LATEST NEWS SUMMARY.

BY TELEGRAPH TO DATE. W. T. Pearson & Co's saw mill at Great Works, seven miles north of Rainier, burned on the 5th, with stock, a blacksmith shop and 200,000 feet of lumber.

The steamer Dispatch with President Garfield, Secretary Hunt, Admiral Porter and others arrived at Fort Stevens, Oregon on the 5th. They came ashore at a hotel where they dined. There they were met by General Getty and staff. A reception was then held.

Great indignation was aroused at Canton, Ohio, upon finding a vault in the cemetery broken open that had not been opened for twenty-five years, and bones of corpses strewn all around. The supposed object of the desecration was to get jewelry from dead bodies.

A fire at Vicksburg, June 5th, destroyed Spieker's large steam planing mill on Third street, with valuable machinery, lumber and ornamental woodwork. Several small houses in the neighborhood were burned and several badly damaged.

The will of the late Thos. A. Scott, admitted to probate, contains minute provisions for his family and relatives, but no public bequest. Scott made gifts to institutions shortly before his death. The will provides that no inventory or account of the estate shall be filed in any public office.

It is not true that ex-senator Spencer has been appointed first assistant Postmaster General. Tyler's friends say that the position of first assistant has not yet been accepted. If Tyler resigns, the position of some other Indian will succeed him, not ex-senator Conover as has been suggested.

The comptroller of the currency reports that of 467 banks which held $14,635,850 six per cent bonds, all had been extended at 2 1/2 per cent, with the exception of two banks which held $305,500, and three hundred and forty-eight banks held $169,463,950 of five per cent, all of which it is estimated have made applications for an extension, and 1,000 banks holding from three to five million.

A meeting of the Boston produce exchange was held to consider a project for a wolf's fair in that city. Speeches were made by a large number of members favoring it, and a resolution was unanimously adopted that merchants heartily endorse a wolf's fair in Boston in 1885, and we are ready to extend substantial aid to the enterprise. A committee of six was appointed to act with others already appointed.

Gov. Pitkin, of Colorado, received a telegram from the sheriff of Conejos county saying that the county is powerless against desperadoes. C. Allison, a leader, has threatened an attack on the town of Conejos. We have good men but no arms. On receipt of the above the governor offered a reward of one thousand dollars for the capture of Allison, and a hundred each for the remainder of the gang, and also ordered arms shipped to Antonita.

Commissioner Eric and President Jewett, of the Erie and Port Kent, pronounce the story of Eric's visit to the city untrue and President Jewett said that it is not true that Eric elevators are full and that they are not particularly empty. He had not received notification from Vanderbilt that beneficent roads under his control would compete for business in the Erie and Port Kent. He is not in a hurry to expect such notification. The Erie has fully adhered to arrangements.

Three boys, Daniel Frazer, aged 8; Wm. L. Pounds, same age, and Edward Kirron, aged 10, were buried under an embankment on the 5th, taken out dead. Workers were excavating for the foundation of a house. These boys, with a number of others, went into the excavation to play when the embankment fell on them. Thos. Molloy, another boy, was caught under the falling mass but escaped. The contractor will make an investigation as to responsibility for the accident. The lot was not properly protected, and it is said that the embankment was undermined.

Representatives of the attorney general and the second assistant, now in charge of the star contracts investigation, emphatically denied the public rumors that Secretary Blaine is being implicated in the matter. They said that in the interests of himself or implicated friends he endeavored to stop or impede the investigation. The committee of investigation and the superior officers of the department unite in denouncing all such reports as utterly groundless, and say that on the contrary Secretary Blaine is being exceedingly frank and has constantly taken the ground that it should be prosecution to the uttermost.

