ornaments. The neighbors—some eighteen or twenty in number—are healthy, good natured, and especially cheerful during a rainy summer—their surest guarantee of more than ordinary fruitful crops. We leave here in command of a few hundred head, more or less, of very acceptable horses furnished by our kind friends, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Gerrish. The road next to follow is a plain wagon passway, leading through a farming settlement some five miles to the prospective town of Dungeness, from which place, next week this will be

Telegraphic Summary.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12.—A Los Angeles dispatch says a volcanic eruption occurred in the mountains opposite Flowing Wells station, on the Southern Pacific about 60 miles from Yuma, at 9 yesterday morning. It was preceded by a violent vibration of the earth, about half an hour after which a dense volume of smoke and black and broken bottles were observed to issue from the mountain. It continued in an active state all day, but became nearly passive at nightfall.

It is understood Prince Gortschoff is still very anxious for peace, but he considers the Turks not yet sufficiently beaten to warrant propositions looking to that end.

The delay of Russian corps in crossing the Danube is having a bad effect on the army.

Gen. Grant evinces particular pleasure of receiving an invitation of Lord Provost of Edinburgh. He intends to make a long stay in Scotland.

A corps of Montenegrin troops, isolated from the main body, was surprised by a body of Turks numbering 2,000 and a terrific engagement followed. The Montenegrin corps was completely exterminated.

(By telegraph to the Argus.) PORT GAMBLE, June 12.—Sch. Letitia sailed for Vallejo, and bark David Hoadley, for San Francisco.

14th.—The men have just arrived here from Seabeck, who have been meeting the disturbance between the two places for the purpose of ascertaining how much wire it would take for a telegraph line. The distance is 20 miles and 50 chains. Bark Rainer is expected every day with the new boiler for the steamer Gollah. Lined to Seattle down.

KORTER'S Hotel is the latest improvement at Port Ludlow.

PORT TOWNSEND is to have, from this time on, a resident Catholic Priest.

PUGET SOUND ARGUS.

LOCAL NEWS.

GOOD READING.—Mr. W. H. Whitwell traveling agent for the "Illustrated Weekly," published in New York city, is in town, and proposes to canvass the lower part of the Sound for that paper. It is published at 14, Warren st., by Charles Cues & Co. Among the names on its editorial staff are: E. P. Parker and Henry Marks, two able writers. The price of the paper, $3.50 per year, entitles the subscriber to his choice of three large fine chromos, 24x30 inches, besides canvassing for the above paper, and Frank Leslie's "Illustrated Historical Register of the Centennial Exposition" is now a daily authorized agent for the Puget Sound WEEKLY ARGUS, for the counties of Thurston, Pierce, Mason, Lewis, Chehalis, and all of Eastern Washington. He will receive the names of subscribers, their money, receipts therefor, and orders for all kinds of job work, advertising, etc. We predict, through his instrumentality, a thorough stirring up among the reading public.

ON Wednesday evening we had the pleasure of a call from Mr. Jas. Knorr, the far famed traveling correspondent of the Philadelphia "Times." This gentleman's acquaintance is duly appreciated, and will not soon be forgotten. At present he is making a flying visit to the Sound, and will go immediately overland to San Francisco and from there to China and Japan, "bringing up" as he says, about next April, at the Grand World's International Exposition, in Paris. In personal appearance he is hardly a small sized giant, and seems the embodiment of force, both mental and physical. His tall, portly figure and that pleasant countenance together with the most agreeable manners by which he is accompanied, give evidence of the continued companionship of that gentleman with dame Fortune. He reports full lime-bark still rolling about the hills in their usual profusion also that he proposes to make an effort to have a post office established there. Farmers on the island are much encouraged over the late rains, and subsequent growing weather. While it is convenient, we may as well say that in the correspondence of this paper respecting Mr. Knorr's lime-bark, the figures for expenses should have read $1,800 per month instead of $1,200.

PERSONAL.—A call from Mr. Chas. P. Dyer, of Smith's Island Light House, this week, brought information to us of the prosperous condition of his vicinity; and the pleasant face of Mr. J. McQuiry, of the San Juan Line Kline, cheering our sanctum, gave evidence of the continued companionship of that gentleman with dame Fortune. He reports full lime-bark still rolling about the hills in their usual profusion also that he proposes to make an effort to have a post office established there. Farmers on the island are much encouraged over the late rains, and subsequent growing weather. While it is convenient, we may as well say that in the correspondence of this paper respecting Mr. Knorr's lime-bark, the figures for expenses should have read $1,800 per month instead of $1,200.

DO NOT FORGET IT.—The strawberry festival, to be held next Tuesday evening, at the Good Templars' hall. Tickets will be sold at Dr. Hill's drug store, James Jones', and at the ARGUS office, at the reasonable sum of 25 cents each. Go and buy some, and take somebody's lady relative to the festival. After you get there plenty of fresh strawberries, served with sweet cream and sugar, can be obtained at 25 cents per saucer. Pina colada will be among the refreshments, free. A concert on music will furnish vocal and instrumental melody for the occasion, and everybody will enjoy the treat. It will commence about 6 P. M. The program will be applied in setting the M. E. church building.