A special from New York has a story that when Conkling and Platt were contemplating resignation they sent a special messenger to Gov. Cornell with instructions to find whether they were sure of reelection. The intimation was given that Conkling had sent a messenger to Albany on important business, and he was taken into port by Conkling's friends in New York, and he was taken to the Eddy Street Baptist church, and was kidnapped by a man, a stranger to him, taken to Oakland and thence on an emigrant train to New York, arriving in that city on the 23rd ult., while on his way to the Eddy Street Baptist church, he was put into an unoccupied house where he was detained until the following day, when some money was given to him and he was told to go. He came south on a through ticket to Greenville, S. C. He seems to be an exceedingly bright guy and tells many things about his abductors that appear incredible. He says he prefers to live in society Hill.

Flower Garden and Lawn. If any seedling of grass or turfing is to be done, attend to it early, that the grass may become well established before the hot weather comes. In turfing, select the sods with care, and endeavor to introduce no weeds. For seedling on light soil, red-top is best, and for heavy clay soil, Kentucky blue grass. Either of these, with a quart of white clover seed to the bushel, is likely to give a good lawn in our climate, as when the sods are laid, the clover is sown. Select only the best seed, as there is a great difference in quality in grass seeds. A good top-dressing of ashes, plaster, guano or fine bone should be given the lawn each spring. In the planting of trees and shrubs always preserve the balance between the tops and the roots. While the lawn is put in proper shape the appearance and comfort of the exterior of the house should not be overlooked. Most houses have a piazza or veranda of some kind, and this should be furnished with an abundance of climbing vines. The following are the most desirable. With properly arranged, the veranda of a house may be made attractive and afford a comfortable shade. [American Agriculturist.]

Electricity in Surgery. Added to its other valuable functions, electricity may yet perform wonderful services in surgery. At the Toronto General Hospital the other day a young man's leg was amputated with treatment and dispatch by an electric current. Having placed the patient under the influence of ether, the anatomical flaps were made, and then a platinum wire, attached to the two poles of a galvanic battery, was encircled round under the flaps. In a moment this wire was brought to a white heat, and began to cut its way through the limb. By the great heat the ends of the arteries were contracted, and only the larger ones required to be tied. Many of the leading surgeons of the city and a large number of students were present.

PUGET SOUND ARGUS.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF JEFFERSON CO

FRIDAY, JUNE 17, 1881.

THE INDIAN QUESTION.

The Argus has so often and emphatically expressed its views upon this subject that it is unnecessary to reiterate them, except to show that these views are shared by the foremost writers of the age.

"The East, as a usual thing, prefers to look upon the Indian question from the standpoint of the Indian, and reproduces no end of stories of fraud and injustice; the West generally looks upon it from the standpoint of the settler, and adduces innumerable instances of barbarity and cruelty. And the most that any one can do who attempts to view the subject from both standpoints, is to shake his head and declare it sorry business. And probably this will be the utmost that can be done so long as our government, which is so jealous of its sovereignty, does not repudiate the state rights doctrine, yet acknowledges the separate nationality of wandering tribes and makes treaties with them as with foreign nations. The Indian must, like the white man, be treated as an individual. He must be protected in his individual rights, and punished for his individual transgressions. If he is lazy or profligate, he has no more claim to be supported than the white or colored citizen. The reservation system, which provides a place of retreat, a rendezvous, an asylum in winter from which to raid in summer—with its concomitants, the thieving agents and dishonest contractors, has proved a colossal failure. It would prove a failure if the wards so segregated were whites instead of Indians. The most industrious classes would be utterly ruined by being treated by the government as it treats the red men."

While there are undoubtedly many Indian agents who are a credit to the government and themselves, by their honest and wise administration, the most charitable view that can be taken of the system itself is to pronounce it a mistaken policy. The U. S. government intended its treatment of its Indians to be humane and wise. Its formulated theories, however, have proved lamentable failures, and the practice of them even worse.

THEY ENVY US.

Our attention has been called to the following, from the Victoria "Colonist": "We plead guilty to a feeling akin to envy as we read in the Port Townsend Argus a glowing account of the progress that is being made at the iron smelting works near that place. Less than two years ago the enterprise was started and now a second town site has been laid out and preparations have been making for the most ample growth of business. A large furnace for roasting ore is nearly completed, a few yards from the smelting furnace; new buildings are in process of erection, while others have been finished; the company have started a store for the convenience of employees; a new and extensive brickyard has sprung into existence in the immediate vicinity; the company's wharf has been extended to a point where deep water vessels can load at low tide; a new wharf and warehouse have been erected near the hotel, and the wharf in front of the furnaces is being extended along the beach to accommodate the increasing business of the company. What renders success to the American company "gall and wormwood" to the people of the province is the fact that the bog iron ore found near Port Townsend requires to be mixed with the magnetite iron ore from the British Columbia island of Texada before it becomes a merchantable article, and that while we are exporting our iron ore to be smelted at Port Townsend the initiatory steps for doing our own smelting have not yet been taken. The Nanaimo "Free Press" says that this state of things is a shame and a reproach to the province, and aptly adds: "Such an enterprise is made profitable in another territory where they have to come to this province for the iron ore, surely a similar enterprise would be still more profitable on the spot from whence the ore is extracted. The island of Texada is only about thirty miles distant by upon water from the coal mines of this district while on the island itself there is an inexhaustible supply of timber. There are many men in this province who have given a life long service to the smelting of iron, so there would be no need of importing skilled labor. British Columbia is sadly in need of the establishment of manufacturing and industrial enterprises, and it is to be hoped that some effort will be made to draw the idle money from its present coffers and utilize it in furnishing employment to many hundred families, while at the same time earning more for its fortunate owners."

Our B. C. neighbors should remember that their hard ore is even less marketable when un-mixed with the bog ore on this side than ours is without theirs. Like the two parts of a pair of scissors, neither is of much use without the other. If the enterprise of our citizens proves an incentive to emulation by our friends across the straits, 'tis well. We can indulge our contemporaries in their jealous feeling if such a laudable result is likely to ensue.

Port Sound people may find a little comfort in the statement made by Auditor French, during his recent visit to Walla Walla, that the government would hold Villard and his associates to the terms of the original N. P. R. contract, which required that the road shall be constructed to a terminal point on Puget Sound. Under this stipulation the company have received heavy grants of land, and it now remains for them to earn those grants by doing as they agreed to.

The vote in the N. Y. Legislature, for U. S. Senators, has been repeated in all its dreary sameness every day for the last fortnight; and the enterprising dailies that have furnished their readers with a report of it every morning have been rewarded by using the same type to fill up with right along. If fact, one begins to think the legislature must be in collusion with the daily papers.

The once famous sand-lot crowd at San Francisco have at last got to quarreling among themselves so that they do not disturb political parties much. According to the S. F. "Chronicle," Dennis Kearney recently appeared at one of their meetings and was hooted from the speakers' stand. "How have the mighty fallen!"

DIED.

In Port Townsend, W. T., June 11, 1881, LOREN BROWN HASTINGS, aged 66 years 6 months and 24 days.