MR. E. A. FIELDS, of the Daughters Light House, visited our town during the past week, calling at the ARGUS office while here, and giving information in regard to a recent trip made by himself and others to Freshwater bay, Elkwa river and other places below Port Angeles. The following items are gleaned: Crops in that part of the country are looking fresh and green. Some very fine farming land was passed through by the party, near the above mentioned bay, and the gentleman thinks there is probably room in that vicinity for a dozen or fifteen farms on good, unoccupied bottom land. It is true, the land is all unsurveyed as yet, but the settlers living there are hoping to see the tripod, chain and compass soon.

MR. JAS. SMITH, who lives on the outer surface of Port Townsend hill, keeps one of the finest gardens in this part of the country. Strawberries, large and luscious; vegetables of all kinds, and in fact everything that one would feel like living for, graces his grounds. As to flowers—well, just go and take a good look at the splendid variety; it will do your eyes good.

A BRASS spanking new machine for cutting paper, just from Painter & Co., San Francisco, is the latest addition to the furniture of the ARGUS office. It's a "handy thing to have around a house"—especially if the house be occupied by a job printing office.

A HANDSOME donation party a few evenings since was the culmination of a movement started by kindly feelings toward Rev. Mr. Davis, of the Episcopal Church in this town. It was held at the residence of that gentleman, and those who attended say that a very pleasant time was experienced.

CAPT. GILBERT, of the schooner Wind Reed, has again taken charge of his vessel, and will hereafter carry the mail on the route between this port and Neah Bay. We are pleased to see the captain again in his old position. He is undoubtedly the most desirable man for that position that could be obtained.

THANKS.—Those luscious strawberries brought us by Mr. Jas. Smith are irresistible. A few measured over five inches long. A few measured over five inches wide. A few measured over five inches thick. Come again; our constitution will stand any amount of such raisins as this.

Just received at Jas. Jones', a large stock of Jewelry, Gent's collar and cuff buttons, shirt studs, &c., &c.

A PIECE of delayed information reached us this week through the kindness of Mr. Mayott, of Whidbey Island, that gentleman having been the victim of a robbery perpetrated on his house, on the 10th inst., by a couple of men who entered it during his absence, in broad daylight, and appropriated a number of articles of wearing apparel and a pocket book containing a little money and a few papers. Their escape was effected, at Mr. Manks, of Ft. Stevens, saw them since, and thinks one of them looks like Brown, the accomplice of Shepley, the old marauder. They fled in an open boat toward Victoria.

MR. NELSON LAUBACH, of Port Discovery, has gone to East Portland to visit for a few days with his father's family.

FRIEND Clapp, of the Cosmopolitan, is making noteworthy use of some paint on the outside of his hotel buildings.

CALL around at Chas. Barlett's store and see the new goods.

PUGET SOUND ARGUS.

THE TOURIST IN EUROPE.

On the 18th I started for Edinburgh, but stopped off at Melrose. "If thou wouldn't see Melrose a right, Go visit it by pale moonlight."

We went by the Midland railway, which has running on one of its trains two Pullman palaces. The English cars are divided into three compartments, each holding six persons, and they look like Concord coaches. There was a great deal of curiosity manifested by the noble Britons to see the blasted car we were in, but they do not take kindly to them, preferring their own old-fashioned and inconvenient ones that are at least 50 years behind ours. Among other traveling companions was a rather fine looking old Scotchman. At first I could not make up my mind whether it was the Duke of Argyll or the representative of the noble House of Baccagh, so reticent and lordly was his style. I finally spoke to him and some time after invited him to take a smoke. While in the smoking department and after various talks I remarked there were two people I would like to see very much before departing hence — one was Thomas Carlyle and the other was Herbert Spencer. He said, "Ah, Thomas Carlyle was a very great man, but I think I never heard of Spencer." Jerusalem! And this was the man I had mistaken for a Duke! It was a Scotchman who was going to a Water cure at Melrose, and he occupied himself in reading "Barton's Experiment," by the author of Helen's Babies!

We visited Melrose Abbey and Dryburgh Abbey, having stayed over there a day. These are noble ruins. Also Abbotsford, which is only three miles from Melrose and eight miles from Dryburgh. Sir Walter is located at the latter place. Abbotsford is a costly and noble structure, with the most lovely view of the Tweed from his dining hall. We saw all his pictures, books, armor and various relics that he had such a passion for gathering. Price a shilling each. And this leads me to remark that there never was such a land of beggars, as this England. Every man and woman that you look at expects something. You first pay to go into these places and then you are expected to pay the guide; you pay the cabman his regular fee and then you are expected to fee him; to fee the man that opens the door (a volunteer) to let you out; fee the man (a fact) who hands you a programme at the theatre; and pay the man who show the way to the water closets at the railroad stations—they don't have any on the trains!

But enough. I have no time to write of Edinburgh. We here had a jolly time, never had a better; the people are polite, the hotels very fair and the eating first-class.