This is announced the death of one of the pioneer settlers of the Pacific coast, a contemporary of the founder of Port Townsend, and the most estimable citizen. Loren B. Hastings was born in St. Johnsbury, Vermont, Nov. 18, 1814. He came to Oregon in 1847 and settled at Portland where he was employed for a time by our townsman, F. W. Pettigrove, the founder of that city, and where he became a member of the first municipal council of that place. On the 23rd day of October, 1851, Messrs. Pettigrove and Hastings started from Portland for Puget Sound. In a little flat-bottomed skiff, they paddled down the Willamette and Columbia rivers, and up the Cowlitz as far as they could go. From here they trudged sixty miles alone and afoot, through an unbroken wilderness, carrying their food and blankets, to the head waters of Puget Sound. Coming down the Sound, they finally selected Port Townsend Bay for their future location. Mr. Pettigrove with a prophetic eye, declaring this to be the site of the future twin city of Portland. Having secured their claims, they returned and brought their families, arriving here the second time on the 19th day of February, 1852. Since that time, Mr. Hastings was a continuous resident of Port Townsend until the day of his death, honored as a public and private citizen, and mourned for with honest grief when the grim messenger called him from earthly labors. Here he raised a large family (4 sons and 3 daughters) whom he was permitted to guide to the years of maturity and to see settled in lives of usefulness around him, while with the partner of his life he journeyed down the path of Time to a ripe old age. In early days he was successfully engaged in mercantile business here for a long time, at the stand now occupied by his worthy successor, Mr. F. W. James. Here he acquired a snug little fortune, and invested it profitably in real estate and other desirable property. He filled at various times the offices of Justice of the Peace, Treasurer and other county positions of trust, to the satisfaction and credit of his constituents. In 1860 he served with distinction as the representative of Jefferson county in the Territorial legislature. In 1861 he was a candidate for re-election, and, owing to some informality, the votes of one or two precincts were thrown out, and he received a certificate of election, although his opponent, Judge A. Briggs, actually received a small majority of all the votes cast. With a magnanimity indicative of his high sense of honor, Mr. Hastings permitted the equitably elected candidate to take the office, unmolested. In 1864 he was a candidate for a seat in the Territorial Council, but was defeated, by a small majority, by Maj. Van Bokkelen. He retired from politics, but in 1878 he was the republican nominee for Joint Councilman from this district, and would doubtless have been chosen had not a disaffection in his party, from causes with which he had nothing to do, brought out a second republican candidate and divided the party vote. As a temperance man, his career was marked with evidences creditable alike to his head and heart. In 1874-5 he served a term as G. W. Chief of the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., and H. C. In the following year he represented his Grand Lodge at the session of the Supreme Grand Lodge. Being an honored member of the Masonic fraternity, his funeral was conducted under the imposing ceremonies of this order.

Mr. Hastings was not a man of brilliant parts, but his judgment was sound, his intentions and disposition of the best, and his life was sober, upright and worthy of emulation of the general public, and Port Townsend in particular, lose a valuable and useful citizen. The many positions of public trust that he has filled, among which are Commissioner of Immigration and Member of Board of Health for this territory, will hardly be supplied hereafter with more acceptable talent or more faithful service. His death, like his life, was sober, quiet and worthy of emulation of the general public, and Port Townsend in particular, lose a valuable and useful citizen. THE LATE GOVERNOR BRIGGS.

Recently we published and commented upon a telegram announcing the death of Hon. Ansel Briggs, Iowa's first governor, and the eldest brother of our townsman, Judge Albert Briggs. Today we insert extracts from a few Iowa and Nebraska papers, to indicate the estimation in which Gov. Briggs was held where he was best known:

Omaha (Nebr.) "Herald." "Ansel Briggs was a native of New York and came to the west in 1838, making his home in the territory, where he was a prominent citizen for many years. He was an active and stirring man in those days. It was he who established the early stage lines from this city to Dubuque, and from Dubuque to Iowa City. He enjoyed the honorable distinction of having been the first governor of our neighboring state after its admission to the Union, in which position he served the first year of the state, and well from 1846 to 1850. Among his contemporaries in pioneer life were the Dodges, George W. Jones, and other founders of the now imperial commonwealth. Charles Mason, of Burlington, and John F. Kinney, of our own state, received their commissions at his hands as the judges of Iowa. The late Dr. Enos Love, of this city, was president of the state senate of Iowa when he was by Governor Briggs lived in Andrew, Jackson county, a long time, and came out to Nebraska and Omaha in 1854. He was a member of the Florence Land company, and staked and lost his property on a farm that was in him that Florence would be the Omaha of the new state. He was a resident in Belknap, the other formidable rival of this place in those years, and also in Columbus and other towns. In 1860 Gov. Briggs accompanied his expedition, and also to Montana in 1864, whence he returned to resume his residence in Andrew, where he remained until about six years ago when he came back to Omaha where he lived until the sad summons came which called him to eternal rest and peace. Mr. Briggs was married early in life and became the father of eight children. Of this family Mr. John S. Briggs is the only survivor. Dubuque (Ia.) "Herald." "The west of Iowa are rapidly passing under the soil. On the 5th inst. another prominent citizen, at a ripe old age, passed away. He was no less a personage than the first governor of Iowa, Ansel Briggs, and was known by many Dubuquers who remember the early days of the territory, when in ex-Governor Hempstead, who succeeded him as governor of the state. Gov. Hempstead knew him well, and spoke of a "Healthy" reporter, yesterday, in eulogistic terms of the first governor. He lived in Andrew, Jackson county, for many years, and was sheriff of that county at one time. Mr. Hempstead remembered the democratic convention which nominated Mr. Briggs as a candidate for governor. It was held at Iowa City, on Thursday, September 24, 1846, and assembled to nominate two congressmen and state officers. The convention was called to order by F. D. Mills, of Des Moines, who was afterwards killed in Mexico while fighting for his country. Wm. Thompson, of Henry county, was the chairman. He afterwards was sent to congress. J. P. Taylor, of Dubuque was secretary. There were in the convention as delegates, A. McCleary, of Louisa county, afterwards secretary of state; J. B. Goodnow, of Des Moines; J. E. Dyer, of Jackson county, afterwards judge of the United States district court, succeeded by Judge Love; P. B. Breyer, of Jackson county, secretary of the senate, etc. Also a delegate in the convention that nominated Ansel Briggs for governor. Among others were: E. Barstow, now of Iowa City; E. W. Eastman, of Des Moines county, afterwards elected lieutenant governor on the republican ticket; Slep. Leffler, one of the first congressmen from the state; J. H. Bonney, afterwards secretary of state, and E. Cutler, Jr., also elected secretary of state in later years; T. S. Parrish, of Muscatine, now secretary of the Masonic Grand Lodge of the state; A. H. Palmer, formerly editor of the "Iowa Capital" Reporter. From Dubuque county there were: G. Gibson, United States marshal of the territory; C. H. Booth, now deeply interested in railroads; Geo. Greene, of Cedar Rapids, judge of the supreme court, who died a year ago; C. Corkey, who died recently in California; W. G. Stewart, now president of the Dubuque county bank; J. W. Wither, and S. Hempstead, afterwards governor, and of Scott county there was Laurel Sumners, afterwards United States Marshal.

he state government was organized. He was a man of excellent judgment, and his administration was a popular one. Governor Briggs was the first and Governor Hempstead the last democratic governor of Iowa.

It is gratifying to "The Herald" to note the honors which were paid the memory of the venerable ex-Governor Briggs by the state of which he was the first executive. His death cast a gloom over Omaha, where he had resided many years, but even here where he was so greatly honored and where his death was so widely lamented, we felt that to Iowa belonged the right of expressing in some formal way, the public appreciation of a citizen so eminent in her annals and distinguished as her first governor. The great commonwealth, which in the first assumption of sovereignty, was piloted with honest zeal and patriotic fervor by the lamented dead, shared this impression as will be seen by the proclamation of Governor Geay which we print elsewhere in this issue, and by a solemn public testimonial evincing alike her sorrow in the death, and her pride in the citizen whose career of honor and usefulness was inseparably connected with her own.

The Governor's proclamation referred to in the foregoing was a document pregnant with expressions of esteem for the late lamented, and directed that minute guns be fired in his honor at the capital of the state, from sunrise to noon of the day of the funeral, and that flags be displayed at half mast on all public buildings in the state.

From Judge Briggs we learn a few particulars in addition to those already in type, and in contravention of one or two errors. Ansel Briggs was born in Vermont, and not in New York. He was twice married, first in Cambridge, Guernsey county, Ohio, to Miss Nancy Dunlap, daughter of Maj. Dunlap, an officer of the war of 1812. By this marriage his children were born. His parents, Benjamin Ingley Briggs and Electa Briggs, moved to Cambridge, Ohio, where Young Ansel grew to manhood, and where he was a whig first ran for office against John Ferguson, a Jackson democrat, for the office of County Auditor. In this contest he was defeated. Later on, after he had moved to Andrew, (Iowa) he appeared in politics as a democrat, was elected to the state legislature and afterwards sheriff of the county. He has no brothers living in California, as has been erroneously stated; but one, Rowell Briggs, lives in Southern Oregon, where he and two or three sons settled.