I wrote this in the hotel drawing room looking out upon Princess' (the fashionable) stroll. In my eye's vision are the columns of Wellington, the beautiful monument to Sir Walter and Edinburgh castle that crowns the adjoining hills across the street.

The "Tribune's" Washington special of the 20th ult. says: The President is pleased with Morton's letter. It was a fact to have undertaken the support of Paeker with the army would have been futile and the result disastrous. At the same time the President did not agree with Morton as to the position and purposes of the Southern people. He did not share Morton's distrust of Southern leaders, but the President declared that whatever may happen in the South now, the Republican party can not be held responsible for it. The South is in the hands of the Democrats, and that party alone must be held responsible for the conduct of public affairs. The President says he had always been a Republican, and is now, and that the Republican party was never more necessary to the nation than it is to day. The party, the President said, was good enough for him, and he intended to stand by it. The language of the President showed very clearly that he did not favor a new party organization as such, and he would not be likely to give any such movement his aid.

HARD WORK.—Men who use their muscles imagine that men who depend upon their brain are strangers to hard work. Never was a greater mistake made. Every successful merchant does more real hard work in the first ten years of his business career than a farmer or blacksmith ever dreamed of.

A New York exchange has the following: It appears that the product of lumber of the Northwest for one year is 2,200,000,000 feet, a quantity of shingles equal to 250,000,000 feet of lumber, and "if we add the pine timber used in home consumption and exported, the whole product will amount to some 2,600,000,000 feet, enough to girdle the globe twenty times over with boards a foot wide, all drawn annually from the lower peninsula, the section of the timber supply of the Northwest with which our lumbermen have to compete in the Eastern markets." The result of this industrious destruction is that mills are dropping out here and there, and that all mills have reached the limit of production, that in five years places which are now of considerable value "will have no pretensions to importance as lumbering districts, and that in the last three years more than one-fourth of the estimated standing pine of the lower peninsula of Michigan has been consumed. Presently the question which far-seeing men are already considering, will force itself upon everybody's attention: Where are the supplies of lumber to be found? In Western Washington Territory and Oregon, where grow millions of feet to the acre.

CENTAUR LINIMENT.

One kind for the Human Family. The other for Horses and Animals.

These Liniments are simply the wonder of the world. Their effects are little less than marvellous.

The White Liniment is for the human family. It will drive Rheumatism, Sciatica and Neuralgia from the system; cures Lumbago, Chilblains, Lockjaw, Stiff Neck, and most cutaneous eruptions; it extracts food from frozen hands and feet, and the poison of bites and stings of venomous reptiles; it subdues swellings, and alleviates pain of every kind. When sprains or bruises occur, it is the most potent remedy ever discovered to heal the injured parts. The Centaur Liniment is used with great efficacy for sore throat, tooth-ache, choked breasts, carnicie and weak back. The following is but a sample of numerous testimonials:

"Indiana Home, Jeff. Co., Ind., May 28, 1875.

"I think it my duty to inform you that I have suffered much with swollen feet and corns. A few bottles of Centaur Liniment has from these swellings in eight days. Now I am perfectly well. The Liniment ought to be applied warm."

BENJAMIN BROWN.

The proof is in the trial. It is reliable, it is handy, it is cheap, and every family should have the White Centaur Liniment.

The Yellow Centaur Liniment is adapted to the tough muscles, cords and flesh of horses and animals. It has performed more wonderful cures, in three years, of spavin, strain, wind-gain, scurvy, and general lameness, than all other remedies in existence. Read what the great expression say of it:

"New York, January, 1874.

"Every owner of horses should have the Centaur Liniment a trial. We consider it the best article ever used in our stables."

"H. MAHER, Supt. Adams Ex. Stables, N. Y."

"W. FULTZ, Supt. U. S. Ex. Stables, N. Y."

"ALB. S. OLIN, Supt. Nat. Ex. Stables, N. Y."

The best patrons of this Liniment are Farriers and Veterinary Surgeons, who are continually using some Liniment. It treats galls, wounds and poll evil, relieves swellings, and is worth millions of dollars annually to farmers, livestock, stock-growers, sheep-rangers, and those having horses or cattle.

What a farmer cannot do for the Centaur Liniment will do at a trifling cost.

These Liniments are sold by all dealers throughout the country. They are warranted by the proprietors, and a bottle will be given to any farrier or physician who desires to test them.

HONEY.

Fitcher's Castoria is a complete substitute for Castor Oil, and is as pleasant to take as honey. It is particularly adapted to feeding and irritable children. It destroys worms, assimilates the food, regulates the stomach, and cures wind and colic. Few remedies are so efficacious for feverishness, croup, worms and whooping-cough. Castoria is a scientific and purely vegetable preparation, more effective than Castor Oil, and neither gives nor gripes.

Prepared by Messrs. J. R. ROSS & Co., 46 DEY street, New York, on the receipt of Sigmund Fitcher, M. D., of Barnstable, Mass.

JAMES C. SWAN,

Attorney at Law, Practitioner in Admiralty AND NOTARY PUBLIC.