Judge Albert Briggs, unlike his distinguished brother, has been a republican ever since he, as a whig, became merged into that party. Coming west in early days, he settled in Oregon, from which state he subsequently removed to Washington Territory and chose a pleasant spot on the shore of Port Townsend Bay as his home. He was twice elected to the legislature of Washington Territory, representing Jefferson county at the sessions of 1861-2 and 1863-4. He also served as Probate Judge of the county about 14 years, from which office he received his title. He is at present chairman of the County Republican Central Committee. He is as spry as most young men, though advancing years are telling somewhat on his personal appearance.

Ayer's Hair Vigor, FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR. It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use the hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brassy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable. The Vigor cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible. As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair. The Vigor is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence. PREPARED BY Dr. J. C. AYER & CO., Lowell, Mass., Practical and Analytical Chemists. SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

BRIEF LOCAL ITEMS.

MR. Hotchkiss, of New Dungeness, is in town.

PLENTY of California fruit in the market now.

MR. D. H. Hill took a trip to New Tacoma last week.

MR. Geo. Starming went to San Francisco last week.

DON'T fail to read the advertisement of the Port Discovery celebration.

THE Dispatch carried a number of passengers to Clallam county this week.

LADIES' side-lined French kid shoes at Gross Bros.

RECENT rains and raw, cold weather, have put a quietus on the strawberry crop.

OUR friend, Master Theodore Haller is spending his summer vacation in this place.

MEMO. Waterman & Katz express their sincere thanks to the people for assistance, elsewhere.

RETURNED.—Mr. A. I. Smith returned from San Francisco this week, after an absence of some two months.

AT the San Francisco Store can be had all wood saws 28 in. wide, at 75 cts per yard.

READ Mr. Miller's advertisement of "wood choppers wanted." It may be you can strike a good job.

MRS. A. A. Finner, Jr., of New Tacoma, has been visiting her parents, brothers and friends in Port Townsend.

If you want good cigars, nice fruit, or fresh codfish, go to James Jones, head of Union wharf, opposite Central Hotel.

MR. James Simons received a fine new wagon from San Francisco this week. It will be used by him in hauling cord wood.

EXTRA quality of Dredgate, (Drainage) $1.20 per yard at Gross Bros.

Mrs. Cooper, wife of the pastor of the M. E. Church in this place, left on Monday last for the Chehalis valley where she will visit a daughter, Mrs. Medcalf.

The attention of our local readers is called to Mr. McCabe's advertisement of money found. Feel free in your pants and see if you haven't lost a little specie.

The largest assortment and latest styles of Summer Cloaks and Umbrellas can be found at Gross Bros.

OUR friends of the Catholic persuasion have been successfully soliciting subscriptions for the erection of a new church building for that denomination, on a pleasant lot adjoining Mr. Eisenbels' residence on the hill.

GROSS BROS. have received the largest assortment of Black Cashmere and Dredgate that was in Port Townsend.

THE Methodists had a festival at Good Templars' Hall last Tuesday evening, at which strawberries and ice-cream sustained several losses. The affair was successfully and pleasantly carried out. Gross receipts about $20.

Prof. A. L. Francis, agent for leading pianos and organs, will visit Port Townsend on or about June 23th. First-class tuning and repairing done on short notice. Any orders left at the Central Hotel will receive prompt attention.

GROSS BROS. have received another immense stock of dry goods, clothing, fancy goods, boots, shoes, etc. These gentlemen are energetic, buy for cash, and in fact sell best quality of goods at bottom figures. They surely deserve the patronage of the public.

SEVEN BACK.—On Tuesday we were shown a handsome specimen brick from Mr. S. L. Hunt's first kiln at Ironside. Mr. James McCarty, a competent young bricklayer, is interested in these brick and feels justly proud of the result attained. The clay, he says, is the very best quality, and we should judge from the looks of the article produced that it would compete successfully with any manufactured elsewhere.

LARGE PIT.—Mr. J. N. Griffith, boss coal burner at Ironside, called on us yesterday, on business, and mentioned incidentally that he had just put up a monster pit containing 245 cords of wood. This, we believe, is the largest pit of the kind ever put up in the territory or Oregon. Mr. G. says the yield of coal is just as large in proportion as in small pits, and that much labor is saved by burning large ones.

MR. F. W. James, who advertises his business in to-day's ARGUS, is a thoroughly reliable merchant in every respect. Having successfully conducted a thriving trade in our midst for many years, he needs no superfluous puffing to commend him to all who have anything to do in his line. As an exchanger of money values in various forms of securities, he is found careful and competent enough to suit any banker's taste. Parties at a distance can deal with him with perfect assurance of honorable dealing.

DROWNED.—We learn that on Tuesday a man named Coleman was drowned in Port Angeles harbor, in the following manner: A small boat belonging to him had got loose somehow and drifted out into the bay. As there was no other boat near, he stripped and swam out to recover it. The supposition is that he must have been taken with cramps, as he was still floating, and was not long afterwards, when picked up a short time afterwards. Every effort to restore life was made, but without avail. Deceased left a little girl, about 5 years old, in this place.

SERIOUS COLLAPSE.

Waterman & Katz Lose their Wharf and Warehouse, and Have a Large Lot of Goods Damaged.

On Tuesday morning, at about 8:30, our citizens were startled by a loud crash which proved to be the noise of a sudden and complete collapse of Messrs. Waterman & Katz' wharf and warehouse, the latter filled with a large stock of assorted merchandise. The steaming schooner Ariel, Capt. Hamilton, had tied up to the wharf on the west side; when the tide went out she careened over against the structure, and, being several feet away, the weight was so great that her weight sent the structure crashing into a perfect wreck. Capt. Dalgarno's sealing schooner, Jennie, was moored on the opposite side of the wharf, and the tremendous weight threw her over on her side, stove her anchor and a pile into her upper side and crushed the lower side in several places. She will prove almost if not quite a total loss.

Bad as the accident was, it was very fortunate that no one was killed or seriously hurt. Mr. Horace Tucker had just left a box of tools in the warehouse, and had gone away for a few minutes, intending to return and do some carpenter work when the structure went down. Mr. Landes had just been in the warehouse, and a young man named Turner, a clerk for the firm, was in the warehouse when it fell. He was miraculously saved and was pulled out unharmed from the debris. "Jimmy" Dalgarno was sleeping on board the Jennie, and his father, mother, sister and a little brother were on the wharf; they were just about calling the young man to breakfast when he received a summons more forcible than polite, being thrown out of his bunk under the impression that the world was coming to an end. Capt. Dalgarno and another man were in the warehouse when it started, but seeing it going they ran out near the end of the wharf and escaped, and went away under his own power, but he was so much shocked that he "squeezed to death." He came to, greatly surprised to find himself alive, and was more scared than ever when some one told him that there was 300 pounds of gold powder in the building, and he reflected upon the difficulty he would have had in picking up the pieces of him if that combustible stuff had exploded. Mr. Clogher was standing near the inner end of the warehouse, and barely escaped. The men of the Ariel were scraping her bottom on the lower side, and had just left off work to make a line fast from their vessel to Mr. Eisenbels' wharf; so they escaped. Although it was a providential escape all around.

Immediately after the crash the spot was lined with spectators, old and young, eager to assist in carrying the goods out to a place of safety. Fortunately the tide was out and still receding, so that very little of the goods got wet and there was time to get everything out before the tide raised. All the drays in town were put to work hauling, a scow was taken to the lower side and filled with goods, and steps were erected to the base of the wharf, over which a constant stream of men and boys hurried both ways, bearing away packages of merchandise, for several hours. Considerable damage was done by the breaking of packages. Loss estimated at $4,000 or $5,000. Insured against fire only, which of course is of no avail. The schooner Ariel has been labelled for damages, but with poor chances of recovering anything. This loss is a serious one to the enterprising firm sustaining it, but they will doubtless survive it with that vitality for which they are proverbial. They have the sympathy of the entire community. The schooner Jennie was insured for $1,000, against total loss by marine disaster. Whether it can be recovered in this case or not remains to be seen. If not, Capt. Dalgarno will sustain a heavy loss.

FIRE.—Yesterday afternoon a dwelling house on Maple Avenue, belonging to Mr. H. L. Tibbals, Jr., and occupied by the family of Mr. Croton, an employee on the revenue cutter Wolcott, burned down. The fire originated from the kitchen stove, presumably by burning soot. The alarm was sounded and nearly everybody in town hastened to the spot, but it was too late to do anything except to save the fence and woodshed. Parties who arrived first carried out most of the household goods in the lower part of the house, but all that was upstairs was lost. Insured for $200, about enough to cover the loss of the building. A subscription was started for the family thus bereft of much of their householding outfit.

Mrs. Susan Irwin, a valiant young huntress, (is that the right word?) recently killed a monster bear, near Sequim.

In view of dangers from small-pox, Health Officer Minor has written to the P. C. S. B. authorities ordering that their vessels do not land here until they have first been inspected, and requesting that they come in reasonable hours only.

Any one desirous of purchasing choice harness, double or single, will do well to leave orders with O. H. Holcombe, as he is agent for an eastern firm whose harness gives the best of satisfaction, both in quality and style. This can easily be proven by taking a look at Mr. James Salley's harness which was purchased by Mr. Holcombe, and is pronounced by competent judges to be the best style of harness in the place.

KING county's debt April 30, 1881, was over $25,000, an increase of over $11,000 in one year, which does not speak very encouraging words to the taxpayers of that county. Jefferson county does not put on as many airs as her neighbor, but she is out of debt.

Near Wallula, recently, two passengers on the cars were killed by poking their heads out of a car window. People never learn how to fool with railroad cars or nitroglycerine until they are translated and look down from angelic heights on the antics of other toils.

The Dispatch brought up a number of passengers from Clallam county, this week, among whom were Mrs. Capt. McAlmond, Mrs. Lotzgozelle and daughter, Capt. F. Tucker, and Mr. Blakeslee, of Dungeness, Mr. Martin, of Iloko, and Mrs. C. F. King, of this place.

The prospect for a large grain crop in this locality is never better than this season. There probably is not less than six thousand acres sown; and all this has been sown in good season—much earlier than usual, and hence promises to yield handsomely.—P. S. "Mail," La Conner.

COMMUNICATED.

POST DISCOVERY, June 13, 1881.

EDITOR ARGUS.—The people of Port Discovery have arisen in the strength of their might. The decree has gone forth that we celebrate.

The citizens of this place met sometime ago to consider the feasibility of celebrating the 4th of July at this place. A committee was appointed to consider the matter and solicit subscriptions of money and report at a future meeting. Such meeting took place last Thursday evening, at which the committee reported a sufficient amount to insure success. It was the unanimous opinion of the citizens here that, inasmuch as we had heretofore gone abroad to celebrate the 4th of July, we should stay at home, invite the people here and celebrate in "due and ancient form."

The celebration is in the hands of an efficient committee consisting of E. B. Mastick, Jr., J. B. Smith and George W. O'Brien. Now let the people of this and adjoining counties gather together here and assist us in giving prominence to this day hallowed in the hearts of freemen.

The steamer Hornet will carry passengers from Jamestown and Dungeness on the 4th of July, and return the next day, free of charge. Arrangements have been made so that persons from Port Townsend, wishing to come, will be carried at half rates by stage and steamer Fannie and Hornet.

Come one, come all! Although our town is small our hospitality is large. E. A. COLLINS.

A Card of Thanks.

The undersigned desire to express their sincere and heartfelt thanks to the public of Port Townsend for generous aid in saving their goods from destruction on the occasion of the crushing of their wharf and warehouse last Tuesday.
